British Capture Burma Stronghold

MYSTERIOUS REBEL CHIEFTAIN DIRECTING HIS FORCES TO LAST DISCOVERED DEAD IN HIS PALACE

Defeat Comes After Gov't Troops Hack Way Through Impassable Jungle.

30 SLAIN IN FIGHT.

No Clue Found as to Identity of Fair Insurgent General—Fort Burned.

RANGOON, Burma, January 2 (C.P.). — The mysterious "man who would be king" who directed the recent series of savage raids on Burmese jungle villages is believed to have been killed by Government troops which returned here to-day after sacking the rebel stronghold and burning an almost impregnable palace.

The soldiers told of hacking their way at dusk through an almost impassable jungle to a hidden palace. This they captured after a stiff engagement in which 30 of the blue pyjama-uniformed rebels were killed and one British soldier was slightly wounded. In the palace was the body of a tall muscular, fair-complexioned Burman, on the head a royal turban. An examination revealed that he had wasted away with fever. He apparently had been directing the rebel troops to the last despite severe sickness.

Palace Burned.

In other rooms of the palace were found cartridges, dynamite, and gasoline. These the British confiscated. They returned through the jungle without discovering the identity of the sinister figure whose generalship of the savage warriors created a reign of terror in scores of jungle villages.

Scattered remnants of the rebel forces are still being pursued.

IRENE STEWART IS LAID TO REST

All Saints' Church Was Filled to Capacity For Funeral of Girl.

TRAGIC DEATH.

All Saint's Church was crowded yesterday afternoon, as the bier bearing the remains of Irene Stewart nineteen years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stewart of this city was reverently borne up the aisle and was placed at rest at the foot of the chancel steps.

Her death under such tragic circumstances, in the early hours of last Tuesday morning, caused a great wave of sympathy which was extended to the bereaved parents and to her brother, Bruce Irwin Stewart of Galt, and sister, Mrs. W. A. Patterson of Monaghan township.

Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, rector of All Saints' church spoke in eulogistic terms of the late Miss Stewart, who was an ardent worker in the Parish and a member of the Young Women's Bible Class. Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, pastor of George street United Church, likewise spoke in high terms of the deceased girl and assisted in the final obsequies at the graveside at Little Lake cemetery.

All the members of the Young Womens' Bible Class along with their teacher, Miss B. Dawson, attended the service in a body.

Allan Lewis, nineteen years old driver of the car in which the late Miss Stewart was riding in company with Miss Ethel Gamble, was also present at the funeral.

The bearers were: Messrs. G. Williamson, A. Thompson, V. Fuller, Sproule, Dunlop and Abraham.

Woman Is Identified By Her Dog's Barking

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 2.—The barking of an unfed dog resulted in revealing the identity of a woman whose body lay in the Ottawa morgue for two days, unknown and unclaimed. The woman dropped dead in a downtown store last Tuesday. Nothing on her person gave a clue to her identity.

When police were called yesterday by persons irritated at the constant barking of a dog in a house in the neighborhood, they found the place unoccupied save for the dog. Subsequent investigation revealed that Miss Lillian Murphy, 42, cook and sole occupant of the residence in the absence abroad of her employer had not been seen since Tuesday and it was later determined it was she who had dropped head of heart failure.

Four Hour 'Quake Felt at Ottawa

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 2 (C.P.)—An earthquake of four hours' duration was registered on the seismograph at the Dominion Experimental Farm Observatory here this morning. The 'quake, whose epicentre was estimated to be 2,530 miles distant from the Capital, was described by the seismologist as severe. Owing to the light character of the preliminary tremors, it was impossible to determine the direction from here of the 'quakes origin.

First preliminary tremors were registered at 56 minutes and 15 seconds past four o'clock this morning, Eastern standard time, some five seconds after the time of their origin.

PANAMA GOV'T IS OVERTHROWN IN SUDDEN COUP

President Arosemena Names Arias Successor and Then Resigns.

10 ARE SLAIN.

U. S. Newspaper Correspondent Succumbs From Wounds Received at Palace.

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 2 (C.P.) — President Arosemena, overthrown in a sudden revolt this morning, this afternoon named Harmodio Arias, Premier of Panama, then resigned as President, leaving Arias at liberty to form a new Cabinet.

This arrangement was reached in a conference between the President and the revolutionary leaders; it leaves Arias and his party in full charge of the Government.

Premier Daniel Ballen also resigned, but the status of Vice President Tomas Gabriel Duque was not immediate ascertained.

Newspaperman Killed

Hartwell F. Ayers, American newspaper correspondent, who was wounded in the fighting which accompanied this morning's successful revolt, died at noon in the Gorgas Hospital.

The revolutionists captured police headquarters and established their own patrol of civilian guards, while another attack was directed against the Palace which surrendered after a brief skirmish.

At least ten persons were killed and a score or so wounded in the fighting about the Palace and police station. Hartwell F. Ayres, a newspaper correspondent from the United States was critically wounded.

Troops Held Up

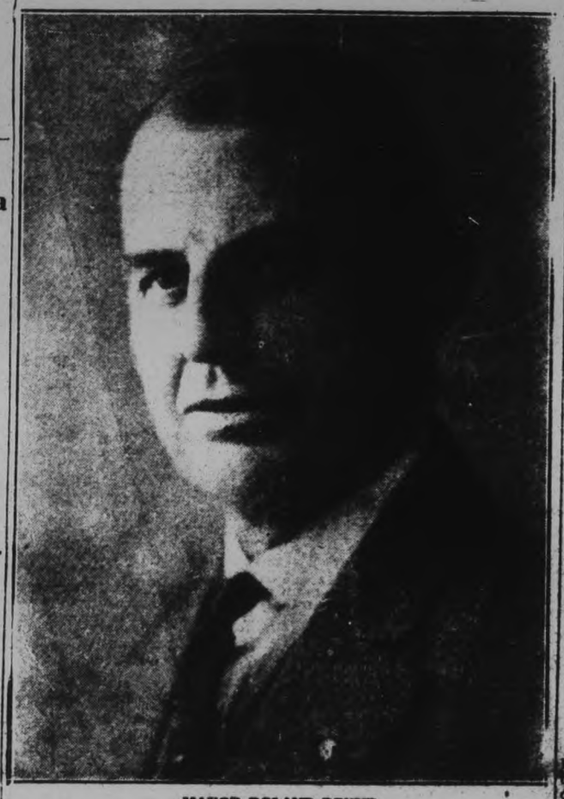
While political leaders and representatives of Spain, Italy, Cuba and Costa Rica conferred with Roy T. Davis, the United States Minister, reports came from Colon that the Governor of that Province had dispatched 500 Colon police to support the Arosemena Government, but that the Panama Railway refused to carry the armed body.

The Colon Governor minimized the importance of the revolt, attributing it to a comparatively small group of malcontents headed by Dr. Harmodio Arias, head of the Junta Government. He asserted that all the nine Provinces of the Republic were loyal to Arosemena.

United States troops were guarding the Legation and patrolling the border, but after the first flurry of fighting there was little disorder.

Francisco Paredes, one of the leaders of the revolt, characterized the movement as "lamentable," but declared it had the backing of public opinion, which regards the revolution as an attack upon "graft and political tyranny."

Piles Up Huge Majority



MAYOR ROLAND DENNE

who was re-elected Mayor of Peterborough for a fourth term at the municipal election held yesterday. Mayor Denne defeated Alderman Malcolm McIntyre by over 2,200 votes, establishing a record majority in the Mayoralty contest since Peterborough became a city. It is also the first time that Peterborough as a city has had the same man as Mayor for four consecutive years.

REVIEW OF ECONOMIC CONDITIONS SHOWS RETURN TO NORMAL IS NEAR

Beatty Claims Wheat Situation is By Far the Worst Question.

BUSINESS DECLINE VARIES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (C.P.).—In a signed article appearing in to-day's New York World, W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, reviews economic conditions in Canada during the past year. He states:

During the greater part of the past year we have been faced with one of those passing periods of depression which have made themselves felt at varying intervals throughout the economic history of this continent. It can truthfully be said that Canada, on the whole, has suffered less than other countries whose position in world trade is as great or greater, and there is no question but that as compared to that of the United States, not only has Canada's business activity not fallen off to the same extent, but there exists a reasonable expectancy that a return to more normal conditions may not be so long delayed.

Wheat Worst Question.

The wheat situation is by far the most outstanding factor. It is a serious problem, involving the direct welfare of a large and important section of our people and affecting all our domestic trade and industry. There is, I believe, a danger of becoming increasingly pronounced a psychological side to the present situation, and it bodes no good.

Its influence would be to deepen depression and to further postpone the recovery that authoritative observers say is already perceptible on the horizon. Canada has successfully ridden out worse storms than this, and some of them were far back in the days when the country was not nearly so well equipped to meet adverse conditions.

For the same period loadings of mine products under the headings of coal, coke and ore total 431,340 or very nearly as great as those from agriculture, while those of the forest under the headings of lumber pulpwood, pulp and paper and other forest products were greater than either, totalling 494,623 cars. Strike By Weavers May Be Averted

MANCHESTER, Eng., Jan. 2 (C.P.). —There seemed a possibility to-day that the threatening strike in the Lancashire cotton industry might be averted. Representatives of weavers and mill owners were in conference this morning and it was understood that they expected to reach some compromise.

Earlier this week the weavers threatened a strike affecting 200,000 men on January 5. The point at issue is the owners' demand that each weaver take over approximately double the number of looms now operated. They offered a substantial wage increase, but the weavers refused the demand on the ground that the proposed system would throw many men out of work.

BLAZE IN QUEBEC RAZES 2 STORES

LOSS UNESTIMATED.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 2—A Du Fort Street four storey brick building was destroyed by fire, and the upper floor of the Chien D'or Cafe, and an adjoing store occupied by A. J. Alexander, furriers, were damaged by the blaze here today. The loss has not been estimated.

The fire which broke out in the destroyed building, three floors of which were used as a rooming house and the other by a store operated by the United Cigar Stores. It quickly spread to the Chien D'or and Alexander establishments and was not brought under control until about four hours after it started.

INQUEST IS HELD INTO DEATH OF IRENE STEWART

EVIDENCE CONTRADICTED.

More than usual interest was manifest by the public, in the inquiry conducted by Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young on New Year's Eve, into the circumstances attending the death of Irene Stewart, who died shortly after admittance to Nicholls Hospital in the early hours of Tuesday morning.

We, the jury, find that Miss Irene Stewart, met her death on December 30, 1930, on highway number 7, from injuries received in a car accident; said car being driven by Allan Lewis, and in our opinion that from evidence submitted, that excessive speed was the cause of the accident."

Long before the time set for the hearing, the Police Court room was crowded and many people stood all during the proceedings. After the jury had retired to consider their verdict, the majority of the spectators waited for the result.

Miss Ethel Gamble was not present to testify.

Allan Lewis, nineteen years old driver of death car, who was held in custody, by the Provincial Police on a charge of criminal negligence, appeared in court on subpeona, and testified on his own behalf. He had just previously been released on bail in the sum of $4,000, and was legally represented by R. R. Hall, K.C.

Mr. Hall did not raise very strenuous objection to his client giving evidence, but stated, "in view of the charge against him, I wish it understood that the evidence he does give shall not prejudice him in subsequent criminal proceedings."

A touch of the sensational was added to the proceedings, by the conflicting evidence given by Lewis

The Weather

During the year 1930, the rainfall in this section was deficient to the amount of five or six inches. This deficiency was altogether in the latter half—the Winter and Spring months having the usual monthly rainfalls. Herewith are the totals for the individual months of the year:

	Inches.
January	3.78
February	3.16
March	3.23
April	2.29
May	3.98
June	3.23
July	2.61
August	1.85
September	1.65
October	1.04
November	1.40
December	1.13
	29.35

There was an absence of heavy snowfalls or severe thunderstorms.

The coldest day of the year was February 6 with 26 degrees below zero. Other cold days were February 16, with 16 below; Feb. 17, with 17 below; Jan. 11, 15 below; Jan. 17, 13 below; Jan. 26, 19 below, and Dec. 2, 12 below.

The highest temperature reached was 90 degrees on August 8. There were numerous days when the thermometer went high in the 80's, but on the whole there was not the excessive heat of some years.

Good sleighing lasted until March 1. It began about Dec. 2 of 1929. There were about ninety days of fair to good sleighing. One hundred days is the usual figure in the average year.

It has been noticed that if there is not good sleighing before Christmas there is little afterwards.

That these facts and figures may prove of some interest to the reader and that he or she may have a Happy New Year is the sincere wish of W.P.

Ex-Alderman Mel. Turner Heads Polls, Ald. Phelan Is Second, Holland Third

VOTING IS CLOSE.

Alderman Phelan Enters Upon His Twelfth Year on Peterborough Council.

Two new men will occupy seats in the City Council during 1931, in the persons of E. Melville Turner, who was elected at the head of the polls and James Hamilton, who was placed fourth in the list of returns. The term 'new men', is used ambiguously, because they have both several years previous service on the City Council to their credit, although an interval has elapsed since they last assisted in administering the civic government. Of the ten thousand or so citizens, who are entitled to vote on municipal affairs, the five thousand and more who turned out to the polls distributed their votes on behalf of the successful candidates as follows:

E. Melville Turner	3192
Nagle Phelan	2863
Daniel Holland	2648
James Hamilton	2584
J. A. McNabb	2553

The four defeated candidates with the votes they polled were: Harry C. Huffman 2553; Fred O. Goodfellow 2179; James Ellis, 2123 and Richard C. Heard 1691.

It is noteworthy that in their choice the ratepayers showed respect for men with previous experience and gave evidence of renewed confidence in three of the aldermen who served on last year's Council and in preceding years, namely Alderman Phelan who enters upon his twelfth consecutive year of office, ten years of which he has spent as chairman of the Finance Committee and Alderman Holland and Alderman McNabb, who were first elected to the Council two years ago. The former served in 1930 as chairman of the Property Committee and the latter as chairman of the Claims committee. Surprise was expressed in many quarters, however at the fact that Harry Huffman was beaten by a margin of 12 votes, his appeal to the electors being based upon a worthy record during his three years in the Council, and as administrator of the Board of Works Committee, during the past year.

He received 2553 votes this year against 2240 in 1929 and 991 in the year 1927.

As evidence that more interest was taken in this year's municipal elections than last year, probably on account of the mayoralty contest, it is interesting to note that Alderman-elect Turner had a plurality of 318 votes, as compared with Alderman John D. Fitzpatrick, who headed the polls last year, while he had 329 more votes than Alderman Phelan in second place.

Turner's own ward, the North Ward, returned him at the head of the polls at eight divisions. The West Ward also voted strongly in his favor, returning him in the lead in six divisions. In the South Ward he headed four polls and in Central Ward three polls, while in East City the balance swung in favor of Ellis.

There was but a small margin of difference between the other three successful candidates and between the man in sixth place, the largest spread being 62 votes and the smallest but 12 votes. The difference between the man at the head of the poll and the unsuccessful candidate who footed

Clarkson Remanded On Murder Charge

TORONTO, Jan. 2 (C.P.). — Harry Clarkson, of Windsor, who faces a charge of murder arising out of the fatal shooting of Police Constable Roy McQuillin several weeks ago, was again remanded when he appeared in Police Court to-day to answer the charge. Clarkson has been remanded on two previous occasions, and will make an appearance in court every week until such time as his companion, Jack Brokenshire, who is at present in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from bullet wounds received when he tried to evade capture, is able to make an appearance. According to the police, Brokenshire has admitted shooting the constable. It is not expected that Brokenshire will be able to leave the hospital for some time as he is still in a weak condition.

AMY JOHNSON ON LONE FLIGHT ACROSS SIBERIA

GENERAL SURPRISE.

Authorities Fear For Safety on Winter Trip Over Barrens to Peiping.

COLOGNE, Germany, January 2 (C.P.) — Miss Amy Johnson, British girl flier on a flight to Peiping, China, landed here at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon. She plans to fly to Berlin to-morrow.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 2 (AP)—General astonishment has been aroused in Great Britain by departure of Miss Amy Johnson, 23 year old girl aviator, on a long lone flight across snow-covered Northern Eurasia to Peiping, China.

Leaving Hendon Airdrome yesterday forenoon, Miss Johnson stopped at Lympne momentarily and proceeded to Liege, Belgium, for the night. She will continue to Berlin, then to Moscow, where equipping her plane with skis she will fly on across barren Siberia and Mongolia to Peiping.

In Ill Health

The Daily Express says that Miss Johnson was in ill health and had become a neurotic from the strain of her flight to Australia. The paper quoted an airman friend George Campkin, as saying that she had never recovered from the Australian ordeal, and is overstrung, irritable, depressed and restless and does not realize what a winter flight over the sub-Arctic snowfields involves.

The Soviet Embassy at London told the Daily Herald that such a flight as she contemplated would be very difficult and that she must be prepared for intense cold with the ground perhaps several feet deep in snow, adding that she would be all right if she reached an airdrome at every landing but that she did not know what hazards she might have to reach.

Phases of the flight were the basis of conflicting reports in some of the London newspapers. Wednesday he was charged in a London police court with having left an automobile unattended in the street but she obtained dismissal of the charges by revealing a mysterious employment in Government service.

While the Daily Mail said that Amy's parents had been kept in ignorance of her intentions to make the flight the Daily Express quoted the mother as saying: "We approve the flight because we must. After what she has gone through this adventure will be a relief and soothing influence for her. She has shown restlessness at home for months."

LEADS AT EVERY POLL.

5,189 Citizens Turned Out Yesterday to Poll Their Votes.

Mayor Denne was returned to office in yesterday's election by the largest majority ever amassed by a mayoralty candidate in Peterborough. He was swept into the mayor's chair for his fourth term on a virtual avalanche of votes, piling up a majority of 2,215 over his opponent, Malcolm McIntyre. His majority topped by more than 700, the total vote gained by McIntyre, a careful count last night giving him 3,694 as total as against his opponent's 1,479.

By virtue of his sweeping victory, Mayor Denne sets up another record; he is the first to be this city's mayor for four consecutive years since Peterborough became a city. Others have been chief magistrate for four terms or more, but never in this century.

Records Shattered.

In other respects too, yesterday's results shattered all previous records of success at the polls. Every subdivision returned a Denne majority, and at all but eight his majority was more than the total vote polled by his opponent. From twelve polls his majorities were double the votes given McIntyre. His largest majority was 118, obtained at Poll 23 in the West Ward, and his smallest, 30, was returned by two polls, No. 38 in the North Ward and No. 37 in the East Ward.

By wards the results were:

	Denne	McIntyre	Maj.
South Ward	923	386	537
Centre Ward	388	110	278
West Ward	1,064	363	701
North Ward	804	373	431
East Ward	515	247	268

Old masters of the municipal election ring, who gathered in the Committee Room of the City Hall to learn the results as soon as they came over the phone to the ear of City Clerk Armstrong, stated that a small vote had been cast. They declared that the cold weather prevailing during the morning had kept the vote down. Scrutineers reported that few visited the polls in the morning but that after dinner voting was brisk. They estimated that more than three-fourths of the vote was polled in the afternoon.

5,189 Voted.

Be this as it may, 5,189 ratepayers rode or walked to the polls and used their right to vote. These figures compare favorably with those of mayoralty elections of the past five years. In 1928, when Denne defeated Phelan, a total of 5,700 were cast, and 1926, when Phelan fell before Dr. W. T. Holloway, 5,246 was the total vote.

The biggest vote polled at a single sub-division was returned at No. 24 in the West Ward, 181, 133 for Denne and 48 for McIntyre. No. 2 returned the biggest total in the South Ward, 139; No. 14 in the Centre Ward, 117; No. 28 in the North Ward, 157; No. 37 in the East Ward, 146.

Mayor Denne's victory was never in doubt and was early assured. Two minutes after the polls closed, Walter Fisher phoned in from No. 15, located in the Sanitary Inspector's office of the City Hall, with the first returns. His poll gave Denne a majority of 71. Two minutes later Felix Brownscombe, who had his customary record of being the first one in with his results stolen by Fisher's speed, phoned in from No. 14 with a Denne majority of 36. At 5:06 A. E. Patterson, of Poll 13, walked in with his report: a Denne majority of 84. From the West Ward No. 22, Nelson Rowley phoned in a 56 majority for Denne. From No. 2 in the South Ward came a report of 47 majority for Denne. No. 26, North Ward gave a Denne majority of 47 and Alex Butcher phoned in a majority of 49 from 39 in the East Ward. With first reports from all wards in, and all having returned large Denne majorities, the election was conceded to Denne. Not more than ten minutes had [illegible] from the time the polls closed when the victory was positively certain.

The defeated candidate, Malcolm McIntyre, was present in the Committee Room for more than thirty minutes while the results were pouring in. He was calm and unperturbed as the majorities piled up against him, and concealed any disappointment he may have felt beneath a pleasing smile. When The Examiner announced Denne's majority at 5:45 at 1495 he exclaimed, "That's a real majority."

TORONTO MAYOR GOES IN OFFICE BY 381 MAJORITY

W. J. Stewart Defeats Sam McBride By 57,500 Votes to 57,119.

RECORD POLL.

Ramsden, Hacker Newcomers, Simpson and Robbins Re-elected Board of Control.

TORONTO, Ont., January 2 (C.P.). — Unusual interest was shown by Toronto voters in the municipal elections here yesterday, which saw William J. Stewart, for seven years an alderman, elected by the narrow majority of 381 votes to the office of Chief Magistrate over his Mayoralty rival, Sam McBride, a former Mayor.

A total vote of 114,619 was recorded in the neck-and-neck battle. At the finish Stewart led his opponent by 57,500 votes to 57,119.

Both candidates polled a greater total vote than had ever previously been granted a mayoralty candidate. The previous high voting record was established last year when the town planning scheme was the chief issue before the electors.

May Ask Recount.

Mr. McBride has intimated he may request a recount in view of the narrow majority.

Two members of the Board of Control were re-elected in James Simpson and William D. Robbins. Two newcomers are J. George Ramsden, an alderman at present and former Controller, and Albert F. Hacker, who was a Controller for six successive years until he ran for Mayor in 1930.

Action of last year's Council in voting salary increases to aldermen proved a boomerang to some of the aldermanic candidates. However, of the 22 members of the Board of Control and Council, who supported the so-called "salary grab," 15 were returned. There are 12 new faces among the aldermen.

The defeat of Alderman John Boland and Controller Claude Pearce leaves the new Board without a Roman Catholic member for the first time in many years.

There was no outstanding issue before the electors during the campaign, although those who were known to have supported the movement for salary increases last summer, were made the targets of criticism by their opponents.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Lieut. Col. F. C. Shelmerdine, Director of Civil Aviation in India, has been appointed Director of Civil Aviation in the Air Ministry, succeeding the late Sir Sefton Brancuner, who perished in the wreck of the R-101.

What will you be doing one year from today?

THREE hundred and sixty-five days from now—what?

Will you still be struggling along in the same old job at the same old salary—worried about the future—never quite able to make both ends meet—standing still while other men go ahead?

One year from today will you still be putting off your start toward success—thrilled with ambition one moment and then cold the next—delaying, waiting, fiddling away the precious hours that will never come again?

Don't do it, man—don't do it.

There is no greater tragedy in the world than that of a man who stays in the rut all his life, when with just a little effort he could bring large success within his grasp.

SEE SETTLEMENT IN MINE STRIKE

Nearly 150,000 Men May Go to Work After Conciliation Board Meets.

9,000 STILL ON JOB.

LONDON, Jan. 2 (A.P.)—Optimistic expectations prevailed here to-day that differences between miners and mine operators in South Wales would be ironed tomorrow in a meeting of the conciliation board.

At least a temporary arrangement which would permit something less than 150,000 men in the field who have walked out in protest at reduction of their working hours and lessening of their wages to return to work was looked for.

At the same time neither the miners nor the mine operators have shown the slightest sign of weakening in their demands and the grounds upon which such a possible agreement may be made are regarded as purely speculative.

Not all the miners are out. The Labor organizations state that not more than 1,200 out of 150,000 are at work, while the operators declare that many more, possibly as high as 9,000 or 10,000 men, in 50 collieries, are keeping at their jobs.

The quarrel between the miners and operators rose out of a question of hours and wages. The operators wishing to institute a seven and one-half day with a commensurate reduction in wages. The miners wish either to retain the eight-hour day or secure the same wage for seven and one-half hours, claiming that they are unable to live on less than they make now.

JOFFRE REMAINS DEEP IN COMA

End Not Expected Until To-night or To-morrow—Stimulant Given.

NOT EXPECTED TO AWAKE.

PARIS, Jan. 2. —(AP)— Marshal Joffre, deep in a coma from which his physicians do not expect him to awake, remained alive today, one of them indicated.

Dr. Boulin, meeting newspaper men outside the hospital of St. Jean de Dieu after an official bulletin which said there was no change in the condition of the aged hero of the Marne, stated that he did not now expect death until tonight or perhaps tomorrow.

"The final coma which will take the Marshal," he said, "can be foreseen from a half hour to three quarters of an hour in advance by acceleration of the pulse, which has been 140 since yesterday.

"The patient remains unconscious. Heavy doses of a serum are being injected which should permit the Marshal to pass today and perhaps tonight."

ARRESTS RECALL TOM BROWN CASE

WANTED FOR SWINDLING.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 2 (C.P.). — An echo of the Tom Brown case, exactly one year after the former Stratford, Ont., Mayor's disappearance, came to official ears to-day. Death claimed the man from Canada here last spring, after a widespread search had failed to track down the fugitive, whose flight was followed by charges of taking $119,550 in securities belonging to clients.

Yesterday news reached Mexico City that Moses Rivalin and Sam Polorowskyo, who were believed to be the men arrested for questioning in connection with Brown's death, have been arrested in British Honduras. According to the information reaching here, British Honduras will allow their extradition back to Mexico, where they will face charges of swindling merchants out of more than 60,000 pesos.

Brown fell in with men named Rivalin and Podorowsky when he came here last January, and police believe they secured a considerable amount of his money.

Tom Brown was "missing" from Stratford last New Year's. Offers of a $1,000 reward stimulated the search, but it was only after his death here, May 8, in obscure quarters, that his identity was established.

PRINTER KILLED IN WILD PLUNGE AS PLANT BURNS

$200,000 LOSS.

Sister Paper Offers Services as Temporary Home For Publication.

BALTIMORE, Md., January 2. — One man was killed and five were unaccounted for as fire last night destroyed the four-storey brick plant of the Baltimore Post. Eighteen persons escaped down fire escapes and ladders as six alarms rushed all available apparatus to the scene. The dead man was Joseph R. Douglass, a linotype operator, who jumped from the third floor.

An explosion in the basement, as a late edition was being prepared for the press, was believed responsible for the fire. Flames spread quickly through the entire structure, many years old, and ate their way through wooden stairways.

18 Flee Out of Windows.

The largest number of people were in the composing room on the third floor, and all left, except Douglass, by the rear fire escape. Some leaped from the windows after reaching the second floor. Four were slightly injured.

The mechanical facilities of the Baltimore Evening Sun were placed at the disposal of the Post officials as the rapid progress of the fire threatened the total destruction of the newspaper plant.

The offer was accepted, and the Post editorial staff prepared to issue their paper from the Sun Building soon after daylight.

The loss was estimated at $200 000 Conference will be held here to-day with officials of the Scripps-Howard organization, at which it will be decided whether the plant will be rebuilt.

ICE GIVES WAY AUTOISTS DROWN IN OTTAWA RIVER

WERE TAKING SHORT CUT.

Search Started By Relatives Shows Tracks Leading to 300 Foot Hole.

OTTAWA, Jan. 2.—Blinded by a raging storm, three men and a woman were trapped in an automobile which plunged into a hole in the ice on the Ottawa River a mile east of Rockland and were drowned late Wednesday afternoon. The tragedy was not discovered until relatives became alarmed at their absence from home and a search was instituted.

The victims of the river were:

Mrs. Irvine Arnold, 23, of Clarence Point, Barbeau's cousin.

Augustin Beauline, 28, of Rockland east.

Edgar Charron, 27, of Rockland.

Sole evidence of the tragedy is a hole 300 feet square, a quarter of a mile from the Quebec shore of the Ottawa River between Thurso and Rockland. Th tracks lead to the hole, and then disappear at the brink.

The quartet drove to their deaths while returning to their home after a brief New Year's visit to Thurso, a village on the Quebec side, four miles east of Rockland. They had driven to Thurso by road, but, apparently intending to save time on the return journey, took to the ice on their way back.

Mrs. Ann Russell recently celebrated her 107th birthay at Fareham, England.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 2.—Offers of money to aid Maj. Charles A Shephard in his fight for vindication continued to pour in today to members of a committee named to handle the finances and to his attorney Harry S. Class of Denver, who remained today at the Hotel Baltimore

Before Shephard's departure last night for Denver, where he will rejoin the staff of the Fitzsimons general hospitol today, hundreds had called him at his room at the hotel and dozens of others had visited him in person to express their confidence he is innocent of the charge of wife murder on which he was convicted Monday by a jury in the Kansas City, Kas. federal court

The medical officer was the center of two demonstrations last night when he appeared in the lobby of the Hotel Baltimore and when he arrived at the Union station to take the train which carried him back to his duties in Denver as an officer in the United States army.

Employes of the hotel vied with each other to shake the hand of a man who had been branded a poisoner by a jury of twelve Kansans At the Union station the sentimen: was the same and all who could get close enough to the major seized his hand or gave him a reassuring pat on the back.

COUNTRY EDITOR WINS $1,000 YEAR FOR REST OF NATURAL LIFE

Entered Contest Over Protest Of Wife and Friends

IDEA BORN IN NIGHT

COALFAX, California, Jan. 2.—An idea born in the middle of the night, jotted down on the back of an envelope, transcribed against the advice of a friend, mailed and promptly forgotten, has won for a small-town newspaper editor the first prize —$1,000 a year income for the rest of his natural life—in the "Why I'd Buy a Plymouth" essay contest recently conducted by Plymouth Motor Corporation.

I. H. Sefton, editor of The Record of Colfax, read about this world-wide contest, which offered 1,011 prizes for the best essays on the subject and obtained an entry blank and a catalog giving the mechanical features of the car.

That night Sefton woke up with an idea. He snapped on his reading lamp, scribbled a few notes on the back of an envelope and went back to sleep. The next day at his office he was transcribing his essay on the blank when a friend tried to discourage him.

"These contests are all fakes," said the friend. "You'll never hear anything about it."

"Well, it costs only two cents to send it in," said Mr. Sefton and went ahead with his writing.

He mailed the essay and thought so little about it that he never mentioned it to his wife. The first she knew about his entry was Christmas Eve when a telegram arrived from the Plymouth Motor Corporation announcing that his manuscript was destined to win the first prize.

His wife opened the telegram telling or his good fortune this Christmas Eve and. to Sefton's query, "What prize did I win?" he was told $1,000 a year for life, he shook his head, then brightened and said, "We'll buy you a new dress first thing Friday, Mother" and then he wistfully added, "and a lot of other things we need, too."

Alderman McNabb this year polled 316 votes in excess of those registered on the occasion of his last appeal to the electors, as also did Alderman Phelan whose excess vote figures at 314.

Messrs. Goodfellow, Ellis and Heard, who all made their first bid for aldermanic honors at the 1930 elections each polled considerably heavier votes this year than previously, the differences respectively being 547, 580 and 202.

In the East Ward, Ellis headed all the polls with the exception of poll division 38, King George school, where Ald. Holland was top with 100, incidentally Holland has decreased his handicap having jumped from bottom place of the successful candidates in 1929 to third place on the present occasion.

The polls had closed at five o'clock sharp, and preparations were still in progress for the reception of the results, when the insistent tinkling of the telephone, announced the first returns on the mayoralty election from Polling Division 15 at the City Buildings, in Central Ward. It was 5.15 p.m. however before the first returns in the aldermanic contest began to dribble in, and incidentally Division 15 was again first, showing that W. Fisher, the returning officer, was right on his job. Turner was leading at the outset with 51 votes as against the lowest poll in that division of 20 votes.

Eight minutes later the results came through from Polling Division No. 14, in the Police Court Rooms, with Turner again heading the poll with 111 votes.

Division 26 in the North Ward also gave Turner a lead while in Division 11, Central Ward, which was fourth in with returns in the Aldermanic election, Turner tied with Phelan, each having 66 votes as compared with Hamilton's 64 and the lowest of 35 each registered by Ellis and Heard.

The committee room adjoining the City Clerk's office, was now beginning to assume a busy aspect, councillors and members of the general public flocked around the tablet, eagerly scanning the return sheets and noting the progress of the battle, with different feelings of emotion.

Alderman Walter Stocker was among the early men on the scene, while Alderman McNabb followed soon afterwards and busied himself with paper and pencil, anxiously keeping tab on the returns and noting with satisfaction he was progressing favorably. He headed the polls in one instance only, at Division 6, South Ward, with 78 votes, and came a close second in Division 30, North Ward, with 72 votes against Turner's 73

Phelan's strength lay in the south ward, where he was placed at the top of the list in four divisions. The West Ward gave him first place at the head of two divisions, while in Central, North and East Wards the electors chief support was given to other candidates.

Arrangements at the City Hall, worked with clockwork precision, the final result from Returning Officer Nelson Routley at Division 22, St. Peter's School, Reid street, reaching the City Clerk at 7.05 p.m. By 6.30 o'clock there were only three polls to be heard from, namely numbers 1, 22 and 25. Mr. Armstrong as usual courteous and patient, attended to his many duties with unrelaxing vigilance, while members of the press kept record of the reports from the various polling divisions and watched for the first indications of what the final results might be.

Messrs. McIntyre and Huffman were the only two defeated candidates present, but appeared to take their defeat in a philosophic manner. Others who paced the room, spent most of the time discussing the contest or tabulating returns, while other men in the field must have been content to learn the outcome apart and away from what they may have hoped would be their meeting place in the forthcoming months of the present year.

Following the results of the election His Worship Mayor Roland Denne, Alderman Nable Phelan and Alderman J. A. McNabb, addressed the little throng of citizens who were grouped around the Examiner bulletin boards, thanking them in brief for their support and confidence, and giving them their pledges to exert their efforts, through the coming term, in the interests of Peterborough and her people.

In a few words to the Examiner, Alderman E. M. Turner, said he wished to express his thanks to the electors, and he wished to assure them that he sought office only from an honest desire to do his best in the interests of Peterborough, which he claims as his native city.

Colonel Burns in Charge.

The committee will collect money offered by the people of this section and will forward it to Col. E. H. Bruns in Denver, who is directing plans for the defense among Major Shepard's friends and acquaintances in that city.

More than $1,000 had been contributed last night before Major Shepard boarded his train for home And from the messages offering help, the total will be swelled considerably today.

Persons who recognized the major from press photographs stopped him on the streets, in the lobby of the hotel, in restaurants and at the Union station to offer him their assistance.

"Have you any money left to fight this thing out?" was the same question asked him hundreds of times.

The sympathetic attitude and offers of help embarrassed Shepard and he reluctantly admitted that the trial ended with him more than $4,000 in debt and without a cent, other than his pay as a medical officer, to fall back on.

Follow Up With Cash.

Expressions of good will and sympathy were followed by something more tangible as his well-wishers dug their hands into their pockets and brought forth money in varying amounts. Three men who met him in the restaurant at the Hotel Baltimer just before he took his departure last night contributed $25 each. Others had contributed sums ranging from $1 to $300, with offers of more later.

In addition to these contributions, dozens called on the telephone to wish him the best of luck and to inquire where they could send money to aid in financing his fight for freedom.

One man from Kansas City, Kas., wanted it understood that the verdict of the jury did not represent the opinion of all in the state "And to redeem Kansas there are many who will do everything in their power to see that you get a square deal," he added.

CHEQUE PRESENTED TO REV. P. ROBERTS

Millbrook Rector Has Left For New Field of Labor.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2 (Examiner Correspondence)—An event of peculiar interest took place on Saturday evening, when a few members of the congregation of Saint Thomas' Anglican Church met at the home of Rev. P. W. A. and Mrs. Roberts, when an address was read, and presentation made of a cheque for an amount well over one hundred dollars, evidence of the high esteem in which the rector who has been in charge of the parish of Millbrook and Cavan for the past two years, and his wife, are held.

Rev. Mr. Roberts replied briefly, voicing in his own capable manner gratitude for the gifts, and especially the goodwill that had prompted them, on behalf of Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Bedward and himself. Departure for his new field of labor at Colborne by Mr. Roberts and his household was made on Tuesday morning.

MUSIC PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

Rev. W. W. and Mrs. Jones Act Part of Host and Hostess For Social Evening

SPLENDID PROGRAM

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2 (Examiner Correspondence) — Rev. W. W. and Mrs. Jones, with their daughter, Misses Francis and Beatrice, and son, Gordon, were hosts and hostesses for a very delightful social gathering at the parsonage on Monday evening, the occasion being the annual recital of Mrs. Jones' music pupils, her class at present numbering over twenty.

The pupils' parents, with other members of their families, were included in the invitation to be present, and the large rooms were lovely with Christmas decorations, the beautifully-trimmed tree, the softly-shaded lights, including the handsome floor lamp presented to Mrs. Jones as a Yuletide gift from her Sunday School class, the cut flowers and feathery green of house plants, together with the atmosphere of warm welcome and genuine friendliness that prevaded the entire evening, all added their quota to the general enjoyment of the gathering.

Rev. Mr. Jones announced the several selections to be played by the pupils, and in his capacity as chairman, as well as host, expressed the pleasure both he and Mrs. Jones felt in welcoming the friends to the home, declaring that a new link more intensive interest was being forged through the recital as the parents learned what the children were doing in their musical studies; and also mentioning that some of the finest friendships they, as a family, had formed in life had grown out of similar gatherings to the one present being enjoyed.

"Music is an asset always in demand in any gathering," asserted Mr. Jones as he called upon Gordon and Esther Might, with Mrs. Jones for a trio, "Under the Mistletoe."

Freddie Brown and Dorothy Armstrong followed with a double number as a duet, "Through Field and Forest," and "Birds of Paradise"; Gordon Jones' piano solo was "Through the Air," while "Yellow Butterflies," by Mary Armstrong, was indeed a dainty selection.

Most of the selections played were descriptive numbers, and the listeners thoroughly enjoyed the duet, "The Moon Rocket," by Miss Charlotte McMahon and Mrs. Jones. The musical reading, "How the Elephant Got His Trunk," by Audrey Garside, with Mrs. Jones at the piano, won warm applause, as did also the well-played duet (also a double number) "The Happy Farmer," and "Spring Song," by Barbara Argue and Marie Douglas.

The Youngest Pupil

A feature of special interest was the playing of Mary Dawson, six-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Dawson, who made a decided 'hit,' with her piano solos, and then took part in a duet, "Little Journey," with Mrs. Jones. Mary is the youngest pupil of Mrs. Jones has ever had, outside the members of her own family, and her teacher is well pleased with the promise of genuine musical ability.

Ethel Rowland did well with her solo, "Mountain Pink," and the audience also enjoyed Barbara Argue's number, "Restlessness," played entirely from memory. Dorothy Armstrong showed good execution with her selection, "A Curious Story," and the March, played as a trio by Clendon Challice, Gordon Jones, and Beatrice Jones, was an attractive number and called for some clever fingering.

Gordon and Esther Might played a very pretty duet, "In Lilac Time," and the musical reading, "Mother's Only Son," by Gordon Jones was well done, and quite appropriate in sentiment. The solo, played by Marie Douglas, without notes before her, gave evidence of a fine touch, other short solos which followed being "Fairy Bell Waltz," by Freddie Brown; "Skating," by Gordon Might; "L'Hirondelle," by Audrey Garside, and "Rippling Waters," by Esther Might, who is also a young musician of much promise.

With so large a class the program was naturally a lengthy one, though the listeners never tired of its numbers, the solo, by Charlotte McMahon, played from memory, making an especial appeal with its attractive air and clever execution. Concluding selections were a duet, "Dance of the Rosebuds," and "Christmas Eve," by Dorothy and Mary Armstrong; a duet, "The North Wind," by Audrey Garside and Mrs. Jones; a musical reading, "Toy Shop Heroes," by Beatrice Jones; a solo, "Trinity Chimes," by Phyllis Kidd, with "Yellow Jonquils" as a second number, and a final "Christmas Symphony," by Mrs. Jones and Francis, appropriate to the season and very beautiful.

The hostess was assisted by her daughters, with Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. E. L. Armstrong, Mrs. James H. Might, and some of the younger folk, in waiting upon her guests during the supper hour, when the social element was given full away, and before the many guests left for home a hearty vote of thanks for the pleasure which the evening had afforded was extended to both Mr. and Mrs. Jones.

Search For Missing Woman Continues

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 2.—(CP)—Mrs. Cash McCluskey, missing since Wednesday morning has not yet been found in spite of all efforts on the part of friends and neighbors. Mrs. McCluskey, a resident of Jackson, a little village in Keppel township, some six miles from this city, left the house early in the morning, and has not been seen since. Drifting snow soon covered up all tracks and search parties of neighbors met with no success. Mrs. McCluskey had not been in the best of health.

If the woman did not reach shelter it is altogether unlikely that she is still living.

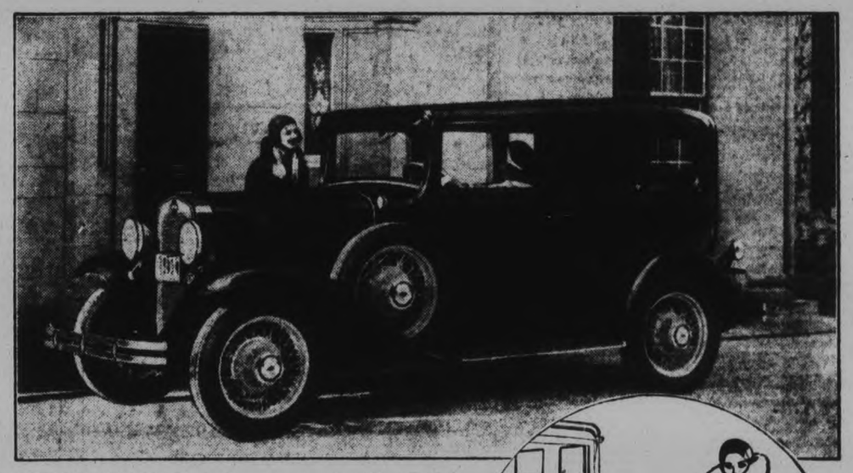
General Motors announces a NEW CHEVROLET SIX

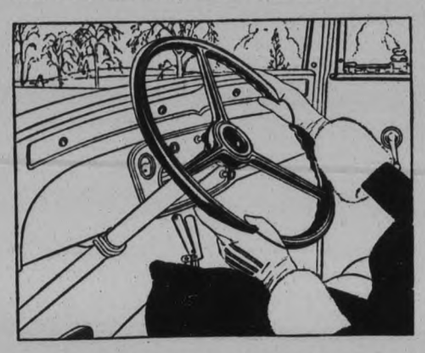
Bigger ... Finer, Lower in Price

Long, 109-inch Wheelbase ... New Body Lines ... Roomier Fisher Bodies ... De Luxe Wire Wheels ... Important Mechanical Advancements



SPECIAL SEDAN—A de luxe car ... six wire wheels, two in fender wells, and chrome-plated radiator grille standard equipment

CHEVROLET TODAY General Motors and Chevrolet are proud to present a new Chevrolet Six. The new car has a lengthened, 109-inch wheelbase ... added smartness ... and many mechanical improvements.



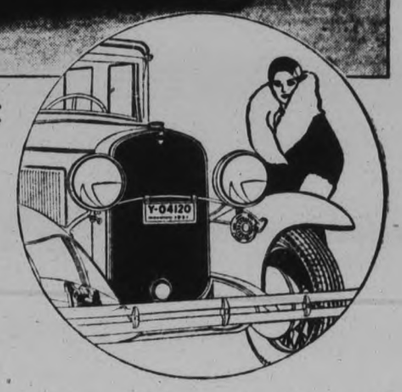
Working with the advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher craftsmen have been able to design streamline bodies that are far more graceful and beautiful than ever before. Exceptionally impressive is the front view of the car. The radiator has been redesigned ... it is now deeper and has added distinction. There are new headlamps, resting on a smart tie-bar. De luxe wire wheels, finished in attractive harmonizing colors and with large chrome-plated hub caps, are now standard equipment on all models at no extra cost.

The new Fisher Bodies are also larger and roomier. The handsomely upholstered interiors are wider and more comfortable. The driving compartment is insulated with thick, felt-like material on the dash and under the floor mat to lessen engine noise and keep the car warm in winter and cool in summer.

Of course, with the increase in wheelbase of the new Chevrolet, improvements have been made in the chassis. The frame is 50 per cent. stronger. The Lovejoy shock absorbers — front and rear — are more efficient. And there is a new, heavier front axle ensuring strength far beyond all ordinary needs.

An entirely new steering mechanism, of the worm and sector type, gives finger-tip control of the wheel in turning, parking and in heavy traffic. Chevrolet's four-wheel weatherproof brakes are exceptionally big and fitted with moulded linings, which ensure as much as 25,000 miles of efficient service before relining becomes necessary.

All these advancements in beauty, comfort, ruggedness and durability are offered in a car which provides the smooth, quiet, flexible performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder engine. No departure has been made from the basic features of six-cylinder smoothness and extreme economy which makes the Chevrolet Six the best buy of the low-price field.



Bigger — finer — lower in price ... the new Chevrolet Six is now on display at the showrooms of the dealers listed below. You are invited to inspect the new Chevrolet ... to ride in it and drive it yourself. If you can afford to buy any car the new Chevrolet Six, at its extremely low prices, is easily within your reach.

Chevrolet's policy has always been one of service to the public ... The GMAC plan of deferred payments offers the lowest financing charges available ... and the General Motors Owner Service Policy pledges lasting satisfaction.

is to obtain the services of men and women best fitted for the responsibilities of municipal government. The necessary qualifications are listed as follows:

Honesty, including in that term intellectual honesty.

Moral courage.

Interest in municipal affairs. A lively sense of the value of opportunities for service to the public.

A clear understanding of the difference between policy deciding and policy carrying out functions and unwillingness to interfere in the latter function.

Ability to express thoughts clearly and tersely.

Ability to refrain from talking when having no thoughts of value on subjects under discussion.

This is a fairly exacting list of qualifications, but we are prompted to add another, which is the capacity between elections to forget that citizens are voters and to think of them only as ratepayers.

THE ALDERMANIC RESULT

As a result of yesterday's election for the board of aldermen, two citizens with considerable experience in public life are again members of the City Council in the person of E. Mel. Turner and James Hamilton, while Aldermen Nagle Phelan, Dan Holland and J. A. McNabb are returned for another two-year term.

Mr. Turner, returning to the arena of municipal politics after a brief absence, had the honor of heading the polls, the splendid vote piled up by him showing that his previous service had been appreciated in all sections of the city. His election and that of ex-Ald. Hamilton, whose business training and previous experience as alderman will be valuable assets, will add strength to the council.

Ald. Nagle Phelan, the veteran of the council in point of service, polled a substantial vote to take second place in the aldermanic race. Ald. Phelan, who has served eleven years in the council, and has for ten years been chairman of the Finance Committee, got fine support in every section.

The re-election of Ald. Dan Holland, who has been East City's representative on the board of aldermen for the past two years, will be popular. Ald. Holland has been a conscientious hard-working alderman.

Ald. McNabb was the fifth alderman to be elected, winning his place after a spirited battle with Ald Huffman that was not decided until almost the last polling sub-division had reported. Ald. McNabb's aggressive publicity campaign undoubtedly turned the scale in his favor and sent him back to the council for another two-year term.

The only old alderman to go down to defeat was Ald. Huffman, chairman of the Board of Works, who, according to the testimony of one of his colleagues, had given more time to the city's business than any other member of the council, with the exception of Mayor Denne. The political ill-luck which seems to hang round the Works' chairmanship, however, claimed another victim yesterday.

Although they increased their total votes, Messrs Goodfellow, Heard and Ellis, who were candidates a year ago, failed to improve their standing and were again in the discard when the ballots were counted.

MAYOR DENNE'S VICTORY.

Peterborough evidently believes that when a mayor who has shown abundant proof of his willingness and ability to give efficient service is available, it is good business to keep him on the job.

Re-elected for his fourth term in the chief magistrate's chair, yesterday, Mayor Roland Denne swept the city with the largest majority ever piled up in a local mayoralty contest, carrying not only every ward, but gaining a majority in every one of the thirty-nine polling subdivisions, indicating that he had the support of all sections and all classes.

It was the most sweeping victory in the history of municipal politics in Peterborough, the margin of Mayor Denne's triumph being even greater than was anticipated.

Throughout the campaign the sentiment in favor of returning the services of a mayor, who had given so much of his time to the responsible duties of his position, who had set up a record of achievement and who was so manifestly qualified to give effective leadership in municipal affairs was obviously strong, and old campaigners had little hesitation in predicting a Denne victory, although only a few ventured to mention a 2200 majority.

Ald. McIntyre, who has given long and faithful service as a member of the board of aldermen, was unfortunate in his selection of a year in which to contest the mayoralty.

There were scores of citizens who would have voted for him had he been a candidate for alderman, but who, forced to make a choice between Ald. McIntyre and a mayor with a successful three-year record, gave their support to Mayor Denne, believing that he was best qualified for the manifold duties of the position.

The Examiner, feeling that public sentiment favored Mayor Denne's return, advocated his re-election by acclamation; a position we submit is most thoroughly justified by the results of yesterday, and one, that if accepted, might have averted an election for the council at all and left Ald. McIntyre as a member of the Aldermanic Board, where he has served well for a decade.

The splendid endorsation given his candidature yesterday must be most gratifying to Mayor Denne and will undoubtedly be accepted by him as a mandate to proceed with the policies he has favored in the past three years.

It is a new thing in Peterborough to have the mayor's chair accepted by the same individual for four years in sucession and a new thing too to have a chief magistrate elected by such a tremendous majority, but The Examiner is satisfied that in retaining Mayor Denne in office the electors have done a good day's work for Peterborough, for the most flattering evidence of confidence given by the citizens yesterday will spur

THE CHRISTMAS DAY LIST.

A tabulated report was sent out from the New York office of the Associated Press on Christmas night, and it was like this:

Middle West	74
Eastern States	42
South	35
Far West	16
Southwest	13
Total	180

That table refers to the number of persons killed in United States on Christmas Day, and it reminds one of the tabulation which is also made on the night of the Fourth of July.

Automobiles took fully two-thirds of the total; bad liquor accounted for 18; fireworks and gun play were also in the list as contributory causes in the killing of people.

One hundred and eighty violent deaths on Christmas Day! It is rather hard to figure it out. It could not be blamed on work, for shops and stores were closed. It could not be blamed on the nature of the day, because there is nothing in it to suggest excess or riotous participation.

It must be the result of inability to properly and wisely invest the hours that go to make up a holiday. It does look as though there were a stiff price attached to having forgotten how to sit down quietly for a spell. —Stratford Beacon-Herald.

QUEBEC'S TOURIST TRAFFIC.

The policy which the Province of Quebec has adopted in the matter of attracting tourists appears to be bearing fruit. The bulletin of the Roads Department of that Province, just issued, estimates that during the first ten months of the year not less than 710,832 foreign cars entered Quebec, as opposed to only 608,923 during 1929, this forming an increase of 16.7 per cent. in the volume of foreign tourist traffic. Moreover, it is stated that of these tourists, no fewer than 65 per cent. remained in the province from two days to two months, only 35 per cent. staying for less than two days.

The year 1930 was not generally considered to be a good one for the tourist business. That, at least, is the general impression throughout Ontario. Yet during that unsatisfactory period, Quebec seems to have witnessed a noticeable increase in the number of tourists travelling her roads and visiting her cities and summer resorts. The expenditure of the Government upon publicity must have played an important part in producing such a result.

Ontario has just as attractive scenery as Quebec. Her sights are just as interesting as those in the sister-province. Her roads are certainly superior to those in existence across the inter-provincial border, and her facilities for catering to the tourists are just as satisfactory. But still her tourist revenues appear to be falling, while those of Quebec are increasing. Perhaps this would not be the case if the Ontario Government could be induced to adopt as aggressive a policy in regard to publicity as has been done for several years by the Quebec authorities. No expense has been spared to bring about the preparation of literature in both languages that will make an appeal to the tourists of the United States and elsewhere and to distribute it where it is likely to produce the best results. No comparable effort has been undertaken by the Ontario highways authorities. Yet the statistics from Quebec show that such a policy certainly pays.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Mayor Denne led in every polling sub-division yesterday, which is a record in itself.

East City did its best to elect one of its best known citizens, James C. Ellis, but could not give him the lead enough to carry him through to victory.

The return of E. Mel. Turner and James Hamilton to public life will be welcomed by the majority of citizens, who feel they will make a valuable contribution of service as members of the council for the next two years.

A majority of over 2,200 is a record in municipal politics that will be something for aspiring future candidates to shoot at.

Probably Ald. McIntyre now agrees with The Examiner that an acclamation might have been the best thing for all concerned.

North Monaghan has decided to stand pat with its council of 1930. It wasn't an acclamation, but might just as well have been.

Poisoned Sweets Mystery

The mysterious poisoned sweets which caused arsenical poisoning among sixty people in England have been analyzed. The analyst, A. E. Johnson, has found most of the suspected sweets dusted with the powder identical to that found by the police in a potteries warehouse, which he analyzed and pronounced to be pure arsenic.

BURNING BEAUTY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Chapter One.

An Old Garden in an Ancient Town.

There were three people besides the chauffeur in the great motor car which swept along the road from Baltimore, crossed the big bridge which spanned the Severn, and came at last into the streets of the ancient capital. Annapolis was steeped in the wine of an October day. The old town was, itself, like wine of excellent vintage — mellow and ripe, yet with something heady about it which sent a bit of wildness through one's veins.

Of the three people in the car, two were women. "Why in the world have you brought us here, Tony?" the older woman asked.

"I wanted to see you and Marty, Mother."

"That isn't your real reason."

The other woman demanded, "Is it a girl?"

He smiled at her — what a silvery thing Marty was in that gray coat and gray fur, and with the silver buckle of her little hat coming down against her silver-blonde hair. Not many women would have dared all that shine with such indefinite hair, but Marty dared anything, and with the violet of her eyes matching the violets pinned to her fur, she had achieved an effect impossible to a woman of less taste and discrimination.

"Why ask a thing like that, Marty?"

"Well, it's always a girl with you, isn't it?"

"I'm not so fickle. And why should I want anyone else when I can have you?"

She flickered her lashes at him: "The possessiveness of you, when you haven't even asked me!"

"Why risk failure?"

She knew he had not even risked success. Both of them knew it. Marty Van Duyne had never been sure whether if Tony had asked her to marry him she would have accepted. She was not sure, indeed, that she was in the least in love with him. But he amused and interested her. She liked his good looks — his tallness and fairness. She liked too, the sense of humor which carried him through life on a sort of rising tide of gaiety.

Marty's own sense of humor was limited, hence her need of Tony's. She was like some beautiful and sober-minded queen, who keeps a jester at her elbow. Marty was aware that when she was with Tony, she shone more brilliantly because her own great charms were linked with his laughter.

He was laughing now, as he swept his hand suddenly across his mother's eyes. "Don't look till I tell you, Midget," he cried.

His mother, a small person, whose girlish clothes gave her a false effect of youth, murmured, "Don't be stupid." Then as he removed his hand from her eyes, she gave an incredulous cry, "Tony, how wonderful!"

The car had stopped at a Georgian house of red brick, with white-painted and carved doors and windows whose beauty, as Tony expressed it, "put out your eye." The front of the house faced on a narrow street, but the rear door looked out over a garden surrounded by a box hedge, and it was at the gate of this garden that the car had stopped.

Above the gate hung a placard. On it in huge black letters was proclaimed:

TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION
ALL THE CONTENTS OF THIS HOUSE
KNOWN AS THE KENT-OLIPHANT HOUSE
RARE FURNITURE AND SILVER NOT HITHERTO OFFERED
SALE BEGINS AT TEN O'CLOCK

"There, Midget, isn't that reason enough for bringing you down?"

"More than reason." Mrs. Bleecker's face wore a look of ecstasy. She had two important concerns in life — her son and her collection of antiques. And she knew something of the Kent-Oliphant house, its inaccessibility to would-be purchasers, the value of its contents. She asked with eagerness, "How does it happen they are selling?"

"The father is ill. He has been sent to Colorado, and his wife has gone with him. They had to have money for the trip. I understand the house is mortgaged to the limit, so there was nothing to do but raise money on the old things."

Mrs. Bleecker's eyes were darting from one group to another. "There are a lot of dealers. You were a dear, Tony, to have me down." Her fingers rested lightly on the gold braid of his sleeve. "I wouldn't have missed it for worlds."

People were already beginning to gather in the garden — all kinds of people: bargain hunters from the big cities, who knew what they wanted; motorists, staying over out of curiosity to see others buy; neighbors in the old town, stiff with indignation at a Fate which permitted such things to be — the neighbors who had for two generations resented the withdrawal of the Oliphants from the social life of the town, but who were none the less loyal to old associations and to old traditions.

There were, too, the dealers, keen, alert, knowing that here were treasures almost beyond price. "I've had my eye on this house for years," one of them was telling another, "but I never really hoped that the moment would come when I'd get a chance at it. There's an Adams fire-screen that's worth its weight in gold, a pair of Empire pieces that would [illegible] your mouth water. They're the kind of people who would starve before they'd sell, but they have had to come to it."

The auctioneer was at hand. Several pieces of furniture had been brought out and set in the garden, other and smaller articles were still in the house, and the auctioneer's men were showing them. Tony's party attracted much attention — the tall young officer in his lieutenant's uniform, the small mother in coat and close helmet of orchid cloth, the silvery girl who shone in the morning sun.

"There's Michael McMillan," Marty said, suddenly. "I might have known he'd be here."

She went toward a table on which a slender, dark man sat swinging a foot. He turned at the sound of his name and got down.

"Marty, my dear girl, where did you come from?"

"Baltimore, with Mrs. Bleecker. We ran over from New York last night. Do you know Jane Bleecker? Well, come on and meet her."

Presenting him, Marty said, "He's a fiend for old things, Jane. You and he will probably be deadly enemies before you get through with the bidding."

"I'm sure you'll remember that satisfying slogan 'ladies first,' Mr. McMillan." Mrs. Bleecker's manner was appealing. She was a hard little person, but she had a melting way at certain moments.

But this time the appeal fell on barren ground. "I have absolutely no gallantry," McMillan stated, "where my hobby is concerned. I have marked three things on my list. I intend to have them, unless you get them over my dead body."

"Three things? What are they?"

He flashed an amused glance at her. "If you knew, you'd be prepared. Perhaps you won't want them, so why borrow trouble?"

He left them to speak to one of the auctioneer's men, and as Mrs. Bleecker moved toward the house, she asked Marty, "Who is he?"

"He is," Marty explained, "the famous editor of a famous magazine. Young at that. In his early thirties. His wife died several years ago. They were not happy. I think she was a cold little cat. Since then he has had very little to do with women. He'd be lionized if he'd let himself be. But he keeps to himself and spends his spare time at sales like this. He is always in the hunt for old silver, and he has a lot of it. I met him on a Mediterranean cruise. And we got to be rather good friends."

Mrs. Bleecker turned a little and took another look: "Rich?"

"He hasn't millions, if that's what you mean. He's not a bloated plutocrat like you, Jane."

"I'm not a bloated anything, Marty. And I'm not afraid of your McMillans." She went on, smiling, "Let's go into the house, Tony. And do get me a list."

As they entered the drawing room, they saw that it had been stripped of hangings and that its rugs were rolled up. The things that were to be sold were set about the floor, or laid out on tables. On the mantel-piece was a pair of silver candlesticks, somewhat ornate, but delightful with their rose-garlands and cupids, their floating ribbons.

Mrs. Bleecker at once went toward them. "Look those candlesticks up on the list, Tony," she said, "I want them."

At the sound of her voice, a girl who was the only other occupant of the room, turned her head slightly and listened. She evidently belonged to the house, for she wore no hat. Her hair thus revealed had copper lights in it and was wound about her head so that it made a close and burnished cap. Her skin was milk-white against the almond green of a shabby slip-on sweater.

Tony, studying the list, said, "They were a gift from Lafayette to a certain Peter Kent."

"Who was Peter Kent?"

From the other side of the room the girl spoke: "He was my great-great-grandfather on my grandmother's side."

"Oh," Mrs. Bleecker lifted her lorgnette, "are you one of the family?"

"I am Virginia Oliphant."

"I'd like to hear more about the candlesticks. Do you mind telling me?"

"Not at all."

She crossed the room and joined them, standing next to Marty Van Duyne, and Anthony, seeing her thus, was suddenly aware that her vidid beauty dulled Marty's silver shine as the light of the sun dulls the moon.

So this was Virginia Oliphant. Anthony had heard of her. Who hadn't in Annapolis? Men did not call on her, Midshipmen, officers, civilians, they were all shut out. She had, indeed, become a sort of legend in the town, like the sleeping princess in the fairy tale — someone to wonder about, a mystery maiden.

Yet the mystery was not so hard to solve. It centered in an abnormally sensitive father who had been unwilling that his daughter should accept at the hands of society anything she could not return. There has been generations of Oliphants in Annapolis — beginning with those men of rank and title who had grants from the king. They had acquired wealth and held offices of distinction. Then had come gradually diminishing fortunes and the cataclysm of the Civil War. Kent Oliphant's father had been killed at Appomattox, and his mother, poor and proud, had shut herself away from the world. Her son had, in his turn, followed her example. Virginia and her young brother had been educated at home, forbidden to mingle with those about them. "I will not have you condescended to by those who are less than your betters," their father had told them, furiously.

Much of this was known to the people of the town. And they pitied Virginia. She did not look, at the moment, as if she needed their pity. She was so gloriously alive. Like a flame! Incandescent. Tony felt he had never seen anything like it. He wondered what Marty thought standing there beside her.

But Marty was troubled by nothing so unimportant as this girl in the shabby sweater. She moved closer to Tony and murmured, "She'd be a beauty if she were well dressed."

"Do you think a woman like that needs — clothes?"

Marty wrinkled her nose at him in an enchanting way she had. "All women need clothes."

"Don't be absurd, Marty."

He turned from her to listen to what Virginia was saying to his mother. "I am sorry. The candlesticks are withdrawn from the sale."

Mrs. Bleecker protested. "But I want them more than anything."

Virginia said again, "I'm sorry." That was all. No yielding.

"They'll bring a stiff price," Jane Bleecker persisted, "and I understand you need the money."

Tony said something under his breath. There were times when Midget was impossible!

A flush had come into Virginia's cheeks. "I do need it. But the candlesticks have associations."

"You won't reconsider?"

"No."

That was all. She went away, taking the candlesticks with her.

As she left the room, she met Michael McMillan. Tony saw him stop and speak to her. Heard his mother saying maliciously, "I'll wager anything those candlesticks were one of the three things he wanted."

They were, of course, and Michael seeing them borne away, asked apprehensively, "They're not sold?"

"No, but they're withdrawn from the sale."

"Why? Oh, I beg pardon. It's none of my business. But you see I've a bowl that matches these — and I'm rather mad about old silver."

She liked his voice as much as she hated Mrs. Bleecker's. It was because Mrs. Bleecker that she had withdrawn the candlesticks. She had known she could not, no, she could not think of those lovely garlands and dancing cupids in the possession of a woman like that.

And, having once withdrawn them she knew that she would never let them go. Not even to this man with the quick and thrilling voice. So she said again, "I'm sorry."

"I'm sorry, too," he told her.

She hesitated for a moment, then explained: "I only consented to part them on sale because my brother insisted. And I shouldn't have consented. You see, they lighted all our little feasts." She stopped suddenly, unable to go on.

He said, sympathetically: "You are finding it — hard?"

"Oh, yes. The room is haunted."

For a moment he did not answer. He was, indeed, intensely moved by the sight of her girlish distress. It was as if some sorrow in himself went out to meet her sorrow. She was holding the candlesticks now against her, and there made a cross, as if she had said a crucifix upon her breast.

At last he said, "Are you giving up the house?"

"Yes. It is mortgaged heavily. We can't save it. I shan't mind so much if only someone will buy it who will love it and understand it. I'd hate to have it go to people who'd make them money in pills or pork."

She was trying to speak lightly, to recover her poise. He helped her by shifting the conversation. "There were three things I wanted — the candlesticks, the Dutch spoons and the little Chippendale chair."

"The ladderback? That was Mother's. She always sat in it."

"Is she — dead?"

"No. She's gone away with Daddy. He's very ill. This was his only chance. That's why we're selling...."

She stopped as a young man appeared in the door. Michael knew at once it was her brother. They were much alike. Young Oliphant was taller than his sister, but there was the same grace and slenderness, and his head was topped by the same bright hair. Yet there was this difference, that Virginia carried herself more gallantly. Richard slouched a bit, and his features showed a blurring of the lines which gave strength to the girl's face. Only a keen observer would have noticed the difference. But Michael was a keen observer.

"The sale is beginning in a few minutes," the boy said; "I thought you'd like to get away from it."

She explained to Michael, "We're going to the attic and watch things from there."

Her voice had a note of appeal in it. "Rickey, I'm not going to sell them."

"Why not?" sharply.

"Because — we must save something out of it all — "

"But they're the most valuable item in the lot. Grogan says so. He's not going to put them up until the last."

"He's not going to put them up at all."

"Oh, you — that's sentimental rot."

As he flung himself away, the girl's face went white. She spoke to McMillan. "Rickey isn't often like that."

"I'm sure he isn't," he said heartily.

Her face lighted. "I hope you'll get the things you want. If you do, I have a feeling that you'll be friendly to Mother's little chair."

Before he could answer, she turned and left him. He watched her as she went up the stairs, the silver crucifix still clasped to her breast. From across the room Anthony Bleecker also watched her. But he did not see the crucifix. He saw only her beauty, the vivid loveliness which put Marty's more delicate charms in the shade.

Chapter Two.

The Man on the Table.

Going up the stairs, Virginia shrank from the thought of facing Rickey. He'd probably keep on tormenting her about the candlesticks. And she did not mean to give in. Rickey had his way about most things. But he should not have it in this. Yet she dreaded his arguments. They were always so logical. And there was no logic in this feeling of hers. She had only sentiment to urge, and Rickey was done with sentiment. "We've been held back all our lives by the past. We've got to break away, Jinny, or go under."

And now she would hear it all over again.

But she did not hear it. As she came into the attic, Rickey was standing by the dormer window. "Come here, Jinny," he said, excitedly, "did you ever see anything like it? That last big car brought down a lot of New York dealers. One of the auctioneer's men told me. It seems they've had their eyes on us for years, hoping we'd have to sell."

JIMMIE

For many years Jimmie was the only fiddler of note around X——. He had no fixed abode, just going from one house to another throughout the county, bringing welcome news of neighborhood happenings but never a word of unkind gossip about anyone. Doing odd carpentry jobs during the day, and as night fell taking his beloved fiddle from its green bag and playing old Irish tunes and jigs for the assembled neighbors.

He usually arrived at Grandmother's after we children had been put to bed, but the preliminary tuning of Jimmie's fiddle brought us crowding about the stair railing, often shivering, but fearing to miss a note of the "Rocky Roads" or "The Irish Washerwoman" which opened that evening's concert.

I have heard the best there is in violinists many times since, but none can give me the pleasure I found in the old melodies, grave and gay, which Jimmie — utterly untrained — evoked from the old instrument at his shoulder.

When I visited X—— last summer for the first time in twenty years, I hunted up a pupil of Jimmie's and begged him to play for me the old tunes which Jimmie had taught him. But it wasn't quite the same. Still how many lads and lasses came trooping at the call. Lads and lasses whom I now found to my dismay to be settled and changed beyond recognition. Or else — and I scarcely knew which was the sadder — sleeping, so many of them, in the grass grown yard near the little church. The church where years ago the drone of bees in clover drifted to us through open windows, dulled at moments by the voice of our beloved Father Tom as he said the Low Mass most of us had come five miles to hear.

Jimmie was very fond of children, and we thought the little old man with the gentle face very nearly a god. We were utterly dismayed to meet the children of his brother who didn't seem at all proud of their Uncle Jimmie. In fact they regarded him as something of an outcast because he had no settled home and no definite source of income — though the collection taken up for the fiddler at many a dance was fair equivalent to the net proceeds of two months hard labor for his farmer brother.

Just now I think of a story, many times re-told, of a certain dance where Jimmie's last "E" string had snapped. "Keep your places, ladies and gentlemen," said he gently "while I run over to Blanks for a fiddle string." Blanks lived three miles away as the crow flies. Needless to say there was no more dancing that night.

Jimmie's passing, at eighty, was kindly. A slight cold, a day's not too alarming illness, and then, quite suddenly, his spirit went on, regretted by all, but more especially by the children that he loved.

What To-day Means To You

"CAPRICORN."

If January 2nd is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 8.30 a.m., from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. The danger periods are from 9.15 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 2.30 p.m. 3.30 p.m., and from 8 p.m. to 9.30 p.m.

January 2nd promises, from a planetary viewpoint, very little, and only negative results can be expected. Restlessness will prevail, and it will be very difficult to concentrate on any task. Nothing involving change should be essayed, and, unless absolutely indispensable, travel should be avoided.

Children born on this January 2nd will not offer much reason for congratulation in their early years. At the period of adolescence, however, they will undergo a marked change, and where, hitherto, they have been indolent, will become hard workers, fired with a worthy purpose in life.

If your birthday falls on January 2nd you are conscientious, painstaking, and loyal. These qualities will stand you in good stead, and will be the main contributors to that success which the Fates have in store for you. Free from ostentation, impervious to flattery, and, at all times, consistent, you pursue the even tenor of your way, regardless of what others may say, or tempt you to say. You know what you want, and are a 'go-getter.' Little attention is paid by you to the counsel or advice of others. You feel and realize your self-sufficiency.

You have very strong convictions. Your mind is not easily made up. You are not what can be called a rapid thinker. Once, however, you reach a conclusion, your decision is final and binding. Truth and frankness are part of your nature, and deception and subterfuge are foreign to your mentality. Your conscience is your mentor — and it is dependable one. You never indulge in passivity when right or wrong is involved. With such a stern and inflexible moral code, you are nevertheless, in season of relaxation, a lively and an entertaining companion, and your presence is eagerly sought at social gatherings. A recognized foe of gossip and scandal, your companionship always elevates and never debases. Your home life will be full of happiness, and a successful life — and a well spent one — will be your portion.

INTEREST CONTINUES IN GOLD PRODUCTION

Two New Brokerage Firms Are Organized to Specialize in Mine Securities.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 2 (Special to The Examiner).—Volume of turnover on the mining market was light in the opening session of the New Year to-day, but prices in almost all cases were strong at Wednesday's closing levels with a few additional advances registered in the gold section prior to mid-day. It is anticipated some profit taking may put in an appearance, but demand continues good, New York houses and American connections of local firms still evincing unusual interest in prospects for the gold producers.

Announcement is made to-day of the formation of two new brokerage firms to specialize in mining securities. Kenneth A. MacPhadyen is a well-known figure in northern mining circles, having been actively identified with the industry for the past 17 years. He has been manager of several properties and has been associated with a prominent mining group of many years. J. E. Grassett was formerly manager of the Timmins branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and retains a personal connection with activities in that and other mining camps.

New Year's Gold Strike Made Near Fairbanks

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 2 (C.P.). — Reports of a new gold strike on lower Gold Stream Creek ushered in the New Year in the Fairbanks district.

The discovery was reported by John Clauson and associates in an area which was one of the early gold producers of this section. Ground running three dollars per foot was found in one short level.

The discovery is expected to accelerate development of deep ground of known value which had been idle many years. The ground under option to outside companies lies upstream from the latest strike.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Foreign exchange steady, demand rates: (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents) Great Britain 4.85½. France 3.92 9/16, Italy 5.23⅜; Germany 23.81½. Canadian dollar 5/32 of one per cent. discount.

MINE MARKET HOLDS STEADY

Several New Gains Are Registered in Majority of Leaders.

McINTYRE IN DEMAND.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 2. (CP)—Though volume of trade was comparatively light in the opening session of the year on the mining market to-day, majority of prices were firm at Wednesday's closing levels while some new gains were registered.

McIntyre continued in good demand, advancing another quarter to $20.50. Teck Hughes recovered 5 to $6.20, Wright-Hargreaves and Big Missouri were up a couple each to $1.92 and 41, respectively and Howey and Kirkland Lake gold a cent or so apiece. Lake Shore eased 20 to $23.50 and Hollinger was off 5 to $6.30. Mining Corp. sold up 5 at $1.50.

International Nickel and Noranda were fractionally below their previous close but Lindsleys held firm. White Lake gained 3 to 20 and Amulet was up a cent at 30.

Higher-priced oils showed reactionary tendency. Lower-priced members of the group were slightly stronger, Acme Gas and Nordon selling up a point each at 28 and 36, respectively, and Ajax a couple at $1.60.

TRADING AT TORONTO TO-DAY IS MOSTLY CONFINED AT FIVE ISSUES

WALKERS ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., January 2 (C.P.)—Market operations on the Toronto Stock Exchange for the year 1931 began in a most inauspicious manner this morning. Price changes over the general list were so small as to pass almost unnoticed while the volume was largely confined to four or five issues.

B.A. Oil still was the most active issue, but the advance, which had gained such prominence the closing days of 1930, was not pushed further to-day. Following the close of the market here at 1 o'clock on Wednesday, B.A. Oil shot up spectacularly to 20 in New York comparing with a close locally of 16. This morning the stock came out here at 16, while there were no bids on the floor at New York. After the initial sales the stock sold down again, even below 15 for a time. Imperial and International Petroleum also slipped off from their opening, due to profit-taking.

NEW YORK LIST STRENGTHENS IN LATER TRADING

Rail, Oil and Motor Shares Point Upward After Mid-day.

DROP IN UTILITIES.

Resumation of Four-party Unification Plan Conference Aid Oil Advances.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(CP)— The financial markets began the new year soberly but hopefully today.

The stock market developed quiet strength after a selling flurry during the early trading, and bonds reflected investment buying. The early selling was presumably in part profit taking on the upturn in the last two sessions of 1930. Profit taking deferred until today will not be taxed until 1932.

Rail, oil and motor shares pointed upward after midday. An unsettling development in the early trading was a flop back in some of the utilities which were hurled upward late Wednesday. Shares selling up a point or two included Atchison, New York Central, New Haven, Illinois Central, General Motors, Studebaker, Nash and Standards of New York and New Jersey. Morning losses of a point or two in U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can., Bethlehem Steel, and Air Reduction were replaced by advances of like extent. American Water Works and American Power and Light lost 5 points in the first hour, or most of Wednesday's advances. Allied Chemical tumbled 5 to a low since 1928, then recovered.

The rally was facilitated by an unexpectedly quick breaking of the year end credit firmness. Call money renewed at 3 per cent, but dropped later to 1½, the lowest since September. Reduction of the discount rate of the Bank of France from 2½ to 2 per cent, placing it on a par with the New York rate was viewed constructively. With the Paris rate a full one per cent lower than London, the drain on London's gold stock should be lightened.

The rail shares were helped by the knowledge that heads of the eastern trunklines had promptly resumed conferences to work out the details of the four-party unification plan.

MINERS ON STRIKE IN RHUR VALLEY

Twenty Collieries Tied Up—Jobless and Communists Blamed.

ESSEN, Germany, Jan. 2 (C.P.).—Workers in twenty collieries of the Ruhr Valley coal mines laid down their tools to-day in a strike not authorized by the Trade Unions, but allegedly incited by jobless workers and Communists.

Dissatisfaction among the coal miners is great, due to notice of discharge received by about 300,000, effective as of January 15. After that date they will be re-employed only at reduced wages.

McBRIDE ASKS RECOUNT.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 2.—(C.P.)—Announcement was made this afternoon that the majority of Alderman Stewart, successful candidate for Mayoral honors in yesterday's municipal elections had been reduced from 361 to 313 as the result of the official tabulation of the vote.

Sam McBride, former Mayor, and Mr. Stewarts opponent stated he had decided to make application for a recount.

WHEAT.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 2. —(CP)—Chief Justice Anglin of the Supreme Court of Canada has been granted three months' leave of absence from his judiciary duties. The leave of the Chief Justice will date from January 18.

SUDBURY YOUTHS UP FOR ROBBERY

CARRIED REVOLVER.

SUDBURY, Ont., Jan. 2. (CP)—Electing trial by judge, Walter Morrison and Raymond St. Denis, two teen aged youths were this morning committed for trial by Magistrate McKessock on charges of attempted robbery while armed. A pool room proprietor, Alex Dubous, whom the two youths are alleged to have struck on the head on the night of December 12, was the only witness called. He stated that as he was walking on Rose lane between the two accused about midnight on the night in question, St. Denis made some comment on the hat he was wearing and Morrison fell back a couple of steps. "After that I felt a crack on the head and I fell down. When I opened by eyes, St. Denis had a revolver pointed at me," said Dabous, "I said that if they wanted my money they didn't need to kill me to get it and St. Denis said, 'No, we don't want your money, we want to kill you. We'll get you either to-night or to-morrow night. If you squeal to the police you'll be a dead man'."

Dabous appeared with his head heavily swathed in bandages. He suffered severe head injuries inflicted, it was said by a large hammer which was produced in court.

MONESSEN BLOCK RAZED BY FIRE

$125,000 DAMAGE.

MONESSEN, Pa., Jan. 2. (CP)—Fire which followed a terrific explosion in the business district early to-day caused damage estimated by Fire Chief William Laird at $125,000. An entire block was destroyed.

The explosion, believed to have been caused by gas, hurled a score or more persons from their beds and shattered windows many blocks away.

Mrs. Isadore Pavalovich, occupying an apparment near the building in which the explosion occurred was awakened by the crying of her baby. She removed the child from its crib and took it into her bed. A minute later the blast hurled a heavy picture from the wall and it landed in the crib.

Hunt Fails To Reveal Owen Sound Woman

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 2.—(CP)—The disappearance of Mrs. Cash McCluskey, of Jackson, near here, on Wednesday morning last, remains unsolved, and not the slightest trace of the woman have been found. More than one hundred men searched the surrounding swamps and bush on Wednesday and Thursday but without results. When Mrs. McCluskey left home Wednesday morning she was fully clothed but had no money with her. She has been married for 14 years and is the mother of three children.

SHOOTS HIS SONS FATHER ENDS LIFE

LINCOLN, Mass., January 2 (C.P.)—The bodies of two boys and their father, all of whom had been shot to death, were found here to-day. The bodies of the boys, sons of Peter W. Fletcher, of Watertown, and aged 12 and 14 years, were found in a parked sedan. The father's body was found in the woods near by, a revolver clutched in his hand.

The police said it was apparently a case of a double murder and suicide. A note was found in Fletcher's pocket, which read:

"I am getting crazier and crazier every minute, and I don't want the boys to get that way. Notify my wife. My name is Peter W. Fletcher, 10 Grenville Street, Watertown."

E. A. Rome, a Boston motorist, discovered the tragedy. He saw one of the boys through the window of the sedan and saw that he was wounded. Upon investigation he discovered both boys were dead.

Police Are Called.

Rowe summoned Chief of Police John Kelliher, who called the State police of the Concord Barracks to the scene.

Fletcher, about 45 years old, obtained in some way the use of the big sedan of John Olson, a neighbor. He got into the machine with his sons and drove to Trapelo Road, Lincoln, stopping in a wooden region, nearly a mile from a house.

There he shot both boys through the head with a revolver. One, apparently taken by surprise, remained seated on the rear seat. The other apparently had attempted to reach the door. Then he left the automobile.

REVIEW OF

est, such as furniture and machinery are included under the headings "merchandise" and "miscellaneous" and must account for a fairly large per centage of the 1,617,012 cars so loaded for the year up to that date.

Decline Varies

The decline in Canadian business has been varied, some industries having suffered more than others. Taking October, for instance, as being the latest month for which Government statistics are available, it is seen that car loadings were 93.85 per cent of those for the same month in the previous year, and employment was 90.61 per cent, building 70.44 per cent, pig iron and steel production 44.75 and 69.14 per cent respectively. The production of coal was higher, being 104.51 per cent.

I have looked back five years and I have found that in most particulars gains made up to that time have been more than held despite the seriousness of present recessions.

Evidences of improvements are already observable, and I have no doubt that they will become more strikingly so as the coming year progresses.

Lowly Farm Donkey Leads Hounds To the Chase at Hertfordshire Downs

TRING, Hertfordshire, England, January 2 (C.P.). — A little donkey has provided a thrill in the British hunting season and furnished huntsmen with many hearty laughs.

A pack of drag hounds was being exercised near here yesterday when a donkey straying from a farmyard suddenly trotted into their midst, brayed loudly, and took off across the country at a gallop.

Off went the hounds in pursuit, chasing the ass hard into a wood. There he turned and faced the dogs, who instead of attacking the strange quarry, lay down around him and watched to see what he would do next.

By coincidence a fox suddenly broke over nearby and the hounds forgetting the donkey, immediately gave chase to the more natural game. Then to the amazement of the huntsmen, the ass joined the hounds, and galloped after the fox, leaping hedges and ditches in grand style, apparently enjoying the chase as much as the dogs, who seemed to welcome the companionship. All ended happily. The fox got away. The dogs were recalled by the huntsmen. And the donkey was caught and restored to the farmer.

LADEN SEAPLANE READY TO HOP OFF ACROSS ATLANTIC

Object of Flight to Demonstrate Commercial Basis of Ocean Flying.

START FROM NEW YORK.

Widow Will Handle Controls—Halt at Bermuda and Azores.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. W. S. MacLaren plan a take-off tomorrow on the first Trans-Atlantic flight attempted with a cargo-laden plane. Their object is to demonstrate that ocean flying can be "taken out of the stunt class and put upon a sound commercial basis," they announced today.

The flight, with 200 pounds of food products aboard will be from New York to Paris by way of Bermuda and the Azores. The specially-built cabinet monoplane, "the Trade Wind" equipped with pontoons, will be piloted by Mrs. Hart, New York widow who holds a transport pilot's license, and will be navigated by Lieutenant MacLaren, Annapolis graduate and former navy flyer.

MacLaren estimated that the elapsed time of the flight would be about 48 hours and the flying time about 44 hours. Hopping off from the North Beach seaplane base at 6 a.m. (EST) the fliers hope to reach Bermuda at about 2:30 p.m. A mechanic awaits them to overhaul the plane's engine.

ELECTION RESULTS QUICKLY HANDLED

Complete Returns Were Made By 7.05, Two Hours After Polls Closed.

Few people are aware of the part played by the newspaper in Municipal, Federal or Dominion elections. However, it is a fact that the press offices form a nucleus of all returns —a second central returning office.

The entire editorial staff of The Examiner was at the service of citizens from 5 p.m. yesterday, when the polls were closed. Two reporters were posted at the City Clerk's office, one at the desk where results came in from this office, and two at their phones receiving returns from the pol lofficers. Large sheets tabulated for the returns of the 39 polls for each of the mayoraly and aldermanic candidates were filled in as soon as any counts were made.

Approximately 600 calls for information came in between 5 and 8.00 p.m. In addition to this, connections had to be maintained between the returning and the receiving offices.

By 7.15 the returns were complete and the results, poll by poll, were completely re-counted. Bulletins were posted with the finals for the election of mayor and aldermen. Some fifteen minutes later the Monaghan returns were complete, and another bulletin announced the results to the anxious multitude outside.

The newly elected Mayor, Roland Denne, spoke from the small balcony on the second floor of The Examiner to the people amassed in the street below. He was followed by Ald. N. E. Phelan and Ald. J. A. McNabb, who thanked the citizens for their vote.

NEW PAPAL COINS READY TO ISSUE

Italian Money, Despite Issue, Will Still Be in Use in Vatican City.

SEVERAL DENOMINATIONS.

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 2 (A.P.)—Gold, silver, nickel and copper coins of the new Papal issue will be in circulation within a short time, but Italian money will continue in use in Vatican City.

The largest denomination of the issue, which will be circulated through an agreement with Italy, is a gold 100-lire piece worth slightly less than five dollars. On its side is a right profile bust of the Pope with the inscription, "Pius XI. Pont Max Anno Ux." On the reverse side is a figure of Christ holding a sceptre and globe of Christ holding a sceptre and Citta Vaticano, 1929."

The silver coins, worth five and ten lire, also have a bust of the Pope on one side. On the reverse face of the ten-lire pieces is a figure of the Virgin; on the five-lire coins, a figure of St. Peter.

Will Attempt Rescue Of Bodies In River

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 2.—Efforts to recover the bodies of three men and a woman, trapped in an automobile which plunged into a hole in the ice of the Ottawa river near Rockland, will, if possible, be made today. It is considered unlikely, however, that the remains of the ill-fated quartet, who met death while driving home from a New Year's visit with friends, can be brought to the surface immediately for the river is 75 feet deep at the spot and the ice is treacherous.

CITY CHURCHES

ST. JAMES CHURCH.

The peril and penalty of uselessness in our lives as Christians was the theme with which Rev. A. E. Moorhouse of St. James United Church pointed the thoughts of his congregation toward the New Year on Sunday morning.

The parable of the fig tree, as told in St. Luke's Gospel, 13 : 6-9, was pictured as an example of what a fruitless life means In the eastern countries, where it is grown, the fig is of great food value. Yet for three years the lord of this certain vineyard, spoken of in the text, had come in search of fruit upon a tree, and, upon finding it barren, ordered that it be cut down. But the gardener who had planted and tended the tree pleaded that it be given one more chance.

Preceding the sermon proper, the pastor told a charming New Year's story for the special benefit of the boys and girls.

Seldom is a church privileged in having present and taking part in its services three young men of the congregation, as on Sunday night, when the pastor was assisted by his two sons, Anson and Hugh Moorhouse, and Charlie Kitney.

These young men have all offered themselves to the ministry and are at present engaged in the study of theology. After the opening service of song, Hugh Moorhouse offered prayer and the Scripture lesson from the twelfth chapter of Romans was read by Charlie Kitney. A message from the mission fields in the West was brought with great vividness by Anson Moorhouse in a brief and interesting resume of his two summers' service there. His work was about nine hundred miles north of Saskatoon, near the city of Prince Albert, in a district he termed as the garden of Saskatchewan. Here the people are not foreigners but mainly from the Old Country. The younger generation knew nothing of church or Sunday school, and the immorality is great. Materially they are as far advanced as we are, yet the children do not know the commonest Bible characters and the name of Christ is only known as a profanity.

Of great interest was the spiritual growth of the people when they have once accepted the Gospel. The speaker closed with the challenge that we in the east might sacrifice some little luxuries so that those in the West might have the same privileges of church and Sunday school that we have.

In the West there are 1,200 congregations that have student ministers for only four months in the year. Yet even this work must be dropped unless the financial budget is materially increased.

In closing the service, the Rev. Mr. Moorhouse spoke of the great power of the church for good, and of the great privilege and blessing it is to have a church in a community. "May God help us to see how large are our advantages," he said, "for we can not hope to keep them unless we pass th... Special music prolonging the ... on." mas spirit was given by the ... Christ at both services under the di... Frank Stevens, organist and choir leader, as follows:

Morning Music: Senior Choir — "Christians, Awake" (Maunder); Junior Choir — "Tell Me the Story of Jesus" (Sweney).

Evening Music: Senior Choir — "And He Shall Reign" (Simper); Junior Choir — "Sweeter As the Years Go By" (Morris); Senior and Junior Choirs — (By request) "And There Were Shepherds" (Wilson); Trio (by request) — "Night is Waning," Mesdames E. Kitney, Monks and Robinson; Solo — "Christ Returneth" (McGranahan), Mrs. William McLaren.

RAILROADER ENDS LENGTHY SERVICE

HAVELOCK, Jan. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. Robert Buchanan, veteran employee of the Canadian Pacific Railway, laid down his tools Wednesday night for the last time in the service of the company when, after working in the capacity of car repairer for the past twenty-three years, he was automatically retired at the age of sixty-five years.

Mr. Buchanan, a reliable and painstaking worker possessing a genial and obliging disposition, was highly respected by his fellow employees, and they could not allow the occasion of his retirement to pass without an ovation in his honor. His term being completed at eleven o'clock New Year's Eve, he was sent for at ten o'clock, to report at the locomotive foreman's office. There a number of the men were gathered, and a short address of appreciation of his goodfellowship was read by Mr. H. W. Roach, and after the presentation of a huge bouquet of roses, by Mr. Crawford on behalf of the men, he was conveyed to his home in a car.

Here a further surprise awaited Mr. Buchanan in the form of a sumptuous supper at which a number of his fellow employees and a few intimate friends were also present.

Mr. Buchanan entered the service of the company on October 1, 1908, first as a sectionman, afterwards becoming a car repairer. The past few years he has filled the position of car inspector and was a familiar figure at the station on the arrival and departure of trains. Before moving to this village he owned and worked a farm north of Havelock.

SAINT ANDREW'S UNITED CHURCH S.S. CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

Presentation of Attendance and Verse Awards is Feature of Gathering

SPECIAL SPEAKER

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2 (Examiner Correspondence) — The presentation of the awards won during the year, for attendance and verses, marked the anniversary occasion of the Sunday School of Saint Andrew's United Church, observed on Sunday, December 28, both morning and evening, Rev. A. H. Going, B.A., of Peterborough, being the special preacher for the day.

Associated with the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.A., B.D., on the pulpit platform were the superintendent of the school, W. Fred Fallis, and Rev. Mr. Going, the service of song being led by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. H. W. Johnston. the Christmas music from the previous Sunday being repeated, to the great pleasure of the congregation, the selections including: "There Were Sheperds Abiding in the Fields," with solo by M. McDowell, and by Mrs. Johnston; a second anthem, "Tidings of Great Joy," (Simper), and "O Light Eternal" (C. Austin Mills), sung at the evening service.

Rev. Mr. Going chose his text from Proverbs 30.24, "There be four things that are little upon the earth, but they are exceeding wise," interesting the boys and girls, as well as the older folk, as he drew practical lessons from the ant, the ifrst mentioned of the 'little things,' that by forethought lays up store for future days; the conies, an animal like our groundhog, that build in the rock, bringing to mind the necessity of building our life's foundation on the rock, Christ Jesus; the locusts, which have no leader, the speaker emphasising the need of co-operation yet the development also of the individual personality; and the spider, which spins its web in king's palaces, so ambition will invest the life with higher ideals, and greater accomplishment. "Not forgetting that the highest and best fellowship is with our Lord Jesus Christ."

Presentations Made

The superintendent presented the awards won during the year, eight scholars having been present every Sunday, and receiving either the initial prize of a well-bound Bible, or if a Bible had previuosly been won, then a handsome book of equal value so far as money expended was concerned. The eight pupils were: Esther Might, in Miss Jean Burnham's class; and Arthur Rennet, in W. O'Brian's class; Fred Brown, in Mrs. T. H. Aiken's class; Alfred Bridgeport, Mr. C. C. Garside's class; Mrs. Wesley Brown and Miss Ethel Forsyth, in the Boneka Bible Class Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, teacher; Wesley Brown and W. G. Roberts, in the Men's Bible Class, Mrs. (Dr.) Rae, teacher.

A legacy from the late Rev. Joseph Wilks made provision for an extra prize in each of the intermediate and primary classes this year, the standard being regularity of attendance, verses recited, and conduct both in and out of the school. Winners of these handsomely-bound and well-chosen books were Fred Brown, Stanford Brown, Beatrice McDowell, Muriel Clarke, Reg Edmunds, Madeline McDowell, Harry Freelove, Dorothy McDowell, Orval Bonner, and Maud Raper.

For reciting verses the following received books: Stanford 268; Elwood Fallis 226, in Mrs. Natress' class; May Ferren 204 in Mrs. O. Williamson's class; Gordon Jones 183 and Fred Brown 142 in Mrs. Aiken's class; Beatrice McDowell 151 in Miss Charlotte Luxon's class; Esther Might 346 and Marjorie McDowell 191 in Miss Jean Burnham's class; Reg Edmunds 236 and Clendon Challice 187 in Mrs. I. Hatherly's class.

The honor of reciting the highest number of verses memorized by any scholar in the school rests with Esther Might, who is one of the younger pupils.

The reports for the Sunday, the quarter, and the year, are always one of the features of special interest on the anniversary occasion, the secretary, Oliver Brock, presenting the following: for Sunday morning: 24 teachers and officers present, scholars 243, offering $9.72; for the quarter: attendance 1962, average 151, verses recited 732, average 61, offering $73.40, average $5.63; for the year 1930: attendance 8002, average 154, verses 4388, average 84; offering $321.49, average $6.29.

Every child in the primary department was remembered with a partmen was remembered with a book, and Rev. Mr. Going dismissed the congregation with the benediction.

CAVAN COUPLE CELEBRATES SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Over One Hundred and Twenty-Five Friends Honor Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McKnight

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2 (Examiner Correspondence)—The home of Mrs William and Miss Ethel McKnight, Seventh Line, Cavan, was the scene of a delightful social gathering on Friday evening, December 26, when over one hundred and twenty-five friends, relatives, and neighbors gathered to observe the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McKnight, for whom the entire occasion had been arranged as a complete surprise.

Christmas decorations brought their touch of gay coloring as an added attraction to the large rooms, and the hallway, and while the hostesses, who included Mrs. Ernest Armstrong, another daughter of the homestead, welcomed warmly their many guests, the bride and groom of a quarter of a century had opportunity to become accustomed to the nature of the gathering, adding their personal word of greeting as congratulations and best wishes were showered on them by their host of friends.

Presentation Made

When proceedings were well under way Wesley Williamson took the position of chairman, and invited the guests of honor to central seats amid the company, when Hilliard Lang read an appreciative address, and Messrs. Wilfrid Elson and Ernest Armstrong, on behalf of a wide circle of relatives and friends, presented them with a handsome cabinet of silver, containing fifty pieces, and a three-piece silver tea service.

The address read as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. McKnight,
Cavan, Ont.,

Dear Friends,—It is with feelings of great joy that we, your friends of this community, have assembled together to share in your great happiness on the twenty-fifth anniversary of your wedding day.

Together in happy fellowship you have journeyed these many years, sharing each others joys and sorrows. The warmth of your fellowship has been felt in our community, and we wish on this occasion to extend our hearty congratulations to both of you.

Not only have you been a social asset within our midst, but you have taken an active part in the educational and the political welfare of the people as a whole. You have ever been faithful in the discharge of your duties as good citizens, and your sympathy along with your attentions has always been cheerfully extended to those in need, or distress.

It is our privilege to have this opportunity of sharing your joy on this occasion, and to express our gratitude for your kindness, and your goodwill. We ask you to accept these gifts as slight tokens of the affection and high estem in which you are held. It is our sincere hope that you continue in health and happiness for many years to come.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,

Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Lang,
Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Williamson,
Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Elson,
Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Armstrong.

Mr. McKnight made suitable reply on behalf of his wife and himself, and all joined heartily in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." The program was then proceeded with, the chairman requesting all to join in comunity singing, the Misses join in community singing, the Misses presiding at the piano throughout the evening.

Brief speeches were made by Messrs. Joseph White, J. N. McGill, J. A. Vance, Harry Elson, and George McKnight, as well as the chairman, other numbers on the entertaining program including tenor solos by Charles Thorndyke; a piano solo by Marie Douglas; piano duets by Misses Dorothy and Mary Armstrong, who are nieces of the bride and groom whose wedding anniversary was being commemorated. Readings were contributed by Miss Alberta Brock, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Hilliard Lang.

The committee in charge, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lang, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Elson, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Williamson, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Armstrong, served delicious refreshments, and afterward card playing and dancing, with Mr. Williams and Miss Lillian Crocker providing music for the latter, filled in the time hapinly until a pleasure-filled evening was finally brought to a close.

Guests were present from Orono, Newtonville, Port Hope, Bethany, Campbellford, Peterborough, Millbrook, Raeboro, Toronto, and Monaghan.

McINTOSH RETURNED WITH BIG MAJORITY

DECISIVE ELECTION IN MONAGHAN ENTIRE OLD COUNCIL IS RETURNED

Reeve McIntosh Retains Seat With Majority of 402 Votes.

VOTE WAS HEAVY.

North Monaghan council was returned at the polls yesterday Reeve John McIntosh was re-elected by a majority of 402 in a contest with Harold B. Rye. Every poll gave Mr. McIntosh a majority, and four of the five were rather decisive

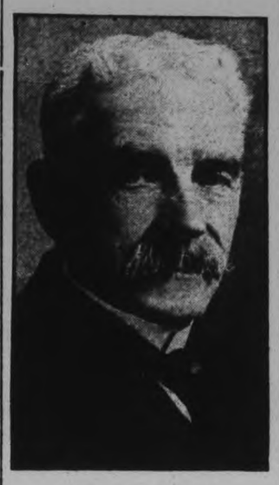
Reeve McIntosh piled up 603 votes against Mr. Rye's 291, the total vote for the reeveship being 948. This is said to have been probably the heaviest day's polling in the municipal records of the township, especially in the Byersville and Confederation school districts.

Deputy-reeve W. G. Waterman defeated Robert Dobbin by 501 to 410, the majority being 91. Mr. Dobbin carried the town hall or rural area of the township, but Mr Waterman won at the other four polls.

The successful members of the council, in the order of their totals are George Patton, W. J. Byers and William Whitfield. Of the three defeated candidates for the council William Stevens made the best showing, trailing Mr. Whitfield by fifty votes. Andrew Kent was 57 votes behind Stevens, and Hy Wood received 13 fewer votes than Mr. Kent.

The North Monaghan results were a clear and decisive approval of the administration of the 1930 council Some of the chief features of the old council's policies were thoroughly discussed at the municipal nominations, and also at several earlier community meetings. Several subjects which were discussed by opponents of last year's council were the establishment of more cordial relations with the city, and the closer union of the suburban and rural sections of the township. A glance over the tabulated returns by polls indicates that both these groups responded with similar force and effect to the appeal of the members of the old council.

Is Re-elected



JOHN McINTOSH.

Veteran Reeve of North Monaghan and ex-Warden of the County of Peterborough, who was returned at yesterday's municipal elections by an increased majority over former Reeve H. B. Rye.

INQUEST IS HELD

and by his friends, who left Chemong Park immediately after Lewis and who came upon the scene of the accident some few minutes later. Lewis was subject to a gruelling examination at the hands of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderdy, K.C., acting for the Crown, and maintained a calm attitude throughout. The only signs of the accident in which he was involved, were two large scratches on his forehead, while a piece of sticking plaster enveloped the bridge of his nose and a portion of his left cheek.

After he had given evidence of identification, Joseph Stewart, father of the dead girl, who was legally represented by B. E. Park, stood against the wall at the rear of the witness box, and followed the inquest closely.

Edward Hornick, Provincial Police traffic officer, said he was called to the scene of the accident the following morning, and arrived there between ten and eleven o'clock. He made a plan of the scene, which he identified in court. A skid mark on the roadway, starting at the east side of the highway, immediately over the junction of Chemong road and Lindsay road, proceeded for a distance of 76 feet, to where the left wheels of the vehicle went over the shoulder of the road and into the ditch. The marks indicated that the brakes had been applied, till the wheels were sliding. The car continued on in a south easterly direction partly in the ditch for another 25 feet 6 inches, where it smashed into a sign post. Breaking this off, the car then went completely into the ditch, and proceeded for a further 50 feet to where wheel marks showed that the car had gone almost to the top of the ditch ran down again and then somersaulted, faoing in the direction of Chemong, from which place it had been travelling. In all the car travelled a distance of 234 feet 6 inches, after the brakes were applied. Witness did not agree with the suggestion that the car had turned around in the ditch, but was of the opinion that it had actually somersaulted. The officer found blood at the rear of the car, which had the top torn completely off, and the sides of the vehicle caved in.

In answer to the Crown Attorney, witness estimated the speed at which the car was travelling, to be 60 m. p.h. The automobile was equipped with good tires all of which were inflated.

Allan Lewis

Lewis on oath stolidly maintained that he had brought his car to a dead stop, at the stop sign at the junction where the Chemong road joins the Lindsay highway. "I was never in high gear, after I started from the stop sign, until the time of the accident," he stated, adding that the car was in second gear, and at the time of striking the post was not travelling more than 20 m.p.h.

Crown Attorney—Did you notice the post break off.

Witness—I noticed the post coming towards me. I already had the brakes applied.

He first applied the brakes when eight feet from the post, he replied in answer to further questioning.

Pointing out to witness, that the evidence of the traffic officer went to show that the brakes were applied 76 feet and 26 feet before coming to the post, the Crown Attorney, pressed Lewis for further explanation. Witness said there was snow on the highway, that fell that evening, or some time during the day of the accident.

Crown Attorney—I am instructed that the centre of the highway was bare.

At a later juncture witness said he went to the side of the ditch because of an 'unavoidable steering fault.' The steering wheel was rather loose and not as exact as on other cars I have driven, he said.

Crown Attorney—If your car was only going at 25 m.p.h. and you found yourself going into the ditch, why did you not turn the car back to the right.

Witness—I tried to but could not.

"That is no speed," said Mr. McElderry, "and you ought to have been able to keep your car on the road. Can you give the jury an explanation why you did not."

Witness—I cannot give any explanation. He was not sure if the brakes were on after the car struck the post.

Lewis declared in the course of his evidence that the brakes on his car were not working in conjunction. "One of the brakes was working about a second ahead of the other," he declared.

Crown Attorney—There are a number of things you cannot explain. Will you tell the jury whether you had anything to drink that night.

Witness—No! I had nothing to drink, either that evening or at any time during the day of the accident.

At the outset Lewis explained that he had called for Miss Stewart that evening at her home. He had later left the city for Chemong, and was also accompanied by Miss Ethel Gamble. Another car driven by William Ott of Port Hope, and containing a young man from Montreal and a young lady from a local hairdressing establishment, whose names he did not know, and a Miss Williams and a Mr. Foote followed them. They all proceeded to a cottage, owned by witness's father, arriving there at about 10.45 and stayed till midnight. He left Chemong ahead of Ott's car and still had with him Miss Stewart and Miss Gamble. Miss Stewart was sitting in the middle of the seat.

When examined by Constable David Sylvester of the Provincial Police, after the accident, witness did not remember having told him, that he was going to Chemong, and not coming from that place.

Crown Attorney—Why do you not remember.

Witness—I presume I was not in my right senses.

Crown Attorney—What was wrong with you.

Witness—I was unconscious when picked up, but revived a little when in the rumble seat of the car which was taking us to Peterborough.

Crown Attorney—Were you conscious when the Constable interviewed you at the hospital.

Witness—I may have been a little unconscious. I remember seeing the constable's lips moving.

Crown Attorney—I put it to you that you were going at a high rate of speed, and struck the bump in the roadway causing you to lose control of the car.

Witness—It is not right.

Dr. A. G. Howson, stated he was called to the hospital at about 1.15 a.m. on the morning of the accident. Miss Stewart was then dead. In his opinion death was caused by a fractured base of the skull. There was considerable bleeding from the ears and nose. He was surprised to find very little signs of superficial marks on the head. The fracture could have been caused by, Miss Stewart having been thrown with some velocity and her head striking the ground, or the top of the car.

William Ott

In direct contradiction to the evidence given by Lewis, William Ott, driver of the second car, stated that they took a bottle of gin with them to Chemong.

"I had one drink not several, sir," he answered in reply to the Crown Attorney," and saw Lewis have at least one drink, I was not with him all of the evening."

After leaving Chemong, stated witness, my car was following Lewis's car at a distance of about 50 yards. Witness's speed at that time was from 35-40 m.p.h. The distance between the two cars was soon increased, although witness's car still maintained the same speed.

He did not see Lewis stop, at the junction, as he was out of sight of his car, by that time. The first intimation he had that anything was wrong was when he saw something unusual about lights of the car ahead. "At one moment," he said, "the lights appeared to point straight into the sky, and they then faced towards Chemong."

He described how upon reaching the scene of the accident, he saw Lewis just getting up, near the front of the car. The two girls were lying on the ground. Miss Stewart was lying near the rear bumper, with her face to the ground. She could not speak. The other girl was unconscious also.

He assisted in lifting the injured persons into his car. He had Miss Stewart in the front seat along with Mr. Foote. Lewis was in the rumble seat with Miss Gamble.

Witness had come from Port Hope that day, he said, and returned there following the accident.

Paul Hall, and Lewis Foote also of Port Hope and Gwendoline Williams and Ina Birchall two local girls, who were passengers in Ott's car, gave corrobative evidence.

Police Constable David Sylvester, of the Ontario Provincial Police, described how he was called to the scene of the accident at two o'clock on the morning of the accident. He corroborated Traffic Officer Hornick's evidence regarding the position of the car, and told how the car had struck a large rock, weighing about 150-200 pounds, before it somersaulted.

Gears in High

Just before the pavement commences, he said, there is a slight hump in the road, which would cause anyone coming over it at a high speed to waver. The application of the brakes, under such circumstances would probably result in an accident. The gear shift on the wrecked car, was in high, he stated. In his estimation the car was, immediately prior to the smash travelling at a speed of from 65-75 m.p.h.

Witness interviewed Lewis at the hospital. He was in a fit condition to talk, and knew what he was talking about, but he gave a different account of the accident, from that given in his evidence to-night, said the Constable. "I noticed the smell of liquor on his breath," he replied in answer to a question.

The jurymen were as follows: G. H. Giroux, foreman, E. Metcalfe, R. Smith, E. Wand, W. Gray, W. Mowry, J. Gillespie, J. H. Vance, N. Andrews, B. Manning, J. Kylie and C. Snider.

Gas Mask For Geese May Stop Robbery

WARKWORTH, Jan. 2.—In an effort to save the balance of a prize winning flock of geese from burglars, Adam Bright has invented a gas mask for the protection of the web-footed birds.

When he visited his goose pen yesterday morning he found that during the night burglars had forced a padlock and carried off eleven fine geese. Lying behind a pile of crates he found one bird that apparently had been overlooked. The goose was unconscious, but when carried into the air it quickly revived. The condition of the goose and the odor of chemicals in the pen led Bright to think that the bird had been gassed. Otherwise, he contends, it would have been impossible for the thieves to make way with the fowl without arousing the family as any slight disturbance usually caused the birds to gabble promiscuously.

BURMESE REBELS HOLD THEIR OWN

Natives Elude British Troops and Bomb Bridge 75 Miles From Rangoon.

PUNJABI BEATEN BACK.

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 31 (C.P.).—Natives out of Tharawaddy, eluding British and Punjabic troops, to-day executed a bold sortie within 75 miles of Rangoon and bombed a bridge, so damaging it as to halt train service.

A Punjabi detachment engaged a small body of insurgents to-day at Sitkwin, 13 miles from Tharawaddy, and retired after the rebels had killed three. Shortly afterward the natives looted a Government forest camp at Okkan, and the Burma Rifles were sent to that district to root them out.

It is believed the insurgents have concentrated their main body in the forest east of Pashwegyaw. The Burma Rifles were heading that way.

PROPOSED PIPE-LINE CARRYING GAS FROM ALBERTA TO SASKATCHEWAN SEEN AS ACTUALITY IN YEAR 1931

Project May in Time Serve Households and Factories in Manitoba

COST SEVERAL MILLIONS

Opponents Claim Exportation Would Be Blow to Coal Industry

EDMONTON, Alta., January 2 (C.P.). — At a cost of several millions of dollars, a pipe-line carrying gas from the fields of Alberta to the industrial centres and homes in Saskatchewan may be an actuality in 1931—a project of enormous possibility which, in time, may advance in to Manitoba to serve householders and factories.

It will mean the development of a great gas area in the Kinsella field, 96 miles to the north-east of Edmonton, if negotiations are successful or from the Turner Valley, near Calgary. If satisfactory agreements can not be arranged in Alberta, another possibility is a pipe-line from the Montana fields into Saskatchewan.

Would Supplant Coal.

To supply consumers in the Saskatchewan cities of Saskatoon, Regina, and Moose Jaw, along with intermediate towns on the line route, gas would supplant coal, now imported from Alberta at the rate of 1,500,000 tons annually, though it developed the fields of Kinsella or the Turner Valley.

Oponents of gas exportation from the province emphasize the loss that would be suffered by the coal industry of Alberta, and too, oppose exportation from the Kinsella area, which they declare to be Edmonton's "reserve supply." Of the 250,000 inhabitants of the province, aproximately half are users of gas to-day, especially residents and industries of Edmonton and Calgary.

Saskatchewan cities are, and have been for some months, negotiating with both Canadian and United States interests, and decision will soon be reached, taking in either the Alberta or Montana fields, with the expected construction of the pipeline to follow early in the spring of 1931.

Cost $2,000,000.

The expense of the undertaking of piping the gas a distance of 600-odd miles is indicated by the probable cost of a line from Kinsella to the Saskatchewan border, a distance of 63 miles. It is estimated that the cost would be approximately $300,000. Then must come the cost of maintenance, construction of "booster" stations, etc., which would run the total expenditure into millions of dollars.

Alberta, with some of the greatest gas fields in the world, still has a huge reserve of coal, sufficient, on the basis of anual consumption of 30,000,000 tons a year, to supply the Dominion of Canada for 30,000 years, so the experts claim.

RECENT MAYORALTY MAJORITIES HAVE NEVER EXCEEDED 1,000

Since 1920 Votes For Mayor Have Often Been Very Close.

CANDIDATES ONCE TIED.

The overwhelming manner in which Mayor Denne defeated Alderman Malcolm McIntyre at the polls yesterday is best illustrated by a glance backward over the mayoralty results of the past ten years.

In 1920, the results of Peterborough's mayoralty race created interest throughout the province; since after the ballots were counted again and again and yet again, A. A. McIntyre and W. H. Taylor remained tied with 1,463 votes apiece. City Clerk Armstrong had to cast the deciding vote and he did so in favor of Mr. McIntyre.

In 1922, W. H. Taylor returned to the polls to edge out a slim victory of 36 votes over J. J. Turner.

In 1924, J. J. Turner in a three-cornered fight with Dr. Holloway and W. H. Taylor as his opponents gained a majority of 837 over the field. The total count was: Turner, 2460, Holloway, 1074 and Taylor 549.

In 1926, Dr. Holloway again entered the lists and in another close fight defeated Alderman Nagle Phelan in the mayoralty by a majority of 44 votes.

In 1928, when Denne ran first, he defeated Phelan, by a majority on that occasion of 946. He topped this majority in yesterday's election by 1,259, piling up a majority of 2,205, by long odds the largest majority ever rolled up in the long history of local mayoralty fights.

SCOTS' NEW YEAR.

From the Peterborough sons and daughters of Auld Scotia this greeting is sent:

"A guid New Year to ane an' a',
An' mony may ye see;
An' during a' the years to come,
O happy may ye be.
An' may ye ne'er ha'e cause to mourn,
To sigh or shed a tear;
To ane an' a', baith great an' sma',
A hearty guid New Year."

Wednesday evening, to the majority of folks, was another New Year's Eve—the night when one sings, and dances, and announces to the world in his or her own way that another year has vanished into the limbo of things that are gone!

To Scottish folk it was all that—and more. To Scots the world o'er it was Hogmanay, a night of nights, steeped in traditions, time-honored and hoary. And to most natives of the Land Ayont the Tweed, who are now resident in Canada, it was also a time of reviving cherished memories.

The loud speakers on Wednesday evening, many of them, were tuned in to pick up the deep tolling of Big Ben in London, England, bidding adieu to 1930, and welcoming the New Year 1931, in the Old Land.

A Fond Memory.

Scots in Peterborough, as in many parts of the Dominion, who listened in, recalled, with a tug at the heart-strings, another Hogmanay—perhaps not very long ago—when they stood amid the surging throng of their fellows, excited yet wistful as to what the next year would bring, in the public square, at the town hall, at the market cross, in the village streets, in some part of Scotland with a biting wind blowing, patiently waiting the time when the two hands on the clock should point in the same direction, and at twal' o'clock the bell in the steeple would slowly chime, and another year pass. The gathering then joined hands singing "Auld Lang Syne," and with handshakes, greetings, and cheers dispersed to "gang their ain' gait."

Beneath many arms ("oxters" was the oft-used name) appeared parcels which might contain anything from cake and fruit to ginger wine! The thoughts of many turned homeward—or others, to the old and ancient custom of "first-fittin'"; and the object of carrying something to these homes was to avert bringing ill-luck to the friends visited. The times were happy, and often one would meet homecomers between five and six a.m.—they had serenaded several families in their peregrination during the night, and lights were burning in many homes from sundown, until sunrise on Ne'erday.

Custom Still Observed

The custom still exists — and in Canada, as in all lands where cotsmen have cast their lot, the traditional "first-fittin'" is observed Peterborough Caledonians this year as usual honored the old-time Hogmanay, and the "exeditions" could be seen wending their several ways yesterday morning after the midnight hour had pealed. Though far from the land of their birth, this tradition keeps the memory green of the Hogmanays spent in the dear homeland!

There is a something unique in the atmosphere associated with the gathering of Scots and their friends on that night which distinguishes it from any other type of gathering. It might be certain customs, it might be the bagpipes, the songs, dances or general conduct—but there is a "something"! The Hogmanay custom, let us hope, will never die

Announces Telescope

Speculation has been aroused by announcement of Prof. A. C. Chant (shown above) of University of Toronto, that the second largest telescope in the world will be erected in vicinity of Toronto on a site with a supplementary tract of land for a park. In 1928 similar interest was caused by purchase of two farms, the Alconbrack and W. G. and H. A. Marsh properties, which, although rumored at the time as probable site for new observatory, was not corroborated by University authorities.

MARINE FORCES COMBING JUNGLE ON KILLERS' PATH

Seek to Avenge Ambush Which Killed Eight in Patrol of Ten.

IN NORTERN NICARAGUA.

U. S. Party Repairing 'Phone Line Battle For 2 Hours

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 2. — United States Marine detachments combed the hills and jungles near Achuapa, Northern Nicaragua, to-day seeking the band of insurgents who Wednesday morning annihilated a patrol of ten marines in an ambush between Ocotal and Apali.

Eight of the patrol of ten men, who were repairing a newly erected telephone line, were killed by the Nicaraguans, who were believed to be commanded by Miguel Ortez, a lieutenant of General Agustino Sandino, Two remaining members of the patrol were seriously injured, but may live.

No Warning Given

An account of the ambush given by United States Marine headquarters here to-day said that at 10.30 a.m. Wednesday morning a Marine patrol which was repairing a telephone line was suddenly fired upon from all sides, and one Marine working at the top of a pole was killed in the first volley, falling to the ground.

The others immediately put up a valiant defense, which lasted for two and one-half hours. Sergeant Arthur M. Palrang, of Port Lyons, Colo., commanding the patrol, ordered Private Mack Hutcherson to attempt to reach Ocotal and bring help, but in trying to get through the ring of attackers he was wounded and incapacitated.

The insurgent fire was infrequent but very accurate, the Marines being gradually picked off. Private Austin Jackson, of Lawrenceville, Ga., was the last man standing; he too was wounded and crawled into a nearby cornfield to hide from the Nicaraguans. Bodies of the eight dead when found later were badly mutilated apparently by machetes.

Farmer Sounds Alarm

A Nicaraguan farmer living nearby heard the firing and rode to Ocotal, arriving there and giving the alarm at about noon. Joseph J. Tavern with 25 men immediately rushed to the scene of the ambush, where he found only the killed and the wounded who were moved immediately to Ocotal and from there by airplane, Thursday, to Managua. Privates Jackson and Hutcherson, the only two survivors of the unfortunate patrol, were seriously wounded, but it is believed may recover.

Retaliatory measures were immediately put into effect. The Marine Aviation Squadron was unusually active all New Year's Day, bombing patrols making extended but unsuccessful efforts to locate the insurgents, who are believed to have flad over the frontier into Honduras.

Once again the Caledonians observed the time-honored custom of seeing the Old Year out and the New Year in by gathering together at a Hogmanay Dance. Wednesday night a gay gathering, to the number of about one hundred and fifty Caledonians and their friends thronged the Woodmen of the World Hall to celebrate what is to Scotch folk all the world over the biggest night of the year: Hogmanay Night. The hall was suitably decorated for the occasion, and Mr. T. Kieran worked a series of colored spotlights. These further enhanced by the many beautiful evening gowns of the ladies, made the scene a brilliant and happy one. Old-tyme and modern dancing was engaged in. Mr. Alex. Milne played the bagpipes for the reels. He also assisted Mr. R. Gilmour, who played for the other dances. These were under the direction of Mr. A. Jackson, and much enjoyed. Interspersed with the dances were several much-appreciated song numbers. Those who favored the company were: Mrs. T. Lister, "Jessie's Dream"; Mrs. A. Anderson, "We'd better bide a wee"; Mrs. G. Nimmons, "I love the dear old home songs." During the evening a service of dainty refreshments was served by the Executive. By the time this was over the Old Year was dying, so just before midnight this company joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne," which changed at twelve o'clock to "A Guid New Year to ane an' a'." After this they all wished each other a 'Happy New Year.' This pleasant function was brought to a close about two o'clock in the morning. Among those who attended were the following: Mr. and Mrs. G. Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Before starting our little discussion for to-day, let me again wish all my readers a very Happy New Year—the happiest one you have experienced in many years!

• • • • • • •

Putting yourself behind the wish for A Happy New Year amounts to the same thing as giving yourself to further the fulfillments of the wish.

• • • • • • •

We hear of persons who "give themselves to a cause," and it is always with enthusiasm that such characters are considered and talked about.

• • • • • • •

These people have not drifted into the cause for which they are working and giving their lives. They have been stirred by the ideals and purposes and have entered into the work with enthusiasm.

• • • • • • •

There are many women who have become famous through their world work in bringing comfort, improved conditions and happiness in consequence, to great groups of people.

• • • • • • •

Such people were those pioneer nurses on our country and of England, such as Florence Nightingale.

• • • • • • •

And there are thousands of women—women here in our own city of Peterborough—who are unknown to the outer world and who, within their homes, have done great work in transforming a dwelling into a home of the very finest type.

• • • • • • •

The homemaker who wishes to have her home one blessed with the comfort of happiness must give herself to the making of a home as heartily as did these women give themselves to their chosen work.

• • • • • • •

The making a home does not consist in the kind of homemaking that we read much about, for that, in many cases, consists in setting a table with dishes that are different, in entertaining in ways that are novel.

• • • • • • •

Nor does it consist in decorating a house or having it decorated in the latest mode of fashion. It goes far deeper than these things which are the outward expressions of homemaking.

• • • • • • •

The making of a home in its trues sense consists first of all in giving to the atmosphere of the house that elusive element of happiness that is as important to the spiritual and mental well being of personalities as is pure fresh air essential to the life of the body.

• • • • • • •

It is the wife and mother who, more than any other member of a family, instills the happiness element into the home. The husband and children recognize such a home, because within its walls there is peace.

• • • • • • •

There is just one way in which a woman can succeed in making such a home and that is by giving herself to it with all her heart.

• • • • • • •

It is a cause deserving of the finest work a woman can give. It will bring a Happy New Year to those around her and bring that wonderful happiness to her that comes from an earnest effort in the best of causes.

Leafs and Maroons Win New Year N. H. L. Games

TORONTO BLANKS N. Y. AMERICANS BY 2-0 COUNT

Conacher and Jackson Score Two Clean Goals For Victors.

ASSISTS FOR PRIMEAU.

Victory Puts Leafs in Third Place in League Standing.

TORONTO, Jan. 2.—Goals scored by Charlie Conacher and Harvey Jackson in the third period gave the Maple Leafs a 2 to 0 decision over the New York Americans at the Arena Gardens last night in one of the scrappiest games of National League hockey witnessed here this season.

The victory put the Leafs in third place in the league standing, one point ahead of the Americans. It was the Star-Spangled team's first defeat in their last eight starts. A near-capacity crowd witnessed the struggle, which developed into a Donnybrook in the final period when the teams, playing under high tension in an effort to get goals, indulged too freely in rough play and the inevitable blow-off came.

Four major penalties were handed out during the fracas. In the second period "Red" Dutton of the Americans ran amok unnoticed for a time by the officials, and when he high-sticked Jackson in the face and made the Toronto youngster's nose bleed, Jackson retaliated with his fists. Both drew five-minute stretches in the cooler.

Twelve teams are entered in this league, which for three years has operated with a great deal of success, providing organised hockey for more than 150 of the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co. All of the players participating are members of the Social and Athletic Club, and the expenses of the hockey season are paid with a grant from this club together with a small fee per game from each player.

The program outlined for the coming season by the hockey executive is similar to that followed in other years. The teams have been divided into three groups of four teams apiece. Each section will operate as an independent unit during the winter on a single schedule basis, and the winner of each group will take part in the play-offs for the works championship. The winners of Group 2 and 3 will play a sudden-death game for the right to meet the winners of Group 1 in a 3-game series for the championship. The point system of scoring will be followed, a win counting 2 points and a tie one point. A written copy of every protest must be given to the league secretary not later than forty-eight hours after a game is played. Umpires will be appointed by the league officials, and in all probability will be persons not employed with the company.

The twelve teams are grouped as follows:—

Group 3.—Machine Shop No. 2, Office No. 2, Punch Press Dept., and the Armature Winding Dept.

The public is invited to be present at the games in this league, which will be played every Saturday at the Brock Street Arena.

To-morrow's program is as follows:—

Switchgear vs. Tool Room No. 2 .....2—3
Office No. 2 vs. Machine Shop 2 .....2—3
Drafting vs. Office No. 1.....3—4
Fractional Motors vs. Machine Shop No. 1.....4—5

BRUINS STAGE COMEBACK 4-3

After Trailing For Three Periods 3-1 Bostonites Win in Avertime.

DEFEAT RANGERS.

NEW YORK, January 2. — The Boston Bruins, staging one of the greatest comebacks ever seen in Madison Square Garden, defeated the New York Rangers 4 to 2 in an overtime National Hockey League thriller last night to start their third year of triumphs over the Rangers The last time the New York Rangers beat the Bruins was late in 1928

Trailing 3 to 1, less than three minutes before the end of the third period, the Bruins scored two quick goals to tie the score, then added the winning counter early in the overtime session. Marty Barry, tall Boston centre, succeeded Joe Jerwa of New York as the hero of the game when he scored one of the two goals that tied the count and passed to Dutch Gainer for the other. "Red" Beattie made the winning tally on a fine unassisted play.

BISONS VICTORS ON PITTSBURG ICE

Goal Scored By Losers in the Third Period is Disallowed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 2—A crowd estimated as the largest ever to attend a hockey game here last night saw Buffalo defeat Pittsburg 3 to 1 in an International League contest. The attendance was placed at 7,000.

The setback spoiled a previously unscarred streak of home successes that had reached three wins and three ties, and at the same time ruined another opportunity to move up a notch in the standing.

Bisons' Defense Strong

The Bison defense that is largely responsible for the Buffalo aggregation being at the top of the ladder, functioned in fine fashion, and only a sustained drive in the last minutes, with all hands on the offensive enabled the Jackets to stave off a whitewashing.

Several times during the hectic session the home boys were offered golden opportunities to cut into the visitors' lead, but they spoiled their chances with erratic shooting and overanxiousness. On one occasion late in the second period, the Jackets held a two-man advantage, but

LEADS PACIFIC SCORERS

HAVELOCK, Jan. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Doug. Brennan of Havelock, the husky playing manager and captain of the Vancouver Lions, is leading the Pacific Coast scorers, and has been going strong ever since the season opened there.

Following is an extract from The Vancouver papers regarding the Havelock boy:—

"There were times when Brennan fought the entire Portland team, and beat them."

"They'll be sending Brennan to the big show next year, sure," said the fans, when Brennan scored two goals unassisted, against the Portland Buccarroos, and won the game by a two to one score, and thereby kept the Lions in the leadership of the Coast League.

"The fans had every right to idolize the smart playing defence player. The speeding Irishman skated like a wild man all night, engineering rush after rush, and kept the skillful Portland goalie jumping to every side of the net to turn aside terrific drives. Doug. Brennan was the real thing of the hockey Beasts for Vancouver, last night. Every time he shot, the Messrs. Corey and Junior ducked.

LAKEFIELD AND NORWOOD GAMES OPEN COUNTY LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

C.G.E. and Cogs Make Out of Town Trips—Officers Going Too.

EAST PETERBORO CIRCUIT.

The East Peterborough Hockey League goes into action tonight with games at Norwood and Lakefield. All four clubs that constitute the league will be engaged, the two Peterborough entries being away from home for their first games.

Cognawagas go to Norwood where they meet Alex Kempt's team, and the C.G.E. make their first appearance in the new circuit against Lakefield. Abbie Rose will handle the bell at Norwood and Orville Kennealy will be in charge at Lakefield.

And just to show their interest in the league Charlie Curtis, president, is going down to Norwood to look things over, and Nelson McFadden, secretary, is going to Lakefield on a similar duty.

The East Peterborough League needs no introduction, although tonight's opening fixtures will serve that purpose. The two Peterborough clubs have been prominent in both hockey and baseball, and the Cogs have also been up there in both sports. Lakefield and Norwood are seasoned hockey clubs, and their teams have always made a good showing both at home and here. The league executive is full of hope for a successful season, and tonight's games should indicate the strength of the four teams.

I wish to extend my thanks to the Ratepayers of Otonabee for their support in returning me to the office of Deputy Reeve, and will endeavor to serve them to the best of my ability.

MAROONS OUTSCORE LUCKLESS SENATORS AT OTTAWA 3 TO 2

ROOKIE GOALER STARS.

OTTAWA, January 2. — The tenacity of Montreal Maroons made Ottawa Senators break their New Year's resolution even before they had a chance to prove the resolution was a sincere one. With eight straight losses behind them the Ottawa National Hockey League representatives played Maroons to a standstill at times in their engagement here last night and twice drew up to even scoring terms, but were unable to cope with the doggedness of the Montreal charges, especially in the dying minutes of the rugged contest.

A goal by "Hooley" Smith in the next to the last minute of the struggle broke a two-goal deadlock, and gave Maroons victory three goals to two. "Babe" Seibert provided the pass for the winning tally and crowned an excellent night's work for it was Seibert who had accounted for the previous Montreal counters, both on solo efforts.

Rookie Goaler Stars.

Although defeated, Senators were far from disgraced. They appeared to have hit their easly-season stride their combination efforts being exceptionally brilliant, and their ninth consecutive loss was more than due to the near-perfect net tending of Dave Kerr, Maroon recruit of this season from the amateur ranks The game was rough and tumble as the Maroon-Senators meetings usually are. It produced no less than twenty-six penalties.

CHICAGO HAWKS WIN EASILY 10-3

Ingram Scores Four as Quakers Lose to Windy City Squad.

IN SECOND PLACE.

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 2—The Chicago Black Hawks held a scoring carnival last night at the expense of the Philadelphia Quakers, winning by 10 to 3 to take undisputed possession of second place in the National Hockey League race.

The smallest crowd of the season, 7,500, watched the match, but they saw plenty of hockey. Young Frankie Ingram was the big scorer for the Hawks with four goals, while "Hib" Milks headed the Philadelphia attack with two. The first period was tight, the Hawks managing to get by the rough Quaker defense only once. They found the combination in the second session and almost chased the Quakers out of the building. "Chuck" Gardiner played a fine game in goal for the Black Hawks, the three goals against him coming after he had made great saves of previous shots.

The rest of the Hawk scoring was split up among DesJardines, Gottselig, Ripley, Couture, Miller and Cook. The total score, 13 goals, tied the season's record set by Ottawa and Canadiens several days ago.

CAMPBELLFORD MAROONS BEAT C.G.E. 4 TO 3

Both Teams Put Up Tidy Battle in Exhibition Hockey Tilt at Mill Town.

"REDS" HOLD EDGE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 2. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—In an exhibition game that proved to be a splendid work-out for both teams, and with three front lines from each division being played alternately, the C.G.E. Intermediates, Peterborough, went down to defeat with a score to the tune of 4-3 before the Campbellford Maroons in a clash staged in the Davidson Arena, Campbellford last evening.

Played on keen ice, both teams showed fast hockey. The Peterborough squad proved to have some very fast forwards, their attacks time and again pressing the Hometowners' defence, but this was however a strong fortress for the visitors and combined with the excellent play of the Campbellford goalie, kept the score down in favor of the entertainers. The game was refereed by M. Hartley of Peterborough, who handled the players well. Penalties were not heavy for a changing forward line, what there was of them being spread over both teams.

Four Counters

Four counters were made in the first period, three for Campbellford, McArthur, Copperthwaite and Hendy making the check, with Hayden netting the puck for Peterborough. The Maroons were inclined to have the edge on the play in this section of the game. Driving forward, they kept the visitors' defence busy and pressed their goal. Long shots seemed to be the order of the day, these coming from both sides. Each team seemed to be feeling the other out with the result that the game did not warm up until the gong sounded.

In the second period Peterborough did the advancing with the result that one count was made in their favor by R. Epps. The Maroons' defence was kept very busy, but as ever, they did their stuff in great style, repelling a continual stream of attacks and holding the score down in their favor.

The third period was the best of the play. The game ranged from goal to goal, the teams being about even in ability. Two counts were made, Whitton for Campbellford and Palmer for Peterborough. Campbellford tried out a new forward combination in this period which proved very successful, and kept much of the play in centre ice. The last ten minutes of the game was featured by strong attacks from the visitors who tried their best to even up the score and pass the Campbellford count.

Prospects for the C.G.E. in the East Peterborough group are very good if their exhibition of play is any indication. Well coached and playing good combination, they have some splendid material for the newly-formed league, and shows signs of standing high in the list before the season is over.

The Campbellford team on the other hand are responding well to the coaching of Fred Ingram, who has made good material better. Always strong on defence, last night's display was above the average while combination was more than good. Some very heavy checking was featured, but this was as it should be when two fast teams clash for supremacy.

The line-ups were:

Peterborough—Goal, J. Jones; left defence, G. Lackey; right defence, M. Stranger; centre, H. Epps; left wing, Doug. Hatton; right wing, Jim Creighton; subs, R. Hayden, R. Epps, F. Meagher, O. Corkery, G. Palmer, C. Magee, C. Howe. Manager, F. Barrie.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Jan. 2.—In the opening O.H.A. Junior games here last night, Trenton scored a 5 to 4 victory over the local sextet. The homesters led 1 to 0 at the end of the first period and the rest of the scoring was done in the second frame when the visitors ran in five goals and the local scored three. No scoring resulted in the final session, although the teams fought hard throughout. Port Hope had a fine chance near the end of the game when two Trenton players were penalized, but failed to capitalize their efforts.

Port Hope—Goal, Graham; defense, Curtis and Hodgetts; centre, Berbert; wings, Roach and Freeman; subs, Smith, Rowland and Meeking.

TECUMSEHS WIN FROM OLYMPICS

3-2 WIN FOR BULLDOGS.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 2.—London Tecumsehs celebrated the New Year's properly by defeating Detroit Olympics 3 to 1, before a near capacity crowd at the London Arena last night. It was a hard-fought struggle with the Londoners coming from behind in the second period to take the lead, while in the dying stages of the final session they increased the lead.

"Toots" Holway and Clem Loughlin were the stars for the winners, Holway scoring two goals, while Loughlin accounted for the other counter. The Olympics' lone tally came after 12 minutes of play in the opening period, when Steel scored on a pass from Gillie.

Scores for Bulldogs

WINDSOR, Jan. 2.—Stan Brown, veteran defense man, scored the only goal of the third period, in a Windsor-Syracuse hockey tussle here last night and it broke a tie to give the Bulldogs a New Year's present in the form of a 3-2 victory over the Stars.

Paddy Farrell, former Windsor net-minder, was the hero of the visiting aggregation. His goaltending held the Windsorites to a single tally in the opening period, Northcott scoring on a pass from Duguid.

Then early in the second session Rene Fournier, also a Windsor castoff, tied the count at 1-1 after a lone rush. "Deed" Klein made it 2-1 for Syracuse on a similar play, and the Bulldogs faced an uphill fight.

MADOC WINS FROM BELLEVILLE 4 TO 3

Exhibition Fixture Features Opening of Madoc's Hockey Rink

MADOC, Jan. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Tuesday evening was the occasion of the opening for the season of Madoc's hockey rink and was signalized by an exhibition game between Belleville's noted "Y" team, and the local team. Madoc winning 4-3.

A good game was played, with excellent stick-handling on the part of the local men. Belleville team seemed to have difficulty in getting close to the nets, and had to be content with long shots from centre. The score indicates an excellent and well-fought game, and the record of one penalty to each team, shows up the fair sportship of all playing

KEEN CONTESTING.

The Vice-President was six shots up on the President, with a total of 183 points, in the annual President vs. Vice-President competition, held at Peterborough Curling Club on New Year's Day, for the silver cup donated by H. R. H. Kenner and J. E. A. Fitzgerald, veteran curlers.

The competition was the big feature of the day's activity at the club, and was greatly enjoyed by the large number of members who participated. This is the first time, in three years that curling has been enjoyed on the local ring on the first day of the year, but as usual there were the usual surprises and upsets, and curling both good and poor.

President: Vice-President:

The season opened with cold weather, good ice and an abundance of curlers, old and new. The long, mild spell had kept the players guessing as to their chances of curling on New Year's Day, but the cold dip, put the game on the ice in a manner that augurs well for the future.

Caretaker Angus McIntosh, who has been making ice for 42 years certainly had things in good order, and all day long the seven sheets of ice were fully occupied.

TACOMA IS DROPPED FROM COAST LEAGUE

Remaining Three Teams Will Carry On—Rink Project Fails.

Tacoma Tigers passed out of the Pacific Coast Hockey League picture yesterday when they played two abbreviated games with Vancouver Lions, losing the first 3—0 and gaining a one-all draw in the second encounter. After the second game the league President, Frank Patrick, announced that the Tacoma team had played its last game of the season and would immediately be disbanded. The players will be sold, with Pacific Coast loop teams having first choice.

Failure of the rink project in Tacoma forced the league to drop the team, and the circuit will continue with three clubs, Vancouver, Seattle and Portland.

The local Lions picked up three points as a result of yesterday's encounters, which were limited to two twenty minute periods each, and advanced to the top of the league standings. Vancouver now leads Portland and Seattle, who are tied in second place, by two points.

RED RINGERS LOSE TO BELLEVILLE 6-2

Winners Show Surprising Strength Against Toronto Sextet.

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 2.—Toronto Canoe Club juniors received a surprise here last night when the Belleville Cubs defeated them 6 to 2 in an exhibition fixture. The Red Ringers thought it was a game to go through the motions, but soon realized that they were against a strong junior team. When they put on speed the Belleville team matched them play for play. So anxious were the Canoe Club to win that the coach kept his regular front line of Achesgoh, Dunning and London on the ice for most of the game, relieving them with Davidson, McNeill and Brown. Housley did not accompany the team, but "Red" Hewit, who played with Fischer on the defense, turned in a stellar performance.

TANGLE STARTS AT 8.30.

Oshawa Intermediates are here to-night to open the local O.H.A. intermediate schedule. The Peterborough players have been doing some hard practising since their defeat in Bowmanville, and are sure to ice a much-improved team. SHIELDS NAMED FOR DAVIS TEAM

New Rules Suggested Regarding Choosing of U. S. Players For Competition.

DOEG DEFINITELY OUT.

(By Louis B. Dailey.)

President, United States' Lawn Tennis Association.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—If I had to name four United States' players to seek the Davis Cup in 1931, I would name Shields, Wood, Mangin and Sutter, since John Doeg already has announced that it is his purpose to devote his time to establishing himself in business.

I would name them now so that they might organise their plans accordingly and on or about June 1 send them abroad with a non-playing captain, omit training trips, tryouts and avoid so far as possible all the strain and worry of making the team. Perhaps we would lose but we have been doing this for three years anway.

Three members of last year's Davis Cup team, Lott, Allison and Van Ryn, have recently married and have entered upon business careers and I believe our Association should encourage them to concentrate upon their business careers and not tempt them to devote several months in 1931 to the playing of the game on International teams. I made bold to suggest this last fall in the case of one player who started his tennis career on the courts of my home club, but it was not received with enthusiasm.

Nevertheless, I believe that in the case of the three players mentioned, further concentration on the game except upon local courts and our current championships would not be of value to them in their business careers.

What they do as individuals we cannot, of course, control, and if their families and business associates believe that continuing application to the game this year is desirable, it is not our concern. We should not, however, to win the Davis Cup again, urge them to make the trip.

In these high standards of amateurism, I am sure that the U.S.L.T.A. will have the closest co-operation of the British Lawn Tennis Association. I believe that for the advancement of these ideals we must encourage and continue the closest relations with the British Association. We must restrict the Wightman Cup women's international team match competition to Great Britain and the United States in accordance with their suggestion and desire.

Successful Season

From a financial standpoint, the past season may be considered a successful one according to U.S.L.T.A. standards, and this affords me great pleasure since this will permit of the establishment of a definite financial plan, insuring a steady income to sectional associations of the association. This is extremely essential, as these refunds to the sectional associations permit the continuance and further broadening of tennis development within such sections.

Early in my administration I appointed a special committee to study out a fundamental policy under the chairmanship of former President Jones W. Mersereau. At the recent meeting of the executive committee a most comprehensive permanent plan was presented for such distribution of funds and unanimously approved by this committee which was composed of the two vice-presidents and the treasurer. I believe the plan will be accepted by the annual meeting in February next, but whether it is or not, some permanent plan will be adopted.

Kitchener Flying Club Has 52 Members

KITCHENER, Ont., January 2 (C.P.). — The Kitchener Flying Club was organized last night, and it was reported that already 52 members have been obtained. A membership drive is planned with the objective of enlisting 200 members. Included in the club are many prominent young men of this city.

The club will make application to the Dominion Government for two planes, and it may also erect a clubhouse on the Kitchener-Waterloo Airport property.

M. P. McMullen was elected president, Archie Lockhardt vice-president, and Gordon Wheeler, secretary-treasurer.

New Chevrolet Six On Display Saturday

OSHAWA, Ont., January 2. —The 1931 Chevrolet Six—bigger and finer and lower in price than any previous Chevrolet, four or six—goes on display to-morow throughout Canada, and the official anouncement by the General Motors of Canada stresses many new and striking improvements. Fundamentally the 1931 car seems to be the same, but its appearance has undergone a marked change in the direction of greater beauty of line and contour. The wheelbase is increased to 109 inches, and in keeping with the larger size, the frame and many of the mechanical parts are increased in strength by as much as 50 per cent.

The new lines of beauty of the 1931 Chevrolet are quick to be noted, and the two-inch increase in wheelbase seems to have been utilized throughout the line to increase the roominess and comfort of the Fisher bodies. Smart new Duco color combinations, the addition of decorative body features, and a head-on appearance extensively changed from the 1930 car combine to make the 1931 model decidedly finer in appearance than any of its predecesors.

BOWLING GOSSIP.

That conglomeration of strange noises that has been emanating from the Duffus Bowling Academy for the past few weeks has been nothing more alarming than the local ten-pinners getting in trim for the opening of their season. The newly organized City Ten-Pin League will open its season on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Duffus Alleys. At present it is a four-team organization town wishes to hook up, it is requested to leave its entry with Burt Duffus.

As at present constituted, the league consists of the Brintons, captained by Bill Chamberlain, and including Vern Dawson, Dan Munn, Gord Anderson, George Dodson, and Dave Lerlten.

Chief Gimblett's team of unknowns is also entered. The Chief remains reluctant to divulge his line-up, but admits he has a good hitting team and says that the team that beats his will be the champs.

Then there's Leo Martyn's team which will be a hard team to lick. Fred Hickey is bowling with this team as is also Walter Firth.

MEN'S CLOTHING AT HALF-PRICE

New Year 1931 Opens With an Opportunity to Effect Big Savings.

A New Year's greeting that will be appreciated by many men and young men of this city is the opportunity offered them by Riley & Hickey to purchase seasonable up-to-the-minute clothing at exactly half price. In style, and quality of fabrics the suits and overcoats are all this style house's regular stock, backed by the firm's reputation for reliability in all their representations as to values and reductions. The cutting of prices fairly in half means a tremendous saving to those who take advantage of this sale, the unloading at which is forced by adverse business weather and regrettable economic conditions the country over. Riley & Hickey pride themselves upon selling men's clothing—ready to ut on or made to measure—that will give their wearers an air of distinction, lifting them above the common-place—and such is the character of the clothes listed for this Half Price sale at 357 George Street, which opens to-morrow.

Billiard Tourney In Finnie's Hall

Peterborough's Willie Hoppes will get a chance to show their skill in the snooker competition to start next Monday at Finnie's billiard hall. Prizes for this big competition are now on display in A. A. Fowler's window.

Every man ought to have an interest outside of his business and the biggest and the best interest he can have is the improvement of the city in which his business is located. This is the view of the Chamber of Commerce.

Nearly 50,000 pounds of cacao, from which chocolate and cocoa are produced, are being taken from plantations into Port au Spain, Trinidad, every day.

To the ratepayers whose splendid endorsement placed me at the head of the list for Alderman, I sincerely say

I Thank You

My best is at your service.

Compliments of the season.

Nagle Phelan Thanks You

—and in doing so assures citizens, one and all, that by faithful and energetic service as Alderman he'll exercise his very best efforts during the years 1931 and 1932 to merit that full measure of confidence so handsomely vested in him at the polls yesterday. With best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year, yours faithfully.

RELIEF RECEIVED WITH DUE THANKS

Letters Sent By Three Who Obtained Help Show Appreciation

FURTHER REQUIREMENTS

Many have been the appeals for relief by the various organizations pledged to aid the unfortunate victims of the present depression in the city. The responses to these appeals have been generous in every respect, and many families have benefitted. Christmas was not the drab season that many expected, due to the relief workers.

Despite all this, there are many who doubt the real benefits of such relief. But to counteract any doubts, three letters have been received by the Fire Chief which proves the thankfulness of those aided.

The first letter shows the quiet manner in which relief was carried out, so as not to hurt any feelings:

"I am writing to thank you and all concerned for the 2box of groceries and toys which we received on Christmas eve, although it was a great surprise to me, as I do not know how you came to know that we were up against it. But I asure you we had not told anyone of our circumstances.

"My son had been out of work for nearly 5 months, and my daughter is working only half time. When the Firemen called, I thought it was to enquire about the clothes we needed most, but when I took the box into the house and opened it, I was surprised.

"Again thanking you and all for your kindness, —"

Another letter of appreciation reads as follows:

"I expressed my thanks at the house, but really when I looked over the lovely box of groceries and clothing, and also toys, I had to send you all a note of thanks, for it certainly was a help to me, and the children enjoyed the candy and toys very much. So thanking you all again and wishing you every success for the coming year, —"

In the third communication, the writer takes the opportunity of thanking both the Firemen and The Examiner for their benevolence:

"Just a few thanks to you all in thanks for your lovely basket which we received on the night before Christmas. It was such a Godsend that I cannot thank you and the donators enough. I wish you could have seen our seven little children; they were the happiest little tots on Christmas morning. It would have been a very dreary day had it not been for the Fire Hall and The Examiner.

"We have been hit hard. My husband has been out of work for 8 weeks, and all he has made in that time was $4 for 13 hours last week. We are struggling along as well as we can with so many little mouths to feed.

"Thanking you again from the bottom of my heart, —"

To continue the good work, men's, women's and small children's clothing is needed. Calls are coming in for stoves, furniture, and food. The work of unemployment relief therefore is not finished, and so the help of every citizen in the city is requested in this connection.

Scout News and Notices

The weekly meeting of the Sixth Troop was held Monday evening at their headquarters on Simcoe Street. The meeting opened in the usual manner with flagbreak. Scoutmaster E. J. Wolff was in charge and put the Scouts through a real active night's work. A very difficult observation test was held which taxed the ability and alertness of the best of the boys. During the evening Kim's game was played. In this game twenty-four articles were placed on a table and the boys allowed to observe them for one minute. The objects were then removed and each boy wrote the names of as many articles as could be remembered. Many of the boys could recall as many as twenty-two.

Flag signalling was then taken with the Scouts. Several of the boys have mastered this form of signalling and take a great deal of amusement out of sending messages from one end of the hall to the other.

Several Scout games were then played. The Scoutmaster at the conclusion of the games spoke on the fourth Scout law. Mr. Wolff showed how each Scout by living up to this Scout law could do a great deal of good in spreading happiness amongst those who come in contact with them every day.

The meeting closed with the lowering of the bag, Scout silence, and the singing of the National Anthem.

The members of the Sixth Troop would like to confer with other troops of the city in an effort to start the Scout Hockey League operating.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

OTTAWA, Jan. 2. (CP)—Corporal punishment, especially the lash, is one of the most effective of modern crime deterrents, Brig.-Gen. St. Pierre Hughes, head of the Canadian penitentiary system said yesterday. He would dislike to see it abolished because, in his opinion, it compels a respect for law and order by a certain criminal class to a greater extent than any other agency.

One-fourth of the population in Argentina is European.

THE OUNCE OF PREVENTION

The old saying that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure has no truer application than in the case of fire.

Carefulness costs nothing, yet thousands of dollars are saved every day, for instance, by the matches that are not thrown away while burning.

Every child should be taught to recognize and appreciate the dangers that lie in all exposed flames.

Of the ten thousand annual deaths by fire in the United States, one-third are children under ten years of age.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 34 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Sheeta, the panther, had interrupted the Dance of Death. But Tarzan was still bound to the stake, and the huge beast seemed not to understand its master's helplessness. Now the warriors, realising that it was a flesh and blood panther, took heart a tribe. Rokoff urged them to hurl their spears. Then suddenly their chief also saw that which Tarzan the ape-man was fixedly watching.

With a yell of terror the chief turned and fled toward the village gate. And as his people looked to see the cause of his fright they too, took to their heels. For there—lumbering down upon them, their huge forms exaggerated by the play of moonlight and camp fire—came the hideous apes of Akut. Now the ape-man's savage cry rang out above the shrieks of the fleeing blacks.

In answer to it, Sheeta and the apes leaped growling after the fugitives. Some of the warriors turned to battle with their enraged antagonists. But before the fiendish ferocity of the beasts they went down to death. Others were pounced upon in the act of flight. Soon the village was empty. Only then was Tarzan able to recall his savage pack to his side.

Now he discovered to his chagrin that he could not make one of them, not even the comparatively intelligent Akut, understand that he wished to be freed from the bonds that held him to the stake. Soon the blacks might return in force. The white men might readily shoot them down all from the surrounding trees. He might even starve before the dull-witted apes realised he wished them to gnaw his bonds.

The panther understood even less than the apes. Now that the blacks were disposed of, Sheeta walked slowly back and forth about the stake, rubbing its sides against the ape-man's legs and purring like a contented tabby. Tarzan wondered at the absence of Mugambi. Had the apes devoured his black friend? To all his questions, Akut, the great ape, merely pointed in the direction of the jungle.

The night passed with Tarzan still fast bound to the stake. Toward dawn his fears were realised—the blacks were returning! Already they were preparing a rush to recapture the village. Tarzan thought only of his little son somewhere in this cruel, relentless wilderness. That and the growing conviction that perhaps Jane had somehow—somewhere—fallen into Rokoff's clutches were all that weighed now on his brave heart.

Help from his devoted beasts, all that he could hope for, had come to him in the instant of his extremity—and failed! "These," he thought, "are surely my last moments of life." There seemed nothing further for which to hope. Now the savages were yelling like fiends and half across the clearing. Suddenly, Tarzan heard a shrill scream come from behind a hut. To his infinite amazement and joy he saw the stalwart figure of Mugambi running toward him.

The huge black man was panting heavily as though from strenuous exertion. He rushed to Tarzan's side, and as the first of the savages reached the village gate, the knife of Mugambi severed the last of the cords that bound Tarzan to the stake. Seizing a spear from a fallen savage, Tarzan, with Mugambi at his side and the snarling pack about him, rushed at the natives just as they poured through the gate.

APPRECIATION

I wish to sincerely thank the ladies' and gentlemen who gave me their support both at the polls, and by working in my behalf before the election. Although not elected, I wish the 1931 Council the best of success. Wishing the citizens a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

MALCOLM McINTYRE.

In Police Court

Revelry there was in the city during the past two nights without doubt, but citizens must have succeeded in keeping their New Year's celebrations within the law because no one appeared before Magistrate Langley this morning charged with "wild doings." The only two cases that were up were echoes of the old year. One was a family squabble where a husband was alleged to have struck a woman because she would not tell his absent wife's address. It was amicably settled, the man stating that he had "signed" off his wife and they had agreed to live apart.

The other case was a charge of vagrancy against a man, who claimed he was homeward bound and who expressed some indignation that the police had detained him. He pleaded guilty and promised to be on his way immediately, when ushered out of the court room without sentence.

MY THANKS

I am greatly pleased that the ratepayers of the city have again shown their confidence in me by re-electing me as Alderman for 1931. I promise my best service, and extend to all the Compliments of the Season.

WM. LECH AND SONS CELEBRATE 70TH ANNIVERSARY IN BUSINESS

THIRD GENERATION.

Wm. Lech and Sons, Limited, manufacturing furriers, are this month celebrating their 70th anniversary of business in Peterborough. They have served thousands of people from this city and many others throughout Canada and United States, and the excellent service and satisfaction which they have given have warranted their long years of success.

The company was founded in 1861 by the late William Lech at 374 George street. The store was later moved to where the Dominion Bank is at present located. In 1872 the present store was built at 413 George street, and further expansion has taken the form of executive advancement and the installation of up-to-date equipment.

About 1875 the late K. G. Lech entered the firm, and remained until his death in March, 1930. In 1909 Keith and Cyril Lech commenced work in the company, where they are at present, thus making three generations in the firm's executive.

A sample room is maintained in London, Ontario, where their furs are shown throughout the western section of the province. The buying end of the business is done through the well-known "Montreal auctions." The raw skins bought here, along with the Rice Lake rats, are checked and inspected by the firm, and are then sent to Hollander's in Montreal to be dressed.

Manufacturing

The dressed skins are taken to the second floor of the company's building where they pass through the various processes of manufacture. They are first cut; a black cotton lining is used to face the back of the collar, cuffs or body; and finally blocked. This latter process is accomplished by washing the sewn units and stretching them out according to an outlined pattern overnight. These are next placed in a revolving drum to soften the skin and pile. The sections of the coat are stitched together, thus making a unit of some fifty skins. The whole garment is lined with silk, and sent to the store below to be tagged and stocked.

The Rice Lake rates, dyed and sealed, provide the feature coat of the company. Some of these seal coats have trimmings of Russian kolinsky or squirrel. There are also silver, red, and white fox neckpieces, and mink and Hudson Bay sable chokers in the widely-assorted stock

The store is one of the best equipped fur concerns in Canada for both production and protection of coats. In the basement are fireproof fur storage vaults where about six hundred coats were stored for the summer last year. In the same section are several others which have been sold to customers, but are being saved on the deposit plan. In a cold storage chamber are raw furs—silver fox, fisher, mink, skunk, raccoon, red fox and weasel. In the basement, too, are the oil heating and sprinkler systems.

On the main floor seven large steel vaults were installed last spring for burglary, fire and moth protection. Cleanliness and style are further features of the store which add greatly to the pleasant attitude that awaits the customer. Hardwood floors and colorfully ornate rugs give a touch of splendor to the store as a whole.

WEDDINGS

LEGGOTT—MILLS

A quiet wedding took place at St. Paul's Presbyterian manse on Thursday, Jan. 1, 1931 when Violet Lillian Esther Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mills of Peterborough became the bride of Robert Byron Leggott, also of Peterborough. Rev. Wm. Allan officiating. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Leggott left for a short trip. The young couple will reside in Peterborough.

"MORE FOR LESS"

To the Citizens of Peterborough

May I express my heart-felt gratitude for the expression of confidence indicated in the magnificent vote given me in yesterday's election.

Words are an inadequate medium by which to convey my appreciation, but I will endeavor to repay the faith of the people who so loyally supported me yesterday by giving of my best at all times for the welfare of this community.

My appeal to the citizens generally is to stand together in a common effort to maintain Peterborough in the van of Canadian cities and to keep alive the community spirit displayed in connection with Old Home Week and on other occasions.

May 1931 be a year of progress, prosperity and contentment for all of us.

Gratefully Yours,

ROLAND DENNE

France Plans State Funeral for Joffre

FRENCH CABINET MEETS TO PLAN FOR LAST RITES

Burial of Great French Soldier Will Be Made Near His Country Home.

MANY TRIBUTES PAID.

PARIS, Jan. 3.— (CP) —Marshal Joffre will be buried in a national funeral as elaborate as that tendered his illustrious colleague, Marshal Foch, but his body will not lie in state under the Arcade Triomphe, for the Marshal himself had said he did not wish to be the cause of his troops and the people of Paris risking their health in the Paris winter to do him honor.

The Cabinet arranged for funeral services at a special session this morning and it was disclosed that while he was still alive the Marshal had expressed a desire to be buried at Louveciennes, his country home. It was not known whether he had made any such specific directions in a will.

Louis Barthou, Minister of War and a close friend of the Marshal, told the Cabinet that Madame Joffre was as anxious as her husband had been that the funeral be held without fatiguing either the army or the people of Paris. The members of the Government deferred to this request in some respects, but decided that the body will pass under the Arcade Triomphe on the way to Notre Dame cathedral and will rest for a moment before the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Flags Are All At Half Mast

Throughout Paris and all of France today the flags over public buildings fluttered at half mast.

The body will lie in state in the chapel of the military school near the Eiffel Tower on Monday and Tuesday from seven in the morning until nine in the evening. The funeral services will begin on Wednesday at 9:00 a.m. The soldiers who fought under Marshal Joffre at the Marne will march past the body at The Invalides.

Louis Barthou will be the only funeral orator. He will speak in the name of the government and of the French academy. M. Barthou today issued to the French army this message, recalling that other memorable order the Marshal issued just before the beginning of the battle of the Marne:

"The Minister of War wishes to notify the army of France that it has suffered a great loss. Marshal Joffre is dead. He saved France on the Marne, he broke the power of the enemy. The force of his soul, his indomitable energy and his never ending services made that final victory possible."

Saviour of France.

History will record Marshal Joffre as one of the great saviours of France, General Gouraud, military Governor of Paris, who lost an arm in the Great War, said to-day as news of the Marshal's death reached him.

"In learning this sorrowful news," said he, "France lives again the days of 1914 when, surprised by war, she placed all her hope in the Army. There came a mobilization admirable in its order and enthusiasm, and then the shock from the masses of German troops greatly superior to us in number.

"But the great recovery and the victory of the Marne gave to France and the world the name of Joffre.

"For two and a half years he car-

Fog Plays Havoc With British Soccer and Rugby Matches To-day.

ARSENAL-LEEDS POSTPONED

Everton Holds Advantage in Championship Averages in Second Division.

LONDON, Jan. 3 (Canadian Press Cable).—Fog played havoc with one important soccer match and many rugby games in the British Isles today. The soccer fixture affected and which had to be postponed was the meeting between Leeds United and Arsenal at Leeds. Arsenal, while idle, held on to their lead in the English first division championship table, because Sheffield Wednesday, runners up, lost in their local derby with the United team. Derby County crept to within a point of the leaders when they won at Birmingham.

In the second division Everton won in fine style at Swansea and easily held their advantage in the championship averages..

In Scotland, Rangers improved their place at the top of the standing when they collected the full two points for beating Dundee, while Celtic, second club, only got a point for a draw with Hibernian. The surprise of the Scottish results was the lowly East Fife's win over Hearts at Mettil.

Boys Have Close Call On Chemong Lake

Speeding their cars on the ice of Chemong Lake, a form of amusement now popular among motorists nearly ended in disaster for two cars yesterday. One, driven by Kenneth Weldon, suddenly came upon a short stretch of open water. The driver, unable to turn, endeavored to hurdle his car over the stretch of water. The front wheels did clear it, but the back wheels struck the opening and the car hung suspended half in and half out of the water. The passengers disembarked quickly. After some titanic efforts the car was salvaged from its perilous position.

The same fate almost befell another vehicle, but it too was drawn out upon firm ice.

NEW YORK-PARIS SEAPLANE NEARS ITS FIRST PORT

'Tradewind' Sighted 370 Miles at Sea Headed For Bermuda.

WOMAN AT CONTROLS.

Load Made Up of Mail and Food to Show Commercial Flying Possible.

S.S. BERMUDA, Jan. 3. (CP) The monoplane Tradewind, attempting a pay-load flight from New York to Paris, passed over the steamship Bermuda at 10.30 a.m. (E.S.T.) flying low and fast. The plane was heading southeast in latitude 35.58 and longitude 68.45, about 370 miles southeast of Ambrose Light. Weather conditions were perfect.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (C.P.). — A red-haired widow and the man who taught her to fly pointed the plane "Tradewind" for Paris in the pitch darkness early to-day, setting their sights for Bermuda and the Azores with a pay load.

Mrs. Beryl Hart, one of the few women to hold an unlimited transport license, and Lieut. William S. MacLaren, former navy flier, took off from the Glenn H. Curtiss seaport in Queens at 5.50 a.m., circled the field several times in the glare of searchlights and headed over Manhattan, finally roaring away toward the tip of Long Island.

Escort Planes Follow.

Several minutes later an escort plane, occupied by W. D. Campbell, E. M. Smith and C. J. Strickland, friends of the pilots, followed them into the air, intending to accompany them several hundred miles.

Carry Luck Tokens

Lieut. MacLaren was at the controls on the getaway, but Mrs. Hart was expected to replace him soon after the start and do the bulk of the piloting. Both were dressed in spotless aerial togs unsoiled by the grit of land take-offs, and Mrs. Hart wore a five-leaf clover, a rabbit's foot and an Indian penny as emblems of good luck.

Considering the early hour, a fair-sized crowd was present to wish them bon voyage. Mrs. Cora Mansfield, mother of Mrs. Hart, and Mrs. Georgia Gwynne, her sister, were on hand, as well as Department of Commerce Inspectors, and flying friends from Newark, N.J., and Jersey City.

The pilots planned to cut southeast over the Atlantic and land at Hamilton, Bermuda, at 1.30 (eastern standard time) this afternoon, a distance of 650 miles. Restings three hours while the plane was tuned up and refueled, they hoped to resume the flight about sunset and make Horta, Azores in 21 hours, travelling 2,042 miles. They figured the last lap to Paris, 1,520 miles, would take them 17½ hours, setting them down on the River Seine, within the city limits, in less than 50 hours.

They carried with them a chart of the Seine, drawn by Dieudonne Coste after he and Maurice Bellonte had landed here on their Paris-New York flight. In case the river traffic is too heavy, they will come down on a small lake just outside the city.

TEXTILE STRIKE LOOMS DARKER

Walkout Would Add 200,000 Workers to 150,000 Miners Now Idle.

OPPOSE NEW SYSTEM.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—A textile strike in the Lancashire cotton mills threatened to-day to add 200,000 textile workers to the 150,000 South Wales miners who are remaining away from work.

Negotiations for adjustment of the workers' objections to a more mills per weaver projete of the mill owners broke down last night. The workers' leaders have declared that they will call out employes of every mill instituting the new system Monday as planned.

The new system involves eight looms for each weaver instead of four and is already operated in a few mills where it was introduced as an experiment between employers and weavers. Weavers in these mills demand immediate abandonment of the system.

Meanwhile miners of South Wales looked today to a meeting of the South Wales Conciliation Board to settle their differences with owners who are attempting to reduce the hours of work and

BIG WHEAT DEAL MAY BE OUTCOME OF MARIER'S TRIP

Vancouver Paper Says Canada Supporting Billion Dollar Project.

LOAN TO CHINA.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 3. (CP)—The Vancouver Province publishes the following in its news column:—

"Hon. Herbert M. Marier, head of Canada's embassy to the Orient, has been sent to China on a great diplomatic and commercial mission. It is entirely possible that, arising from his visit, Canada will sell 100,000,000 bushels of wheat. "But that may be only an incident of his conferences, if plans being worked out in London and Ottawa come into being. Behind the wheat deal is a great project, initiated by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Canada's Minister of Trade and Commerce, for the granting of a billion-dollar loan to China designed to rehabilitate the values of silver all through the Orient, and finally to place China 'on her feet' so completely that she will become a huge and profitable market for British, Canadian and American goods.

Bennett Hinted at Plan

"Hon. R. B. Bennett merely hinted at the great plan in hand when he addressed a large gathering at Regina Tuesday evening. He intimated that some credit arrangement might have to be made to enable China to buy Canadian wheat in large quantities. He did not attempt to outline the very interesting and stupendous plan which is now being discussed in London, New York, Washington and Ottawa for the rehabilitation of silver and the general reorganisation of Oriental trade and markets.

"Generally the plan is to call together the five or six war lords of China, who presently are fighting among themselves, and maintaining armies totalling three million men, living by pillage of the population. The project is to 'sell' the Chinese leaders with the idea that every one would be better off if the Chinese armies were turned into industrial units, carrying out great public works."

Clergyman Gets 2 Years for Bigamy

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 3.—(CP)—The Rev. Samuel V. Williams, 49, Presbyterian minister at Watford, thirty miles from here, was today sentenced in county police court to a reformatory term of two years less one day for the offence of bigamy with a further indeterminate sentence of two years. He pleaded guilty a week ago.

Williams married Mary Andrews of West Lorne on April 19 1929 after declaring that his first wife died in England.

SEVEN ARRESTED ON THEFT COUNT

WATCHMAN GIVES CLUES.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3. (CP)—Seven persons, four men and three women are under arrest on charges of theft and receiving, arising out of the investigation into the disappearance of goods from the George H. Hees and Co., Ltd., of Toronto, manufacturers of blinds, drapes and upholstery.

The seven under arrest are all Torontoians and gave their names as Ambrose Addison, George Veal, Russell McKenzie, George Jenkins, Mrs. Minnie Tyrell, Mrs. Pearl Garrish and Yvonne Flewelling.

After the seven had been arrested last night and early to-day local detectives visited Hamilton where they recovered a considerable amount of stolen articles. From Hamilton they proceeded to York, 19 miles to the west of Hamilton, where they recovered $1,000 worth of material.

According to the two detectives assigned to the case the thefts will run into thousands of dollars as the visitsto the George H. Hees warehouse has been going on for some time.

Yesterday the two detectives were assigned to the case and their investigation led them to suspect Ambrose Addison who acted as caretaker of the building on Saturday nights when he relieved the regular watchman. After lengthy questioning arrests followed.

Intervention By Gov't Is Miners' Last Hope

LONDON, Jan. 3 (C.P.). — Union coal miners who have been idle since New Years Day in South Wales today despaired on reaching an agreement with mine owners and decided to ask the Government to intercede.

After the joint conciliation board, consisting of owners and union representatives had been in session at Cardiff for hours in an attempt to settle the difficulties, this was the only decision it could reach. A. J. Cook, the Miners' Union secretary, announced here that there appeared to be "very little hope of agreement" and that Government intervention seemed the only solution.

YOUNG AVIATRIX REACHES BERLIN

Amy Johnson Forced Down to Get Bearings Once Before Making Goal.

ILL HEALTH STORY DENIED.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—Miss Amy Johnson, British woman flier, landed at Tempelhof Airdrome near here at 5.34 p.m. to-day after a flight from Cologne. She is attempting to fly from England to Peiping, China.

Miss Johnson drifted clear off her course northward to Luebz, near Parchim, in Mecklenburgschwerin, where she was compelled to make a forced landing. After ascertaining her whereabouts she again took off and reached Berlin without incident.

Not in Ill Health

HULL, England.—Friends of Amy Johnson, the aviatrix, who has undertaken a hazardous solo flight to Peiping, China, were assured by her father to-day that there was no foundation for reports that she was in ill health.

Two weeks ago, he said, six physicians passed her in the rigid medical test applied to candidates for the commercial flying license. This examination is regarded as one of the most searching to which an aviator submits.

FIVE MINERS TRAPPED IN TUNNEL FOLLOWING VIOLENT EXPLOSION

15 MAKE ESCAPE.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio, Jan. 3. (CP)—Five miners were trapped in number 4 mine of the Midvale coal company, three miles south of here, by an explosion at 10.30 a.m. to-day. All available ambulances from Dover, New Philadelphia, Uhrichsville and Dennison were rushed to the mine.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately ascertained.

15 Escape

About 20 men were working in the mine at the time of the explosion. All of them were able to flee to the outside except the missing five.

Officials of the mine, in New Philadelphia, said they did not know whether the five trapped men were alive or dead.

The shaft near the entrance was filled with poisonous gas too thick to penetrate except with gas masks. Volunteer rescuers dared not go through it.

$20,806,396 Added To the Assessment Of United Counties

Judge L. V. O'Connor Increases Equalized Assessment Made By Three Valuators Last Spring By Over One Million Dollars in United Counties.

EVERY TOWN THAT MADE APPEAL TO JUDGE O'CONNOR HAD ASSESSMENT RAISED BEYOND VALUATORS' FIGURES

Millbrook Was the Only One of the Appellant Villages That Failed to Get a Reduction —Decreases Made in Eight Townships of Two Counties.

COBOURG, January 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — Assessment of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham was raised from $30,783,419 to $51,589,815.82 by Judge L. V. O'Connor, Counties Judge, in his report on an appeal to his decision made by the towns of Cobourg, Campbellford and Port Hope, and the villages of Newcastle, Millbrook, Colborne, and Brighton. His Honor's equalization is over $1,000,000 higher than the valuation made by Colonel T. J. Johnston, Peterborough, chairman, George Thompson, Cobourg, and R. J. Rowe, Newcastle, forming the Counties Council Board of Valuators, whose report was made at the Council's June session, and followed shortly thereafter by an appeal taken under the Assessment Act by the town and villages named.

Millbrook's Is Increased.

Every town that appealed had its assessment boosted beyond the valuators' figure, but only one of the appellant villages failed to get a reduction. That one, Millbrook, was raised from $370,000 to $429,069. Hastings, which refused to appeal the valuation, was increased from $421,300 to $469,637.

Every township in Durham except Manvers had its assessment increased above the valuators' figures. Seven out of Northumberland's nine townships had their assessment set at a lower figure than the valuation made by the counties valuators.

Assessors Negligent

His Honor in filing his report, said in part, "Equalization of assessments becomes necessary by reason of the fact that assessors neglect to observe the plain directions of the act 'That land shall be assessed at its actual value' that is, the amount it would readily bring at a fairly conditioned sale between a willing seller and

ORIENT NEEDS STABILIZATION STEVENS SAYS

GIVES NO DETAILS.

East Needs Assistance Before Western Civilization Will Benefit.

OTTAWA. Ont., Jan. 3 (C.P.). — While he declined to go into any details, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, said to-day that he had discussed with some of the leading bankers of the world the necessity for assisting in the economic stabilization of the countries of eastern civilization, notably India and China. These discussions had taken place during his visit to London, and Mr. Stevens said he had found among these financiers a very strong measure of support for his view that in order to rehabilitate the countries of Europe and North America it was necessary that the Oriental countries should be assisted to stability.

Billion Dollar Scheme.

The Minister was shown despatches indicating that there is a scheme on foot to build up a billion dollar loan designed to reinstate the silver values in China. He said he was not able to make any statement on this.

"Insofar as the despatch refers to me," said Mr. Stevens, "I can only say that I have already publicly expressed the view that in order to regain economic stability for western civilization—that is, say, Europe and the North American continent—it is necessary for us to assist in the economic stabilization of the countries of eastern civilization, more notably China and India.

"I spoke on this subject in the

Posse Scours Woods For Two Bank Bandits

EDMONTON, Alta, Jan. 3.—(CP)—Provincial Police, aided by an armed citizens' posse, today scoured the woodlands near the Saskatchewan border for two bank robbers who Friday escaped from the Myrnam, Alberta, branch of the Bank of Montreal with loot estimated at $4,000, mostly in currency.

Shortly before closing time the bandits entered the bank, and cornering the bank employees, ordered them to hand over the money. Stuffing the currency into their pockets, the gunmen backed out of the building and had gained protection of the woods surrounding the village when the alarm was sounded

WOMAN KILLED IN SAVING DOG

Dashes Into Path of Montreal Trolley After Playful 'Pom.'

PUP HAS LEG BROKEN.

MONTREAL, Que., January 3 (C. P.). — In an attempt to save the life of her little Pomeranian dog, Miss Violet McNally, 42, of Metcalfe Avenue, Westmount, was killed last night when struck by a street car. The dog, which was thrown aside by Miss McNally just before the car struck her, suffered a broken leg.

Miss McNally had put her car away for the night and was walking home with Miss Irene O'Brien. The dog dashed into the street and Miss McNally, fearing an approaching tram would strike it, chased the dog into the roadway. The little animal evaded its mistress and ran on the tracks. The woman had just seized it when she was struck and killed.

IL DUCE PROVES ART ENTHUSIAST

Premier Claims Discipline Possible Even Among Artists.

SPEECH DRAWS LAUGH.

ROME, January 3 (C.P.). — Putting aside politics, Premier Mussolini to-day made his second speech of the year on art, revealing himself a connoisseur of painting and sculpture.

The Duce drew a laugh from his select company of hearers at the opening of the Quadrennial Art Exposition when he branched off on one of his favorite subjects, discipline, saying this was possible "even among artists."

"Art has always been one of Italy's great spiritual forces," the Premier declared, "even in periods of political decadence when Italy's population was divided.

India Parley Results Turn For Better

HINDU-MOSLEM TROUBLE DRAWS NEAR SOLUTION

New Atmosphere Results From Thursday Session of Committee on Minorities.

HINDUS YIELD POINT.

Coming Week to be Fateful—Pin Hopes on Responsible Gov't.

LONDON, Jan. 3 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Press Staff Correspondnet).—The Round-Table Conference on India has taken a turn more promising. It is now speeding towards hopeful finality. Over the week-end the Hindus and Moslems are endeavoring to patch up their troubles in the new atmosphere resulting from Thursday's midnight meeting of the sub-committee on minorities. As the position stands, the Hindu Liberals still pin their faith to joint electorates but are willing for the sake of agreement to yield the point on separate electorates; which is the cardinal point in the Moslem demand.

Favor Responsible Government

In the conference proper, events shaping themselves as forecasted favor responsible government for India with safeguarding reservations on certain subjects. Hindu Liberals want full responsible government under a Prime Minister, but are willing to agree to reserve the army and foreign affairs to the Crown for a period of years. In the all day discussion arranged for the coming week other delegations will state their respective positions. Here the stand of the British delegation will be all important.

If the three political parties represented in the British delegation can agree on a measure of responsible Government to be granted to India and their decisions are acceptable to the Indian delegations, the way will be smoother for the passage of necessary legislation through the British Parliament. There will remain the attitude of India itself. It is expected that the Indian Congress (which declined to participate in the Round Table Conference) will accept nothing short of complete Dominion status, with the Government of India as fully responsible to the Federal Legislature of India as the Government of Canada is responsible to the Parliament of Canada.

But around the conference circles there is a feeling that India as a whole would welcome responsible Government with provisional safeguards as a great advance towards full responsibility later.

For India the coming week will be fateful.

POWELL'S NEW CONTRACT

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—Paramount is negotiating with William Powell on his new contract, present agreements having expired January 1.

• What will you be doing one year from now?

THREE hundred and sixty-five days from now—what?

Will you still be struggling along in the same old job at the same old salary—worried about the future—never quite able to make both ends meet—standing still while other men go ahead?

One year from today will you still be putting off your start toward success—thrilled with ambition one moment and then cold the next—delaying, waiting, fiddling away the precious hours that will never come again?

Don't do it, man—don't do it.

There is no greater tragedy in the world than that of a man who stays in the rut all his life, when with just a little effort he could bring large success within his grasp.

a willing buyer. To be added to the value of the lands is the amount by which their selling value is increased by buildings, the assessors should endeavour and should be so instructed, to assess as nearly as possible at actual value as the act requires. It is notorious that none of them do this and their percentages of assessments are by no means in the same relative proportion. The assessors in some municipalities assess on a basis ranging as low as 35-40 percent of the actual values of the property, whilst others assess on basis of from 70 to 75 percent of the actual values. It is to be noted too, that the invariable rule is to assess poorer property at a very much higher rate than the better and more productive property."

Judge O'Connor awarded costs against the United Counties. By stating "In view of the fact that equalization in the manner directed by the act was necessary, I direct that the costs incurred shall be borne and paid by the Corporation of United Counties Northumberland and Durham with the exception that any municipality employing solicitors as counsel must bear his costs.

Hastings which declined to join in the appeal gets an increase from $421,300 to $469,637.

The county Judge's equalized assessment of the municipalities of the united counties with the percentage of the counties' taxes which each municipality must bear is set out in a summary which follows:

How It May Work

Judge OConnor fixes Campbellford's equalized assessment at $1,975,017.27 as compared with the three valuators' total of $1,858,300, but the Judge's report also states that Campbellford shall pay 3.82 percent of the taxes levied by the counties council. In other words, suppose the counties tax rate for 1931 be 12 mills; Campbellford would pay 3.82 percent of the total tax to be raised by a 12 mill rate on the total equalized assessment of $51,589,815.

On this basis, as an example the total tax spread over the counties would be $619.078 and 3.82 percent of that is $13 648.57. Just by way of comparison it was estimated last June that on the basis of a 12 mill rate and assessment of 60 percent of the valuators' 100 percent equalized assessment for Campbellford the tax would have been $13,779.

Tax Rate Lower.

The main fact in the judge's report is the fixing of the equalized assessment of the two counties at $51,589,815.82. There is an increase of approximately 60 percent. There should, therefore, be a considerable reduction in the counties tax rate for 1931. Just what it will be may be estimated by the counties officials. Suppose the rate be cut 60%. The 1930 tax rate was 12.8408 mills, and three-fifths of that would give a rate of approximately 7.7 mills.

And this rate would yield a total revenue of $397,241.58. The counties' requirements in 1929 were around $350.000.

Some Comparisons

On the basis of 7.7 mill rate Hastings would pay $3,614.90; Cavan, $19,981.27; Campbellford $15,174.64; Millbrook, $3.297.10; Cobourg, $37,-737.99; Port Hope, $28.998.66; Seymour, $17.221.68; Percy, $15.452.71; South Monaghan, $7,110.63; Manvers, $14.340.43; Bowmanville, $29,109.69.

As a matter of approximate comparison (on the foregoing supposition of 7.7 mill rate) it is interesting to recall that the actual taxes paid in 1929 were: Cobourg, $18.966; Campbellford, $9.449; Hastings, $2,-266; Millbrook, $2,348; Cavan $22,852; Manvers, $17.049; Seymour, $19,064; Percy $14.514; South Monaghan, $9.-068; Port Hope, $16,214; Bowmanville, $13.824.

Hooton Levies Upheld

On these approximate comparisons it would appear that Reeve George Hooton of Cavan has been amply justified in his contentions for several years that the towns and villages were not paying their share of the counties taxes, and also that most of the townships including his own, were paying too much. If the 1931 rate is decreased to anything like 7.7 mills the towns and villages are likely to contribute more, and the townships, on the whole, less to the counties treasury.

YOUTH SAVES LAD GOING UNDER ICE

Brantford Boy Plunges Into Grand River and Holds Up Eight-year-old.

Father, Son Nearly Drown.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 3 (C.P.).—To the heroism of 14-year-old Lawrence Herbert, a Welsh lad, is credited the saving of the life of 8-year-old Clarence Edwards. Running across the ice on the Grand River, he saw that the younger boy had fallen in. Herbert jumped in and held up the lad until aid was given by William Maich, local athlete, who was working on the dyke. The little fellow was unconscious, but was revived.

Albert Bee, Sr., and Albert Bee, Jr., the latter 12 years of age, both of Brantford, had a narrow escape from death in the Grand. While hunting, they started to cross the river near the glue works, and when 20 yards from the north shore the ice gave way and the father fell in. The boy attempted to rescue his father, but another section of the ice broke and he, too, was thrown in. They smashed the ice for 20 feet to get to shore.

CAMPBELLFORD WINNERS 2-1 IN OPENING TANGLE

Trent Valley Hockey League Opener is Featured By Speedy Forward Rushes.

GOALIES BRILLIANT.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 3 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — In the first game of the season in the Trent Valley Hockey League, Campbellford fought its way to a 2-1 victory over Frankford in a close checked and fast game staged at the Arena, Frankford, on Friday evening.

Taking the first game of the schedule away from their base, the Hometowners came up against a fast and well trained team, and it kept them hustling to stop some of the terrific onrushes of the Frankford squad, who had a fast forward line and used it to advantage. Campbellford's defence, however, was the stumbling block on many occasions for the entertainers, whose rushes were met and repelled, their combination being badly broken up.

Frankford specialised during the whole play in a series of long shots which at times kept the Campbellford goalie more than busy. The Maroons, however, played into their opponents' house before shooting, except in the last period when they followed the same tactics, one of their counters being netted in this way.

Nets First Counter

"Buster" Whitton had the distinction of netting the first count for the visitors, a distinction that was also his in the last year's league schedule. This goal was made in the second period, the first session being fruitless. Two goals were counted in the last period, Frankford making the count even, and Campbellford netting the decisive tally. Opening the season, the puck was faced by Reeve G. W. Arnott of Frankford.

The first period was one of attack and counter attack with very heavy checking on both sides. Frankford opened the play by making a long shot at the visitors' net almost from centre line. This was returned by the Maroons who caused a scramble in the Frankford house, Whitton taking the puck up. The entertainers then played well up on the ice, Bowen at centre making some fast dashes. These were, however, well met by the Maroons' defence, which made an almost impossible barrier for the fast forward line of the attackers. Borland and W. O'Malley for Frankford did some splendid work for their team and on several occasions would have made counters if Grier in the visitors' net had not played a splendid game. In this period Frankford took the aggressive, doing their best to penetrate the Campbellford house and on two occasions coming very near to it. Cowall and Horkins were, however, able to break away and carry the play into the enmy's camp and so divert a disaster.

Speed Increases

In the second period the speed of the game increased, McLean for Frankford started the fun by breaking away and driving hard through the Home Towners defence, but was heavily checked by McArthur, Smith breaking away with the puck and carrying it into the Frankford area with Whitten and Horkins. From then on the play ranged from net to net, with Grier for Campbellford stopping some pretty and heavy shots from the Frankford forward line. Play behind the nets was also featured with Bowen of Frankford following up the Campbellford defence and doing his best to keep the visitors confined to their own house. This however was impossible with the fast forward line of the Maroons, McKay, Copperthwaite and Flemming breaking through. In one of these forward dashes Whitton netted the first count in the game, putting the Maroons in the lead. This put Frankford squad on their mettle, Filion making a break, with the result that a very severe series of checks and counter checks were staged in the Campbellford area, Cowell being put on the fence for kneeing ten seconds before the gong sounded. This was the one and only penalty registered in the game.

Frankford Scores

The last period of the game was marked by the scoring of Frankford's one and only count by Legault, in a break from centre line one half minute after play started and when Cowall was still on the fence and the Maroons' defence weakened. This started the fun for the fans. Campbellford going on the defence and wearing the entertainers down. Drive after drive was made on the Campbellford net, but in a series of fine cross-checking exhibitions, were driv-

JONES TALLIES WINNING GOAL IN LAST FRAME

Cogs Win 3-2 Decision Over Norwood in E. P. L. Opening Tangle.

PAYNE STARS IN NET.

NORWOOD, Jan. 3.—After overcoming a deficit of two goals gained by the Peterborough Cogs in the first and second periods of the East Peterborough Hockey League opener here last night, Norwood went down to defeat in the last few seconds of a thrilling battle when Jones, left uncovered for the moment, took a pass and beat Rogers with a hard shot to give a 3-2 contest to the visitors.

The locals gave the Peterborough team a battle all the way and only the good work of Payne in the nets held the homesters off the score sheet, particularly in the second period when the Cogs were forced back by the rush of the Norwood attack.

Going into the last frame two goals down, the locals forced the play and in 30 seconds Hill beat Payne after taking a rebound on McLaughlin's fine play and shot. The teams battled fiercely up and down the ice into the dying minutes of the contest until the locals were rewarded with a goal that put Norwood on even terms, Stevenson taking a pass from a scrimmage in the corner for a lone shot on the Cogs' goalie. With less than a minute to go and with Cogs on the attack, Jones took a pass intended for the Norwood wingman and with no opposition, went in and beat Rogers who had no chance to save.

The league opener her was a fine success. The fans watched a mighty interesting game of hockey. Bumps were handed out right and left but Referee Board held the players well in hand. Norwood has the material with which to build up a winning team and there will be a lot of headaches before the May flowers bloom again.

The teams and summary:

EARL OF CROMER MAY FILL OFFICE OF WILLINGDON

Daily Express States Appointment Being Considered Officially.

HAD MUCH EXPERIENCE.

Held Offices in India and Egypt—Entered Service in 1900.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—The appointment of the Earl of Cromer as Governor-General of Canada is being considered officially, according to The Daily Express.

Rowland Thomas Baring, second Earl of Cromer, has held diplomatic and household appointments since 1900. He has been Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household since 1932.

Lord Cromer entered the diplomatic service in 1900. He served in Cairo, Teheran and Petrograd. In 1907 he was transferred to the Foreign Office and was private secretary to two Permanent Under-Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, Lord Hardinge and Lord Carnock.

Post in India

The Earl was Second Lieutenant in the Grenadier Guards in 1914. He was A.D.C. to the Viceroy of India in 1915-16 and Chief of Staff to the Duke of Connaught during His Royal Highness' Indian Mission of 1920-21. He accompanied the Prince of Wales on his visit to India in 1921.

Besides being Lord Chamberlain, the Earl of Cromer has been British Government Director of the Suez Canal Company since 1926. He was formerly associated with Baring and Brothers, the famous financial house.

Lord Cromer has at least one connection with Canada. He married the second daughter of the fourth Earl of Minto, who was Governor-General of Canada 1898-1904, and whom Sir Wilfrid Laurier once termed, "the most constitutional Governor we ever had."

PRESENTATION MADE TO SMITH COUPLE

The gladsome spirit of goodwill which abounds at this season of the year, was very evident at the gathering in Gilmour Memorial Church on Tuesday evening, Dec. 30. The company assembled to do honor to Mr. and Mrs. J. Proudlove, who are leaving the district, after nineteen years of residence here. An unique and mirth provoking program was announced by C. E. Moore, and young and older entered into the group presentation of stunts, in a truly whole-hearted fashion.

During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Proudlove were made the recipients of a handsome cabinet of silver and the appended address. The event closed with the service of refreshments:—

Mr. and Mrs. J. Proudlove,

BENNETT AIMING TO FIND CAUSES OF DEPRESSION

Premier Determined to Lay Secure Foundation For Future Prosperity.

SPEAKS IN CALGARY.

Closeness to Other Countries and News of Hard Times Has Depressing Effect.

CALGARY, Alta, Jan. 3.—Application of temporary measures to correct present economic conditions will not satisfy Premier R. B. Bennett. He is determined to unearth the ultimate causes of the present depression and lay a secure foundation for permanent future prosperity. So he told a large gathering of his fellow citizens of Calgary assembled at a luncheon arranged jointly by the Board of Trade, the young men's section of the Board of Trade, and the Kiwanis Club.

"I cannot make up my mind," he said, "why this country, between the lake and the mountains, should experience the depression; why people who have lived here for years should now find themselves without any accumulation of goods, sometimes without the bare necessities of life"

Science Plays Part

Mr. Bennett said he had no fixed idea as to the answer to the questions which came to his mind, but was determined to find it. With a country with the credit of Canada, palliatives could easily be supplied, but it was essential to provide for lasting security. The Government was confronted not only with a problem of adjustment, but with the necessity of finding and eradicating the ultimate causes of depression. Modern science, by eliminating distance and speeding up communication, enabled the people of all countries to know what was going on in others. This made the present depression the greatest world depression on record, for news of hard times in all other parts of the world had a cumulative depressing effect on the psychology of Canadians.

"Our closeness to other peoples has much to do with our ideas of depression," said the Premier. "We get the idea the whole world is out of joint, and the psychology of it is reflected in the morose and solemn way some men walk down the streets of Calgary."

JOFFRE VISITED DOMINION TWICE

Given Civic Welcome in Montreal While on Mission to U. S. in May, 1917.

CROSSED B.C. IN 1922.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 3.—(C.P.)—Marshal Joffre, whose military genius held the German army at bay during the battle of the Marne, visited Canada on two different occasions. Shortly after the United States entered the war in April, 1917, Marshal Joffre was a member of an important Allied mission that conferred with the leaders of that country and also visited Canada. Later, in 1922 Marshal Joffre passed through British Columbia on his way home to France after touring the Orient.

Early in May, 1917, Marshal Joffre, M. Rene Viviant, French Minister of Justice, and Rt. Hon. A. J. (afterwards Earl) Balfour, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, landed in the United States to confer with President Wilson and other leaders of that country. Later in the month, Marshal Joffre visited Montreal, where he was given a civic welcome, the whole city turning out to greet the former Commander-in-Chief of the French Army.

Marshal Joffre did not visit Ottawa but M. Viviani and Mr Balfour both spoke before the joint Houses of Parliament, then sitting in the National Museum because of the fire that had razed the Parliament Buildings. On that occasion, Sir George Foster was Acting Prime Minister due to the absence in England of Sir Robert Borden, and on his motion, seconded by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Leader of the Opposition, the speeches of both visitors were incorporated in Hansard.

POLICE SUSPECT HOLD-UP STORY

Cashier Claims Bandits Loot Bank Force Him to Set Time Lock 72 Hours Ahead.

ESCAPES KIDNAPPERS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3. (CP) — The Lawrence Avenue National Bank was closed by Federal Bank Examiners yesterday pending an investigation of the reported kidnapping and robbing of John C. Malloy, assistant cashier of the bank.

Mallow appeared at a police station in Milwaukee late on Thursday night, and reported that he had been held up while at work in the bank during the afternoon. He said four robbers held him captive in the bank for several hours, while they looted the vault and safety deposit boxes, and then, after forcing him to set the time locks ahead for seventy-two hours, fled with him to Milwaukee, where they released him.

The young assistant cashier was returned to Chicago in the custody of police, and is held pending a complete examination of the bank. The vaults cannot be opened for a thorough check until the time lock operates, and according to Malloy's story the time will not expire until Sunday. Officials chose to wait for the lock to operate, rather than ruin the vaults by drilling them open.

More than 1,000,000 clocks were imported into the United Kingdom in 1930.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

ALL day long, the minister's mind had been acting like a shuttle weaving his thoughts into the pattern of a message which he intended to pass on to his people as a sort of pastoral letter. The pattern did not entirely please him, but it was the best he could do under the pressure of other duties. Again and again there had come into his mind some words from a piece of old literature which had first seen the light of day about the year 54 A.D. They seemed to come to him in answer to certain questionings regarding the mystery of life.

In thought he had been travelling back across the years, recalling—sometimes with pleasure and sometimes with pain—the faces and forms of many whom he had known! Where were they now? The place that had known them knew them no mode! Had their presence been nothing more than the flickering of a light which had been blown out in death leaving nothing but the blackened ashes of a burned-out wick? Had they vanished from his sight forever? What was to be the end of his own life? End it would—sooner, or later!

And, as he thought, these old words kept singing in his soul like the music of some theme song in some thrilling play which was being thrown upon the screen of the fast-closing year. "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification." And this was the pattern which the loom of his thinking being produced for his people.

A Happy New Year

"We have passed the day of the winter solstice. Now the sun has ceased to move away from us. He is coming toward us. He will shine more and more until the perfect day. It is thus that we have a New Year.

This regularly recurring heavenly movement is made the measure of man's earthly life. But it is the sense of renewal which affects him morally. It is the same on a smaller scale with the orderly succession of day and night. The descending darkness suggests ending, or pause at least. The new day seems to invite forth only the approved purpose, and the well-considered act. Each day we hail one the other with 'Good morning,' or "Good day.' Our salutation assumes that all discern the moral significance of fresh occasion, new opportunity. The closing year is the curtain falling upon a large aggregate of deeds and of experiences. The new year is like a greater new day; and by such as it is greater than a day does its renewal impress the imagination and the spiritual sense of man.

A Finality To Pain

'To-morrow is a new day.' Thus do we often bring even to finality, in thought at least, and by the power of hope, the pain we are enduring, the weakness or the sin that have made us to stumble, the disaster which threatens to crush us. And not unfrequently the dawn has brought us release, and strength, and comfort with its light. We have become as new creatures with the day's renewal.

'A Happy New Year,' is a great good wish. It means for the sorrowful the closing in kind oblivion of a vast retrospect of anguish, and the opening of a tearless way which leads afar through pleasant scenes. It means for past failure the blotting out of the record of defeat, and the stir and motion of fresh endeavour. It means, for last year's sin and shortcoming, the announcement that the Angel of Records has turned the leaf, and the life-story of the greatest sinner begins anew upon a stainless page.

Unconscious Servants

Thus wonderfully days and years seem to adapt themselves to our human modes of thought, as from a kind of knowledge to us, and by a kind of sympathy with us. And yet in truth they know us not, nor have they any thought of us. They are unconscious servants of Him who makes all things work for our good.

The heart of the season's message of peace and hope and happiness is that abiding will or wish of God, even our santification.

The Heavens declare His glory; the new year vocalises His wish. His wish is that we may achieve goodness. Let me wish you His wish; then shall I have wished you 'A Happy New Year.'"

* * *

WHAT would I not give to have the privilege once again of bringing in the New Year in Scotland! Hogmanay in other lands for a Scotsman is at best but a gesture. He may go through all the motions with fidelity to the ritual, but his thoughts and His affections are at hame wi' his ain folk!

I have read somewhere that next to religion there is, perhaps, no purer or more unselfish feeling that can thrill the human heart than the love of homeland.

The misty Bens and heather hills,
The sombre forest trees,
The lonely glens and mountain rill
The deep clear inland seas,
Still ever haunt the mem'ry
Like some familiar strain,
And wake the hope within me
That I'll return again.

How cold that heart must be which does not warm and melt as the soft tones of the mother tongue fall upon the ear!

Let Sentiment Speak

We are still in that season of the year when sentiment may be indulged without our neighbors thinking that we are being threatened with an attack of 'softening of the brain'

One day, not so very long ago, a Scottish servant lass, very heart-sore and homesick, stood gazing into a store window on one of Toronto's principal streets. She seemed to be looking at what the window had to display, but in reality this was what she was seeing:

The sun shines as bricht on the green birken shaw,
And dews fa' as saft on the flowers o' the lea,—
Yet lassies and laddies are a' gaun awa'
To great crowded cities or far owre the sea.
Nae wunner the auld folk are dowie and sad,
And wearily gaze on the mountain and glen;
For hame's no a hame without women and men.

Within her breast is a soul which has been compelled to leave the familiar scenes of childhood years; and she stands gazing into this window with a far-away look in her eyes, while a lump rises in her throat and sadness steals into her heart.

The Familiar Tongue

She turns quickly! Her ears have caught a familiar sound! Two of her own sex are passing—and, strange to say, they are talking!

Immediately she leaves the store window and follows within reach of their conversation.

What has got into her? Is she just inquisitive? Has some word, overheard as they are passing, aroused her curiosity and made her want to hear more?

No! It wouldn't have mattered if they had been reciting some nursery rhyme, she would have followed them all the same. It wasn't what they were saying that interested her, it was the tongue in which they were saying it that had acted like a magnet. They were both Scottish born. And I have an idea that, feeling as she felt at that moment, she would have followed them to the south end of heaven in order to catch those familiar strains of Scottish speech.

From cloud-piercing Bens, where mist-wreaths are lying
The straths, and the glens, and the isles of the west,
From heath-covered moors, where wild-birds are crying,
We give to the wide world our bravest and best,
They wander afar 'mong all peoples and climes,
Away from the homes by the mountain and river;
While playing their parts with the men of the times,
All true Scottish hearts sing "Old Scotland for ever!"

As she follows and listens she cannot keep back the tears! Let them flow! She'll feel a great deal better before long. After many a passing shower the sun has shone with greater brilliance than before. Perhaps, before the day is done, instead of sobbing and sighing she will be singing—and, in anticipation, be living through her next Hogmanay Nicht and New Year's Mornin' in Scotland!

Mine Own Romantic Town"

If I had my choice, I'd like to spend Hogmanay Nicht and welcome the New Year in Edinburgh. I'd like to stand once more on that enchanted height, the Calton Hill, "from which everything appears in a guise of romance, only faintly appreciated by those who are content with the lesser appeal of Princes Street and elsewhere down below in the hurly-burly of twentieth-century thoroughfares."

Let me see it once more through its ever-changing veil of smoke—so soft, so mysterious, diaphanous—lying like a mantle, thrown across the sunlit side of the old city. Yonder it stands like the time-scarred relic of another age. Catch, if you will, the glimmer which comes from the Firth of Forth. Think of the wonderful setting which nature has provided for Scotland's capital city, and thank God that those who had to do with its planning saw the necessity of a great esplanade and fittingly named it Princess Street.

Gordon Home says, "Had those who planned the Georgian expansion of Edinburgh—the new city between that of the Middle Ages and the stream called the Water of Leith—failed to recognise the commanding need for a broad boulevard open to the south, facing the whole length of the more imposing portion of the castle-crowned ridge, one of the greatest opportunities ever offered a planner of cities would have been lost. If buildings, no matter how dignified, had flanked both sides of Princes Street, that thoroughfare would have ranked no higher than the adjoining George Street, it would have missed a mighty opportunity, even as London's Strand, by shutting out its riverside view, had deprived England and the world of much urban grandeur."

Not To Be!

No, it's not to be! Only in imagination can I celebrate Hogmanay in Edinburgh. And that's a poor substitute for the real thing! When I welcome the New Year it will be on this side of the Atlantic. However, there's not much sense, if any, in crying because some coveted thing is out of our reach. Who can tell what the New Year has in store for us! Let us be content with such things as we have, and live on in the hope that before we greet our first New Year in heaven we shall have the joy of being back with those who have known us longest. Let us send a wish to them that 1931 will prove to be one of the happiest and best years in all their experience.

Yours for all that's best in life,

—Allan Fairbairn.

IF you call your 'troubles' 'experiences,' and remember that every experience develops some latent force within you, you will grow vigorous and happy, however adverse your circumstances may seem to be.

THE INEVITABLE

GOD is as far from beating His children for nothing as He is from beating them to nothing. A hole in the ship will sink it to the bottom. A small bite from a serpent will affect the whole body. There is no way to calm the sea but by excommunicating Jonah from the ship. If the root be killed the branches will soon be withered. If the spring be diminished, there is no doubt but the streams will soon fail. Where the fuel of corruption is removed, there the fire of affliction is extinguished.

Our True Wealth

IN a public park in Manchester, England, is a statue to the memory of Joseph Brotherton, who represented that city in Parliament for many years. On it is this inscription:

"My wealth consisteth not in the abundance of my riches, but in the fewness of my wants."

Let us learn to make the most of the enjoyments we have, and not worry about those we have not. We have friends, and home, and health, and hope—let us enjoy them. We can, indeed, so educate our will-power that it will focus our thoughts on the bright side of things, will lead us to see the good we have, until we shall attain such a spirit of happiness as will make us rich. The habit of making the best of things, of always looking on the bright side of things, is a fortune in itself. To make the least of our little lacks, and to make the most of our present enjoyments, will go far towards giving us the riches of contentment.

The Hour Of Prayer

FOR the past, we thank Thee, O Lord, for our deliverance out of the land of bondage and from the hands of our taskmasters; but we bless Thee most that Thy best work for us is only a prophecy of things to come, and Thy greatest miracle of grace is not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us. Therefore would we covenant with Thee that, in the year that lies before us, we shall heed Thy bidding and go forward. Suffer us not to mistake mere motion for progress. Give us courage and daring lest we be blocked and turned aside by obstances we ought to overcome. Make us content with such things as we have, but discontent with such things as we are, such things as we do, such things as we give; for we would grow in grace. These things we ask—in all humility of heart and meekness of spirit—in the name of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

What Men Say

MEN say that we need not expect Christians to see alike in this world, that we can't understand the Bible alike. Well, so long as we claim the right of our own opinions in these things, and follow the bent of our own perverted wills, rather than seek, above all things, to know and do the will of our blessed Lord, there will be many conflicting opinions among us. The trouble is not in the Word of God, but in ourselves!

It is not by ideas but by personalities that God illuminates and uplifts men.

MR. SALMONSEN'S PROMOTION

The announcement that Carl A. Salmonsen, who for the past two years has been general superintendent of the local plant of the Canadian General Electric Company, is the successor to E. G. Patterson as works manager will afford a great deal of satisfaction, not only among the employees and staff of the C.G.E., but among citizens generally, who have learned to appreciate the sterling qualities of the new head of the plant.

The appointment of Mr. Salmonsen to the highest office in the largest manufacturing plant in Peterborough is an event of general interest.

Since coming to Peterborough in 1926 Mr. Salmonsen has won himself a sound place in public esteem, not only in his official capacity as general superintendent, but in his contacts with the community life of this city—has made good, in other words not only as an executive but as a citizen and the very many friends he has made here will be delighted to learn of his promotion, particularly as it will probably mean that his association with Peterborough will be of long duration.

A DIRECTORY OF INFORMATION.

There is no more useful or accurate source of information on matters pertaining to this country than the Canadian Almanac, the 1931 edition of which has just made its appearance.

The Almanac has been published in Canada for eighty-four consecutive years and has always been a much-consulted volume.

This year's issue has been completely revised, thousands of changes having been incorporated.

The main features of last year's almanac have been retained. They include the customs tariff with all the changes made at the recent emergency session of parliament, the directory of practising law firms, lists of judges, court officials, county and municipal offices, police magistrates, cabinet ministers, members of the Senate, House of Commons and the various Legislatures, a directory of post offices and railway stations, which form a complete shipper's guide, astronomical data and other valuable information.

Of particular interest to professional men are the official table of precedence, the table of titles and forms of address to be used.

As usual a map of the Dominion is included with each volume of this fine directory of general information relating to Canadian matters.

TALK LIKE THIS DOES HARM.

Radical western farm leaders are not helping their cause by such statements as that made by W. J. Ward, president of the United Farmers of Manitoba, when he declared that "so long as the western farmer is made the milch cow and the pack horse for certain eastern interests just that long will he remain in the hopelessly insolvent condition of the present day."

That sort of talk is the language of the demagogue and contributes nothing to a successful solution of Canada's present problems.

When Mr. Ward intimates that the condition of agriculture in the west is the result of selfish policies originating in the east he is making a charge that his own intelligence should tell him is poppycock.

Eastern Canada is in no way responsible for the plight of western grain growers, unless by some peculiar line of reasoning Eastern Canada can be blamed for the world conditions that knocked the bottom out of the wheat market.

On the other hand Eastern Canadians have every sympathy for their fellow Canadians on the prairies, who are victims of the present crisis and is prepared to endorse any reasonable plan of assistance that the Federal Government may devise for the benefit of the west.

Farm leaders who can bring nothing to the solution of the problem will be of more service by keeping quiet than by sectionalistic talk of secession, free ports on Hudson Bay and other impracticable and mischievious ideas.

AUTOMOBILE KILLINGS.

If coroner's juries continue to show the leniency that has been displayed in recent cases of automobile killings it will be necessary for the authorities to disregard their verdicts and let the cases be tried in a tribunal, where the evidence will be more carefully weighed.

When it has got to the stage that a coroner's jury exonerates from all blame a driver who, according to the evidence, failed to see a pedestrian who was walking across a well-lighted street, ran him down, and had so little control of his car that the unfortunate victim was carried 68 feet before being shaken off the automobile and the machine was not halted for another fifteen feet, it is evident that if the public is to be protected the police will have to ignore findings of that kind and lay charges when their own common sense tells them there is justification for so doing.

Surely a sixteen-year-old boy who admits that he took no precaution to protect pedestrians at a crossing because they could see to protect themselves, whose scrutiny of the street ahead of him was so careless that it failed to notice a citizen who walked 22 feet from the opposite side of the street before being hit, and who was unable to bring his car to a stop until it had travelled some 80 feet from the scene of the impact, cannot be called a careful motorist—and in view of the large number of automobile killings it is a shock to find a jury completely exonerating that kind of driving.

The verdict in the Norwood case parallels a similar decision in a local car killing tragedy in which a pedestrian was run down and fatally injury, by a driver who admitted that she had not taken any precaution to prevent the accident—that she had not applied the brakes, changed the direction of her car or even sounded a warning.

No wonder the meek shall inherit the earth. The fix it's getting in now, you couldn't wish it on anybody else.—Stamford Advocate.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Anybody who had any official connection with Thursday's municipal election will have little difficulty in deciding that the hours of voting followed in Toronto on New Year's day are more reasonable for holiday voting than the local schedule.

The voting period here was between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., while the Toronto balloting began an hour later in the morning and was extended an hour later in the evening.

It is safe to say that the various polling subdivisions in Peterborough did not average half a dozen votes before 10 o'clock on Thursday morning, while on the other hand, 5 o'clock found many belated voters arriving just too late to get an opportunity to exercise their franchise.

The council might do well to give some consideration to the question of adopting the Toronto hours for future New Year's day elections.

Another thought in connection with the municipal contests is that many electors made the official notices sent out from the city hall of little value because they failed to read them thoroughly; the majority of people contented themselves with noting where they voted, but neglected to remember the number of the sub-division.

The result was that when they arrived at the place of voting they found five or six polling places, and not knowing in which particular sub-division they should vote had to wait until the lists were searched for their names.

All that delay and confusion could have been avoided if the notices had been carefully read—a detail electors should keep in mind for future use.

EX-PRIVATE SECRETARIES AND THE CIVIL SERVICE.

One of the lamentable faults of critics is that they fail in particularity. Inclined to be vigorous about things in the gross, they are curiously deficient or inarticulate in the more important sphere of detail. We have in mind, just now, a speech made the other day by that splendid political veteran, Mr. R. S. White, of Mount Royal. Mr. White, on the favorite and nearly always general theme of economy, said this:

> There has been no Government to my knowledge, which has made sufficient effort to economize in small things, and as the best example of a splendid field for wholesale reduction in expenditure, I would mention the Civil Service. The personnel of Canada's Civil Service has grown to absolutely unwieldy proportions during the past few years, until at the present time no departmental minister can possibly know a great deal about the work done by the men in his own department. No matter how diligent, how industrious, or how experienced a minister may be, he cannot hope to grasp the appalling total of details, expenses, and staff necessities that have grown up in the field which his portfolio covers.

Last session a bill passed through Parliament. It was Bill No. 7, and it had a dubious purpose. Its effect, in short, was to provide that when a Cabinet minister quit office, or a flock of Cabinet ministers were put out of office, the private secretaries affected must be appointed to the Civil Service. More than that, that they should be appointed to the Civil Service without the necessity of an examination, and with the salary of a chief clerkship. Should get roughly $3,300.

Mr. White was in the Commons when this bill was passed. He was there when it got second and third reading. Hansard does not record that he opposed it.

Yet what is its effect?

Its effect is that with every change of Government no fewer than seventeen private secretaries are eligible to be grafted on to the Civil Service in positions not less than a chief clerkship.

Now, quite obviously, there will be no available positions for all these private secretaries. What will happen will be that they will be placed into positions that will be created for them, and which will be unnecessary, and that, whether they render useful service or otherwise, and regardless of their qualifications, the country will have to practically pension them for life.

This, in essence, is a reversion to the patronage system. It is a further and serious exemption from the rule of competitive examinations; a reward to political party workers at the public expense. For the average private secretary, it must be remembered, is a political appointment; an ally and associate of his minister in political and party effort.

There is something more. It is that the appointment of secretaries of these high-grade positions, regardless of training or experience, is a gross injustice to the rank and file of civil servants who have devoted themselves to a life of effort in the hope of attaining promotion. It is destructive of morale and discipline, harmful to proper ambition.

A case might occur—has occurred—where a private secretary who had given long service, or who possessed special qualifications, might be suitable for a good post in the service. We have a few such cases in mind. That, however, is a far different thing from Parliament passing a law to make all private secretaries eligible for life and highly-paid posts in the Government. Such a law is unjust, unfair to the Civil Service, the worst sort of patronage and extravagance, and should be abolished by Parliament.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Sam McBride has asked for a recount in Toronto, but doesn't insist that the Star should make it.

Owen Sound and Midland both rejected daylight saving measures on Thursday. The absence of a nation-wide system is making summer time unpopular in many quarters.

Toronto elected three morticians on Thursday, but still indignantly resents the insinuation that there is anything dead about the Queen City.

Although Thursday's vote here was a substantial one, a surprisingly large number of citizens was satisfied to let somebody else decide the issue.

The City Council has an abundance of experienced material from which to select its chairmen for the present year.

The suggestion that the new Liberal leader should run in Premier Ferguson's old constituency must have come from somebody who wants to see Mr. Hepburn get a bump before he's fairly started.

Once again we are assured by an economist that the auto has come to stay. Of course, the keeping up of payments has something to do with it.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

News of Our Own Village

It is now 1931 in the village, in case any of the customers aint received their patent medicine almanacks or calendars as yet.

New Year's Day was spent by most of the villagers voting for Rolly Denne, our worthy mayor, who will be boss of the town hall for another year.

Of all the sad words
Of tongue and pen
The saddest are these Denne's in again.
—From "I Got Mine" and other poems by Mac McIntyre.

Sandy MacTavish refused to go in and mark his ballot when he seen the school room where the voting was held. Sandy sez the last time he was in that room it took him three years to get out.

Jack McIntosh of North Monaghan, south of us, walloped Harold Rye in the contest for the reeveship Thurs., and some of the folks down that way is putting silencers on their radios.

The village cinemas held midnite shows New Year's eve and as a result many of the villagers slept in Thurs. morning—most of Mac McIntyre's supporters musta remained abed all day, it is suspected.

Mel Turner and Jim Hamilton is back in the village council again as a result of the doings here Thurs. The boys know the ropes around the town hall and oughta be up and coming councillors, say we.

The management of the village rink has thoughtfully spread newspapers under the ice, so when the customers get fed up on hockey, if any, being dished up they can turn to literary pursuits. Service, we call it.

Geo. Gimblett, our hustling fire chief, reports few conflagrations in the village during 1930. Fire insurance underwriters please take notice of the same, say we.

Officers of the local foot soldiers kept open house in the drill shed on New Year's day, many of the elite dropping in, your scribe is informed.

They was a rash of New Year's parties in the village this week, the catering being done by Sir Hank Drayton's filling station.

The 2 biggest industries in the village lately has been (1) making New Year's resolutions (2) breaking New Year's resolutions.

BURNING BEAUTY
By TEMPLE BAILEY

She went and stood beside him. Gazing down from the window she saw the garden as a picture which might have been painted in the blazing colors of some modern brush. There was the black of the boxwood, the flame and fire of the chrysanthemums, the light and shade of the clustered crowds, the hard blue of the sky and of the river which rose to meet it.

Virginia had a curious sense that the whole thing was unreal. All her life this had been her house, her garden. A shabby old place; a shabby old prison, she had sometimes thought it. Yet now it was hers no longer, it took on sudden importance. Her home. She had been born there. The furniture which the auctioneer was crying had been her furniture — the bed on which she had slept, the table from which she had eaten. She turned, suddenly, and hid her face against her brother's shoulder.

His arm tightened about her. "Jinny, Jinny," he said, soothingly, "we aren't going to cry about it, are we?"

That was like Rickey, doing the unexpected thing. She had looked for blame, and here he was loving her, making the best of things — dear Rickey!

Now they were putting up Dad's old secretary. The auctioneer's voice rose in eager exhortation: "The original brasses, ladies and gentlemen, and a spread eagle!"

Virginia lifted her head from Rickey's shoulder and listened. That old spread eagle, beloved of her little girlhood! Grogan could not tell the history of the secretary. Not as she could tell it. Oh, the times that she had seen her father sitting before it, his thin white hand traveling across the sheet of paper, an aristocratic hand with a seal ring on the third finger.

The secretary had known all of Daddy's wild exaltation in those first days when he had begun to write his verses. It had known, too, the death of his dreams. A generation ago he might have been acclaimed a great poet. In this day of new forms and stark realism, his fastidious phrasing, his delicate reticences had been scorned. And so the spread eagle which once seemed to Virginia to scream its triumph had become a sinister symbol of failure. A vulture, waiting for its prey! Well, after to-day she would never see it again. Eagle or vulture, it would be gone forever!

The bidding was active. The man who had wanted the candlesticks was in the lead. Virginia watched him with interest. He was not, she told herself, handsome in any spectacular way. But there was about him a certain charm of boyishness, and the kind of good looks which one found in the pictures of the present Prince of Wales, the same smiling gaze, the alert lift of the head. As he sat there on the edge of the table and flung his bids back at Mrs. Bleecker, he had an air of distinction which set him apart from the other people in the garden as a leading man on the stage is set apart from the members of the chorus. His rough tweeds bore the marks of a good tailor, yet Virginia felt that stripped of conventional garments, he would have gone gladly in rags over the hills and far away, like the piper's son in the nursery rhyme, or Alan Breck in Stevenson's story.

As she looked down on him, he suddenly looked up and lifted his hand in an almost imperceptible salute. She liked that and showed her radiance as she leaned forward.

Mrs. Bleecker made her bids in a crisp cool voice. Virginia knew something about the Bleeckers. The son, Anthony, was in the Navy. His family had multi-millions, but it was a tradition in the family that an Anthony Bleecker in each generation should sail the seas in his country's service. From midshipman to admiral there had been a string of them, since the days of the Revolution.

And this Anthony was a squire of dames. Even to Virginia in her seclusion had come whispers of his gallantry. Nothing scandalous or sordid, but rather a series of light-hearted adventures. In these his mother seemed to acquiesce, for she was always motoring down to Annapolis from Westchester or Easthampton in her big car to see her son and she usually brought a girl with her as guest.

Not always the same girl, but always a charming one. And for a few days the big car would go whirling through the town with Anthony in devoted attendance on his mother and her charming charge.

If Mrs. Bleecker wanted the secretary she would probably get it. "She has more money that she knows what to do with," said Virginia, pointing out the little lady to her brother.

Mrs. Bleecker did not get the secretary, however, for a girl in the crowd began suddenly to bid for it. She seemed to be alone, and stood with her hands in the pockets of her rough plaid coat. She was too plump to wear plaid and should have known it. But her lack of taste was redeemed by her prettiness. She was pink and white, and brown curls showed under her pull-on hat of pale blue. She evidently intended to get what she wanted, and calmly overtopped Michael's bids and those of Mrs. Bleecker. The dealers had dropped out early in the game. There were other secretaries in the world, and the price was going too high for their percentage of profit.

"Five hundred," called Michael.

"One thousand," from Mrs. Bleecker.

Rickey was breathless. "By jinks, Jinny, if things go like that, we'll have more money than we know what to do with."

The secretary was knocked down finally to the girl in the blue hat. Michael got a needlepoint stool and the ladder-back chair, and Mrs. Bleecker came off triumphantly with the Dutch spoons!

Rickey in the dormer window was saying, "To think, Jinny, that we never dreamed of this — and now we'll have enough to finance everything!"

His sister was not so optimistic. "There'll be the expenses of two families, Rickey. And the debts."

The debts! The night before she had sat late, going over papers, and the findings had appalled her. There were business matters which should have been looked after years ago by her father, which should be looked after now by Rickey. But the men of the family were not business-like. Neither for that matter was Virginia, but she had told herself that someone had to save the family fortunes from chaos. So she had set herself to find out how things stood. And she had found this, that if the furniture sold well, and if the house went for all it was worth as a relic of historic days, there would be money enough to meet the bulk of their obligations, and to set her parents' minds at rest as they started out on their dreary journey — as for Rickey and herself, they were young and the world was before them.

All through the years she and her mother had been the rigid economists. The little mother who, in her girlhood, had never lifted a hand to domestic duties, had learned to manage with one clumsy maid. Virginia had learned to cook, to set the table, to dust the old mahogany, to polish the silver. The two women, daughters of a long line of leisurely beauties, who had flirted in the old garden, and danced at the Governors' balls, and entertained and dined distinguished visitors to the old town, who had worn brocades brought in great ships from England, and jewels handed down through generations — these descendants of a chosen class, had used their hands, their brains, their inherited tastes in making a home, even in the midst of poverty, which should retain its charm of good breeding and exquisiteness.

And the men had taken all this easily, acquiescing, not aware of the sacrifices, the father, dreaming at his desk, the son no less a dreamer as he lounged through the days.

Mrs. Bleecker was bidding now for a small white-painted mirror. Grogan proclaimed it "Early-American." "It shouldn't have been painted, of course, but it has good lines."

He ran up the price until the mirror came at last to Mrs. Bleecker for one hundred and fifty dollars. "Going . . . going . . . gone . . ." cried the auctioneer.

Virginia, waking suddenly to the situation, gasped, "Oh, my soul, Rickey, I can't let her buy that mirror. It isn't genuine."

There was a slight roughness in Rickey's voice. "You haven't anything to do with it. She thinks she knows. Why undeceive her?"

"Rickey!"

"You needn't look at me like that. She has money to burn. Don't be an idiot, Virginia."

"It isn't idiotic to refuse to — cheat — "

She flung her scorn at him and fled. As she sped down the stairs passing the empty rooms she had a shivering sense of desolation. She had looked forward to her new life — she had not thought it would be like this to leave the old.

Reaching Mrs. Bleecker, she said, "I'm sorry. But the mirror you just bought isn't an antique. I picked it up in a department store, and paid seventy-five cents for it. I don't know how it got among the other things. It has good lines and I liked it. So I painted it white and hung it in my room."

Mrs. Bleecker looked the girl up and down. "Well," she said, "you're honest, at any rate." She had an air of condescending to a maid who has returned a pocketbook. She was irritated beyond expression to find she had been fooled. Some of the dealers were smiling.

"If the mirror isn't genuine," she demanded, "how can I be sure of the other things?"

"You have my word for it," Virginia's cheeks were flaming.

Anthony interposed, hastily, "Good joke on you, Midget." In his heart he was saying, "The girl's a duchess. And the way she took Midget's insolence — !"

Perhaps Mrs. Bleecker felt she had gone too far, for after a moment's silence, she said: "I'd like the history of everything I've bought, Miss Oliphant, especially of the Dutch spoons. Can you lunch with us? We're going to run around to the nearest tea-room."

"I'm afraid not," Virginia told her.

Then Anthony threw himself into the breach. "Miss Oliphant, please. All of us want to hear about the Dutch spoons."

Her quiet glance appraised him, but before she could answer, Marty Van Duyne came up with McMillan. "Jane, I've asked Michael to lunch with us. Do you mind?"

It was Michael's coming which did the trick. Virginia felt her heart beat faster. Her "yes" had in it a touch of breathlessness. She disliked Mrs. Bleecker intensely, but she could not forego the pleasure of again talking to Michael McMillan.

"There will be five," Jane Bleecker said. "Tony, you'd better go to the Inn and reserve a table."

Tony went. He had a feeling that Virginia had said "yes" because of his own persuasiveness. It did not for a moment occur to him that it was on account of Michael.

Rickey, upstairs, had watched his sister as she threaded her way through the crowd and came finally to the woman who had bought the mirror. He had seen her smiling, apologetic. It was like Jinny, he told himself, to insist on fine-spun theories of honor. From what he knew of the Bleeckers, it would not make much difference if they sunk thousands of dollars instead of hundreds in spurious antiques. And it was the way of the great world to let people be cheated if they didn't know any better.

However, trust Virginia for upholding outworn traditions! It was what he and she had been tied to all their lives. Dad and Mother had preached and practised a code which would have done credit to the knights of King Arthur's court. Young Richard's reaction to it had been to throw over not only their quixotic extravagance but some very stable and necessary standards. Rickey was yet to learn that "the honor of a gentleman" is not an empty phrase. As a matter of fact, it was Virginia who carried a sword and a shining shield. And if the sword was that of the spirit, and the shield that of her girlish faith in life, they were, none the less, a strong armor of defense against the encroachments of modern shallowness and skepticism.

Rickey did not realize that his sister was beautiful. He loved her and leaned on her, and as the children of impractical parents they had clung together. They, too, had dreamed together and were now going forth on a great adventure. To Rickey, Virginia was a good sport, a comforter in a time of storm, an outlet at odd moments for his irritations, but to him she was not a maiden of mystery, beauty hidden behind bars. She was not any of the things that Tony Bleecker thought of her, or Michael.

Beauty in Rickey's eyes had to do with women like the one down there in gray. By jinks, what a silver witch she was! The sun shone full upon her, but its heat did not seem to touch her. She was cool and pale, with a kind of shining paleness as if she were lighted from within.

He could not take his eyes from her, and drew in his head reluctantly from the window as he heard Virginia's voice behind him. "Rickey, what do you think, the Bleeckers want me to lunch with them."

He whirled around on her and saw her radiance. "What do they want you for?"

She made a little curtsy. "My company —" Then aware of his frown, she added, "What they really want is a history of the things they've bought. Do yo mind?"

"But Rickey —"

"Oh, go ahead . . ." he turned back to the window. "Who's the girl?"

"Marty Van Duyne."

"She's a beauty, Jinny."

"I don't like her."

"Why not?"

"I don't know. And it's silly, of course, when I've never even spoken to her. But she makes me think of the Ice Maiden in the fairy tale."

"That's where she belongs, not in real life," his sister agreed, smiling. Then she kissed him. "Shall I look dreadfully shabby beside those women, Rickey?"

He slanted his eyes down over the green sweater and stubbed tan shoes. "You're nothing to brag about, Jinny, but they're the best you have."

She picked up a small green hat and drew it over her hair. "When our ship comes in, Rickey, I'll be grand and gorgeous."

He lighted up at that. "It's sailing straight toward us, Jinny," he exulted, "and some day we are going to show those people down there a thing or two."

"You mean when you write your book?"

What To-day Means To You

"CAPRICORN."

If January 3rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on that date are from noon to 3 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. The unfavorable periods are from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., and from 9 p.m. to 10:15 p.m.

January 3rd according to the planetary aspects does not hold out any bright prospects. On the contrary, a loss or disappointment may be anticipated. Prudence suggests that nothing should be done out of the ordinary routine, and poise should be maintained.

A child born on this January 3rd will be selfishly inclined and will not attract by winning or winsome ways. It will be self-centred, and age will aggravate, rather than ameliorate, this condition. In a material sense, it promises to be successful, as "No. 1" will come first every time and all the time.

Born on January 3rd, you are of average ability, neither brilliant nor stupid, neither a genius nor a dolt. Your ambitions are limited to having enough on which to rub along, with a few reactions thrown in for good measure. You are thrifty, but by no means stingy; you do your allotted task conscientiously—not without, however, a fair measure of grousing. You fight shy of all responsibility, although fully alive to and conscious of, your obligations. Your one aim in life is to get along as comfortably as possible, with little effort or exertion—and you make a fairly good job of it.

Your character is unassailable. You never make trouble for yourself, or for others. Your thinking box is more active, than your executive ability, and, as a result of keen observation and much reading, you have evolved a whimsical philosophy, and often astonish listeners by a degree of erudition that comes as a surprise. You possess a strong sense of humor, and as a conversationalist, you are dry and witty. Your home life is full of contentment. You are not fussy or exacting, and are easily satisfied. Your temper is even, and your affections are concentrated. You are a real comfort at all times to those who live with you, and are always dependable.

"CAPRICORN."

If January 4th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m., to 9:30 a.m., from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., and from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. The only danger period is from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Some favorable news may safely be expected on January 4th, either strengthening material affairs or friendly ties. It is an excellent opportunity for travel, or for change of environment. The signs augur, however, that, though industry will be rewarded, speculation must be avoided.

Children born on this January 4th will be blessed with many gifts. They will have bright dispositions, strong characters, patient natures, and persevering tendencies. Success is assured them, if they can control their emotions, which are liable, at times, to dominate their judgment.

Yours is a brilliant mind. Your conceptions are good and your imagination never submerges you in a sea of improbabilities. You always are equipped with a life saver in the form of practicability. The one trouble with you is that you too readily jump from one task to another. Concentration is conspicuous by its absence. Restlessness characterizes your actions, and you cannot sit down quietly and meditate. You rush at things too feverishly, and want to do too much at once. The enthusiasm which inspired you to start does not remain with you to the end.

Your disposition is a variable one. You are not free from a strain of morbidity, although you successfully hide this from your associates. On the whole, however, you are a fairly cheerful companion, although, at times, distrait. In the midst of social gossip, you are quite often unmindful of what is going on, or being said, and your mentality is working out some new idea. Your brain is a trifle too active, and outstrips endeavor.

Your horoscope indicates that you will experience many ups and downs, and only in later years, will you learn to appreciate mind control, and you will then achieve that success, which a kaleidoscopic mentality will have denied you in your youth. In your home life, especially if a woman, you will cause many difficulties, as you will always be wanting to make changes when none are necessary, and it will be very difficult for you, or anyone around you, to "stay put."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

LOWER ISSUES SET NEW HIGHS

But Pivotal Shares Show Gains Registering One or Two Points.

COMMODITIES STRONG.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(CP)— The stock market finished the week still under the influence of the New Years cheer today.

Share prices were helped by the prompt submission of the four party eastern railway consolidation plan to the inter-state commerce commission by the improved tone in commodities, and by the pickup in activity reported at automobile and steel plants.

Pivotal shares gained only moderately, few gains exceeding a point or two, but some of the volatile issues rushed up sharply and trading was fairly active, the turnover for the short session aggregating 1,500,000 shares Last minute selling such as frequently appears at the end of the week was lacking, and final prices were around the day's best.

In the rails, Erie gained more than 3, and Baltimore and Ohio 2. Both will be aided materially by unification of their systems, as proposed. Pittsburgh and West Virginia, which is to be controlled by the four systems jointly, shot up 15 points. The market in that issue, however, is thin. Lackawanna, which is allocated to the New York Central, gained 2 points. Several Western and Southern rails were also strong. St. Louis Southwestern shot up nearly 6 points, and Illinois Central, Great Northern and Atlantic Coast Line gained 2 or more.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, Republic Steel Common, Union Carbide, Texas Corporation, Standards of New York and New Jersey, gained a point or more. Issues up 2 to 3 included Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Republic Steel Preferred, Johns Manville, and Stone and Webster. Western Union gained 5.

WHEAT PRICES REACH BOTTOM

Rising Market Not Far Off, Moloney States in Winnipeg.

BUTTER REFERRED TO.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 3.—(CP)—Hon. Parker J. Moloney, Australian Minister of Markets and Transport, believes the wheat markets of the world have reached their bottom. Homeward bound from the London Imperial Conference and important conferences at Ottawa with Canadian Government Ministers, Mr. Moloney reached Winnipeg last night and will continue his journey west today. He sails for home from Vancouver.

Predicting an improved wheat situation is "not far away," he commented, "A lot has been said that has no basis of fact, and a lot has been said about Russia by people not acquainted with their case, and when the true facts are known about the wheat situation, real values will be restored."

With reference to Australian exports of butter to Canada, Mr. Moloney said his country had no desire to embarrass either the butter-making or any other industry in this country, "but you do not make enough butter to supply all your home demand and we would like to sell you the remainder of your needs.'

NEW YORK-PARIS

With a desire to prove that ocean flying can be put on a paying commercial basis, the pilots loaded the "Tradewind" with about 250 pounds of mail and foodstuffs, the first cargo load to be started across the Atlantic. The mail was cleared out of New York and was destined for stamp collectors along the way.

Black and White Monoplane

Their ship is a black and white Bellanca monoplane, similar in construction to the Columbia which twice conquered the Atlantic. It is powered with a 300 horespower Wright whirlwind motor and is equipped with pontoons for water landings. Its tanks have a capacity of 400 gallons of gasoline but only 250 gallons were aboard at the start. They carried no radio.

Weather Bureau officials predicted favorable weather for them on the first lap, with a 15-mile-an-hour tailwind to speed them along. Ordinarily weather over the Atlantic is not ideal for flying at this time of year.

COMMUTING CASE WILL BE PROBED

Senator Robertson Going to Windsor to Interview Delegation.

AGREEMENT BROKEN.

WINDSOR, January 3 (C.P.). — Personal investigation of the commuter situation is to be made by Senator Gideon Robertson, Federal Minister of Labor. He will reach Windsor on Sunday morning according to a statement issued to-day by Colonel Sidney G. Robinson, M.P. for Essex West.

The Federal Minister has asked for a conference with members of the delegaton which waited on Premier R. B. Bennett a short time ago, and which visit resulted in the problem being placed before the United States authorities at Washington by the Canadian Legation.

Since the investigation opened and definite cases have been presented to the United States authorities the Immigration Board at Washington has reversed the decisions of the Board of Inquiry at Detroit.

Under decision of the Detroit Board a large number of commuters had been refused the right to enter the United States. Deportation orders were issued in a large number of cases, and it was charged that the action was in direct contravention of the agreement entered into in 1927 as affecting immigration and particularly the daily trips across the river of persons living in the border cities and working in Detroit.

GENERAL GAINS TORONTO CURB

British American and International Petroleum Attract Attention in Oils.

NICKEL LITTLE HIGHER.

TORONTO, Jan. 3. (CP) — The stock market closed firm to strong to-day. The opening had been irregular with a number of issues coming out below where they had left off last night but before the end of the first hour buying became heavier and the list responded with an upward movement.

Oils again attracted attention, particularly B.A. oil and International Petroleum. The latter was in demand in New York and rose to 15. B.A. Oil, while closing down 1-8 at 15½ was up from the opening. Imperial Oil was fairly quiet but stronger at 18¼ while Supertest Petroleum rose 1-2 to 29 1-2.

Nickel touched 16 and closed slightly above last night at 15⅞. Noranda up 1-2 at 15. Brazilian, Bell Telephone, Ford of Canada, Gypsum and some of the foods showed fractional gains.

CANADA SOUNDS OPTIMISTIC NOTE

Sir William Clark States Good Trade Always Followed Depression.

STEVENS HOPEFUL.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3.—Persistent work, sympathetic understanding of regional problems, strict attention to individual effort and above all faith in the future of the Dominion. These challenging notes are sounded by leading Canadian industrialists, financiers, agriculturalists and politicians in a symposium of industrial and financial activities in the Dominion during 1930 and survey of possibilities for the coming year, which is published today by the Toronto Globe.

While there is general agreement that the country has suffered in the world-wide economic depression, it is emphasized that Canada has weathered the storm better than many other countries and that she will rapidly recover once "the tide has turned."

In a message from Sir William Clark High Commissioner in Canada for the United Kingdom, he beckoned Canada to look to the coming year with confidence and courage.

"The really important thing," he says, "is to remember in troubled times like these is that it has all happened before; not once or twice, but over and over again. And what is much pleasanter to recall each was followed by a period of good trade."

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, strikes an optimistic note. The period of economic depression, appears to be on the wane, he says.

SEVERAL KILLED IN RANGOON RIOT

RANGOON, Burma, January 3 (C.P.). — This city was thrown into turmoil to-day by furious rioting between Burmese and Chinese armed with stones, whips, and iron bars. The police finally had to fire on the rioters when other efforts to restore peace had proved unavailing.

Fifteen persons are believed to have been killed or injured in the fighting which caused suspension of all traffic in the streets. Stores were closed and hotel doors barred.

Although there was some fitful Communal strife yesterday to-day's riots had a particular ferocity which police found hard to combat. Mounted police galloping through the fighters were unable to disperse them.

Troops Held Ready.

Should they be needed, troops which returned yesterday from the Tharawaddy district, where they sacked the secret citadel of the rebel chieftain who has directed the savage raids on the jungle villages, are available to put down the riots.

FRENCH CABINET

ried on his great shoulders the burden of commanding all Frenchmen under arms and the terrible responsibility of the nation's honor. In stemming the march of the enemy in 1914 and again at Verdun in 1916, in weakening the iron rampart behind which the enemy was ranged at Artois and Champagne, Marshal Joffre prepared for the great final victory."

King George Sends Sympathy.

LONDON, January 3 (C.P.). — The King to-day sent the following message of sympathy for Marshal Joffre's death to President Doumergue of France:

"I join with my people in expressing heartfelt sympathy in the death of Marshal Joffre. The sad news will arouse feelings of sorrow especially in those countries which in 1914 were allied to France.

"We shall mourn the close of the life of him who in those momentous days was called to the supreme command of the great French Army with which for four long years the forces of the British Empire were comrades in arms.

"I treasure the memory of my meetings with Marshal Joffre on the occasion of my several visits to the front. Please convey, to Madame Joffre and the Marshal's relatives my most heartfelt sympathy."

Tower of Strength

Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, who was associated with Marshal Joffre in the Allied Councils during the first two years of the war, paid tribute to-day to him as a tower of strength, a good comrade, and a loyal ally.

"I'll not venture to pass upon him as a strategist," the Field Marshal said, "but will leave that to others. I'll merely say that he always seemed to me to be a tower of strength against which weaker natures might lean.

"He was most invaluable as a man and a Commander when adversity was worst. His memory always will be held in high regard by those British troops who fought in France in the early years of the war and especially by the "Old Contemptibles' who were under his care when the full brunt of the German onslaught had to be borne.

"I personally like to remember him for what he was—a good comrade and a loyal ally."

Perley Pays Tribute

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 3 (C.P.)—Sir George Perley, member of the Bennett Government and Canadian High Commissioner in London during the Great War, in paying tribute to the late Marshal Joffre, declared:

"Those who knew or realised our great danger during the first few weeks of the war can never forget Marshal Joffre—the hero of the Marne. Affectionately known by his men as 'Papa Joffre,' the French troops which he commanded, with the assistance of the 'British Contemptibles' turned back the Germans just as they thought Paris was within their grasp, and never afterwards was the enemy again so near victory.

"All glory to this great soldier who has now passed on. France has lost a patriotic citizen and a great leader of men who served his country well in those dark days. The whole world mourns with France in her sorrow."

Hoover Sends Sympathy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (C.P.) — President Hoover cabled to President Doumergue of France to-day his personal and the official condolences of the United States on the death of Marshal Joffre. The message said:—

"I am distressed by the news of the death of Marshal Joffre, who is so affectionately remembered by the American people. Both in their name and personally I wish to express to Your Excellency the deep sorrow which is felt in this country at the passing of this great patriot."

Secretary of State Stimson instructed the Embassy in Paris to convey a message of sympathy on behalf of the United States Government and the secretary himself to the French Minister of Foreign Affairs.

"I join in your sorrow and that of the French people," it read, "at the death of Marshal Joffre, who was so well known and loved in this country. Please accept this expression of condolence and deepest sympathy in your great loss on behalf both of this government and myself."

PARIS, Jan. 3 (C.P.)—Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes, United States Ambassador at London, who was associated with Marshal Joffre during the war as a member of the A.E.F., to-day expressed his regrets at passing of his old comrade in arms. General Dawes was one of the last persons to see the Marshal alive.

"Associated with the name of Marshal Joffre," he said, "are some of the most poignant and glorious memories of the Allied cause. The great events of the war focus themselves upon individuals and in times of crisis such men find their way through the hopes and fears of distressed humanity to a lasting memory."

LONDON, Jan. 3 (C.P.)—Lady Haig, widow of the British Army leader during the war, paid tribute to-day to Marshal Joffre. "His death is a very great loss to France," she said: "His leadership saved our country in its time of stress. Earl Haig worked very closely and harmoniously with him and often referred to him as 'Papa Joffre'."

ORIENT NEEDS STABILIZATION

House of Commons last year," continued Mr. Stevens. "I have discussed it quite fully in London during the past few months with some of the leading bankers of the world and found a very strong measure of support.

One Illustration.

"One simple illustration will impress on anyone's mind the significance of the idea," said Mr. Stevens. "It is alleged that we are suffering from over-production because we happen to have large quantities of wheat, as well as manufactured articles, more than we can sell. But while we have these, approximately two-thirds of the world's population is living below the mere level of subsistence. Obviously there is not an over-production, but, as I termed it in London, we are suffering from mal-distribution. What I have been doing is urging leaders of economic thought, bankers and those interested in public matters to address themselves to the problem of raising standards now obtaining in eastern civilization, which, in turn would involve increasing their buying power, thus supplying a market for our commodities and those of the European and North American countries."

Mr. Stevens said he could make no statement in respect to the marketing of Canadian wheat in the Orient and the mission of Hon. Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Japan, to China. That matter, he said, had been touched on by the Prime Minister in his Regina speech and he could add nothing to what Mr. Bennett had said.

Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms, such as headaches, gas, heartburn, etc., will disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

Do you enjoy looking at a beautiful printing job? If you do, we'd like to show you samples of some of the work we've done in the past—work which has proven financially as well as artistically successful.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

AT CENTREVILLE

MILLBROOK, Jan. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The annual Christmas concert of the Sunday School of Centreville Presbyterian church was, as always, a decided success the various numbers showing careful training by the teachers, the creditable manner in which the individual pupils, and the separate or combined classes performed, being a fitting climax to the preceding weeks of preparation.

The Sunday School Hall was appropriately decorated, with a beautifully-trimmed and heavily-laden Christmas tree as its outstanding feature, and both the superintendent, Mr. R. O. Larmer, and the pastor, Rev. John Riddell, were present to take their share in the responsibilities of the evening.

Opening chorus, "Merry, Merry Bells," by the school; chairman's address, R. O. Larmer; recitation, Dorothy Hoad; dialogue, "The Weekly Banner"; recitation, Florence Balmsley; duet, McIntosh Bradshaw and Tom McGee; recitation, Arnold Bonner; address, Rev. John Riddell; evergreen drill, eight girls; chorus, "The Glad Bells of Christmas"; dialogue, "The Train to Mauro"; tableau, "Safe In the Arms of Jesus", by ten girls; play, 'Christmas Eve in the School Room'; by the pupils of the school.

The distribution of gifts from the tree was naturally the feature of most interest to the younger folk, and fittingly brought to a close a ver yhappy occasion.

ST. GEORGE'S S.S.

St. George's Sunday School scholars held their annual Christmas parties on Monday and Tuesday evenings in the church basement. The party for the primary department was on Monday from four to six o'clock, when the little ones enjoyed a substantial tea followed by songs, games, and the pulling of crackers Through the kindness of the Teca Store Santa Claus was able to pay a visit, and presented each child with a gift. Candy sticks were distributed as the children left for home.

Scholars of the main department assembled on Tuesday evening and sat down to a hot supper served by the teachers at six o'clock. Games and contests followed, and when the time for departure arrived each scholar received an orange and a bag of candy. A Christmas tree, prettily decorated, and table decorations of red and green gave a festive appearance to the room.

BETHANY CHURCH S.S.

BETHANY, Jan. 2 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual Christmas concert of St. Paul's Sunday School was held on Monday evening, December 29, in the Orange Hall.

At six o'clock a banquet was served to the young people, the tables having had to be set three times to accommodate everyone. An invitation had been extended to the members of the Sunday School and congregation of St. Mary's and many accepted the invitation.

Following the supper, a program was given by members of the school, Rev. Mr. Fierheller acting as chairman. Mr. Monk, superintendent of the Sunday School, gave a much appreciated address and Miss Ruth Hamilton kindly consented to address the children, telling them a little of the manners and customs of the people living along the coast of Labrador where she spent a year and a half, returning home on furlough in November, 1930.

Three children gave a pantomime of "Silent Night" and this was very impressive, indeed. The singing of the National Anthem brought a pleasant evening to a close.

S.S. 17, OTONABEE.

The annual Christmas entertainment of S.S. 17, Otonabee, Rific Range School, was held recently in the school, which was prettily decorated, the pupils making a splendid exhibition, which showed the thorough training received from their teacher, Miss D. Wiman.

Mr. Butler acted as chairman, and Miss Wiman was the accompanist during the evening, the following being the program:

Chairman's address; song by the school, "Jingle Bells"; "The Big Welcome," Allen Carpenter; recitation, "Her Letter," Terese Hurley, "Game of Letters," by school; recitation, "A Christmas Stocking," Allan Carpenter; recitation, "Hang Up the Baby's Stocking," Lorraine Quinn; "Santa's Toymen,' by the boys; recitation, "Why I'm Here," Clarabel Kelly; "The Sad Plight," Joseph Corkery; "The Clean Up," small girls; recitation, "The Christmas Tree," Alfred McCall; recitation, "Mrs. Santa Claus," Irene Emery; song by the school, "Ring Out the Bells for Christmas"; recitations, "A Serious Talk with Santa Claus," Jack Quinn, and "Her Letter,' Loretta Hurley; "Dream of Mother Goose," boys and girls; recitation, Jean McColl; record, "Adeste Fidelis"; recitations, "The Japanese," Clothilde Hurley, and "The Toys He Didn't Like," Joseph Corkery; "Tea for Three, Dorothy Price, Winnie Sharpe and Hilda Sharpe; recitation, "The Christmas Spirit," Marjorie McCall; reading, "The Christmas Tree," Dorothy Price; "The Askers," the girls; dialogue, "The Rich and the Poor Boy," Jack Quinn and Alfred McCall; recitation, Marian Quinn and "Mary Jane," Dorothy Sharpe; record, "Silent Night"; recitations, "Rossie Dolly's Bath," Clothilde Hurley, and "A Little Wee Boy," Fred Price, Irene Emery, and Dorothy Sharpe; recitation, "St. Nicholas' Visit," Winnie Sharpe; song, "Hurrah for the Christmas Tree," by the school.

JAMES STEVENSON HOLDS RECORD WITH 10 YEARS SERVICE AS MAYOR

Several Others Have Occupied Mayor's Chair For Four or More Years.

W. H. SCOTT SIX YEARS.

Mayor Denn's four consecutive terms in office has set up a record for this country, but he still has a long way to go before he equals the long terms in office recorded by some of Peterborough's early mayors.

James Stevenson, after whom Stevenson Park is named, has no peer for long-continuer public service as mayor. He held office for ten years and along with that served for more than twenty years on the School Board. He began his mayoralty career back in 1854, holding for one year at that time. He returned to the chair in 1857 and was Mayor for three consecutive years. Then twenty-seven years later, in 1886 he again became the town's chief magistrate and he served continuously in that capacity until 1891, six years.

W. H. Scott more nearly approaches James Stevenson's record than any other man. He was mayor for six consecutive years, 1866 to 1871.

James Kendry is another who so well served Peterborough that he was returned again and again to the mayor's chair. For four years consecutively, 1892 to 1895, he was mayor, and in 1900 he was returned for yet another term.

George A. Cox, who later became Senator, also gave extraordinary long service to Peterborough's progress. He was mayor for three years, 1872 to 1874, and ten years later, in 1884, was returned for two more terms.

It is interesting to note that the present mayor is not the first Denne to serve Peterborough in that capacity. His brother, Thomas H. G. Denne, was mayor just thirty years ago for two terms, 1901 and 1902.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 3. — The last session of the New Year brought revived hope to Winnipeg grain traders yesterday, and with a splurge of buying, wheat values closed with an advance ranging from 1⅞ cents to 2¼ cents a bushel. May finished the day at 56¼ cents and July at 57½ cents.

Sale of a full cargo of wheat to Chinese buyers, good buying of Winnipeg futures by Southern interests, and strength at Chicago were the main factors in the local advance. There was no selling pressure, and the buying orders coming in from time to time had little difficulty in boosting prices.

Export trade with Europe was quite small over the holidays, but Broomhall indicated that a broader demand for Manitobas was apparent.

Demand for cash wheat and coarse grains was indifferent, but values moved upward along with the futures advance.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.— Prices of all grains soared late yesterday, with corn showing nearly a 4c jump, the leader. The main reason was active purchasing by corn speculators, who believed the market had become oversold and switched from the selling side. Renewal of industrial demand for corn to be used at once was a factor giving impetus to buying of future deliveries.

Activity of grain buyers and boosting of values came chiefly in the final hour. Earlier corn in particular had run into selling on price bulges and had averaged low, even when wheat showed a tendency to advance. The transient declines in corn were in the face of sharp curtailment of receipts and were also counter to talk that the New Year is beginning with bearish grain factors apparently discounted in full.

ARTICLES OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

REVIEW OF JUNIOR FARMER WORK IN PETERBORO COUNTY DURING 1930 REVEALS CONSIDERABLE PROGRESS

OVER 400 ENTER CONTESTS.

Praise Is Given Miss Edyth Hopkins For Her Work With the Girls.

J. B. Nelson, the energetic local agricultural representative, in reviewing the past year's work, which has been undertaken among the Junior Farmers of Peterborough County, shows in summarized form the numerous activities which he has largely been responsible in fostering and which have advanced in such promising manner under his able guidance.

For the results obtained in the Junior Farmers' competitions in the past year great credit is also due to Miss Edyth Hopkins, who had the responsibility for coaching the girls.

(J. B. Nelson)

"During the past season "The Examiner" has reported from time to time many items of interest regarding local and district judging competitions among farm young people. Because of this an article describing this work and summarizing the results obtained in Peterborough County should be of interest."

"There are in the county, approximately fifteen hundred young people between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five who will become farmers or farmers' wives. Very few of these will ever have the opportunity of attending a school where agriculture as a vocation is taught. Because of this fact the Ontario Department of Agriculture, through its county offices, is attempting to supplement what these young people learn at home by giving a certain amount of instruction. This instruction is brought to the young people by means of School fairs, short courses, club work and various competitions."

"The subject of this article is the 'Judging Competitions' which has been of the greatest value in attracting Peterborough young people to study better agriculture and better home making."

"All of the judging competitions are conducted on a similar basis. The competitors are rated on their ability (1) to valuate the articles or animals being judged so as to award prizes in the proper order and (2) to explain thoroughly their reasons for so awarding the prizes."

"For example, a group of boys in competition may have to judge a class of 'Bacon Hogs.' They must have such a knowledge of type, finish and other market requirement that they can award the prizes in the proper order. According to the correctness of their placing, marks are awarded. But that is only half the story. The competitor must appear before an adjudicator and explain why he awarded the prizes in such a way. This necessitates a familiarity with the proper terms of description, and an ability to express an opinion."

"Similarly a group of girls may have to examine four lunches for school children or four plans of farm kitchens and award prizes in order of merit. 'Reasons' are also taken in these competitions."

"The boys' competitions are usually in the judging of live stock, poultry, grain and seeds; the girls in the judging of menus, house plans and good dressing."

"The judging competitions have a number of decided educational advantages:

1—They add a competitive interest to the study of fundamental farm and home subjects.

2—They develop the habit of individual thought and sound judgment.

3—They develop an ability to speak in public and to express an opinion.

4—By means of the prizes which are usually trips to some Fair or educational institution, they broaden the outlook of the farm young people."

"During the past season a rather complete system of judging competitions attracted as competitors over four hundred young people. This system included school fair competitions, for the older children, county competitions for the young people and a district competition at Peterborough Exhibition for the more experienced judges."

School Fair Contests

"For three years judging competitions for the boys in 'Dairy Cattle' and for the girls in 'school lunches' have been held at the Peterborough County School Fairs. Teams of three boys and three girls represented many of the schools."

"At the conclusion of the Fairs the winning teams from each Township gathered in Peterborough one Saturday and competed for county honours. A picture of the group appeared in the Examiner at the time. The boys' competition was won by S.S. No. 8, Smith, (Young's Point School) and the girls from S.S. No. 1, Asphodel (Villiers) carried off the honours."

"The work of these children was very elementary but it was a start and the competitions of early competitions are now competing in the senior competitions."

County Competitions

"For the young people of the county a competition was arranged at Keene in June. In all seventy-nine boys and forty-six girls took part."

"This County Competition is of course the major event of the season for at it are picked those who will be the guests of the Department at the Royal Winter Fair and also those who will have the honor of representing the county in the Inter-County Competitions at the Royal, Ottawa Winter Fair and the Canadian National Exhibition."

Year	Girls	Boys
1924	25	31
1925	33	35
1926	23	30
1927	16	47
1928	29	47
1929	37	53
1930	46	79

"Ten boys and five girls from this group attended the Royal Winter Fair as guests of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and were able to obtain a broader outlook both of farming and of our life as whole as a result."

Inter-County Contests

"The three girls who represented the county in the Inter-County Competition at the Canadian National Exhibition were able to secure tenth place in a competition open to teams from every county in the Province. The team included the following young ladies, Helen Tedford, R. No. 2, Indian River, Marjorie Frankish, R. No. 2, Lakefield, and Mary Rose, Warsaw."

"The team of boys who represented the county in the Eastern Ontario competition at Ottawa Winter Fair also did exceptionally well. They attained third place in livestock and third place in grain. The team consisted of Stewart Tedford, Indian River, Sherwood Payne, Warsaw and Hugh Buchanan, Havelock."

District Competition

"Realizing the value of this work the Peterborough Exhibition Board now provides a competition for the more experienced boys and girls from the neighboring counties. This helps to keep up an interest among the older competitors who have won all the honors they can at the county competitions. Peterborough county entrants won their share here also."

Leadership Training

"The Judging competition work is accumulative. In most cases the school fair teams are trained by young people in the section who have taken part in competitions or have received some training at short courses."

"An incentive to this phase of the work was given this year when Mr. T. P. Lancaster offered a prize to the older boy who coached the team of younger boys coming highest in the county competition."

"This prize was won by Ralph Garbutt, R. No. 2, Lakefield and it is interesting to note that of the four boys he trained, three won trips to the Royal and the fourth was a member of the inter-county team at Ottawa."

"The judging competition work is a valuable part of the agricultural extension work being carried on in Peterborough county. It is receiving the support of our farm young people and it is assisting to develop in them the knowledge and ability necessary for the farmers and home makers of the future."

According to a bill introduced recently in parliament, a woman in England will be permitted to marry her sister's nephew by marriage, and a man may wed his deceased wife's niece by marriage.

Jerusalem Artichoke Ideal Forage Crop

Results of tests made by the Dominion Department of Agriculture at Ottawa show that the Jerusalem Artichoke makes an ideal forage crop, giving a high yield of dry matter per acre above ground, and when considered from the standpoint of the added value of dry matter in its tubers, gives a greater tonnage than either sunflowers or corn. At the Sidney, B.C., Experimental Station the average yield of dry matter per acre over a period of six years was 6.01 tons above ground, with tubers furnishing an additional 1½ tons. The artichoke was also found much easier to handle in the ensilage cutter than sunflowers. In addition to being valuable as a general forage crop the Jerusalem Artichoke is a particularly good feed for hogs and poultry.

BEANS ESSENTIAL AS A CASH CROP EASY TO GROW

Annual Demand For Dominion Runs About 1,500,000 Bushels.

150,000 IMPORTED.

Crop Generally Does Best Following Clover Sod—No Special Machinery Needed.

(Experimental Farms Note)

So popular are beans as an article of diet that among the many economic plants belonging to the legume family there is none so important from the standpoint of its use for human food. Owing to the unperishable nature of dry field beans they are marketed in all countries of the world and at all seasons of the year. To satisfy the demand of the Canadian people it requires annually about 1,500,000 bushels of which 150,000 to 200,000 bushels must be imported. Production in Canada on a five year average has been 1,212,400 bushels.

Productivity varies in a given locality with such factors as strain of seed, weather, soil fertility, prevalence of disease and date of first killing autumn frost. Tests carried out under the Dominion Experimental Farms have shown that beans may be grown successfully in any province of the Dominion although sections of Eastern Canada are more particularly adapted for a profitable extension of bean growing.

Need Good Land

Beans frequently have no fixed place in the cropping system. They generally do best following clover sod such as sweet clover plowed down from the previous season's seeding. The land must be in good condition in every regard since the crop cannot stand "wet feet" or competition from weeds. Special machinery is not required. Seeding may be done with an ordinary grain drill with rows twenty-eight inches apart, using thirty-five to forty-five pounds of seed per acre. The ordinary corn cultivator is re-arranged and used for bean work. A special attachment swung under the ordinary farm cultivator may be used for harvesting.

The small white pea bean types are more popular in the market than the larger types. Among the varieties tested at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, Navy Ottawa No. 711 has matured on the average in 102 days and yielded well. Michigan Robust, though a little later, has given good results particularly in resistance to disease. Norwegian Ottawa No. 710 has been an outstanding yielder among the colored types.

The most profitable crops of beans are secured when careful attention is given to soil and plant food requirements, seed selection and culture. The average yield for the Dominion has been 18.7 bushels per acre. At the prevailing market price for beans this crop in comparison with other farm crops seems worthy of consideration.

Weekly Crop Report For Peterboro County

Most of the cheese factories report a fairly satisfactory season in so far as quantity is concerned, but the price has been low enough to make the returns rather disappointing. Egg production is now fairly good but the price has dropped rather seriously during the last two weeks. The prevailing price to-day is 40 cents. No grain is being sold but some clover is moving. One grower reports a sale of fairly good red clover seed at $12.

1930 WOOL CLIP ABOVE LAST YEAR

LOWEST PRICE ON RECORD.

The total production of wool in Canada in 1930 is estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 21,016,000 pounds as compared with the revised figure of 20,283,000 pounds for 1929. The provisional estimate of the value of the 1930 clip is placed at $2,522,000, compared with $4,057,000 in 1929. By provinces and for the Indian Reserves, pure the wool production for 1930 is as folows:

	Pounds
Prince Edward Island	496,000
Nova Scotia	1,638,000
New Brunswick	875,000
Quebec	4,968,000
Ontario	6,325,000
Manitoba	1,268,000
Saskatchewan	1,211,000
Alberta	3,116,000
British Columbia	1,103,000
Indian Reserves	16,000

30 to 40 Per Cent Drop

Wool prices in 1930 have fallen 30 to 40 per cent as compared with the previous year, and are now lower than any year for which we have records. The 1930 wool season opened with very little activity among local dealers and buyers. Where prices were quoted at all the price ranged from 10 to 12 cents per pound in eastern Canada. The difficulty which producers experienced in finding a local outlet resulted in a much increased volume of wool being consigned for co-operative sale and official grading by the Federal wool graders. When it became evident that the returns for wool would in all probability be in the vicinity of 10 to 15 cents per pound, those districts which were in a position to utilize their wool for the home manufacture of woollen goods greatly increased their operations, feeling that by so doing they could increase the market value of the product. The Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Limited had the largest supplies of wool in their warehouse of any previous season. Unfortunately a disastrous fire destroyed the warehouse and with the exception of small quantities of Eastern Domestic wools which were sold previous to the fire, all wool which had been warehoused for co-operative sale was damaged and had to be sold for reclaim values.

The revision of the Canadian tariff against imported woollen goods is designed to stimulate woollen manufacturing. In view of the fact, however, that wools are allowed in duty free, it is unlikely that increased manufacturing will definitely affect wool prices in the Dominion, although there may be a larger consumption of Canadian wools by Canadian manufacturers than has been the case in the past. In spite of low wool prices and lower lamb prices, there continues to be a demand for good ewe stock to establish new sheep flocks. Continued improvement of ewe stock and the general use of purebred rams to head up grade flocks is steadily reflecting itself in the production of larger quantities of wool of the medium and fine combing grades.

NORTH ENGLAND OUTLET FOR PEAS

COLORING ADDED.

Although the demand for canned peas is not as extensive as in the case of various other canned articles, there is nevertheless a very considerable outlet to be found in the North of England for this commodity, particularly among the higher class grocery stores, caterers, etc., writes Harry A. Scott, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Liverpool, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. The poorer class does not purchase canned peas to the same extent, tending more toward dried peas in cartons, etc. While demand is not exactly seasonal, the bulk of the consumption seems to take place during the first half of the year and particularly in the spring and summer months. Competition during the last few years has become extremely keen, owing to the development of the English canning industry. This market has a distinct preference for peas of a very green color, particularly for the catering and restaurant trade. Efforts have accordingly been made both in England and on the Continent to provide a harmless coloring for peas which would not come under the prohibition applied to copper sulphate. The outcome has been that during the past two years a few English canneries, with the support of chemical research, have been turning out peas of very good quality which have a very favorable green appearance. Peas without coloring are, for the bulk of the trade at least, considered to be at a disadvantage on this market. Canadian and American peas are classed as being of about equal quality to English. English canners in recent years have greatly improved their quality and grading and their prices on the whole are higher than Continental quotations. Peas are sold on this market in pints, quarts, and nominal 2's. Belgian and Italian packs come in pint and quart sizes, which are more popular than the nominal 2's coming from Canada and the United States. English canners are, however, supplying the nominal 2's as well as pints and quarts, and Canadian peas have been shipped in quart sizes to this market.

BE VERY SURE VEGETABLES PLAY BIG PART IN YOUR EVERY DAY DIET

Produced in Small Garden Plot Yet They May Be Used in Countless Dishes.

Lessen Digestive Trouble.

The slogan of every household should be "use more vegetables." The young child as well as the grown-up should consume plenty of wholesome vegetables of all kinds and use the minimum of meats necessary to maintain the strength required from meat diets. It can safely be said that if more vitamin rich vegetables were used throughout the country in connection with children's diet that fewer of the ailments of the digestive organs now prevalent would have to be contended with. Every child should be taught to eat some vegetables and apart from a small number it may safely be said that all children can be taught to cultivate a desire to use any vegetable prepared for table use.

Some of the dificulties experienced in making the meatless diet popular by the good housewife can be surmounted if the same consideration be given to the preparation of vegetables that is given to that of pastry, including pies, cookies, fried cakes and other fancy sweet foods, or even the preparation of the various meat fricassee. The vegetable diet, besides being lower in price, will have a much greater influence on the general health of the family than any other diet known.

Used Cooked or Raw

Vegetables can be used in salads in the raw state, with suitable dressing. They may be boiled, fried, scalloped and what not, the major part of which can be produced in a small garden and stored in frost-proof cellars below ground or in cool rooms above ground as the particular case requires.

There has been a great deal of popular advertising given to the various imported vegetables, all of which in a sense, is quite reasonable, but why should we buy, for instance, lettuce from outside our country when the loose leaf lettuce grown in Canadian greenhouses by Canadian people is superior in freshness, quality, and possibly in vitamin, content. The sooner that these popular and fantastic ideas are overlooked by the masses of people, and the home production of an equally good, if not superior, product is encouraged, the sooner will the trend of prosperity return to the growers of such crops in this country.

OPINIONS CHANGE ON MANAGEMENT OF TURF GRASSES

Results Show Over-emphasis Placed on Maintaining and Soil Condition.

THREE YEAR TESTS.

Some of the popular opinions which have long held sway in the management of golf courses, lawns, and other turfed areas, will have to be revised as a result of intensive investigations conducted by the New Jersey Experiment Station.

Three-year results indicate that over-emphasis has been placed upon maintaining an acid soil condition. The reason for this was the belief that weeds could be largely controlled by maintaining an acid condition and that the acidity would favor the growth of bent grasses and fescues.

The facts of the case are, as reported in New Jersey bulletin, "Experiments with Turf Grasses," weeds exhibit as wide a range of tolerance of soil acidity as the grasses themselves, and although an increase in acidity may check some weeds, it will also hamper the vigorous growth of desirable grasses. Accordingly, the investigators consider it unwise to make turf soils strongly acid, because excessive acidity does not favor a healthy growth of grass throughout the season. Moreover, grass on a strongly acid soil seems to be more dependent on fertilizers than that on a less acid soil.

The weakness of the theory of making the soil acid on putting greens was strikingly shown in tests in which lime was used to make the soil non-acid. Contrary to popular belief, it did not increase the growth of weeds. The limed plots produced the most vigorous growth, a fact which indicates that bent grasses do not necessarily require an acid soil for satisfactory growth.

Fall Growth Watched

Special attention in the New Jersey studies was given to the condition of the grass in late fall. Greens which were fertilized continuously with nitrate of soda, as well as those which are limed, were in vigorous condition as late as November, whereas the plots treated with acid-forming fertilizers were listed as "poor to medium."

Another theory challenged by the investigators concerns the growth of clover on putting greens. This is a subject of deep interest to greenkeepers, as many find it difficult to retard the growth of clover. It was once thought that applications of lime would stimulate clover; but in these investigations clover was as plentiful on the acid plots as on the lime plots.

The New Jersey investigators report that the use of soluble nitrogen fertilizers, such as Chilean nitrate, in quantities sufficient for vigorous growth of grass, has proved very effective in controlling clover when combined with regular close-mowing of the greens.

Another item of good news for greenkeepers is the announcement that earthworms can be easily destroyed by the use of lead arsenate. In the New Jersey experiments the arsenate was applied with the top-dressing material at the rate of 15 pounds to 1000 square feet of surface. The arsenate not only eliminated the earthworms, but it also helped to retard the growth of weeds without injuring the turf.

Milk, Important Factor in Food Supply, Not Without Dangers—Pasteurize It

Milk and milk products are generally recognized as the most important factors in the food supply of the family, but it is not without its dangers as a carrier of disease germs. It is for this reason that health authorities and experts of the dairy industry constantly urge the pasteurization of milk as the one way by which it can be made absolutely safe. A wealth of material might be written about the value and safeguards of the process. Most of the large dairies serving important centres pasteurize all their milk. From the health standpoint pasteurization is sufficiently important that it should be done at home if a supply from a commercial plant is not available. How this is done is told in the pamphlet, "Why Pasteurize Milk," which has just been issued by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. Briefly, by the use of a dairy thermometer and a double boiler of suitable capacity, milk is held at a temperature of 145 degrees F. for a period of thirty minutes, then cooled quickly to below 50 degrees F. When thus treated milk is safe.

As Conditions Are In Hastings County

Live stock is in very good condition and there is a slight increase in the cattle being fed this winter. The milk supply is holding up well with a larger supply of new milk cows than usual. Poultry has been marketed in a more orderly manner this year, and there has not been the usual heavy surplus during the past week. There will be an increase this year in the amount of registered seed grain. There will be less red clover and more alfalfa seed.

COSTS OF TILE DRAIN VARY WIDELY DEPENDS ON SOIL, AND LABOR USED

Under Favorable Conditions Using Machinery Cost Need Not Exceed 92 Cents Per Rod.

$1.53 USING HAND LABOR.

(Experimental Farms Note)

The cost of tile drains varies considerably, depending largely on the nature of the subsoil, local labor conditions, and the method of installation. On the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, an extensive system of tile drains has recently been installed by the Field Husbandry Division. At prevailing labor rates, the cost of tile, has ranged from 14 the cost o file, has ranged from 14 cents per rod under favorable conditions to $2.97 per rod where large boulders were prevalent in the subsoil. The average labor cost of drains installed entirely by hand was $1.91 per rod, as compared with 69 cents per rod where ditching machinery was used. For all drains considered, the average cost was 89 cents per rod for labor, and 64 cents per rod for tile, a total average cost of $1.53 per rod. This cost is rather high, due to the prevalence of large boulders in the subsoil. Under favorable conditions, where full use is made of ditching machinery, the cost need not exceed 28 cents per rod for installation and 64 cents for tile or a total of 92 cents per rod.

The cost per acre of tile drains depends on the spacing between laterals. At 90 cents per rod the cost per acre will range from about $16 where laterals are 150 feet apart, to about $48 where laterals are 50 feet apart.

Digging Largest Item

Digging was the largest single item in the labor cost of drains at Ottawa, amounting to 77 per cent of the total labor cost of drains installed by hand, and to 40 per cent where the traction ditcher was used. In drains dug by hand the cost of digging was found to increase rapidly with the depth. Thus the cost of digging a drain four feet deep was 95 cents per rod, as compared with 26 cents per

J. H. HESS V.S. Asks for Your Support for REEVE

That year we were favored with a grant from the United Counties of 27,000 Dollars toward the paving of our streets, for which we were very thankful. We now have fine streets, second to none, and they are standing up well—which, I am sure, is a great asset to our village. By laying this pavement it necessitated large outlays, which fell directly on the village to pay. But in face of that, we financed with Forty Mills. And only had an overdraft of $325, which was severely criticized by some of the present Council.

In 1928 the present Council was elected, with Dr. Wilson as Reeve. There was no local improvement that year, except that some gravel was put on the Cobourg road at a cost of about $400. If the Reeve had not been in a hurry to spend this money, and had waited until after the June session of the Counties Council, which was always customary, this money could have been saved, as the Counties decided to pave this stretch of road, so covered up the newly laid gravel, and this money was wasted. This was the principal amount of improvements for that year.

Just here I wish to draw the attention of the ratepayers of Hastings to what happened. Your rate was raised Ten Mills—the Council realized from this about $2,800; and as you are aware, in 1927, when I was Reeve, I made application to the Counties Council for an extra grant of $2,000 to help pay for some extra paving that was carried out. The 1928 Council received this grant of $2,000, which was not applied to the pavement account, but was deposited in the current account, which was not the proper procedure.

It appears then that the Council of 1928 collected by taxation and appropriation the snug sum of $4,800 more than the 1927 Council. At the end of 1928 they paid the overdraft of 1927 $825, made no improvements, and boasted of having a surplus of $250. That is what I term high financing.

The same Council in 1929 did not make any local improvements, except some little draining and a small amount of gravel on some of the rear streets. This year they spent their surplus, and had an overdraft of $727. This will give you an honest idea of your finances for 1928 and 1929.

But I wish you to pay particular attention to the 1930 budget, with the same government in power. What happens Improvements, blank Did sweep the front street occasionally. Had many a long talk over the telephone, which cost the village $67.80; and one or two pleasure trips at the town's expense. This is about the extent of their work for this year.

Just here please take note of your financial standing for this year. Overdraft at December 15, $2,596.10. Since that, bills have come in amounting to about $400. So your total overdraft is $2,596.10. They have $1,181.95 unpaid taxes. Of that amount, I will venture to say there will not be more than $400 collectable. And still I see by the paper the Reeve stands on the public platform and declares our finances are in excellent condition.

Now I have given you an outline of the proceedings of the present government for the past three years, I ask you, ladies and gentlemen, to study this statement carefully. After having done so, decide whom you want to represent you as Reeve for 1931. If my past record appeals to you, then I ask you to give me your support, and elect me as Reeve; and if elected, I will pledge myself to give the village my unbiased support in any matter that might come before the Council, providing it is in the best interest of the Municipality.

Thanking you in advance for your support as Reeve,

I remain, yours truly,

DR. J. H. HESS.

P.S.—I would also like to have the information: Why mention in the financial report some of those who were unfortunate enough to be fined for some breach of the law, and omit others who were just as unfortunate? And why has the village not received credit for those fines? Yours, J. H. H

MARSHAL JOFFRE, HERO OF MARNE, IS DEAD

END IS MOST PEACEFUL TO THE MAN WHO TURNED BACK GERMAN ARMIES IN THEIR MARCH ON PARIS IN 1914

Marshal Joffre Would Have Been 79 Years Old on Sunday.

NEWS SPREADS RAPIDLY.

Final Illness Dates Back Many Weeks—Only Three War Leaders Left.

PARIS, Jan. 3 (C.P.). — Death came to-day to Marshal Joffre, last of the chief French military leaders of the Great War, after a fortnight's illness in which it was necessary to amputate his left leg. The Marshal would have been 79 years old to-morrow.

The end was peaceful. Three members of his family, Mme. Joffre, his son-in-law, M. Lafile, and his brother Ferdinand, General Issaly, his chief of staff; Colonel Desmazes of his staff, his doctors and a few others were present. He died without coming out from the coma which closed over him at noon Thursday, his life gradually ebbing since.

Died At 8.23 a.m.

The announcement was made at 8.30 a.m. A member of his military household, Captain Saint Cernin, pale with emotion, emerged from the hospital, and in a husky voice told newspapermen: "The Marshal is dead, gentlemen." He displayed a bulletin signed by the physicians, Professor Lerichs and Drs. Boulin and Fontaine, which set the end at 8.23 a.m.

Shortly afterward Professor Leriche, Strassbourg specialist, who came to Paris to treat the ailment which finally cut the Marshal's life short, appeared and informed the newspapermen of the circumstances of death, added that the Marshal had been in a state of coma practically all this week except for rare intervals of five or ten minutes' lucidity.

Despite the early hour a crowd already had assembled outside the Hospital Saint Jean De Dieu, where the Marshal has been confined for two weeks. When information of the death was passed to the newspapermen the word "mort"—death—passed through the crowd. Men bared their heads and women made the sign of the cross.

News Spread Rapidly

The news spread rapidly through Paris, where death had been expected for more than a week. Bells tolled and official circles made preparations for honors in death due the man who in 1914 turned the invaders back from the very gates of Paris in the epic battle of the Marne.

His death removes from the world stage all save three of the great military leaders of the war, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Eric Ludendorff of Germany, and General John J. Pershing of the United States. Of the French leaders of note only Marshal Petain, defender of Verdun, still lives, but, unlike Foch or Joffre he never was in supreme command of the French armies. One by one—Haig, Cadorna, Foch and others have passed from the scene.

Marshal Joffre's final illness dated back many weeks, when he complained of a pain in his leg and his doctors found him a victim of arteritis. In his case the disease, which brings an inflammation of the arteries, settled in his legs and eventually a gangrenous condition developed which necessitated amputation.

On December 19 he was taken secretly in his own cabriolet to the hospital Saint Jean De Dieu and that night, under the influence of local anasthaesia only, he submitted to amputation at mid-thigh of his left leg. He would not take ether, informing the physicians Professor Leriche, Dr. Boulin, and Dr. Fontaine, that he wished to see what they were doing to him.

His illness did not become known until the following week, when his doctors let it be known they had no hope for him and did not expect him to live more than a day or so at the most. Despite their pessimism, the old soldier survived, much of the time in coma and semi-consciousness, his heart refusing to give in to illness which would have taken most men many times over.

He gradually weakened after astonishing physicians with his resistance. He lived for days after they had stated that he had only hours or even minutes more of life. On New Year's Day he lapsed into the final coma from which he never recovered and at one time that day was so low that a false announcement of his death was made only to be retracted an hour later after having been spread over all the world.

He was kept alive during the last few days by injections of heavy doses of a serum which his physicians prepared.

Premier Steeg was the first to arrive at the hospital after announcement of the Marshal's death. He was followed by Colonel Fabry, former Joffre aide, and Jean Chiappe, Prefect of Police.

Colonel Desmazes announced soon after death that the body would be embalmed this afternoon preparatory to lying in state at the chapel of the Ecole Militaire, the French Military Academy. He said that the last absolution was given the Marshal at 8 a.m. by Chaplain Bellesoeur, when it was seen death was imminent.

At 7 a.m.—today Dr. Fontaine, feeling the pulse of the dying Marshal, became convinced that death could be a question of only a very short period of time. Urgent telephone messages were sent to the family and friends and members of the general staff who gathered about the bed.

Mme. Joffre knelt beside the recumbent form of her husband and the Chaplain Bellebogur, after administering absolution at 8 a.m., went quietly and knelt in a corner of the room, still murmuring his prayers for the dying. Dr. Fontaine continued to hold the wristof the marshal.

Slowly he counted the pulsations and then amid a solemn hush, broken only by the priest's frequent intonements, the marshal's great heart beat swiftly and then, stopped altogether. This time there was no mistaking the end.

The Marshal's face took on its customary serenity, lying white and placid upon the pillow. The deep lines which marked it like some map of battle, however, were ample evidence of the effects of the great battle the Marshal had fought, his last earthly conflict and one in which he was doomed to defeat from the start.

At 11 a.m. the body of the Marshal reposed on the simple camp bed of a soldier. It was clothed in white dolman with the golden buttoned uniform worn in the colonies, where much of the dead man's pre-war military fame was won. The hands were crossed, two candles were burning on a small table beside the bed, and two nuns knelt nearby praying.

Colonel Desmazes, the Marshal's aide-de-camp, announced later that he would be given the same kind of funeral as Marshal Foch, who died in 1929, with a service at the Cathedral of Notre Dame and cortege through the streets of Paris.

Burial will take place at the Invalides, adjoining the tombs of other great marshals of France which surround that of Napoleon. Pending this definite interment, the body probably temporarily will be placed in the cemetery at Louveciennes, where the Marshal and his wife spent so many happy springs and summers together.

Their country home there, designed by Mme. Joffre herself, and known as Chestnut Grove, stands in a lovely wooded country near Versailles. In its garden he played with his dogs, Dick and Pieto, and grew roses.

Suffered With Pains In The Back

Relieved By Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills

"For two years I suffered with pains in my back," writes Mrs. Fred Casey, 3 Douglas Lane, Amherst, N.S. "I tried different remedies but none seemed to do me any good. After taking a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills the pain left me and I always keep them in the house now in case the pain may come back."

Many men and women suffer periodically with backache, and, as middle age approaches, the pain increases in severity.

Rest may give temporary relief, but Dodd's Kidney Pills do much more than this. They strengthen the weak kidneys and remove the cause of the pain.

948 VOTES CAST IN N. MONAGHAN

FINAL SUMMARY.

A re-checking of the election results in North Monaghan township gave Reeve McIntosh a majority of 603 votes against Mr. Rye's 291, the total vote for the reeveship being 948. The above returns were the same as those announced election night, but in the case of the vote for councillors, the returns showed slightly different results, without however, altering the constitution of the 1931 Council. They were as follows:

William George Paton 472
W. J. Byers 462
William Whitfield 411

Of the three defeated candidates for council Andrew Kent made the best showing, trailing Mr. Whitfield by 46 votes. The previous figures gave Mr. Kent a vote of 304 placing him next to the bottom of the polls. William Stevens polled 360 votes instead of 361 as previously announced, while Hy. Wood received 69 fewer votes than Mr. Stevens.

en off, their combination being broken time after time. Filion, O'Malley and Munn played well up in this period and did their best to penetrate the Campbellford stronghold, but the visitors were now playing for their winning count which they made when McHay on the right wing broke away and netted the puck with a pretty shot from centre ice, with ten minutes to play. From then on to the sounding of the final gong, Frankford, although making several severe attacks, were unable to count, and the game ended in victory for the Maroons.

The game was one of the fastest played in some time and featured by its cleanness, only one penalty being given. "Chub" Barrett of Belleville handled the bell, and made a very good job of it, checking the play closely and preventing any rough stuff being handed out. Heavy checking was the order of the day, but this was featured by both teams.

Grier for Campbellford and Prevost for Frankford played good games in the nets, taking much punishment in the matter of long shots and doing some very fine work in the scrambles round the goals. The game as a whole was good and afforded a good showing to the large number of local and visiting fans who turned out to see the first game of the League in which their respective teams were engaged in.

Referee—"Chub" Barrett, Belleville.

KIWANIS CLUB'S NEW OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED

YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED.

"Onward in Kiwanis whither God has willed, Hailing as our brothers, all who work and build."

The above words sung fervently, to the tune of a well-known hymn resounded through the dining room of the Empress Hotel last evening, where members of the local Kiwanis Club and their ladies, had foregathered to participate in the installation ceremony of the newly elected President John I. Allen and other officers and executives of the club, at which District Governor I. P. McNabb officiated.

Carl S. Browne, the retiring president, occupied the chair during the initial part of the proceedings, and as his last act, in his official capacity as President, tendered a highly thoughtful and characteristic speech, in which he reviewed the outstanding events of the club's history during the year 1930, and tendered his thanks to each and every member, with whom, he stated, he had worked in the closest harmony and understanding.

Fun and frivolty held sway during the dinner period and immediately afterwards, while the installation ceremony which was carried out in a most dignified and impressive manner had a decidedly leavening effect on the spirits of the gathering, and it required the services of Martin Chenhall at the piano and the Kiwanis mixed octette to swing back thoughts which had been dwelling on more serious matters, to those bearing on the lighter side of life.

This is not suggesting that the installation ceremony lacked interest, on the contrary, it was extremely inspiring and provided evidence of the conscientious light in which each Kiwanian regards his obligations and duties.

"No Kiwanian can finish a term of office without having a lot to say in the way of appreciation of the co-operation of all members and their wives" said the retiring president, in the course of his address. "I would like to mention specially, the faithful services which the club has received from Vice-President Harry Boyle, and it is gratifying to know he has accepted that position for another year. Jack McKone, who also accepts another term of office, has worked untiringly during the last twelve months, as secretary of the club, and you may look forward to very effective service from him in the future. From the Board of Directors, he continued, I have always had one hundred per cent. co-operation. Jack Craig performed his work with his usual skill and ability as district trustee and as chairman of the Business Relations Committee.

"When the time comes for the club to be composed almost entirely of past presidents, we will have a group of exceedingly enthusiastic workers. I have in mind I. P. McNabb who took hold of the Made in Canada Fair and made it the best fair we have ever had."

"Jack Turner has always been an efficient and good attendant and has looked after the Education Committee," said Mr. Browne as he proceeded to enumerate the yeomen service rendered to the Kiwanis Club, by the chairman of each of the various committees. He made special reference to the work accomplished by Dr. C. B. Waite on the Underprivileged Child Committee, stating, "no person will ever know the time and energy he has given to the work of this committee."

Walter Otze also shared in a large portion of the sincere praise, for his ceaseless efforts on the Sunshine Committee. "He is the type of man," said Mr. Browne, "who if you ask him to perform a task, will immediately do it. His work is second to none."

The sports committee under the control of Art Moffatt and the attendance committee with W. Freel at the helm also came in for recognition, as also did Dr. E. H. Wood, who was absent, for his good work as chairman of the membership committee.

The speaker assured his audience that he did not wish to discriminate between the various committees. Time would not allow him to single them all out, but he was well satisfied that they had performed their duties and had done all that was asked of them. He would however, like to also mention the work which Al Sharpe had performed as chairman of the Inter-club Relations Committee and in the handling of the Kiwanis car mileage guessing contest, also the services rendered by J. I. Allen on the Program Committee, and Vernon Morphet, who took over the treasurer's books, and who handled the fashion parade at the Fair.

Concluding by offering his thanks to the ladies, who he said, have always seconded the efforts of their husbands on the club's behalf, he turned the meeting over to the District Governor.

Governor McNabb was accorded a rousing welcome. In his opening remarks, he said this was the second time he had had the privilege of installing the officers of his own club. "This unique privilege comes to me," he commented, "because my own club and other clubs in the district of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes have been gracious enough to exalt me to the highest position in the district. I take that more as a tribute to Peterborough club than to myself personally, and will always endeavour in my new office to worthily uphold the traditions and ideals of Kiwanis and justify the trust you have placed in me."

He proceeded to elaborate on the meaning of Kiwanis; the local club's relation to the international and the ideals and aims of the organization, after which the following Kiwanians were duly installed:

President—John I. Allen.
Immediate-Past President—Carl S. Browne.
Vice-President—Harry Boyle.
District trustee—Charles Cooke.
Treasurer—Vern. Morphet.
Directors—Percy Blackmore, Al. Sharpe, Harry Campbell, Wilbert Freel, J. B. Nelson, R. T. B. Hicks-Lowe and Dr. E. H. Wood.

Governor McNabb, then handed over the emblem of authority—the gavel, to President John I Allen who in his inaugural address said, "I appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me, by electing me as president of the Kiwanis Club. The office carries with it the responsibilities of upholding the prestige and objectives of our club, also the International."

He proceeded to enumerate the altruistic ideals and purposes of the organization, and pointed out that these objectives cannot be fulfilled without the cooperation of each individual member of the club, and the Board of Directors, and other officers.

"We must realize that an organization which is divided among itself cannot ultimately make a success of its work," he said. "If each committee will function as it should the President and Board of Directors will not find it hard, but if they no not function, there will be added responsibility thrown upon them. Each member must feel a high regard for his sense of duty, inasmuch as the high ideals of the Kiwanis, will be sometimes hard to follow, as we will be giving perhaps, and doing things we would rather put off. My experience has been that when such an occasion arises, and we are denying ourselves, a greater happiness seems to come into our lives."

"Much work is to be done in the uplifting of community life, and the development of the different principles of Kiwanis, particularly underprivileged child work, which has been carried on at Jackson Park Camp, and I believe that still greater work will be achieved in the future."

The Kiwanis mixed octette which contributed so largely to the enjoyment of the evening, accompanied by Martin Chenhall, was composed of the following: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. A. Barton, P. Blackmore, Vern. Morphet, Mrs. Charles Saunders, and Miss Bertha Hill. A whistling solo was provided by Miss Mignon Mayneord.

Months of June, July and November Were Only Ones to Surpass 1929 Figures.

Fire losses in Peterborough for the year ending December 31, 1930, are greatly reduced over those of 1929. Last year losses, paid by insurance companies for fire damages, amounted to $21,100.61, while those of the year before totalled $74,689.58, making a decrease of $53,588.97. These statements are also incredible, considering that no extra service or equipment has been provided. The entire improvement lies with the citizens who are co-operating very closely with the Fire Prevention authorities, incited by warnings and appeals issued by the Fire Department. Advice was given through the press regarding Christmas decorations and carefulness generally during the season, and as a result fire losses were practically negligible in the month of December.

Below are given figures for both 1929 and 1930, showing monthly damage costs paid by insurance companies to householders:—

Month.	1929	1930
January	$16,580.22	231.00
February	1,156.84	527.51
March	3,574.35	1,139.55
April	20,381.64	7,793.00
May	638.93	152.00
June	165.00	2,406.20
July	33.50	2,292.67
August	4,886.70	550.00
September	2,203.90	1,983.34
October	659.50	133.00
November	775.45	3,205.25
December	23,633.55	685.09
Total	$74,689.58	$21,100.61

These figures reveal more closely the great drop in losses, especially in the months of April and December, from 1929 to 1930. The lower amounts are gratifying, but it is hoped that last year's will be again decreased in 1931.

The number of alarms and fires at which there were damages reported have not changed much for the two years, as the following figures will show:—

Month.	1929 Alarms	1929 Fires	1930 Alarms	1930 Fires
Jan.	37	5	27	2
Feb.	30	4	20	2
March	35	6	48	3
April	36	4	49	4
May	32	6	29	2
June	33	3	35	7
July	23	1	16	6
August	20	2	14	2
Sept.	30	4	14	2
Oct	30	3	21	1
Nov.	44	3	43	14
Dec.	28	4	40	4

MONTREAL REVENUE FIGURES SHOW DROP

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 3. — Although a decided decline from the results recorded in the previous year by the National Revenue Department in the port of Montreal had been expected, when the totals for the calendar year of 1930 were made up there was some surprise expressed when a drop of $16,423,174.86 was revealed.

During the past 12 months $91,991,852.90 has been collected at the offices under the jurisdiction of Arthur Magnan, collector of national revenue, compared with $108,415,027.76 of the calendar year 1929.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16 oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make 16 ounces of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germladen phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

PAINS AND ACHES DISTANT FROM THE CAUSE.

For instance Dr. R. D. Ireland, Kansas City, analyzed 500 patients who had been subjected to an X-ray examination of the gall bladder, and the X-ray specialist reported them diseased. Many of these patients had never complained of any trouble in the region of the liver or abdomen. They went to their doctor complaining of headache, muscle pains, joint pains, backache, general weaknesses, or lack of endurance.

When gall bladder is causing the above symptoms it shows that it has been inflamed for a long time; in fact it is really a chronic condition. The same thing applies to a chronic inflammation of appendix; as a matter of fact a chronic appendix and a chronic inflammation of gall bladder are almost always together.

Now if you have any of the above symptoms headache, joint, pains, backache and so forth, don't get it into your head that it is due to inflammation of gall bladder or of appendix. In the majority of cases it will be due to other causes such as constipation, a lazy liver, a lazy intestine, infected teeth or tonsils.

The point to remember is that you should not have headaches, muscle pains, backaches and general weakness. If you have any of these there is something not right and you should try to find the cause.

Because there is always a cause.

If a headache persists and there is no eye strain or gas in abdomen; if muscle or joint pains, persist and there is no infection of teeth or tonsils; if there is general general weakness or lack of endurance and no apparent cause for it, remember Dr. Ireland's statement that a great many of these conditions are due to chronic gall bladder or appendix inflammation.

Diet is a big factor in the treatment, the foods to avoid being salt, canned, presserved meat and fish, pork, liver, goose, duck, oysters, and shell fish, cheese, cabbage, cauliflower, raw vegetables, onions, nuts, hot bread, hot rolls, rich soups, pie and pastry, fats, oils, and alcoholics.

Watching the diet as above and taking regular bending exercises, with a good brisk walk daily, should keep you free of "symptoms" and you will likely be able to avoid an operation.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

AT THE BEGINNING of the year when Father Time introduces a new date with the youthful 1931, we begin to think of clocks. Maybe some of you received clocks for Christmas, or maybe some are considering purchasing one very soon.

• • • • • • •

Many of our readers I know treasure clocks which have been in the family connection for many years some which have been going continually for almost a century!

• • • • • • •

Ever since timepieces were constructed there has been a determined action on the part of their makers to have them ornamental. At first this was coupled with such accuracy of mechanism that a clock, whether in a tower or on a wall, could be relied upon to give correct time.

• • • • • • •

Then a clock was not only a notable decorative feature introduced into a home, but it was a luxury commanding a very high price.

• • • • • • •

Without a clock the family had to depend on a sundial or an ability to gauge the time by the sun. In many an old town the watchman called out the hours from a high tower or as he went through the streets.

• • • • • • •

To be able to heave a timepiece in one's own home was indeed the height of luxury, and its accuracy was to be depended upon and its decorative style one of beauty.

• • • • • • •

To-day the expression "times change" can be whimsically as well as truthfully applied to clocks, for in a single home the various timepieces seldom agree. Even the question of their value as ornaments is debatable whatever the sum paid.

• • • • • • •

Scarcely less important than its accuracy is its decorative beauty, since a clock must be in plain sight. If it serves its purpose, it must be placed where it can be consulted conveniently.

• • • • • • •

With this idea in mind, the need of having it contribute to the good effect will be recognized. To suit the various types of rooms, all sorts of styles of clocks have been devised. But it is also true that the wrong placing of a clock may make it clash with a decorative scheme and make it appear to be poor in style when it is not.

• • • • • • •

Classic types are safe and have a recognized beauty. Banjo clocks are favorites in wall clocks and reproductions of shelf banjo clocks are distinctive. Shelf clocks are endless in styles of quality.

• • • • • • •

Be sure when considering a clock to consider the general decorative style of the room and suit the style to this general trend—then the clock can be relied upon to lend its ornamental element to furthering the best in decoration.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass.
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal.
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK.

A recent speaker at an Institute meeting gave utterance to this striking axiom: "Happiness is certain if you keep at an equal distance from idleness and work. No one can really rest who has not first earned it by labor — they have nothing to rest from."

This saying came in a discussion regarding the daily tasks that face every homemaker at each day's beginning, and the contribution of some of those present urging the "rest requirement" each felt she was entitled to demand. No doubt the members went home with a new idea "buzzing under their bonnets" after the suggestions mentioned above. Anyhow there wasn't so much said about the weariness of labor for the remainder of the meeting.

At this season, when cut flowers from the house plants are used to a considerable extent for the dining-table centre, the difficulty of cleaning a slender vase is rather frequently encountered, and the suggestion, in reply to a roll-call on "household helps" at a W.I. gathering, may be found practical: "Carefully wash and wipe after each using, fastening a sponge to a small bit of reed, or a wooden knitting-needle, and pushing to every corner of the holder. Bits of clean cloth do as well as the sponge, if the latter is not handy. Save the reed, or needle, to have handy for each cleansing. By this method I keep my vase clean and shining."

"How to save laundry" is a topic always seasonable, one worker giving the idea of keeping on hand a supply of paper towels with which to wipe up at once anything spilled on table, or stove. Paper towels may be spread out when an orange is to be peeled, with much saving of the dress (this, of course, is making a big serviette of it, when in the bosom of your own family), and for an apple it is equally useful in this capacity, as the parings may be all gathered up and burned, and "Then how easy is't," as Lady Macbeth has said.

However, another member declared she kept a pile of newspapers always on hand in her kitchen, and used these in the same way as the paper towels had been suggested, with consequent saving of even the small expense involved in the other person's planning. "Any housewife will find following the plan of laying an old newspaper on the table under dishes, or while preparing vegetables, etc., will save the surface greatly, and also reduce the work of cleaning oilcloth, or scouring a white top, many times over."

Well, as one member remarked on the way home, "Whatever would we do without the Institute, where we gather so many helpful suggestions every month?" And doubtless hundreds of women will echo "What?"

CAVAN

Nina Moore Jamieson in her address to the W. I. Convention in November urged the reading of Canadian magazines and books in preference to the magazines of other countries.

Donald G. French tells us that Canadian literature is simply an off growth of English literature, owning the same literary traditions; employing the same language; and working to a great extent with the same vocabulary and the same phraseology.

Canadian literature has for Canadians certain values, certain messages which can be conveyed by no other literature. Despite any weaknesses which it may possess, in general, it is to be measured not by the quantity of its contribution to world literature, but by its significance to us as Canadians.

We have an existing body of Canadian writers who have endeavored and who are endeavoring to be the articulate voice of the nation. The work of these writers is distinctly Canadian in so far as it depicts Canadian scenes, tone, sentiment, local conditions, and local atmosphere, in so far as it portrays the life, the work, the feelings, the thoughts, the aspirations of the people of Canada. One of the biggest things that Canadian writers can do is to promote knowledge and understanding between the various racial elements that must contribute to the making of a unified and solidified Canadian nation.

The value of the work of the late Dr. William Henry Drummond is in his sympathetic presentation of all phases of the life of the French Canadian habitant. His many little studies of child life show the tender relation existing between parents and children in French Canadian homes. Incidents of the lives of the older folk are sketched with tenderness and reverence.

We have some three million French-speaking fellow Canadians, who have, possibly as much to contribute to the cultural and spiritual welfare of our country as we, the English-speaking population have. And since few of us know their language, and many of us come very little into contact with them, we must look to our writers to provide contacts through literature. There are several writers who have contributed to our knowledge of our French Canadian countrymen.

"Maria Chapdelaine," by Louis Hemon, presents a clear picture of the habitant of the hinterland of Quebec. "The Chopping Bee," "The Wayside Cross," and "The Beauport Road" are fictional but faithful protrayals of the people.

Institutes should spend time during the winter months in learning more of the literature of their own country.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

KNOX CHURCH S.S.

The members of Knox Church Sunday School held their annual entertainment and Christmas tree on Tuesday, Dec. 30. The members of the Primary Department held their entertainment from five to eight o'clock. A dainty supper was served and an enjoyable program put on by the pupils, when games were played and Santa Claus distributed gifts to the pupils, including candy and nuts. Miss Mabel Crocker was in charge assisted by the teachers of this department.

The Juniors, Intermediate, Tuxis and Trail Ranger groups provided the program for the evening, with Rev. Mr. MacDonald acting as chairman. He expressed his gratitude to the workers of the Sunday School and welcomed the parents and friends of the members.

The first part of the program was put on by the girls and boys of the junior department under the direction of Miss Annie Crocker, assisted by the teachers of the Department, and consisted of choruses, doll drills and motion songs.

The C.G.I.T. group and the Intermediate girls presented a very effective pageant entitled "The Angel's Message to the World." The background added greatly to the production, bringing out very vividly the message of the pageant. Verna Huffman read the story and the groups of travellers came in procession singing. "It came Upon a Midnight Clear". During the story reading, choruses were sweetly sung behind the scenes and included. "While Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night", "Holy Night", "Little Town of Bethlehem" and "Joy to the World."

A tableau by ten girls entitled, "It came upon a Midnight Clear" was very effective, while Mrs. Ken Baker sang the solo very sweetly. Miss Muriel Wilson proved herself to be an efficient accompanist for the pageant and tableau.

A camp fire and camping scene by the boys of the Tuxis Square and Trail Ranger Groups in charge of their leaders, John Donaldson and Larmer Brown, assisted by Don Charlton, formed the last part of the program.

The stage was well set with campfire and trees while groups of boys were singing and enjoying an evening in the open. The scene closed with all standing in a circle with arms raised and heads bowed while they repeated in unison an old Indian prayer.

During the evening, Alex Gillies, superintendent of the Sunday School was presented by Mr. Morrison, on behalf of the teachers and officers of the intermediate department, with a leather bound Bible. Mr Gillies, in a few words, spoke his appreciation and thanked the teachers and officers for their co-operation in the past year.

Gifts were distributed by Santa Claus and the entertainment closed with the singing of the Doxology.

HOPWOOD ELECTED FOR HIS 21ST YEAR

Director For Peterborough District of Commercial Travellers' Association.

At the annual meeting of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, this week W. J. Hopwood, Water street, was elected by acclamation, director for Peterborough District, this being his twenty-first consecutive year in that position.

The annual report while showing a considerable falling off in the membership owing to present trade conditions, shows, however, a very satisfactory financial position. After paying all expenses and mortuary benefit claims of $130,000 and an addition of $128 000 was made to the mortuary reserve fund bringing it over the $3 000,000 mark which is about $175 000 above the standard required by the insurance department.

The Association has about 200 members in Peterborough, many of these representing local firms and others living here on account of the central position in their territory.

Oshawa Defeats P.H.C. Intermediates by Odd Goal

Motorists Winners 4 to 3

Petes Lose Many Opportunities to Score By Inaccurate Shooting at Close Quarters.

LISTLESS FIRST FRAME.

Losers Play Far Superior Hockey in Last Minutes of Fray.

Shaking down into something like the form they can attain, the Peterborough Intermediate squad last night at the Brock street arena were just nosed out of a victory by the Oshawa red shirts. In a rather listless first period Oshawa went out and grabbed a 3 to 1 lead, but in the two final canters the Petes spurred into the fray and it was only with a large portion of luck that Oshawa edged out a 4 to 3 win.

It was the second time within the week that the teams had clashed and on the previous occasion at the Motor City arena the Petes were blanked 7 to 0. They renewed the struggle last night with their confidence rather shaken, which was evident in the first period. However, as the game progressed they pepped up and in the last thirty minutes were hitting along at a clip that earned them a big share of the play. They stormed the Oshawa nets again and again in their grim efforts to grab the equaliser, after they had twice drawn up to within one of Oshawa's score; but inaccurate shooting when at close quarters cheated them of their hard-earned openings.

STRONG DEFENSIVE.

Defensively the Petes showed the greatest improvement. George Lackey, husky veteran of countless ice conflicts, donned a jersey and teammed up with Ted Lebarr on defence. Lackey, while still displaying the need of more practice, proved a tower of strength. He and Lebarr teamed up nicely, giving more protection to Gillespie, and their rushing was always timely and useful. Lackey earned himself the Petes' third goal.

Out in front, "Sailor" Maudsley, "Gamey" Jarvis and "Red" Creighton were perhaps the pick of the Petes' forwards, although Hatton, Calladine and Utronki all proved effective. With more work the two front lines should develop into dangerous attacking forces. Their passing last night was often astray but they all worked hard in meeting the well-trained, seasoned Oshawa sextet. Gillespie, doing duty in the nets with bad wound in his forehead, gained in a recent practise, turned in a smart night's work in snaring the shots of the shifty "Doc" Rowden and company.

SCORES TWO GOALS.

Rowden had a tantalizing way of slipping down the right boards and levelling shots at the Petes' nets which proved far from entertaining to the Petes' guardian. He was responsible for two of the Oshawa goals, starting them off in the first period and nabbing their last counter. Along with him Hought, who paraded centre ice on the second line, and Elliott were outstanding for Oshawa. Burr also distinguished himself in the Oshawa nets in the manner in which he handled the many Peterborough shots. The team is composed of the best ice performers in the Motor City, since Oshawa withdrew from the Senior B series this season. Three of last year's seniors, Rowden, Gilphillan and Hought, were on the senior outfit last year.

The teams:

Oshawa—Goal, Burr; defence, Elliott and DeGray; centre, Conlan; wings, Rowden and McDcnald; alternates, Gilphillan, Gunn and Hought.

Peterborough—Goal, Gillespie; defence, Lackey and Lebarr; centre, Maudsley; wings, Hatton and Creighton; alternates, Utronki, Jarvis and Calladine.

Referee—Elwood Coombs, of Lindsay.

The Petes were not in their stride in the first period, and Oshawa outscored them 3 to 1. Maudsley opened the game with a shot at Burr and Creighton returned with a long heave. The Oshawa forwards, breaking three abreast, were dangerously, rushing the Petes' goal. Less than five minutes from the start, Rowden went along the right boards, faked a pass, and plugged the corner of the hemp for the first score.

Creighton and Hatton combined but Hatton's shot from close in missed the nets. Utronki was doing considerable gunning. On a solo effort down centre ice, Elliott crashed through and jumped a shot over Gillespie's stick for the second counter.

GETS FIRST PENALTY.

DeGray was benched for bumping Lackey, earning the first penalty of the game. While he was off the Petes forced the play. Success crowned their efforts when Jarvis, from the blue line, sunk the rubber into the corner of the nets.

Gunn and Creighton were benched for a little feud, Elliott sneaked a high shot past Gillespie from outside the defence to end the period.

There was more snap and ginger in the play of the second period, with the Petes concentrating a much stronger offensive. Creighton was in around the nets and he and Maudsley combined only to miss out on their shots. Conlan was benched for tripping Maudsley. While he was off, Maudsley sailed down centre to lift a high shot past Burr and to cut down the Oshawa lead to a single goal.

Thus encouraged the Petes geared their speed up higher and were forcing the play. Burr was called upon to make a sensational stop of one of Creighton's bounding shots. Jarvis went in on top of Burr, but failed to score. Referee Coombs began issuing penalties as play warmed up and the teams were often shorthanded. Hatton and Maudsley combined but Burr beat Maudsley's shot.

In the third period Oshawa was taking long shots at Gillespie while the Petes were endeavouring to work in close to Burr. On a dangerous rush Elliott went through but Gillespie cleared. DeGray and McDonald were benched almost together and with Oshawa under-manned the Petes were giving Burr a busy time.

The Petes missed many golden chances around the nets. Rowden checked a Peterborough attack near centre and wafted a shot at the nets, which clicked in off Gillespie's stick to again put Oshawa two up. Less than a minute later, Lackey worked around the defence and back-handed the rubber into the nets to drop the lead back to one.

For the remainder of the period the Petes threw everything into the offensive and they buzzed around the Oshawa nets. They failed to plug one in although they earned many chances.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac since my last 2 of the local hockey teams has been in action, the St. John's Jrs. trimming the team from Norwood-Havelock-Marmora-Hastings-Keene, 5 goals to 2, and the intermediates absorbing a 7 to 0 beating at the hands of the Oshawa team.

The game here, considering the ice conditions, wasn't a bad start for the hockey season for the players went into the argument with every ounce they had and both outfits kept a-plugging along until the timers called it a night. Although the lads from points east had more of last year's team left than the Saints, the latter win easier than they did any of the clashes last year, which oughta prove something or other, although right now I can't say what it is.

It looks like, Mac, this bunch from Oshawa was in the wrong pew in the intermediate serious. They started out this season as a senior bunch and with the material they got should be forced to stay put where they started. With a Senior B serious for just such teams the O.H.A. aint got no excuse for letting a hand-picked bunch like these birds drop back in the lower class, where teams trying to build up fairly strong outfits haven't got an earthly against a team of senior strength. Down to Oshawa Mon. the Petes tried manfully but they lacked Oshawa's class and condition as well and according to all accounts was lucky they didn't get themselves a worst-trimming. The teams meet again tonight (Friday) and mebbe the homesters will do better in their own ice box.

In the big show, Mac, the Maple Leaves, with all their casulties back, has had a good week, gathering in four most useful points at the expense of the Black Hawks and the Amerks, neither of which is exactly soft picking. Our Mister Bailey, after a long run of scoring points, was stopped Thurs. nite, but Newsy will get going again and crowd the leaders.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

POSSIBILITY OF LEADERSHIP TIE IN CANUCK LOOP

Leaf-Canadian Game at Toronto One of Features in Tonight's N.H.L. Bill.

HABITANTS-MAROONS IN TIE.

Boston Bruins Invade Montreal For Second Encounter With Red Shirts.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3 (C.P.) — Two games in the Canadian section stand out as features of the five game week-end schedule in the National Hockey League. These matches involve the three teams engaged in a nip-and-tuck struggle for the leadership, and a strong possibility exists of a three-cornered tie developing for the top rung.

At Toronto, the Maple Leafs and Canadiens meet for the second time this season. Popular all over the circuit Montreal's whirling Dervishes will be greeted by a capacity crowd at Arena Gardens, and if the teams play up to expectations, Toronto fans should witness a thrilling hockey duel.

In their previous clash, Canadiens nosed out the Leafs by a 2 to 1 score at the Forum after more than holding their own against the Red Devils for two periods.

Howie Morenz, spectacular playing centre ice star of the Habitants, beat the Leafs when he scored late in the final period and Lorne Chabot, Toronto's steady playing netminder, will have to be at his best to hold the group's leading marksman scoreless.

Canadiens-Maroons Tied

Canadiens are at present tied with their intra-city rivals, the Maroons, for the leadership of the group, with 21 points. The Leafs are right behind with 19 points and victory for the Torontonians plus defeat for the Maroons will leave the three clubs tied, three points in the van of the New York Americans, who are idle until Sunday.

Boston Bruins, leaders of the United States division, invade the Forum for their second encounter of the season with Maroons. Having won their last five games and having already beaten the Montrealers at Boston the Bruins are likely to give Dunc Munro's Three Musketeers and their assistants a busy evening.

The Bruins hold a four-point lead over their nearest rivals in the American group and do not have to worry much about a loss. The Maroons, however, need victory to keep pace with their fellow townsmen. They have only been defeated twice in their last 10 starts and should be in condition to give the Bostonians a stout argument with plenty of ruggedness thrown in.

After suffering nine straight losses Ottawa Senators should re-enter the winning column when they clash with the Philadelphia Quakers in the Pennsylvanian city. The Ottawans, despite their lengthy list of reverses have been playing good hockey but simply couldn't shake the jinx. Tonight it should be different for the occupants of last place in the American group have won only one game in 18 starts, although they tied once with the Senators.

Two Games Sunday Night

Two all-American encounters mark Sunday night's program. The Quakers try the iron-man stunt when they travel to New York for a game with the Americans after meeting Ottawa Saturday.

The last time the teams met the Quakers forced the game into overtime before the Amerks squeezed through to victory. The latter need a win to remain in the race for third place. Toronto Leafs are one point ahead of them and should the Smythemen lose to Canadiens, the "A's" can regain third place by downing the Quakers.

Detroit and Chicago play their "rubber" game in the Windy City. The squads have met twice before with honors even, the Blackhawks winning in Chicago and the Falcons taking the points in the game at Detroit. The latter are in fourth place in the American group, three points behind New York Rangers, who are idle, while the Chicagoans have a two point advantage over the Rangers for second place, so the result of the game will have no immediate effect on the standing of the teams.

Hockey Club Dance Is Successful Event

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The New Year's Eve dance staged on Wednesday by the Campbellford Hockey Club proved a happy and successful event.

A very large crowd was present, many coming from distant points, to enjoy a gay novelty dance to the strains of Mose Yokum's Orchestra of Peterborough.

COSTS OF TILE

rod for a drain two feet deep, an increase of over 260 per cent. In land free from stones the cost per rod of machine digging did not vary materially with the depths down to four feet, but where boulders were prevalent the cost of digging was more than directly proportional to the depth.

Backfilling with a road grader was found to be the most economical of the methods tried, costing not more than 6 cents per rod, as compared with 25 cents per rod for filling by hand. On wet clay land, where the grader could not be used, ploughing in the excavated soil with a walking plough proved satisfactory. The use of a slush scraper for backfilling was not more economical than hand filling.

C. G. E. and Lakefield in 1-1 Tie Battle

BOTH TEAMS MAINTAIN FAST CLIP THROUGHOUT EIGHTY MINUTES OF LEAGUE OPENER

Aggregations Show Results of Careful Training in Pre-season.

GOOD COMBINATION.

Lakefield Draws First Score in Opening Frame, C.G.E. Equalizing in Third.

Eighty minutes of dazzling hockey was presented to a crowded rink of enthusiastic fans last night in Lakefield when the C.G.E. Tool Room battled to a 1-1 tie with the husky Intermediates from the Northern Village in the opening game of the East Peterborough Hockey League.

The league was officially opened with an inaugural ceremony in which Nelson McFadden, league secretary, faced off a metal puck between C. S. Tanner, Reeve of Lakefield, and N. W. Kyle, manager of the Bank of Commerce.

Both teams showed the results of careful coaching and training, and started the battle at a fast clip, which was maintained throughout. It was very apparent after a few minutes of playing that both aggregations were very evenly matched, and as a result the playing was close and the checking rather heavy, while an uneven sheet of ice failed to improve the brand of puck carrying.

The Tool Room looked flashy in the opening stanza when they trotted out a neat brand of snappy combinationtion work which carried them close to the Lakefield citadel, but there most of the attacks faded before the air-tight work of Junkins, the opposing goalie, and the sterling defence presented by John Sabatino and Woods. Nevertheless, the accurate gunning of the local forwards, H. Epps and Meagher, made the Lakefield net guardian save sensationally.

Lakefield drew first blood after eleven minutes of torrid hockey when Wingett took the puck at centre, split the Tool Room defence, and beat "Red" Hollingsworth with a sizzling ankle high shot from close in, and for the remainder of the period the locals battled desperately to even the count, but found the opposing defence impregnable.

In the second frame the two teams struggled on even terms, the clever teamwork of the Tool Makers being offset by an effective display of backchecking by Lou Sabatino, Stabler, and Curly Northey. Red Hollingsworth, goalminder for the Electrics, had plenty of work in this period, but rose to the occasion in splendid form to equal the clever performance of Junkins in the Lakefield net.

Grant Palmer and Mickey Williams on the Tool Room forward line combined in this period to harass Junkins, but their efforts were mostly wasted due to erratic shooting, while the gunning of the Lakefield forwards was a feature of their playing. "Stuffy" Mahood from this city appeared on the line-up for the Cement Village, and treated the fans to some nifty stick handling.

The third period found the Tool Makers striving to their utmost to equalise, but the effective blocking of Louis Sabatino and Woods kept most of the play in the Tool Room territory, and it looked as though the Northern team were anout to take a 1-0 decision when Harold Epps sunk the tying goal from a face-off in front of the Lakefield net. Howe and Swanger teamed up well on the defence for the C.G.E., and although they used their weight to advantage they found the opposing forwards rather elusive. The going was very rough in the final stages of the battle, and in the overtime period, due in a measure to the uneven ice surface which caused the puck to roll. Fred Meagher missed a real chance to tally just before the final gong when he failed to take Hayden's pass at the goal mouth.

The rink was gaily decorated with bunting and flags, and a band in attendance entertained the crowd with snappy music between periods.

The teams:

Lakefield — Goal, K. Junkins; defence, Woods and John Sabatino; centre, Lou Sabatino; wings, Blewett and Stabler; subs., White Mahood, Northey, Wingett, and Hamlin.

C.G.E. Tool Room — Goal, H. Hollingsworth; defence, Swanger and Howe; centre, Harold Epps; wings, Mickey Williams and Hayden; subs., Ray Epps, Meagher, Magie, and Palmer.

Referee—O. Kennealy.

Summary.

First period—
Lakefield, Wingett, 12.00.
Second period—
No score.
Third period—
Tool Room, H. Epps, 17.00.
Penalties — Meagher, Howe, Blewett 3, Magie.

NATIONALS IN TIE FOR TOP POSITION

Galt and Stratford Winners in Last Night's Ontario League Games.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3 (C.P.) — Galt Terriers and Stratford Nationals jumped into a tie for the leadership of the newly organized Ontario Hockey League last night by defeating Oshawa Patricias and Kitchener, respectively, in the two-game schedule.

The Nationals, boasting one of the strongest line-ups in the league, trounced Kitchener by the decisive score of 8 to 1, while the Terriers downed the Pats by 3 to 1.

A brace of goals in the opening session followed by three more in the middle frame blasted Kitchener's hopes of beating their Stratford rivals. The Nationals added another early in the final session before the Dutchmen entered the scoring summary. Nationals then repped in two more to show their opponents how it was done.

Witnessing their first professional league game, Oshawa fans expressed appreciation of moneyied hockey even though the home club was defeated and dropped to the bottom of the league.

The Terriers notched three quick tallies in the opening 20 minutes to clinch the contest before the Pats replied with their lone counter.

No scoring occurred in the last two chapters, which were marked by fast, clever playing.

The Niagara Falls-Guelph match was postponed.

BRILLIAN GOAL-TENDING IS FEATURE OF MADOC 3-1 WIN

"FIGHT" MARS EVEN PLAY.

MADOC, Jan. 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—In the opening hockey match of the season here, between Madoc and Tweed, the home team fought their way to a 3—1 victory before a large crowd of enthusiastic spectators. The game was featured by brilliant play, particularly by the two goal tenders, but was marred towards the close by an altercation which arose between Barkey, the victors' right wing on the defence line, and M. Geraldi, the visitors' left defence.

It is stated that the trouble arose when Barkey tripped Geraldi. A heated argument followed in which two of Geraldi's brothers who were in the subs' box, participated. The offending players were ordered off the ice by Referee "Bill" Green of Belleville just prior to the end of the game. They were not penalised.

At the end of the first period, Madoc held the lead with two counters to nil. The scores were registered by McGuire and Leroux, while with a penalty also for McGuire.

The second period drew to a close without any further counters to the credit of either team, but two penalties for Tweed, which were made by Campbell and Cripps.

Leroux guided the puck into the net for Madoc early in the third period, while to Cripe went the credit for Tweed's one and only tally.

The ice was in splendid condition. Line-ups:—

By RALPH H. REVILLE

(Special to the Examiner—Copyright, 1930))

To golfers throughout Canada, will come with genuine regret the tidings that Lord and Lady Willingdon are so soon to leave this country, although congratulations will be general that His Excellency goes to even a wider and more important post in the interest of King and Empire. The Vice-Royship of India especially at this critical time is the outstanding postion in the gift of His Majesty calling as it does for great ability, tact and diplomacy by few of the great pro-consuls of the last few decades.

The Governor Generals of Canada ever since the days of Lord Lorne have always been warm supporters of golf and have done much for the Royal and Ancient game in this country. Lord Lorne was a very keen golfer and fifty years ago played over the courses in Montreal and Quebec, then the only ones in the Dominion, or for that matter in America. Earl Grey during his occupancy of the Governor Generalship presented to the Royal Canadian Golf Association a beautiful cup which is played for every year for the Amateur Championship of Canada. Then the Duchess of Connaught gave to the Canadian Ladies Golf Union, the handsome trophy symbolic of the Ladies Championship of Canada. Both the Duke of Connaught and the Duchess were enthusiastic golfers. The Duke of Devonshire presented to the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association the magnificent gold cup which is played for annually by the Senior golfers of the United States and Canada. Then Lord Willingdon, three years ago by presenting the cup for competition amongst Provincial teams revived the Inter-Provincial matches in Canada, which have done so much to bring together the leading Amateur golfers of the Dominion.

Lady Willingdon for some years has been the Hon. Patroness of the Canadian Women's Senior Golf Association and Lord Willingdon of the Canadian Men's Seniors' Golf Association and only last month he graciously consented to accept the Hon. Presidency of the Royal Canadian Association. So it will be seen that their Excellencies have been staunch supporters of golf during their all too brief residence in this country. Both Lord and Lady Willingdon are very good golfers indeed and have never missed an opportunity of indulging in their favorite game. They have played over the leading courses of Canada from coast to coast. His Excellency has twice competed in the Canadian Seniors' Tournament. Two years ago at Lambton played with Mr. C. A. Bogert, then the President of the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association, he won the foursome competitions at Lambton and last year at Ottawa again paired with Mr. Bogert he tied with Colonel J. R. Moody, Hamilton, and Mr. T. Rennie of Toronto for the cups in the same competition. This year unfortunately owing to pressing affairs of state he was reluctantly unable to participate in the Tournament at the Toronto Golf Club and be once more guest of honor at the annual dinner where his scintillating speeches were always quite the feature of the function.

The best wishes of thousands of Canadian golfers will follow Their Excellencies to their new home in the Indian Empire where they are both so qualified to adorn the high Vice-Regal offices they are called upon to fill.

Depart for Japan

Bobby Cruickshank and wild "Bill" Mehlhorn who has competed several times in the Canadian Open Championship left last month from San Francisco to play a number of exhibition games in Japan on the invitation of the Japan Golf Association. During their visit the professionals plan to establish a "caddy foundation" in Japan for the training of caddies along Occidental lines. There are many good golf courses in Japan, but tourist players have occasionally had difficulty getting accustomed to Japanese caddies, and the Japan Association believes a little professional training would help the club carriers of the island empire.

OLYMPICS HAVE TWO FIXTURES OVER WEEK-END

Meet Yellow Jackets in Pittsburgh To-night, Bisons at Home Sunday.

IN KING LEAGUE.

Two Canadian Teams, London and Windsor, Are Away From Home.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3. (CP)—Four games are scheduled in the International hockey league over the week-end. The fourth place Detroit Olympics are called upon to do the iron man stunt this week as they travel to Pittsburgh for an encounter with the Yellow Jackets to-night and return home to entertain the league leaders, Buffalo Bisons on Sunday.

The two Canadian teams, London and Windsor, are away from home. The Tecumsehs meet the third place Cleveland Indians in the Ohio city to-night while the Bulldogs encounter the last place Stars at Syracuse to-morrow.

While the Londoners have not fared so well during the last six weeks they appear to be a match for last season's titleholders. Defeating the Indians in their own arena, however, is a dificult proposition for any team in the league, but should Roy Brothers' team accomplish this task they will draw up in the standing to a tie with their opponents.

It will be a big surprise if the Bulldogs failed to strengthen their second place position at the expense of the Stars, who have won only five games in 20 starts, and have failed in every clash against the Border City team.

The Olympics may displace the Indians from third place in the standing if they are successful in their two-game program. The Yellow Jackets have proved well nigh invincible at home and need a win badly to keep in the running. They are three points behind the fifth place Tecumsehs and can be counted upon to make the Detroiters battle every inch of the way.

Mickey Roach's league leaders can afford to take matters easy for a game or so now they have secured a six point lead over Windsor, but it is not likely they will rest on their oars yet and Detroit's hopes of toppling the smooth playing Bisons will have to be supported by exceptionally clever playing if the deed is to be accomplished.

HISTORY OF AVIATION IS ONE OF RECORD BREAKING IN SPEED, ALTITUDE AND LONG DISTANCES

First Successful Flight Made 27 Years Ago by Two Wright Brothers.

BLERIOT AND CURTISS

Alcock and Brown Make First Real Trans-Atlantic Flight in 1919.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3 (By Jack Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer)—"Records are made to be broken." That is the motto ever before manufacturers of the infant industry of aviation, an infant which in 27 years has grown beyond even the most optimistic expectations. In that time records for speed, altitude, refuelling, long distance, solo and dual flying, have fallen right and left. On December 77, 1903, Orville Wright first lifted his home-made plane from the sands of Kittyhawk, N.C., for the world's first aeroplane flight, and in the short span of 30 years, the flight record of 12 seconds has been broken times beyond recall, so much so that in 1930 a trans-Atlantic flight, while recognized as remarkable, was still somewhat commonplace.

Every country in the world has had a share in the growth of the aviation infant. Great Britain, Canada, the United States, Germany, France, Italy, Spain, have all taken their part in producing the ships of the air. Even now, a giant plane capable of lifting 169 persons from the water is being groomed for a trans-Atlantic flight attempt.

In Canada's north, aeroplanes, are carrying prospectors to and from their claims, making in an hour or so journeys which formerly took a month or longer. Landing fields are being constructed, lighted and marked in nearly every Canadian city. A chain of them will soon bridge the country. Air mail is being delivered from Pelee Island to Aklavik—from the most southern point in Canada to far beyond the Arctic circle. Daily air mail delivery is looked upon as quite ordinary in the larger cities of the country to-day.

Behind it all is the work of the pioneers. Hundreds of men have died that we might receive our mail, our express, our quick transportation. Hundreds more of them have successfully completed epochal flights, and are now "grounded," carrying on the organization work which makes aviation's present development a permanent one.

Just 27 years ago, on December 17, 1903, an infant industry was born. The father of the infant was Orville Wright, who with his brother, Wilbur, constructed and flew the first aeroplane which had ever carried a human. However, even before that flight there had been many attempts to fly, on both sides of the ocean.

Their plane, entirely home-made, had been manufactured from white cotton cloth and some second-growth ash. It was powered with a 16 horsepower gasoline engine, made by the Wrights. Their first flight lasted only 12 seconds, but in 1904, Orville made the first successful bank and complete turn with an aeroplane. The following year 50 flights were made by the Wright brothers. They had tuned their engine up, until an average speed of 38 miles an hour was attained. In one flight, the field at Dayton, O., home town of the flying brothers, was circled 30 times. The two were the only men in the world who had flown in an aeroplane up to that time.

Early European Feats

In 1906, Santos-Dumont, Brazilian aeronaut, became famous. He constructed a plane which was capable of making only straight-line flights, but it became a world-wide sensation. France began to pay attention to the science of flying in this year, and out of the groups formed there came the work of Bleriot, the Voisin Brothers, and Farman. Delagrange established the first real endurance record by staying aloft near half an hour. In 1907, Delagrange flew 656 feet, while later Bleriot made his first turn while in flight. This accomplishment was made in a Voisin plane, but a few weeks later, flying his own machine, Bleriot made many flights, ranging from 100 feet in length to 1,978 feet.

Aviation really began its stride in 1908. The United States Army, which had been paying considerable attention to the experiments of the Wrights, signed a contract with the brothers for the first army plane. The same year, too, Wilbur Wright went to Europe, and for the first time a passenger was carried in a plane. Too, he established a world's endurance record, this time of one hour, 31 minutes, 21 seconds. For this marvelous feat of early-day flying, he received the Aero Club of France prize of 5,000 francs. Wright's army plane was demonstrated to many notables in September of this year, and eight days after the demonstration, the first fatal aeroplane accident occurred. With Lieut. Thomas Selfridge, of the U.S. Signal Corps, Orville was flying at Fort Myer, Va. The plane crashed, and Selfridge died. Wright was severely injured.

Endurance records became increasingly popular, and the world gasped in 1909 when Bleriot hoisted his rickety aeroplane at Calais and grounded at Dover. He had crossed the English Channel for the first time by air, and his feat in those days was considered as remarkable as a trans-Atlantic flight would to-day. An international air meet was held at Rheims, France, and Glenn Curtiss won the Grand Prix with his famous bamboo aeroplane. A record flight of 84 miles was established by year, Wilbur Wright brought America to his feet when he circled Grant's Tomb and flew across Manhattan. Delagrange, at Doncaster, set a new speed mark of 50 miles an hour, and Farman, in France, flew 17 miles without stopping.

In 1910, the infant industry was making lusty strides. Paulhan established an altitude record of 4,165 feet, and topped this feat by flying in a driving snowstorm at Denver. Glenn Curtiss flew from Albany to Inwood, N.Y., the first inter-city flight on record. This was topped by the feat of Clifford H. Harmon, who flew a Farman plane from Mineola to Greenwich, across Long Island sound in 30 minutes. The distance was 28 miles, and this proved to be an over-water record. George Chavez, of Peru, flew across the Alps in this year, but died from injuries received in landing his plane. Then came the first commercial air transport flight. Parmelee flew from Dayton to Columbus, 65 miles, carrying five bolts of silk. The accident total increased this year, unfortunately, and 32 men died.

However, 1911 saw still increased activity in flying. Prizes were offered freely in many parts of the world, and in all more than $1,000,000 was offered and won. McCurdy attempted to fly from Key West, Havana, and fell into the ocean. The hydro-plane was introduced into the United States. Lincoln Beachey flew over Niagara Falls and down the river, and Atwood flew from Boston to Washington. Two army aviators, Lieutenants Ellyson and Towers, flew 140 miles, from Annapolis to Fort Monroe, in two hours, 27 minutes, and the first trans-continental flight took place.

Records Set in 1912.

Thousands of flights were made in 1912. A new duration record of six hours, 35 minutes, 10 seconds, was established by Lieutenant Towers, of the United States Navy, and Lincoln Beachey set a new world's altitude record of 11,642 feet at Chicago. Airship passenger services for short distances were successfully operated at Berlin.

Navy pilots flew at night in the following year; Bielovucci flew 50 miles over the Alps; Mutusis flew across the Dardanelles, 112 miles; Moulinais flew from Paris to London 287 miles, In this year, too, the first aeroplane was used in warfare. The Turks obtained a German aeroplane, and this ship was used in an engagement against the Bulgarians. Harry Hawker, already well on his way to fame, flew around the British Isles in two and a half days. The distance was 1,043 miles.

The first year of the Great War saw the invention of the automatic detachable parachute. Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, who later died in an attempted trans-Atlantic flight, flew from Hendon to Calais. Langley's original old crate, made another appearance, this time as a seaplane, and was flown at Hammondsport, N.Y. A new endurance record of 18 hours was established by Basser, in Germany.

The war interrupted the progress of civil aviation considerably in 1915, but for grimmer purposes aviation prospered. Automobile plants in all parts of the world were unable to keep up with the demand for aeroplane motors. A new world's altitude record for seaplanes was established by Lieut. P. N. Ballinger, of the United States Navy, who flew to 10,000 feet. Victor Carlstrom, attempting a non-stop flight from Toronto, Ont., to New York, met with ill luck and was forced to descend through dizziness.

Aeroplanes were being fast developed through urgent need over war-torn France and Belgium, and many heroic feats were being performed in 1916. In civil aviation outstanding was Ruth Law's achievement in flying a biplane from Chicago to New York in 8 hours, 55 minutes, 35 seconds.

In 1917, Katharine Stinson recorded a new cross-country duration record when she flew from San Diego to San Francisco in nine hours, 10 minutes. Caleb Bragg climbed 20,250 feet, but this record was unofficial, since no consideration for world records were accepted from the opening of the world war. Lieut. Attillio Baldioli, of Italy, flew from Langley Field to Mineola, N. Y., carrying two passengers, and set a new speed mark.

The first regular air mail service was established between New York and Washington in 1915, and the service was later extended from New York to Boston. On Sept. 18, Capt. R. W. Schroeder climbed 28,000 feet, a new altitude record.

First Ocean Attempts.

The first attempt to cross the Atlantic was made in 1919, when Henry Hawker and McKenzie Grieve were forced down in the Atlantic. They were picked up by a steamer. Their ship had flown 14½ hours when misfortune overtook it. This was trans-Atlantic year, for later, the United States Navy's NC-4, carrying Lieut. Commander C. A. Reed and five others landed at Lisbon. They had flown via Trepassy Bay, the Azores, to Lisbon. The distance was 4,791 miles. But the greatest feat in aviation—and it is still considered as such, in view of the comparatively primitive equipment used, was that of Alcock and Brown in the same year. They accomplished the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic, from St. John's, Nfld., to Clifton, Ireland, landing safely in a bog, to be acclaimed by the entire world. Many trans-Atlantic flights have been made since that time, but aviation authorities consider the Alcock-Brown hop the greatest in history.

In 1920, Major Schroeder broke his own altitude record, this time reaching 36,020 feet. Lieutenants Bossoutrol and Bernard, at Etampes, France, set a new endurance record of 24 hours, 19 minutes, seven seconds, and Capt. C. C. Mosely won the Pulitzer trophy at Mitchel Field with an average speed of 178 miles an hour.

Mme. Adrienne Bolland, of France, was the first woman to fly across the Andes. This feat was accomplished in 1921, from Argentine to Chile, and it took her four hours, two minutes. Lieut. John A. McCready broke Major Schroeder's altitude record by hoisting his ship to 40,800 feet. Lieut. George Kirsch, of France, won the Deutsche de la Muerthe aeroplane race at Etampes, covering a 300 kilometer course in one hour, four minutes and 39 seconds, a new world's record. Eddie Stinson and Lloyd Bertaud established a new endurance record of 26 hours, 12 minutes, 35 seconds in an all-metal plane to top off 1921's list.

The South Atlantic was crossed for the first time in 1922. Captain S. Cabral and Admiral Gage Couthine flew from Lisbon to Rio de Janeiro, with intermediate stops. The distance was 3,600 miles. Lieutenants Kelly and McCready set a new world's duration record of 35 hours, 18 minutes, 35 seconds, flying over Rockwell Field, in an army plane.

Records fell right and left a year later. McCready and Kelly stayed aloft for 36 hours, five minutes; and followed it up less than a month later by flying from New York to San Diego in 26 hours, 50 minutes, non-stop. Lieut. A. J. Williams, of the U. S. Navy, flew himself 266 miles an hour to take the speed honors.

Between May and August of 1924, the U. S. Army staged a round-the-world flight. This hop included the first westbound crossing of the Pacific, and the first westbound crossing of the Atlantic. A "dawn to dusk" flight from New York

POULTRY SCARCE ON LOCAL MARKET

Geese and Ducks Almost Entirely Absent, Rabbits Make Appearance.

Following the Christmas and New Year's rush on the local produce market, conditions had returned somewhat to normal this morning, and there was very little poultry in the line of turkeys, while geese and ducks were almost entirely absent from the heavily laden stands. What turkeys there were, sold at 30 cents a pound, while there was a good offering of choice chickens at 25 to 30 cents.

Rabbits made their first appearance on the market this season, and were being offered at 35 cents each.

Dairy butter was in demand at 32 to 35 cents per pound, while eggs took a slight drop to 35 cents, although 40 and 45 cents was also being asked.

Beef was in large supply at 10 to 12 cents a pound, lamb 12 and 15 cents, while there was also an abundance of vegetables.

Renault Defeated In Sluggish Battle

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. — (By the Canadian Press.)—Jack Renault, veteran heavyweight from Montreal, today looked back at his last night's efforts to stage a come-back and found occasion to shake his head sadly.

In a bout attended by a record-breaking small crowd, Renault and his Belgian opponent, Pierre Charles, waded through ten slow rounds. And when it was all over Charles had the decision. Renault seemed much too fat and his opponent, ambling around him in an elephantine manner, landed an occasional b-ly punch and one or two amateurish swings to the head. That's how he won the decision.

Renault weighed 213½ and Charles 213.

TWO HOCKEY GAMES FOR MONDAY NIGHT

Teams in East Peterborough Hockey League to Meet For First Time in City.

The East Peterborough Hockey League will make its bow to hockey fans at Brock Street rink on Monday night with a double bill that will be well worth a trip to the ice plant. Both games last night were hard fought battles with all four teams showing a lively brand of hockey.

Cogs meet Lakefield at 7:30 o'clock and C. G. E. play Norwood at nine o'clock. Both games will be of three periods with no time taken out. Mr. E. A. Peck who has donated the championship trophy will face the puck.

Poor Showing Made By West Indies Team

AUSTRALIA Jan. 3.— (Associated Press Cable.)—At the mercy of Australia's crack bowlers, the West Indies made a weak showing in the cricket test match to-day. Australia completed their first innings for 369 and then West Indies were dismissed first for 107 and, following in their second innings had lost five wickets for 67 before play closed for the day. Clarence Grimmett, Australia's noted International, captured five wickets for 54 and Archie Jackson three for 19 runs in the West Indies' first innings. In their second Hurwood had an average of four wickets for 22 runs. W. H. Ponsford contributed a perfectly played 183 to the Australian score.

Welcomes Unfortunate Flyers

Of course!

WHEN you want to get down-town in a hurry, you don't sprint ten or twenty blocks in order to be there on time. You take an automobile or a street car, of course.

When you want to ask a question of a friend who lives a mile or so away, you don't walk to his house to find out what you want to know. You call him on the telephone, of course.

And so it goes—in all the affairs of your daily life. You take the easy, intelligent means of accomplishment every time.

When you want to buy a refrigerator or a car or a piano, you don't need to look all over town to discover the kind you want. You read the advertisements in your newspaper. They bring you all the facts necessary to decide just which refrigerator or car or piano will give you the most satisfaction, how much to pay, where to buy it.

You buy through the advertisements because they save you time and effort. Because they enable you to command certain values. Because they assure you of getting reliable and economical products every time.

It pays to read the advertisements

TIMOTHY

To the average resident Timothy was only the "laziest man in X——", but to we children he was everything that was wonderful. It was a never failing joy to run across the fields to Timothy's on a wet afternoon, to find him in the old homemade rocker by the vine wreathed window, meditatively smoking his short stemmed clay pipe.

Timothy had heard many a tale, and had read widely, during his youth in Ireland, and, possessing a most retentive memory, never seemed to forget anything he had ever seen or heard or read. He told us stories about the gods and heroes of ancient Greece; he enchanted us with his tales of King Arthur and his knights, of the pixies and the brownies of England, and of the fairies of Ireland, in the existence of which he had explicit faith, and we sometimes wondered if he might not look a little like a leprechaun himself!

Words fail to describe the beguiling sweetness of Timothy's Irish brogue as he drifted from one story to another, many of which we had heard a dozen times before. The smoke from Timothy's pipe curling in rings around us, the rain falling softly and dripping from the vine leaves outside the window, Timothy's wife and daughter slipping noiselessly about their work in the little house, in which there was always such a pleasant smell of baking. Later on we would have some of Mrs. Timothy's ginger cookies, and they were quite as great a treat in their way as Timothy's stories.

When I visited X—— last summer I was glad to find the old log house, with its wide plank flooring and many paned windows, still occupied, in this age of progress when so many of the old houses had been replaced with garish yellow painted fram structures.

Timothy with his wife and daughter have been dead for a many year, and the property has passed to strangers. It was with a feeling of great sadness that I entered, but I found very little indeed to remind me of the happy hours we had spent there. The pine floor was covered with a bright red carpet, the whitewashed walls had been papered to match, the cheap "golden oak" furniture glittered with varnish, and the worst grmaophone in the world blared raucously "You've got to see Mammy Every Night." Could this be really the room where once upon a time we had listened breathlessly to Timothy's fairy stories or Jimmie's fairy music!

The present occupants told me that they had been intending for some years to build a new house, but crops had been poor, and during the preceding year they had lost a great many stock. But they were certainly building next year. And I found myself hoping that nothing might intervene to prevent them. They were so utterly alien to Timothy's little house.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY SLED.

Once upon a time, when there was much snow in Woodland, near the Orange Ice Mountains, where Uncle Wiggily lived in his hollow stump bungalow, there sounded a knock on his door.

"Goodness! I hope that isn't any of the Bad Chaps!" squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was getting ready to hang up the clothes, for this was Monday morning.

"Oh," said Uncle Wiggily, who was reading the paper, "I hardly think any of the Bad Chaps would be out so early."

"And they would be very bold if they dared to come right up to the bungalow to get Mr. Longears," spoke his wife. "I'll see who it is," she went on, taking up the potato masher, "and if it's a Bad Chap, well, I'll fix him!"

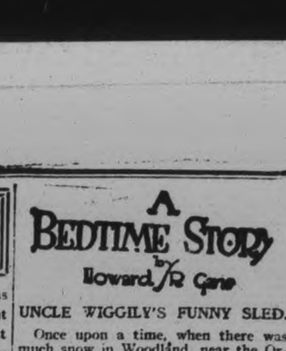
Mrs. Longears did not say what she would do, but Uncle Wiggily could tell, just by looking at his brave little wife, that it would not be well for a Bad Chap to come in while she held that potato masher.

"Why it's only Mr. Twistytail, the pig gentleman!" said Mrs. Longears as she opened the door. "Come in, Mr. Twistytail."

"No! No! Can't come in—too busy—have to go to the store and get my wife some sour milk, so she can make a pie," grunted Mr. Twistytail. "I just stopped to see if Wiggy didn't want to hop along."

"Why, yes, of course!" cried Uncle Wiggily, jumping out of his chair and tossing aside the paper. "Yes!"

"No!" said Mrs. Longears, suddenly. "Why—er—why not, my dear?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "If it's because of the Bad Chaps—"



"No, it isn't on that account," said the rabbit lady smiling. "It's on account of the snow. You must shovel paths so Nurse Jane can hang up the clothes."

"Oh, of course! I forgot about that!" Uncle Wiggily said. "All right, Twisty, you waddle along and get the sour milk. I'll go out in the back yard and shovel paths through the snow so Nurse Jane won't get her paws wet. And, when I finish, I'll hop along after you. It won't take me long to shovel those paths."

"Mind you don't make little, skimpy paths!" called Mrs. Longears after her husband, as he took the snow shovel and went outside. "Dig good, wide paths for Nurse Jane."

"I will!" promised Mr. Longears. "And I'll soon come hopping after you, Twisty," he called to his fat, pig friend who went waddling down the street to get the sour milk.

Uncle Wiggily waded through the snow of his back yard where the clothes posts were planted. He began making a path from one pole to the other so the muskrat lady housekeeper could string the line and, later, hang up the clothes.

Now the back of Uncle Wiggily's yard was on top of a hill, not far from the woods and, having finished all but one path, the rabbit gentleman, reaching the top of the hill, rested on his big, flat wooden shovel and looked toward the woods. As he did so a voice growled:

"What are you looking at?"

Twisting around, Uncle Wiggily saw the Bob Cat standing near him.

"Why—er—why," stammered Mr. Longears. "I was just looking to see if Mr. Twistytail was too far off for me to catch up to him."

"Well, you needn't look any longer," growled the Bob Cat. "You'll never catch that pig!"

"Why not?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Because I'm going to catch you!" growled the Bad Chap.

"Oh, please don't catch me now!" begged Uncle Wiggily. "Please don't!"

"Why not?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Because," answered the rabbit, "I must finish shoveling these snow paths for Nurse Jane. Don't catch me until I shovel this last path."

Uncle Wiggily lifted the shovel but, instead of digging in the snow to make a path, the rabbit gentleman suddenly sat down on the broad piece of wood. It was at the top of the hill and, sitting on his funny sled, which was a snow shovel, Uncle Wiggily gave himself a push and down the hill he went, coasting as fast as anything.

"Hi there! Come back! Where are you going?" howled the Bob Cat.

"I'm going to get the Police Dog to arrest you! Now let's see you catch me!" called back the rabbit. But as he was sliding very fast on his funny coaster, the Bob Cat couldn't catch him. And then the Bad Chap ran away, afraid of the Police Dog.

DENTAL SERVICE GRANT IS URGED

Special Committee Investigating Approves Sums For School Boards.

WOULD PROVIDE NURSE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 3.—Recommendation that Government grants be given to municipalities and school boards for the establishment of free dental service to children of school age and pre-school age, has been made by a special committee appointed by the Ontario government to inquire and report on the matter.

The committee enumerates a number of conditions to be met by the municipalities and school boards before they become eligible for the grants. Chief of these conditions are the provision of dental equipment and a properly qualified dental nurse by applicants for the grant.

The amount of the grant recommended by the committee is based on population. Municipalities with a population over 20,000 to receive an annual grant of seven and a half per cent of the cost of service; from 5,000 to 20,000, 20 per cent.; and from 1,000 to 5,000 25 per cent. of the cost of service.

Townships and municipalities may unite for the purpose of establishing dental service and in such cases, irrespective of population, the total grant for the combined service will be 25 per cent. of the cost of service.

Fierce and terrible was the battle that followed. Terrified at sight of a black man and a white man fighting in company with a panther and huge, fierce apes, the savages at last were slain or put to flight. All but one fellow, who fell a prisoner into the hands of Tarzan. To him the ape-man promised liberty in return for information about Rokoff and his party.

The cowardly Rokoff's men appeared to have more fear of the giant white man and his strange companions than even the blacks themselves. The last that had been seen of them they were paddling strongly upstream intent upon escaping the Beasts of Tarzan. So once more Tarzan of the Apes, with his hideous pack, took up his search for the ape-man's son and the pursuit of his abductor.

For weary days they followed an almost uninhabited country. After the battle the little band had been reduced in numbers. Now, with Akut there were but five great apes, and Sheeta was there—and Mugambi and Tarzan. The ape-man no longer even heard rumors of the three who had preceded Rokoff—the white man and the woman and child. Perhaps, already, they had perished, tragic victims of the terrible jungle.

The persisting hope that the child MIGHT be his was enough, however, to keep the ape-man hot upon the trail. And he was almost certain that Rokoff would be in similar pursuit. But nowhere along the way could he gain definite information. He held up every native he came across and submitted each one to careful cross-examination. None had heard of the white woman and child, although nearly all had had dealing (to their sorrow!) with the Russian and his cruel band. The ape-

CANADIAN WOMEN PREPARE PLANS HONOR VISCOUNTESS WILLINGDON

Leading Ladies of Every Province Asked to Take Part in Presentation.

CHARM WON MANY FRIENDS.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 3 (C.P.).—Throughout the Dominion, Canadian womanhood plans to do honor to one who has for more than four years endeared herself to the people of this country—Her Excellency Viscountess Willingdon.

Following a meeting late this afternoon of representative women of the Capital, wives of Dominion Cabinet Ministers and wives of Ministers of the former administration now residing in Ottawa, a proposal was adopted to make a presentation to Her Excellency, who sails with Viscount Willingdon on January 16 for India. The thought of the gathering was unanimous that the women of Canada should show their appreciation of a remembrance to Her Excellency of her stay in the Dominion.

Telegrams Sent Out.

Telegrams were promptly despatched to the wives of the Lieut.-Governors of the various Provinces asking them to join with the wives of Provincial Premiers towards the presentation of a gift to Viscountess Willingdon. Not only to the wives of the Lieut.-Governors of the nine Provinces but to the Yukon Territory has a request for combined appreciation to Her Excellency been sent. The unexpected and hurried departure of Their Excellencies for India make it desirous for the taking of immediate action.

Miss Mildred Bennett, sister of the Prime Minister, is national convenor. Lady Borden, wife of Sir Robert Borden, is national treasurer, with Mrs. W. Cowling Gullock, Ottawa, as national secretary.

Never before in the history of Canada has a Governor-General and his concort travelled so widely. Every Province of the Dominion, and even the British West Indies, have been traversed since 1926. And at all times by her charm of manner Viscountess Willingdon has won herself to the hearts of Canadians.

HISTORY OF AVIATION

to San Francisco was made by Lieut. Russel Maughan, of the U. S. Army, in 21 hours, 44 minutes, making six stops.

The following year, Commander John Rodgers, U. S. Navy, attempted to fly from San Francisco to Honolulu. The flight failed, but a new distance record of 1,730 miles was established. Commander Rodgers was saved after the ship had landed on the ocean. Another endurance record was set when Drouhin and Landry stayed aloft 45 hours, 11 minutes, 50 seconds, at Etampes. The speed record again went to the United States when Lieut. James A. Doolittle flew 254 miles an hour.

Byrd Crosses Pole.

On May 9, 1926, one of the great flights of all time occurred. Commander Richard E. Byrd and Floyd Bennett flew across the North Pole. Another south Atlantic crossing was made by Commander Ramon Franco and three companions. The distance was 6,230 miles. Sir Alan J. Cobham flew from London, England, to Melbourne, Australia, making many stops enroute. The British dirigible R-34 flew from England to the United States and return.

Motors hummed busily in 1927, and trans-oceanic flights became the order of the day. Charles A. Lindbergh flew non-stop solo from New York to Paris, 3,600 miles, and was idolized by the world. Chamberlin followed with a New York to Germany flight of 3,923 miles, and Maitland and Hegenberger hopped from San Francisco to Honolulu. Commander Byrd, fresh from his north pole adventure, flew from New York to Velsur-Mer, France, and Smith and Bronte flew from Oakland, Cal., to Molokai Island in the Hawaiian group. Art Gobel won the Dole prize, offered for a San Francisco-Honolulu race, and several participating planes were lost. Col. Lindbergh flew non-stop from New York to Mexico City, and Lieut. C. C. Champion established still another altitude record this time 48,418 feet. Clarence Chamberlain and Bert Acosta set a duration record of 51 hours, 11 minutes, 25 seconds, while Edward Schlee and William Brock flew from Harbor Grace Nfld., to Tokio, Japan, in a series of long hops.

In 1928, speed became prominent. For the first time in world history a human travelled at more than 300 miles an hour. Major Mario de Bernardi, of Italy, in a Machi monoplane, travelled 318 miles an hour to win the Schneider trophy. Three Germans, in the Bremen, flew from Baldonnel, Ireland, to Greenly Island, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, for the first westward non-stop trans-Atlantic flight. George H. Wilkins flew from Point Barrow to Spitzenbergen, across the Arctic sea. Commander Kingsford-Smith accomplished the seemingly impossible by flying from Oakland, California, to Brisbane, Australia. This is regarded as one of aviation's greatest achievements. The distance was 7,435 miles, and the time 81 hours, 19 minutes, is regarded as one of aviation's greatest achievements. The distance was 7,435 miles, and the time 81 hours, 19 minutes. Three stops were made. Amelia Earhart became the first woman to successfully fly the Atlantic when her plane, carrying two men, Stultz and Gordon, completed the hop from Trepassy Bay to Wales. The present world's long distance record, 4,466 miles, was established by Del Prete and Ferranin, of Italy, in flying from Europe to South America.

Many Ocean Crossings.

Again in 1929, there were many trans-oceanic flights. Assolant, Lefevre, Letti and a stowaway flew from Old Orchard, Me., to Commillas, Spain. The extra weight of the stowaway almost wrecked their ship on the takeoff, and the unwanted passenger was universally condemned. Jimenez and Iglesias flew from Seville to Bahia, Brazil, 4,100 miles, and Williams and Yancey flew from Old Orchard to Santander, Spain. Coste and Bellonte followed this flight later with a flight from Paris to Villa Coublay, France, 3,128 miles. They had started a trans-Atlantic flight but were forced to turn back after many hours' flying. Two Englishmen, Jones-Williams and Jenkins, flew from England to India, 4,130 miles. O'Brine and Jackson set a refuelling record by remaining aloft more than 500 hours. Major A. H. Orlebar, of England, brought a magnificent record to Great Britain when he won the Schneider cup at 328 miles an hour. Three days later, Flying Officer H. R. D. Waghorn of England flew his Supermarine at 368 miles an hour, the present world's speed record. Coste and Bellonte made their second long flight, this time from Paris to Tsitaihar, Manchuria, a distance of 4,900 miles. Commander Byrd crossed the South Pole, the only flier in history to fly over both poles.

In 1930, the Graf Zeppelin, German airship, flew from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to South America and back by way of Lakehurst. The distance was 18,000 miles, and the time 19 days. This topped a list of brilliant achievement by the Graf, including a round the world flight, and two trans-Atlantic crossings. Kingsford-Smith, considered one of the world's most brilliant flyers, flew from Port Marnock, Ireland, to New York with one stop at Harbor Grace, Nfld. Coste and Bellonte, the immortal combination, flew from Paris to New York non-stop, in 37 hours, 18 minutes, 30 seconds. This year, too, saw the first British airship to arrive in Canada. She was the R-100, and the trip was from Cardington to Montreal and return. Observing crowds, the R-101, her sister ship, was burned in France. Nearly 50 men died in the crash. In October, Captain Errol Boyd, of Toronto, and Lieut. Connor, an American, flew from Harbor Grace to the Scilly Islands. Boyd was the first Canadian to make a trans-Atlantic crossing, although several had tried previously.

Among the greatest individual feats of aviation are those of Commander Byrd, United States Navy, who has flown over the north and south pole in different years, and the remarkable achievements of Kingsford-Smith, who, according to other outstanding aviators, is the finest living flyer in the world. Kingsford-Smith's feat in flying the Pacific in a tri-motored plane speak volumes for his power of concentration, and the value of proper preparations. Later, however, he flew the Atlantic and then broke all records for an England-Australia flight, making the long journey in just over 12 days. Strangely enough, this trip was made in a small, 125 horsepower plane, as compared with the huge tri-motor used on the Australian flight.

And so, through the last 27 years, the infant aviation has grown tremendously. To-day, millions of dollars are represented in the various factories, landing fields, and other appurtenances. Air mail delivery has become commonplace, as has also the delivery of express matter by air. In Canada's northland aeroplanes are used extensively for exploration, mapping, and fireguard. From Pelee Island, southernmost point in the Dominion, to Aklavik, far up in the Arctic Circle, the fleet riders of the sky safely land and take off. Within the next three years, according to Canadian authorities, a trans-Canada aviation line will be in operation. And much of the credit for the present world-wide development of the newest science may be given to those pioneers who have gone before. Each record, from 1903 to Captain Boyd's flight, has added to the store of knowledge, and the coming year promises to be an epochal one, for the infant, born in 1903, has now attained manhood.

THAT COLD

A Cold may come upon you without any apparent reason, but you can be sure that there is an accumulation of poisons within your body or you would not catch cold.

Exposure to a draft is often an exciting factor in the development of a cold, but if you are in proper tone a draft will not affect you. If your body is free of poisons you are immune to colds. If your spine is in normal alignment, the spinal nerves free of pressure, and you live rationally, poisons will not accumulate in your system.

CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS will aid you in overcoming a cold, and also in establishing immunity to colds and other ailments which are so prevalent at this time of year.

DO NOT CONTINUE TO SUFFER, BUT GIVE CHIROPRACTIC A CHANCE TO RESTORE YOU TO HEALTH.

U.S. Power Plan Fails To Meet Objections

DOMINION FAVORS TWO-STAGE PLAN OF DEVELOPMENT

Canadian Engineers Scheme Makes 200,000 More Horse-power Than New York's.

BE LESS WASTE LAND.

Power Available Three Years Sooner Than by Single Stage Project.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 5 (C.P.). —While there has been no Government pronouncement here in respect to the proposal of the Engineering Board of the New York State Power Development Commission for a single-stage development in the international section of the St. Lawrence River, the view is expressed in official circles that the scheme will not meet objections already raised by Canada. The Canadian section of the Joint Board of Engineers has recommended a two-stage development with dams at Crysler Island and at Barnhart Island. In this recommendation, engineers of the Ontario Government concurred.

Differences.

Certain very important factors, it is stated, influenced the Canadian engineers in reaching their conclusion. Additional flooding of lands would arise as the result of a single-stage development, it is declared, and the necessity would be created for the construction of embankments to protect some of the Canadian towns along the St. Lawrence. It is also claimed the element of risk is much greater in the case of a single-stage development than of a double-stage. If a single dam, holding back such a huge volume of water, should break, the result to towns and villages along the river might be disastrous. On the other hand the strain in the two-stage project would be divided, and there would be less danger.

The recommendation by the New York State engineers that the dam be built in two steps, "thus meeting Canadian objections," does not, it is stated, meet them at all. Presumably the ultimate aim would be to construct a dam which would develop two million horse-power, and if this was done, all the objections voiced by the Canadian engineers would, it is claimed, still exist.

In respect to the development of power, the Canadian scheme, according to the report of the engineers, would make available a total of 2,200,000 horse-power, of which 600,000 would be developed at the Crysler Island dam and 1,600,000 at the Barnhart Islandñ. This is 200,000 more horse-power than would be developed under the proposals of the New York State Commission. The cost of the Canadian scheme was placed at approximately $236,000,000, which is considerably higher than that of the Commission and which

FOUR MEN LOST NEAR KINGSTON

Party Missing Since Dec. 23 Were Located Once on False Ducks Islands.

SEARCHERS SENT OUT.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 5.—Search for four men, missing somewhere in this vicinity, is being continued to-day, and while not the slightest trace has yet been found it is hoped that they took refuge on Amherst Island or near there.

Captain William Sheridan, and two other men, left Bath for Oswego, in a boat, on Dec. 23 last. They were not heard from for quite a while, and were finally located at the False Ducks Island by Cecil Phillips and a fair-sized party. Phillips remained with Sheriden and the men in the original boat while the others returned to the mainland.

It is now thought that Sheridan and Phillips tried to reach Bath but were lost on the way.

THOUSANDS PAY FINAL TRIBUTE TO FRENCH HERO

Mourners Filing Past Joffre's Bier Weep Openly, Unashamed.

FUNERAL TUESDAY.

Burial to be Made Temporarily Not Far From Napoleon's Tomb.

PARIS, January 5 (C.P.). — Men who fought with Marshal Joffre at the Marne and obtained a badge of honor there, and others who live the lives they do to-day because that battle was fought and won, to-day passed in sad single file the bier of the saviour of France.

There was audible, visible weeping as the thousands, crushed close together outside the Ecole Militaire until nine o'clock, lined in to take their final glance at the body of Marshal Joffre, the former French Commander-in-Chief, laid out on a camp bed in the chapel of the old Military Academy.

Hands folded and holding a crucifix, sword reposing on his black blue cape over his feet, and wearing a single decoration, the French Military Medal, the body of the Marshal was laid out with all the simplicity which has marked his career from the days of the victory at Timbuctoo to death on Saturday in the little room of the Hospital St. Jean de Dieu.

The body is clad in the last black coat and obsolete red breeches of a Colonial General of Division, which was the rank Joffre held at the Battle of the Marne. On nineteen pillows placed about the simple camp bed are his other 42 decorations and honors. At each corner of the bed there stands an officer at attention. At the head stands another sub-officer, while at each corner of the catafalque there is a mortar, emblematic of trench warfare.

The crowd which has lined past the body to-day seems most unrestrained, hands have been clenched, tears shed

ONLY DAUGHTER OF KING GEORGE MAY BECOME NEW 'PRINCESS ROYAL'

TAKES MOTHER'S PLACE.

(By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The title "Princess Royal" which has been held for many years by Princess Louise, the King's eldest sister who died yesterday, belongs by right to the first daughter of a reigning soverign, provided she is born after her father's accession to the throne. If born before then she must be "declared Princess Royal. The title therefore does not pass automatically to Princess Mary, Countess of Harewood, who was born 14 years before His Majesty's coronation. It may prove to be the King's pleasure however, to bestow it upon Princess Mary after a suitable interval has elapsed.

The title was bestowed upon Princess Louise at her own desire and proved to have a practical result. When her husband, the Duke of Fife, died at Assuan, his own title passed by special remainder to his eldest daughter. The assumption of the title of Princess Royal by his wife removed confusion between the Princess Louise and the new Duchess of Fife, her daughter.

Princess Louise's daughter, the Princess Arthur of Connaught, now takes her mother's place as tenth in the line of succession to the throne, which becomes as follows:

The Princes of Wales.
The Duke of York.
Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, daughters of the Duke and Duchess of York.
The Duke of Gloucester.
Prince George.
Princess Mary and her two sons.
Princess Arthur of Connaught.

Afterwards come the Earl of Macduff, son of Princess Arthur; Lady Maud Carnegie, her sister; Hon. James Carnegie, infant son of Lady Maud, and finally Princess Victoria, the unmarried sister of His Majesty.

In the last five years the number of automobiles in Bolivia has increased nearly 150 per cent.

Weather Prophets In Unique Contest

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 5—Science led soothsaying by a windvane and a couple of gadgets today in the weather-guessing sweep-stakes between George S. Bliss, Government Weather Bureau expert, and Sam Brunner, veteran goosebone prophet. The contest is being conducted by a Philadelphia newspaper to determine the comparative accuracy of scientific methods of forecasting as opposed to the barnyard variety involving goosebones, groundhogs, your uncle Dudley's "rheumatis" and similar rinkiboo. It began January 1 and, is to continue for one month.

The newspaper's scorecard giving the daily forecasts shows Bliss predicting at an .800 clip and Brunner .500. One full game, in this case a forecast of tomorrow's weather, separates them. Bliss has won four and lost one; Brunner has three wins and two losses.

DRIVER FACING $10,000 ACTION

RESULT OF ACCIDENT.

Mrs. William Rew of 118 Gladstone street, city, is bringing action through F. D. Kerr, K.C., for the recovery of $10,000 against Miss Jean Gillespie, of Otonabee. The action which will probably come for hearing at the Spring Sitting of the Supreme Court, is a sequel to the death of William Rew, aged 67 years, following an accident in which he was struck by a car driven by Miss Gillespie, while he was walking diagonally across the intersection of Lansdowne and Lock streets on October 1st, 1930. FOOTBALL MATCH ENDS WITH RIOT FIVE ARE KILLED

Peruvian Troops Object to Silver Trophy Going to Uruguayans.

AT LIMA FIELD.

Soldiers Rushing on Gridiron Met By Bullets From Police.

LIMA, Peru, January 5. — Five persons were killed yesterday in a clash which marked the end of an international football match between a team from Uruguay and one from the Peruvian Departments of Arequipa.

The trouble began at the end of the match when the president of the football federation delivered a silver cup to the Uruguayans.

Peruvian troops started booing and a soldier attempted to cross the field.

Five policemen stopped him and used their swords to curb his belligerency.

As the other soldiers, most of whom were from Arequipa, saw their comrade in danger, they charged out on the field at the police and were met by revolver shots. The spectators then joined in, throwing stones, and more shots came from the police firearms, with indescribable confusion resulting.

WAS 85 YEARS OLD.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (C.P. Cable). — Captain H. S. Riddell, who was aide-de-camp to Col. (later Lord) Wolsley during the Red River expedition of 1869, when Wolsley's British regulars put down the rebellion of Louis Riel, died near Filey, Yorkshire, to-day, at the age of 85 years.

Captain Riddell was also stage manager of the famous actress, Mrs. Margaret Kendal, later in life, and it was while he was with Mrs. Kendal at a Washington theatre that he was presented by the British Ambassador with a medal, issued many years before, for his connection with the Red River expedition.

FREIGHTER REFLOATED

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 5 —Advices reaching here from the Coastguard station at Gilbert's Bar said the British freighter Jameson, aground off St. Lucie Inlet since December 24, was floated to-day.

Valued Shoe Lasts Destroyed by Fire

NEWARK, N.J., January 5 (C.P.) — Like the sands of time, the lasts of Thomas Guthrie preserved the footprints of great men until fire broke out in his shop to-day.

Charred leather was all that was left of lasts from which Guthrie made boots for President Theodore Roosevelt, E. H. Harriman, William Rockefeller, Joseph Choate, Senator Elkins of West Virginia, and Admiral Robert Peary.

Guthrie, who came from Ireland as a boy and built up a large trade in hand-made boots, still cherishes an order from Roosevelt: "Make as high as possible, top to be of alligator hide, marrow heel, and a No. 2 job." It is dated July 24, 1883.

A short circuit caused the blaze. Only the cabinet containing the old lasts was destroyed.

MRS. A. MOWAT PASSES IN CITY

Gave Much of Her Time in Service on Behalf of Welfare of Community.

BORN IN BRIGHTON.

A life crowded full of service on behalf of the welfare of this community, was brought to a close with the death yesterday, after a long illness, at her home, 773 Water street, of Annie E. Davidson, beloved wife of Public School Inspector Alexander Mowat.

During the twenty-four years of her residence in Peterborough, Mrs. Mowat had been active in all movements for the public welfare. She assisted in organizing the first supervised play grounds in the city, and had always taken a deep interest in the Home and School Association. In the activities of the Local Council of Women, Mrs. Mowat played a prominent part by acting as secretary, and as president of this organization for a number of years. She was also president for some time of the Well Babies' Clinic. A member of the George Street United Church she was particularly interested in missions, the work of the Grenfell Mission having an especial appeal for her. Although handicapped by impaired health during the past few years Mrs. Mowat continued to display an active interest in all movements for civic betterment until her strength failed her.

Mrs. Mowat was born in Brighton, Ont., and was educated in Toronto, at at Jarvis street Collegiate Institute, and at the Toronto Normal School. After graduating from the latter in-

PRINCESS ROYAL SISTER OF KING DIES IN LONDON

MARRIED DUKE OF FIFE.

Lord Chamberlain Orders Period of Four Weeks' Court Mourning.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 5. (CP)—All Britain to-day mourned one of the most democratic of its royal family, Louise, Princess Royal, who died suddenly in her sleep yesterday afternoon of heart disease.

The King at Sandringham was notified of her death, the Lord Chamberlain immediately ordering a period of four weeks' full mourning. The Princess, who was the eldest sister of the King, was 63 years old, a year and eight months younger than her imperial brother.

Her death was not unexpected. She had had recurrent attacks of the heart trouble, and in 1926 she suffered from a serious gastric hemhorrage, although until recently she had been in somewhat better health.

Although shy and resentful of the ostentation which accompanies the royal family she knew both romance and adventure during her life. The romance came at the age of 22 when she married the Earl of Fife, a Briton of excellent lineague but not of royal birth, against the wishes of her grandmother, Queen Victoria.

Her father, later to become Edward VII, and her mother approved, and Queen Victoria, eventually was won over by Louise's tearful pleadings. Shortly after their marriage in 1889 her husband was made Duke of Fife.

The adventure came in 1911 when, travelling with him to Egypt, aboard the Delhi they were shipwrecked off Cape Spartel ten miles from Tangier The Duke died a year later at Assuan as a consquence of the exposure during the mishap.

Two children were born of the marriage, Alexandra Victoria, now 39 years old and wife of Prince Arthur of Connaught, and Maud Alexandra, now 37 and the wife of Lord Carnegie. Both were at their mother's bedside when she died.

In passing sentence Magistrate Watt expressed regret that he could not order flogging for the prisoner.

42 MEMBERS OF BRITISH VESSEL ARE LODGED IN NAVAL BARRACKS FOR PROTEST ABOUT SHORT LEAVE

Crew is Replaced So Depot Ship May Take Place With Atlantic Fleet.

AT DEVONPORT BASE.

Admiral Sir Hubert Bland to Start Inquiry at Once.

PLYMOUTH, England, January 5 (C.P.). — Forty - two members of the crew of H.M.S. Lucia, submarine depot ship, were "lodged in naval barracks" to-day after what is believed to have been a demonstration in protest against curtailed Christmas leave.

While an investigation by the Admiralty is under way the 42 crew members have been replaced so that the Lucia may join the Atlantic fleet maneuvres. Officer of the ship and of the Devonport naval station would make no comment regarding the affair other than it was being investigated and that it was not a mutiny.

Trouble Over Leave

In Plymouth, however, an unnamed senior was attributed with the statement that about 30 men were arrested during a march to the naval barracks at Devonport because of trouble over Christmas leave and the holiday mail.

"Some of them felt they did not have enough leave," he said, "and since the Lucia with six submarines was due to start Thursday with the Atlantic fleet for its spring cruise I suppose they felt that their chances of getting more were gone.

The trouble, I understand, developed Sunday afternoon, and the stern disciplinary measures already taken indicate the serious view which has been taken of it."

Admiral Sir Hubert Bland, Commander-in-Chief of the Devonport base, authorized a member of his staff to say he was unable to make a definite statement at present as the matter had not been fully investigated but he added that the admiralty was being informed and doubtless would make a statement.

Inquiry To-day

"It can be said at once" he remarked, "that use of the word mutiny is not justified. "The Admiralty at London, announced that Admiral Sir Hubert would hold an inquiry at Devenport to-day "into the incidents which have occurred."

The Lucia was built in England for the Hamburg-American line and named the Spreewald. She was captured in 1914 and converted into a submarine depot ship. She had a crew of 262.

Guest Loses "Roll": Host Gets 3 Years

SUDBURY, Ont., Jan. 5.—Convicted of "rolling" his guest, Hrynko Szengel, the day before Christmas and relieving him of an amount between $200 and $600, Mike Green was this morning sentenced to three years in Portsmouth Penitentiary, by Magistrate J. S. McKessock. A few days before Christmas Szengel collected about $1,000 compensation money in Toronto and had bought a ticket to his home in Poland. He came to Sudbury to pay some debts which he contracted on previous occasions here. Evidence indicated that Szengel had about $600 when he went to Green's house on December 24, and that there had been considerable drinking at the house during the day.

ROTARIANS IN ARGUMENT OVER THEIR CALLINGS

Spirited Debate as to Services Rendered by Various Professions and Businesses.

NO DECISION.

Various Members of Club Wax Eloquent But Name of Winner is Withheld.

Rotarian Ross Dobbin started something at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club that for a while threatened to develop into a riot or a third alarm, but was eventually brought to a close without the services of the police or the fire department.

Rotarian Dobbin, unable to get a speaker for the luncheon, decided that an argument as to which of the professions or businesses represented in Rotary was of greatest benefit to mankind would provide the club with unusual and interesting entertainment. It did.

The challenge was no sooner flung out than Rotarian Dr. A. Moir was on his feet stressing the claims of the medical profession. Rotarian Jim Juby pictured the groceryman as the greatest benefactor of humanity, and Rotarian V. J. McElderry, K.C., argued eloquently on behalf of the legal fraternity. Rotarian G. A. Gillespie emphasized the services rendered by the dairy business. Rotarian Percy Boland argued that the bankers deserved the award, and Rotarian Dr. C. V. McLean made a similar plea for the ministers.

Rotarian J. W. McDermid battled for the reputation of the druggists. Rotarian A. L. Killaly did likewise for the engineers. Rotarian J. Matthews got away with a boost for the Canadian Packing Company, Rotarian Manson Comstock pointed out that the undertaker eventually got them all. Rotarian R. F. Downey gave the teaching profession credit for most of the world's progress, and Rotarian G. A. Macdonald and Andrew Brown added their voices to the debate. Rotarian Brown's contribution being a particularly heated one.

The controversy was stopped at that stage and no decision was given as to the winner of the debate.

Rotarian Dr. M. A. Morrison moved a vote of sympathy from the club to Rotarian Alex. Mowat in his bereavement in the death of his wife.

It was announced by Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner, chairman of the Student Loan Committee, that the particular student now being helped by Rotary was making a fine showing at Toronto University.

POPE TO TIGHTEN MIXED MARRIAGE LAWS OF CHURCH

Bishops to Extract Written Promise From Non-Catholic Contractant.

DIVORCE DISAPPROVED.

Encyclical Expected This Week Makes No Concession to Modernistic Trends.

ROME, January 5. — A reiteration of the strict Catholic doctrine regarding marriage, is expected in the Encyclical which Pope Pius will issue this week.

Far from making concession to modernistic trends, it is understood the Encyclical will hark back to the first principles of the church — restating Catholicism's utter disapproval of divorce, and emphasizing the doctrine that only by continence within the married state, can families be limited without transgressing the divine law.

This re-statement it was generally assumed, would be the Pope's answer to the Episcopal Bishops' qualified admission of birth control in certain cases, emanating from the Lambeth Conference in London last summer.

Mixed marriages, those between Catholics and non-Catholics, are also expected to be the subject of special comment. It was generally taken for granted that the Pope will re-emphasize that Bishops before granting dispensations for such unions must extract a written promise from the non-Catholic contractant that all children born of the marriage must be brought up in the Catholic faith, and that the non-Catholic party will in no way interefere with the Catholic party's fulfilment of religious duties. At the same time the duty of the Catholic party is to pray unceasingly for the conversion of the non-Catholic spouse, and by force of example, in piety of life, induce to such conversion, is expected to be enjoined anew.

Queen Helen Visits Sick Son Michael

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 3. — (C.P.).—Queen Helen, estranged wife of King Carol, returned to the Palace at Bucharest to-day after a hurried mission of maternal love at the bedside of Michael, once a boy king and now Grand Voivode of Albajulia.

It was hoped when she left here yesterday she would meet Carol in the boy Prince's sick room, but her return here to-day was accepted as indication that if they met there was no reconciliation and that they will continue their separate paths.

Michael's illness is described as a chill.

LOSS OF SAVINGS PROMPTS SUICIDE

LOST $1,200.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—Information received by local authorities from Provincial Police of Alberta indicates John T. Quinn, 26, found shot to death in a lane here Saturday, had been robbed by confidence men in Vancouver of $1,200.

Probing into the circumstances surrounding Quinn's death, local police believe he had been despondent over the loss of this money to the Pacific coast swindlers, and that he had turned the gun on himself.

A wire was found in the dead man's effects signed "E. P. Ellis," and instructing him to stop at the Toronto hotel where he was registered.

Ellis was the name used by one of a pair of confidence men who recently fleeced a German war veteran of several thousand dollars in Vancouver. The latter was also instructed to stay at a local hotel until a certain horse won and the pair would collect the winnings and come east to share with him as he had provided the capital allegedly waged.

Funeral Arrangements

The line will continue to pass before the bier until perhaps 12 p.m. tonight, and will be resumed tomorrow. Wednesday at dawn the body will be taken out for a dual religious and state funeral which will differ in only a few details from that of Marshall Foch, who preceded him nearly two years to the grave. From the Ecole Militaire the body will go to Notre Dame for the requiem of the church, from there to stop for a moment beneath the Arc De Triomphe, and then on to The Invalides where it will be placed temporarily in the sacristy not far from the tomb of Napoleon.

The body was brought to the Ecole Militaire Chapel at dawn today from the hospital Saint Jean De Dieu in a plain black hearse of the type familiar in France. There was a brief parting ceremony at the hospital attended by representatives of the government and staff officers of the dead marshall. After which his body on a military stretcher, was carried out and placed in the hearse.

A crowd which had gathered outside stood with bared heads and police opened a way through them for the hearse without difficulty. Despite the early hour many were already about and lines of people with bared heads lined the streets on the way to the old military academy.

Double-deck interurban cars have appeared in England.

Six New Fire Hydrants Placed in Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Greater and better fire protection seems to be the stand taken by the town of Campbellford, with the addition of six new fire hydrants, three on each side of the river.

On Grand Road one has been installed, with two others on Booth Street South. At the north end of Booth Street one more has been added, with two on Victoria Street. These additions, with the splendid fire protection now given the citizens of Campbellford, will make residence in the town doubly safe and an added attraction to outsiders to locate in Campbellford.

U. S. POWER PLAN OUTLINE GIVEN

BEEN BEFORE HYDRO.

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—Plans for a new method of single-stage development in the international section of the St. Lawrence, announced yesterday in New York, were discussed here two weeks ago by the Ontario Hydro Commission and the St. Lawrence Power Development Commission of the State of New York it was learned last night.

Alfred Maguire of the Provincial Hydro Commission would not admit last night that the purpose of the New Yorkers' visit here was to feel out the sentiment of the Ontario authorities on the plan now made public.

"The plan was discussed only in a general way at the conference here," said Mr. Maguire. "The purpose of the New York Commission's visit here was to meet the Ontario Hydro Commission in anticipation of possible negotiations regarding the St. Lawrence development.

"Meanwhile", he added, "it must first be accepted by the New York State legislature."

The Plan

The New York Commission according to despatches, recommended a one-dam, two-step development at Massena Point, N. Y., for developing approximately 2,000,000 horsepower of electrical energy. Its total cost was estimated at $171,547,000.

Dr. T. H. Hogg, hydraulic engineer attached to the Ontario commission, stated last night that while he was not entirely conversant with the details of the plan, he did not imagine it would differ very greatly except as to location, from the one-stage development plan recommended some years ago by the American section of the joint board of engineers.

The one-stage plan recommended by the American section of the joint board of engineers was to be located at Barnard Island, at the foot of the Long Sault. Massena Point, the location now put forward, is at the upper end of the Long Sault. The Canadian section of the joint board, it will be recalled, recommended two alternative double-stage plans, one having developments at Morrisburg and at the Long Sault and the other having developments at Chrysler Island and the Long Sault.

COURT DISMISSES REDMOND CLAIM

$158.77 IN DISPUTE.

An action with an unusual twist was heard in Division Court, before His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke this morning, in which the plaintiff was Harry Redmond, wholesale butcher of North Monaghan, and the defendants, John Kerr, 434 Mark street, and James Ruth, 688 Water street, this city.

Certain monies, amounting to $158.77 were in dispute to which defendant Kerr claimed he was entitled and to which plaintiff Redmond also laid claim. Redmond's claim against Kerr was dismissed, but was allowed as against Ruth, the latter admitting liability.

J. A. O'Brien acted in the interests of Redmond, while Kerr was represented by F. D. Kerr, K.C.

During the hearing of Redmond's evidence, Ruth was asked to leave the court room. Witness said, "I would buy cattle and Ruth would sell them and collect the money. He was paid 35 per cent. on the total profits."

The money claimed by plaintiff Redmond, was the amount of the purchase price of cattle, the property of plaintiff, sold by defendant Ruth, and on which defendant Kerr had obtained a garnishee in respect of money owed to him by Ruth.

In transpired in the course of the evidence that Ruth had been pressed for payment by John Kerr who, hearing that money had been paid into court, obtained that money without a court order.

His Honor, in summing up said this is rather an unfortunate case. Someone has to lose by this transaction and that someone must be the one whose fault it was. His Hoonr did not wish to imply that the fault had been made wilfully, but from evidence submitted, a garnishee was issued by defendant Kerr against Ruth, and improperly that money was paid out to Kerr.

THE MILK GRADING ACT.

There is much in the contention that the new provincial act relating to the grading of milk needs watching.

Framed to improve conditions for both producers and the dairy corporations the dangerous feature about the provisions of the act is that the inspectors, who are to grade the milk, while ranking as civil servants, will be paid by the dairies.

According to the new legislation, which came into effect on New Year's Day, a producer who sends in milk graded as 3.3 will be penalized four cents per hundredweight and receive only $2.16. On the other hand if his milk is graded as 3.5 he will benefit by four cents extra and be paid $2.24 per hundredweight.

The success of the whole plan depends upon the inspectors; if they play the game fairly with the producer nothing but good can come of the legislation.

But if they are influenced by the fact that they must look to the dairy corporations for their salaries there is a very obvious danger that the dairy farmer may find themselves up against consistent undergrading.

Most of these officials can be counted upon of course to do justice to all concerned, but where there is room for unfair treatment it will be up to the Provincial Department of Agriculture to keep a close check upon its milk grading staff in order to make sure that the already shrunken income of the farmer is not further decreased.

EMERGENCY AID COMES FIRST

It is complained that much of what Premier Bennett proposed to do for the assistance of the Western farmers is merely a palliative and not a permanent cure for the ills of the prairie provinces.

Mr. Bennett himself, it is to be imagined, will be the first to admit the truth of that statement—but it must be remembered that there is a situation in the West that no other administration has had to face, with conditions that call for emergency assistance while a permanent solution is being sought.

It is estimated that no fewer than 150,000 Western farmers are urgently in need of food, fuel, fodder and seed, and the first thing the Government must do is to provide direct relief for those who are close to the point of starvation.

Mr. Bennett is at present in the West; he can see the conditions for himself—and there will be no complaint, particularly from the people in the Eastern part of Canada if he proposes to come to the rescue with generous grants to the prairie provinces to tide them over the present period of depression.

That of course would only be a palliative as Western farmer leaders claim, but why, in the name of common sense, do they want to have the Government wait until a permanent remedy for the present conditions is found before extending a helping hand?

When a man is drowning the only thing to do is to pull him out of the water; after that there will be time to discuss teaching everybody to swim so that there would be no chance for any person to drown.

PAPA JOFFRE PASSES.

One by one the famous figures of the Great War pass into history.

The latest to go is Papa Joffre, the beloved of his fellow-countrymen, who laid down his arms to the grim conqueror on Saturday after a characteristically courageous fight for life.

Foch has gone; Haig has gone, and now Field Marshal Joffre, the hero of the Marne and the leader regarded by the French people generally as the saviour of his country in its darkest hour, has answered the call of death.

In the eyes of the world perhaps the name of Joffre was somewhat overshadowed by the fact that the supreme command in the later days of the war passed to Foch and under his leadership the final triumph of the Allied cause was registered, but to the people of France—and history will confirm their opinion—the revered 'Poppa" will always be the man who, on the Marne in 1914 and again at Verdun in 1916, saved the day for France and for the Allies.

A great man, a great soldier, a great citizen has been lost to France in the death of the illustrious Field Marshal who carried the strain and burden of the first thirty months of the war and by his indomitable courage and iron determination paved the way for the ultimate victory.

Every country whose sons fought with France in the Great War will mourn the departure of so outstanding an actor in the grim tragedy of 1914-1918.

A USEFUL LIFE ENDED.

The passing yesterday of Annie E. Davidson, wife of Public School Inspector Alexander Mowat, was a heavy community loss for it brought to an end a life that had been most unselfishly devoted to activities aimed at civic betterment. A devoted wife and mother, and therefore a home-maker and companion, Mrs. Mowat nevertheless found time to lend to many movements designed for the public welfare, the benefit of her wise counsel and executive ability. It is largely due to her kindly interest and active support that the community now enjoys the boon of supervised playgrounds, while the Home and School Association, that most useful organization that links up the parent with the teacher and works to the mutual advantage of both, found in her a most enthusiastic supporter and worker. In the Local Council of Women Mrs. Mowat contributed most valuable service as secretary and also as president for some time, while the Well Babies' Clinic had her earnest assistance, in fact for a period Mrs. Mowat was president of the organization. In her church work she was equally active, especially in the cause of missions, and Dr. Grenfell's Labrador Mission had no more useful supporter in Peterborough. Even the handicap of impaired health did not prevent Mrs. Mowat from consistently working for the good of the community until declining strength made further effort physically impossible.

Peterborough can ill afford to lose such a public-spirited woman, the intelligence of whose death has caused general sorrow. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved husband and children.

MONTREAL JUDGES ENDORSE LASH

The fact that five of the six judges of the Montreal Court of Sessions have expressed themselves in favor of administering the lash as part of the punishment for those convicted of crimes of violence is pretty conclusive evidence of its efficacy as a crime deterrent. These five judges concur in the opinion that when a bandit displays brutality in the commission of his crime, he should be punished in like manner. The sixth judge, who could not be reached for his opinion, is understood to regard the lash as inhuman and a relic of the days of barbarism.

It seems to us, however, that it is only fair and right that a criminal who makes a personal attack on his victim should be given a dose of his own medicine. His precious skin should be made to feel some of the pain which he inflicts on others. Common justice demands this.

One of the judges endorsing the lash says it spreads more terror in the ranks of gangdom than any other form of correction. This, after all, is the primary purpose of punishment. It is proper that a criminal should be punished for his wrong-doing, but this is not the chief reason for punishing him. The main objective is to discourage others from following in the path of the convicted criminal and also to impress upon him the folly of a life of crime. One of the five lash-defending judges said that criminals believed that after a man was flogged he was no "good for the trade" any more, and he was continually haunted by visions of the cat-o'-nine tails. This shows, rather conclusively, that as a deterrent the lash has few equals.

The Times-Journal is a believer in corporal punishment for those guilty of crimes of violence, and was pleased to note that recently the lash has been frequently added to the sentences of those guilty of personal violence or of robbery under arms. It is to be hoped that the considered opinion of five leading Montreal judges, who are in a position to estimate correctly the effect of the lash, will result in a still wider application. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

TRY ACTUAL FARMING.

In the Amherstburg Echo there recently appeared an account of the warden's banquet. One of the speakers, John Lickman, was referring to the part played in county affairs by the district representative of the Department of Agriculture. In a jocular way he mentioned that it might be well for him to take over one of the poor farms in the district, make a living on it and raise a family of six children.

The Amherstburg Echo, commenting on the point, says:

"There is after all the germ of an idea in what Mr. Lickman intended merely as a joke. Suppose the Government did pick out ten or twelve farms in various parts of Ontario, place men on them, equipped with scientific agricultural knowledge and give them a free hand to work these farms in the way they thought best to produce financial results, keeping accounts of all expenses, receipts, depreciation and overhead of every description, the funds of course being advanced from time to time to pay for stock and machinery required, the knowledge thus gained would be of immense practical value to the farmers of Ontario. If a success could be made by men of this kind, applying methods which they say are effective, it would be the finest kind of an object lesson for farmers all over the country who are now as a class talking blue ruin and saying there is no money in farming."

This paper is pleased to see that comment in the Amherstburg Echo, because it is an idea which has been advanced in these columns on various occasions. The point where we might differ with the view of the Echo would be in regard to the amount of money to be advanced to these farms. In order to make the experiment a fair one and a practical affair it would be necessary to conduct these farms on much the same lines as the average farmer has to work.

If it were possible to draw on public funds every time the pinch came, there would be no demonstration in it, because the Government farms would thus be dodging one of the hardest things which the average farmer has to face and deal with.

There is something very practical, though, in the idea of having the Government take over some of these farms at various points in the Province. Many of them are deserted to-day, and the claim is that it has not been able to make a living on them.

If that is so, then there is not much use trying to get any other person to go in there and try to make the place succeed.

If it is not so, then an injustice is being done to the district and to the other farms in it.

Taking over some of these farms, and demonstrating how they should be run under actual growing and marketing conditions to-day, would, to our mind, be a very practical experiment. It would be even more to the point than continued expansion of the O.A.C., where many of the graduates never return to the actual work of farming.

It would bring the most advanced methods right out into the rural districts where the farmers could see for themselves exactly what was being done. If better results were obtained on these experimental farms than on others, then there would be an object lesson right there and remedial measures could be taken to bring farming generally into line with the plans carried out at the Government farms.

The plan appears to have possibilities in answering the question of what is wrong with farming in Ontario to-day. It is worth the serious consideration of those who have to do with such matters in the Provincial Government.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The New Year's gift in the shape of a greatly increased assessment handed out by Judge O'Connor to the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham will not be appreciated by many of the ratepayers.

A communist candidate in Toronto received 3,000 votes. There are more Reds in the Queen City than most people imagine.

Among those enjoying the mild weather may be mentioned the citizens who hold the snow-ploughing contracts.

At least two new committee chairmen will be required by this year's council. Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Manufacturer's Committee, and Ald. Huffman, chairman of the Board of Works, have passed from the municipal picture.

BURNING BEAUTY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

"Yes. There will come a time when everybody will want to know us."

"They'll want to know you, Rickey, when you are famous. I shall be simply the sister of a celebrity."

He accepted that with some complacence. Jinny was always saying things like that and he lived on them.

As she started down the stairs, he leaned over the rail: "Jinny, did you mean what you said about not selling the candlesticks?"

"Yes."

"Do you know you are being quite — idiotic?"

"Oh, Rickey, let's not quarrel about it."

"I'm not quarreling."

"Oh, well —" she did not finish her sentence. She went on, feeling a bit subdued. Rickey was, indeed, off with the old life and on with the new. But he was young and he had a future. He had been chained by the past. And now he was free. Rickey was to have his chance and how proud she would be to help him.

Chapter Three.

The Silver Witch.

Rickey, looking down from the dormer window, had a distinct sense of grievance. His face was dark as he surveyed the crowd below. Virginia had joined Mrs. Bleecker and the others, and they were all moving towards the gate, Marty Van Duyne glimmering in the midst of them like a silver pool set about with gorgeous bloom. Rickey leaned out and watched her as she went. He was a poet and a dreamer, and his dreams had to do with making a name for himself. He didn't intend to do as Dad had done — scribble sentimental stuff that nobody wanted. For him there must be, first, a big novel. Then with money in his pocket, he would pen the lilting lines that sang themselves in his head, and fame would be at his feet.

As for the glimmering girl, he intended to write at once a sonnet about her. It was beastly luck that he couldn't have gone with Jinny. He didn't care about the food, although it was a bit of a letdown to be limited to the bottle of milk and box of crackers which was all the larder afforded. To sit next to Marty Van Duyne would have been food and drink. But he was a fool to think of a thing like that — he need never expect to sit beside her.

Grogan was going on with the sale and the plump girl in the plaid coat was still stating her bids in her soft Southern voice. Rickey, weighing her in the balance of his artist's mind, decided that she had a certain prettiness. But Heavens, what clothes! For the next few moments he became lost in a maze of conjecture as to how she would look if he could design her costumes. He'd put her in black tailored things, with a white blouse and a gardenia, and slim black pumps — her feet were good. Why didn't such women study themselves? He shuddered to think what Marty Van Duyne might have made of herself if she had lacked the fastidious sense of what belonged to her type.

The girl in the plaid coat was looking up, and as she caught Rickey's eyes, she beckoned. Then, as he stood uncertain, she made a little trumpet of her hands, and called, "Come down." Rickey wished she wouldn't. The eyes of the crowd were focused on him. He waited a moment before he began to descend the stairs.

When he reached the lower hall, he found that the girl had entered the house. "Look here," she said, "what about those candlesticks?"

"They're withdrawn," stiffly.

"So the auctioneer told me. But why?"

"My sister hated to part with them."

"Where is your sister?"

"She's gone to lunch."

"Oh . . . couldn't you get her to reconsider?"

"I think not."

"But you'll get a smashing price for them."

"So Grogan said —"

"Sure your sister won't change her mind?"

"No."

Although his tone was abrupt, Rickey was melting. The girl's eyes were as blue as her hat, her glance clear and candid. As he talked to her, he had a sense of effervescent spirits, as if she loved life and laughter.

"Whose candlesticks are they?" she was asking.

"Mine as much as Jinny's."

"Oh — then why don't you let Grogan put them up and tell her afterwards — ?"

Rickey's nervous right hand ruffled his hair. "Jinny usually has her way about such things."

"I don't believe it.

He was startled, "Why not?"

"Because you don't look weak-minded. I fancy when you really want a thing you get it."

The flattery was not subtle, but Rickey was young and it went to his head. He visioned himself at once as the conquering male. "Oh, now and then I tell Jinny where to get off."

They laughed together. "Look here," the girl said, suddenly, "have you had luncheon?"

"No."

"Won't you share mine? I had a box put up in Baltimore — Women's Exchange — I adore their food, and I hate to eat alone."

Rickey found himself stammering, "You're very kind —"

She turned on him her sparkling glance, "Don't tell me you're going to be conventional."

"But I don't even know — your name . . ." He felt he was being bromidic, but her technique was new to his experience.

"What difference does that make? We'll be comrades of the road, sharing pot luck."

"Splendid."

He caught up his cap and followed her. As they passed through the garden, Grogan stopped them. "I'm going home for dinner, Mr. Oliphant. Before I come back, you'd better see your sister and get her to change her mind about the candlesticks. Everybody is asking for them."

Rickey had only a half ear for him. "I'll talk to Jinny later."

The girl in the plaid coat led the way to a shining roadster as slim as the greyhound which leaped from its bonnet. "We'll run down to the waterside," she said. "You don't know how glad I am I found you. It's rather ghastly to be alone in a crowd. I was getting fed up on it."

As she drove through the town and out into the open country, she vouchsafed the information which she had hitherto withheld. She was Mary Lee Logan of Memphis. She was buying antiques for the old house in which the Lee-Logans had lived for generations. Her people having been brought to poverty by one war had, quite equitably, been enriched by another.

"Mother has her mind set on having things look as they did in my grandfather's time. I am perfectly willing she should have a Colonial house, if she only wouldn't insist on our living in a mid-Victorian manner. She's adorable, but not up-to-date. All my sisters are cut from mother's pattern. They like to do the things she did when she was a girl. But I'm different. I belong to this generation. Mother's been sensible about it. She says I might as well try things out. She's sure I'll get tired and want to settle down and marry. But I don't intend to marry. I have a voice, and I'm on my way to New York to study music. Some day I'm going to be a great artist."

Rickey turned and looked at her, "I'm going to be a great artist, too."

"Really?"

"Yes. But I shall write."

They were kindled by the thought of mutual aspirations. As the little car flew along, they matched their dreams. The wind sang in the pines. The road between the dark trees was a path to glory. Before they knew it they had reached the Bay.

There they stopped and Mary Lee's glance swept the wide waters — "Did you ever see such color — shall we eat here?"

They descended from the car. Rickey spread the rug, and arranged the cushions, while Mary Lee set forth the feast. Rickey had never seen such a lunch box. Of the finest leather, it was fitted with everything needful in the way of plate and linen and china. And for food there were sandwiches wrapped delicately in waxed paper, a jar of salad, crackers and cheese, fresh fruit, a bottle of coffee, and for dessert, a box of Dutch chocolates tied up in silver and blue.

Rickey ate with an appetite and smiled with content. The girl was charming. He forgot her plaid coat and her plumpness. She was gay, audacious, irresponsible, perhaps a bit sophisticated, but he was having a gorgeous time with her. If now and then there swept across his mind the vision of Marty Van Duyne, whose beauty was food and drink, it was presently forgotten in his enjoyment of real food and of the flatteries of Mary Lee Logan.

Mary Lee's content matched his own. It was not every day that one met a lad like this — slim as a page, poetic as a troubadour, handsome as a Greek god. Her mind dwelt in superlatives as she considered him — that ruffled hair with the wind blowing, and back of him all the blue and white of the Bay.

She made him talk of his book, "Is it written?"

"No. When our things are sold, Jinny and I are going to New York. I shall have a studio. One can do a lot in the right surroundings."

What To-day Means To You

"CAPRICORN"

If January 5th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., and from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. The adverse periods are from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

January 5th holds out many possibilities, and the aspects favor especially all undertakings related to land or real estate. They apparently indicate success from some proposition shelved some time ago, and now unexpectedly resuscitated. A harmonious atmosphere is augured for the evening.

A child born on this January 5th will, as the result of freedom from ailments, have a happy disposition. It will be an enthusiast for games, but will not neglect its work to participate in them. Time will develop its character, and it will, on reaching adulthood, be self-assured, tolerant, and have wide sympathies.

Fate, if January 5th is your birthday, promises to be beneficent and kind. You will have your share of sorrow, but the resiliency of your disposition, combined with a spirit of resignation to the inevitable, will never allow you to be snowed under. You will never take the final count, nor are you of the make-up to throw in the sponge. Your ideals are very high, and you live in the atmosphere which the best in you evolves. You keep your chin up, and, although extremely practical, never allow your actions to be distorted by pettiness of thought or action.

If ambition were one of your assets, you could achieve much. As it is, however, you do not aim to climb any dazzling heights, but are content with a satisfied conscience, and the knowledge that you have done, possibly not your utmost, but your best. Material aggrandizement means nothing to you. High position does not attract you. If you attain any marked degree of popular approval, it will never be because you have sought it, but because it will have been thrust upon you.

Your disposition is an equable one, and criticism is generally disarmed by the "soft answer." On the other hand, you are not a human door mat and without pyrotechnics, you can stand up for your rights. In the home, you are a source of strength, and a boon companion and a faithful mate.

Natives Fire Arrows On Five Missionaries

One of the women was stoned in the face and had to be treated in a hospital at Porthacourt. Their automobiles were targets for arrows of natives in the Opobo district, which December, 1929.

The Mantis replied with great effect, inflicting many casualties. There were no casualties aboard the Mantis.

Confer on Oil Lease Charges

MRS. BLANK

When I first saw a reproduction of Lord Leighton's Helen of Troy I was reported to have said "There's Mrs. Blank, mamma, but where did she get the funny dress?" Mrs. Blank's close waisted, full skirted dress was plainly made, of calico in summer and of home spun flannel in winter, but her white cotton aprons with their deep crochet hems were always the same.

The walk to Blanks was very interesting. We crossed the sheep pasture, over the stone wall past the big grey rock with the cedar tree growing from a crevice at the top, down the lane to the Halfway creek, which we paddled across or walked over on the fallen elm as we felt inclined.

In summer time the water was only a few inches deep and the gravelled bottom, with a calm here and there, showed plainly. But in early spring Halfway covered acres at this point.

We went up the slope past the blackened pine stub which we feared—and hoped—might one day turn into a bear. Just ahead was the big pasture, in June a fairyland of wild roses which bloomed along the stone walls and around the shrub clustered stumps and stone piles. We negotiated this field carefully, first making sure that the Holstein herd sire was no where in the immediate vicinity. We went down the hill to the swale where a corduroy road crossed a little cat tail fringed bridge. During the season blue flag flowered in abundance near at hand, but we hesitated to stp out to pluck them, fearing we might sink in the black marsh.

A five minute walk brought us to the Blank farmyard, to be met with the fierce baying of the gigantic collie whose domain was being invaded. We waited patiently outside the gate until someone appeared to call the dog off. It was usually Mrs. Blank, who walked surely, who said quietly: "Now Gyp. Come in, children. "Gyp shook himself and slunk beneath the barn without a murmur, while we followed Mrs. Blank through the leanto summer kitchen where quilting or rag rug making might be in progress.

Words fail to describe the calm dignity of Mrs. Blank's demeanor, her patience in the everyday worries of life,—which so often betrayed other women into screaming fury. She rarely talked much listening with a quiet smile to the chatter of her husband and her children and her guests. She was said to be the best mother, the best housekeeper and the best cook in X——, and that constituted the highest praise of which X—— was capable.

She had eight children, the four youngest at that time of school age. Her children were never naughty, they never quarreled, they were always clean and neat. They nevere polite and respectful at home and abroad. They led their respective classes in school. They vied with each other in doing chores, keeping the woodbox that bugbear of the average child—filled without suggestion. In short they were model children which every mother in X—— fervently implored her children to copy, rather losing sight of the fact that the example sent by Mrs. Blank in her home had much to do with the behavior of her children.

VARSITY STUDENTS ARE ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson Pleasing Hosts In Their Lakefield Home

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson entertained the Lakefield students now in attendance at Queen's and Toronto Universities in their beautiful home Glen Raffin.

Following the dinner, Mr. Simpson proposing the toast to the King expressed the pleasure it gave Mrs. Simpson and himself to entertain in their own home to students of former days who are now in attendance at Queen's and Toronto and felt himself in rather an unique position in that he had been a student at both universities. He regretted the absence of Leonard and Loretta Gibson and Miss Duff, their honored and respected teacher unfortunately who were unable to be present.

In speaking of the toast to His Majesty, Mr. Simpson referred to the good example set by both the King and his Consort Queen Mary and their family, making special mention of the Prince of Wales who had won a very warm place in the hearts of the Canadian people.

Mr. Todd, one o fthe guests, replied to the toast in a delightfully humorous way.

The toast to the 'old school' was proposed by Sam Spence who spoke of the many valuable lessons he had learned at school and particularly referred to the good foundation he had laid in his work while attending Lakefield High School.

Mary Tanner, one of the guests of the evening, replied in a few appropriate remarks of the many benefits she had felt from her student days at the High School.

Queen's University toast was given vary ably by Gordon Porter and spoke of the broad outlook given to the students in attendance at a university and the benefit felt by the associations with both Professors and fellow students. After suitably honoring the toast it was replied to by Frank Madill, who spoke of Gordon as being mentioned by Mr. Simpson as a splendid leader in his class and he had proved it because Gordon had led him down to Queen's the year following his own entrance.

The toast to Toronto University was given by Mr. Simpson who spoke in the highest terms of the life and benefit of being a student at Toronto. Margaret Tanner replied very suitably.

A toast, not on the program but on which was very appropriate, was gracefully proposed by Sadie Young, who asked the company to drink to the health of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, their host and hostess, who had given them such a splendid evening. Mr. Simpson, in replying, assured them all of the pleasure it gave Mrs. Simpson and himself to have them all present on the occasion which they had so long looked forward to.

Other guests of the evening were Misses Mina and Sadie Young and Miss Mary Tanner who with their former fellow students now in attendance at Universities had brought honor to their school. Five of the young people present had won the county prize at the Entrance Examinations. Miss Blanche Graham was also among the guests.

WARSAW COURSE OPENS TO-DAY

IN ONTARIO COUNTIES

The annual short courses in Agriculture and Home Economics commenced in Warsaw today, and will last until the end of the month. Three classes are conducted by the Peterborough County branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Courses are held in Ontario counties every winter and are conducted by the Department of each county, which selects its own teachers and supplies its own halls and heating. The purpose of these classes is to give boys and girls from 15 to 30 years of age some technical education and a contact with the agricultural colleges and schools. It is impossible to make an exhaustive survey of the subjects treated in the courses, but lectures will be given in a practical concise form by instructors who are specialists in their particular field.

The Warsaw classes are being held in the school building from 9.30 to 12 a.m. and 1.15 to 4.00 p.m., Monday till Friday each week.

The work in the boys' department will be conducted by C. A. Webster, B.S.A., Georgetown. The practical work will include live stock judging, practice in judging grains and roots, identification of weeds and weed seed and milk and cream testing. Lecture work will be based on the following subjects: Live stock, feeds and feeding, poultry, veterinary science, field crops, vegetables and small fruits, bacteriology, insects and fungus diseases, weeds and weed seeds, soils and fertilizers, literary and debating.

The girls' classes will be in charge of Miss Edith Hopkins, Lindsay. Their courses in Household Science will include foods and cookery, laundry, household administration, house planning and decoration. Sewing classes will also be given.

Special public meetings to which everyone will be cordially invited will be held in the Town Hall, Warsaw, as follows: Jan. 6—Poultry: E. T. Marston, B.S.A., St. Williams, Ont.; Jan. 8—Plows and Plowing: Clarke Young, Milliken; Jan. 9—Fruits and Vegetables: J. A. Goldie, B.S.A., Vineland; Jan. 21—Soils and Fertilizers: R. M. McKenzie, B.S.A., Guelph; Jan. 26—Veterinary Science: John Spence, V.S., Bowmanville.

A large enrollment is promised and the courses should be a great success because of their importance in making our farmers more educated and hence wealthier and happier.

LIBERALS SUPPORT HOME RULE IN INDIA

LONDON, Jan. 5 (C.P.) — Lord Reading, speaking officially for the Liberal party, to-day pledged support for full responsible government in India, provided proper safeguards and reservations are made for the "reasonable security" of all interests there. He told the Round Table delegates that the Liberal delegation to the conference would make this recommendation to the Liberal party in the British Parliament.

His statement was generally regarded as the most important yet made by a British delegate. It definitely lines up the Liberals with the Labor party for settlement of the while Indian problem along British Dominion lines. Premier Macdonald's Indian policy has not yet been announced, but it is expected to be much the same as that voiced by Lord Reading.

New South Wales Bank Raises Exchange Rate

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 5.—(C.P. Cable via Reuters) — The Bank of New South Wales, acting independently today announced an increase in its exchange rate to 15 per cent. Other banks of the Commonwealth, after hurried conferences, announced they would reluctantly follow suit, with a rate of 15 per cent for buyers and 15⅛ per cent for sellers, the change being participated in by the Commonwealth bank as well as trading banks.

Premier J. T. Lang of New South Wales said his Cabinet had been in favor of releasing exchange and the Cabinet would consider the development tomorrow. Leading bankers predicted the action forced by the New South Wales Bank would have a further disturbing effect on Australia's financial position, causing outside rates to soar.

TORONTO LIST HOLDS STEADY

Although Several of Leaders Show Slight Reduction From Last Week.

LIGHT TRADING.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(CP)—The market failed to take a stand on the side of either the advance or decline this morning. The volume showed a reduction from that of last week and fluctuations were of a very minor character.

Several of the leaders showed slight reductions from last week but on the whole the list was steady. International Nickel, just under 16, Bell Telephone at 142, Ford of Canada at 22½, Service Stations at 32¼ were unchanged.

Of the oils, B.A. Oil held firm and Supertest moved up ½ point to 30 while Imperial and International Petroleum each lost a minimum fraction. Walkers sold just under its previous closing figure, $7.00 a share.

TECK HUGHES REMAINS FIRM

Irregularities Are Noticed in High-priced Issues on Mining Market.

HOME OIL UNCHANGED.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(CP)—Some irregularity was evident in the higher-priced issues on the Mining Market to-day as a result of profit-taking, but lower-priced stocks were firm to higher in tone.

Wright-Hargreaves eased 9 to $2.06, Vipond 6 to $1.01, Dome 20 to $9.25; Lake Shore 15 to $24.10, while McIntyre in light turnover, displayed softness. Kirkland Lake gold and Sylvanite also appeared reactionary. Barry-Hollinger, at 10½ was up 2½ from Saturday's close. Other lower-priced golds to improve were Bunker Hill E tension and Macassa.

(By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Jan. 5. — The British Board of Film Censors has issued to moving picture companies an admonition concerning "The tendency to produce incidents of prolonged and gross brutality, and sordid themes which are unwholesome and repugnant to large sections of audiences in this country."

The board is a voluntary body but its injunctions are treated with the utmost respect by the entire industry in Britain. The president is Rt. Hon. Edward Shortt, Secretary for Home Affairs from 1919 to 1922.

In future no film will receive the board's approval if its theme "without any redeeming characteristic depends upon intense brutality and unrelieved sordidness."

SEVERAL SIX POINT ADVANCES ARE REGISTERED AT NEW YORK

Further Improvement in Bonds Also Helps General List Advance.

SOME PROFIT-TAKING.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5. (CP)—Good cheer still prevailed in the financial markets at the start of the week.

Last week's 10-point advance, as measured by the average of 90 issues, was wide enough to bring considerable profit taking into the share market and to tempt bears to try for a technical reaction, but news from Washington of partial modification of the packers consent decree bolstered the list after the first hour.

Early losses of 1 to 4 points were mostly recovered by early afternoon, and several shares showed net advances of 1 to 6. Further improvement in bonds also helped stocks.

In the packing stocks, Beechnut, Wilson preferred, and Armour of Delaware and Illinois preferred shares, sold up 2 to more than 3. Several preferred issues elsewhere were inclines to rally. Issues selling up 2 to 3 included Johns Manville, Lamberts, Byers, American Locomotive preferred, &ostal preferred, Second National Investors preferred, and Missouri Kansas Texas preferred. U.S. Steel regained most of a 1½ point loss, and after declining 2 to 4 points, American Telephone, Case, Eastman and Allied Chemical recovered substantially.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The better feeling that was shown towards wheat Friday was again in evidence again Saturday and combined with some good buying by exporters and wire houses, with a fair Saturday business in export sales, the market continued its upward trend, with prices gaining fully two cents from the close Friday night. The market was able to hold the advances, and only slight setbacks took place during the day. The market was quite active during the first hour when a fairly broad trade was passing, but the market turned more or less quiet later, but there was very little pressure in evidence. There was moderate buying by Chicago interests which was understood to be short covering, while some locals who went short on Friday's upturn also covered. The amount of export worked overnight could not be confirmed, but it was around 500,000 bushels. There was also a better inquiry from abroad, probably due to the light shipments this week but whether buying follows this four cent bulge in two days remains to be seen. The demand for cash wheat was generally slow from shippers standpoint but terminals were in the market for certain grades and for which spreads were a fraction better than the previous close. Offerings continue small and there is no selling pressure. There was no change in the flour situation and business continues quiet. Advise caution in following this bulge too far but we believe wheat should be bought with confidence on setbacks of one or two cents. Winnipeg futures closed 2 to 1 7-8 higher.

Coarse Grains—These markets were all higher and were following the trend of wheat largely, but there is a good demand for some Coarse Grains from terminal interests, while offerings are limited and only small lots were trading. Oats closed 1¼ higher. Barley 1½ to 1 3-4 higher. Rye 1 3-8 to 1 5-8 higher.

Flax—This market showed strength in sympathy with the general upward tendency in the general grain list, and prices closed, 1 7-8 to 3¼ cents higher.

Liverpool due 1 1-8 higher based on Winnipeg.

If this attempt is successful, they said, they will try a non-stop flight from Marseilles to Rio de Janeiro.

PACKERS CONSENT DECREE MODIFIED.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (C.P.). — The packers consent decree was modified to-day to allow the four leading groups of packers to handle vegetables, fruits, milk, coffee, teas, cereals and a number of other products up to the doors of retail grocery stores.

They were not allowed, however, under the decision of Justice Jennings Bailey in the district of Columbia Supreme Court, to engage in the retailing of meats or other products.

These were the high points in Justice Bailey's ruling in a case which has been in the courts in one form or another almost since the decree was entered into between the packers and the Government in February, 1930.

TRANSFER OF LABOR TO NEW FIELDS OUTSTANDING PROBLEM IN BRITAIN

50 YEARS GROWTH IN TEN.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 5. —(CP)— Transfer to new fields of employment of workers who are suffering from reduced markets was described as the chief problem facing Britain today by Sir William Clark British High Commissioner, during an address before a service club here.

Choosing the cotton industry as an example, Sir William stated that while some gradual reduction in exports of cottons had been anticipated in the future, no one had realized the effect that war might have. During the war cotton spinning had been enormously increased in countries formerly the best customers for the products of Lancashire and higher protective tariffs were now facing the English exporter. Competition that, but for the war, would have been slow in growth had been tremendously accelerated. "Developments," he said "which might normally have been spread over some 50 years have been telescoped into ten."

Something of the same kind had happened with other staple industries —iron and steel, ship building and coal. Men formerly employed in these industries must be absorbed in other kinds of work. "How the process of transition is to be speeded up and the transfer of labor to other employment expedited," Sir William said, "is the outstanding problem of the day and it would be idle to pretend that a solution of it has yet been found."

No Hockey, No Skating Brock St. Rink To-night

Saturday Night's Ice Went Faster Than Expected.

The ice at Brock Street Rink was in grand condition Saturday morning, and it was expected that the weather would have turned colder by night, but such was not the case, and as a result it cut up badly with Saturday night's skating. Two hockey games are scheduled for to-night, which will be postponed, and the ice built up again, as it is not intended there shall be any skating nights advertised unless the ice is good.

GOLD OUTPUT SETS RECORD

30 Years of Progress is Noted in Annual Report.

DOUBLED SINCE 1900.

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—(Special to The Examiner:—The preliminary Dominion Bureau of Statistics statement of Canadian mineral production for the calendar year 1930 laconically remarked that gold production of the country 'passed the two million ounce mark for the first time. "This accomplished rounds out a thirtyyear period of progress in the gold mining industry. Since the turn of the century Canadian gold output has virtually doubled compared with those years between 1906 and 1911 it has about quadrupled.

Since the year 1921 each annual summary has placed gold output higher than in the preceding year. With 1930 the Dominions production has reached a point which shows a great deal more than a complete recovery from the slump which occurred in the early years of the present century and continued well on through the war period. This decline was due to working out of the placer deposits in the Yukon and British Columbia, and the recovery due to increases in output of the two important Ontario camps. This province is estimated to have produced over $35,500,000 of the $43,200,000 preliminary 1930 total for the whole country.

The gain in gold production last year approximated 8 per cent. It is to be noted that the estimated total exceeded the recent estimate of the gold committee of the league of nations by nearly $3,000,000 the production of Porcupine was down about 9 per cent due to the fact the Dome will was not operating, but this was more than made up by Kirkland Lake output which was up 22 per cent.

In 1931 gold production will be to the fore and it seems certain, output again will exceed the league of natiqns estimate which had Canada booked for a production of $43,000,000 by 1935.

Matachewan Argyle syndicate controlling a group of eleven claims in the Matachewan district north of the Ashley-Garyay showing of Mining Corporation has been formed with a capitalization of $100,000 divided into 2,000 units of $50 each. J. T. Eastwood and Co local house, are offering 1,500 units Work is expected to get under way in the near future.

A total of 871,072 shares of Noranda were turned over last year on the Standard stock and mining exchange and $73,550 shares on the New York Curb. Local brokerage clerks report considerably heavier sales have been registered in New York in this stock in recent months. This is taken as an indication Canadian interests are holding their shares, and with some accumulation evident, a movement of stock from New York to Toronto has been noted of late

GOLD STOCKS

In a year of acute market depression where downward prices of stocks has been the dismal feature, it is interesting to note that Canadian Gold Stocks not only have been little affected by the downward trend, but have actually enhanced in value during the slump. Some of the gold stocks which are strongly recommended for accumulation are:

Name	Market Price	Dividend	Yield
McIntyre	19.85-20.50	$1.00	5 %
Hollinger	6.25- 6.30	.65	9.8 %
Dome	9.00- 9.05	1.00	11. %
Lake Shore	23.50-24.00	1.20	5. %
Teck-Hughes	6.25- 6 30	.60	9.8%
Wright-Hargreaves	1.87- 1.89	.20	10.8%
Sylvanite	.48— .49	.04	9.9%

32,000 WEAVERS TO STRIKE

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, aJn. 5. — Thirty-two thousand weavers affiliated with the Textile Trades Union are affected by a strike order issue to-day, calling out workers from all mills in which employers have decided to cut wages beginning January 12. Negotiations looking toward a compromise were ineffectual and the strike is scheduled to begin on the date set for the wage reduction.

DOMINION FAVORS

was also $38,000,000 greater than the single-stage cost estimate of the United States section of the Joint Board of Engineers.

Cost Details.

This increased cost factor was, however, dealt with by the Canadian engineers in comparing their double-stage development with the single-stage proposal originally made by the United States engineers. They claimed money would be saved to Canada because their would be less waste land through flooding under the double-stage proposal Also that the double-stage proposal would make available a large block of power about three years earlier than would be possible with a single-stage project. It was also claimed power could be made available from the upper stage of the development without the necessity of world for deep navigation.

Until the new scheme advocated by the New York State Commission is submitted to Washington, and the Federal Government of the United States draws it to the attention of Canada, the view is expressed here that it will not become an important factor in negotiations which will probably be resumed for the construction of the waterway.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—After unhorsing and disarming a mounted traffic policeman, nine men jumped from two cars ad held up a Marshall Field and Company truck near the Merchanise Mart to-day. They escaped with $160 in Canadian money and an undetermined amount of money orders and checks.

57 Saved As Dredge Sinks In Collision

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (C.P.).—Fifty-seven officers and men were rescued from the sinking army dredge Raitan, which settled to the bottom of New York harbor thirty minutes after it was rammed by the liner City of Montgomery.

The ship, inward bound from Savannah with passengers, ran down the dredge in a heavy haze that lay over the harbor. The mail boat President and a police launch, which were nearby, rescued all but two of the crew after they took off from the damaged craft in lifeboats. The City of Montgomery docked with her bow damaged.

The last two, who clung to the mainmast as the dredge settled into the water, were rescued by two sailors from the President, who rowed to them in a small boat.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH S.S. PRESENTS ANNUAL CONCERT

Concludes Successful Anniversary Services For Millbrook United Church

PLEASING PROGRAM

MILLBROOK, Jan. 5. (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual entertainment in connection with the Sunday school of Saint Andrew's United Church, held on New Year's night, completed the anniversary occasion of which the initial services were successfully observed the previous Sunday, an audience gathering that filled the basement, and an excellent program being presented by the pupils of the school.

W. F. Fallis, superintendent, welcomed the large gathering, in his capacity as chairman, the opening number being a motion song by the primary department, which with the girls of Miss Luxon's class, the children winning all hearts, and particularly the tiny tots in the row immediately in front of the footlights, as they sang, "Naughty Master Tom" and "The Rainy Day." A very pretty scarf drill followed by seven girls of Miss Charlotte Luxon's class, Beatrice McDowell, Dorothy Raper, Kathleen Smith, who carried the Union Jack, Audrey Garside, Barbara Argue, and Prudie Davis. The girls looked quite trim in white middies and navy skirts, and the boys of Mrs. Hilliard Lang's class, who came next on the platform, were cheerily whistling the air of their chorus, "Where the Morning Glories Grow" until all were in place, and the verses were sung.

A number that particularly appealed to the audience was the "Hiawatha Hunting Drill", by the boys of Mrs. I. M. Nattress' class, their Indian costumes being most realistic, and the various figures, with bow and arrows poised for flight, and again in ambush behind the trees at the rear of the stage, winning well-merited applause. Selections from "Hiawatha" were given in song and story, and the second scene showed all grouped about the campfire for the final chorus and tableau. Those taking part were: Charlie Guthrie, Reg. Edmunds, Leon Raper, Elwood Fallis, Kenneth Little, Lloyd McMahon, Arthur Richards, Clendon Challice, Eric Fallis, and Allen Earle, little Cameron Sutton, with a handsome Indian suit, forming a 'mascot' for the 'tribe'.

Kitchen Orchestra

The young ladies of Miss Estelle Hetherington's class also made a 'hit' with their "Kitchen Orchestra" the 'music' being supplied by Misses Francis Jones and Marian O'Brian washing dishes; Marian Earle, churning; Beatrice Jones and Verna Fallis vigorously rubbing and wringing clothes; Jean Stinson using an egg-beater; Phyllis Kidd ironing; Bertha Lang mixing a cake; Margaret Luxon sifting flour, and Sadie Rowland pushing a carpet-sweeper. To add to the harmony each girl had a kazoo, and little Teddy Stinson, in cook's cap and apron, acted as conductor for the singing of a medley of old-fashioned airs. The second scene revealed the group toasting marshmallows about a campfire, and singing, as their closing chorus, "Gee, But I'd Like to Make You Happy."

The Men's Bible class contributed two songs, "Jack's at Sea", and "There's Something in the Name of Ireland" nearly thirty members making a fine showing as they came to the platform; and little Nan Fallis, with her recitation, "Holiday Weather" had a hearty handclap, as did also the pupils from Fallis Line school, who repeated, by request, their recital of the Christmas story from Saint Matthew and Saint Luke, with the songs, "Away in a Manger" and "Can a Little Child Like Me", their teacher, Miss Jean Burnham, having this under her direction.

A short play, "Aunt Mary's Visit" was the contribution of the Boneka Bible Class to the evening's entertainment, the characters being: Rosalie, Mrs. Lavergne Fallis; Felicia, Mrs. Weston Fallis; maid, Mrs. Theobald; Aunt Mary, Mrs. George Fallis; dressmaker, Mrs. E. Thornton; mother, Mrs. Fred Smith.

W. A. O'Brian's class, each member wearing a bright red bow-tie, sang, "Betty Co-Ed" and one of the Tuxis Square, John Thomas, did some clever athletic stunts. The encore to the chorus was, "Give Yourself a Pat on the Back." The girls of Miss Jean Burnham's class presented, "The Changing of the Seasons", their dainty costumes being very attractive and the pretty dance step also a pleasure to the onlookers. Spring was represented by Peggy Howe, Kathleen Smith and Esther Might, in soft green dresses, and carrying a rope of roses; Summer by Marie Douglas, Marjorie McDowell and Audrey Garside, in shades of pink, with wreaths of roses; Autumn by Kathleen and Prudie Davis, and Ida Lunn, each carrying a basket of red flowers, and scattering colored leaves as they tripped forward to the footlights; Winter by Mary Ball, Muriel Clarke and Lois Dawson, each in white and waving a silver-tipped wand, finally subduing all the other seasons to their sway.

Old Fashioned Quintet

The boys of Mr. C. C. Garside's class supplied a musical selection, in which however only four took part, the teacher, Ernest Powell and Gerald Todd with mouth organs, Bill Byam with guitar, playing old-fashioned airs; an encore was demanded, and "The Church in the Wildwood" was the response. Earlier in the evening William Byam and Ernest Powell played a duet with guitar and violin when Mr. O'Brian's class was taking its share of the program, and were heartily encored.

Audrey Garside won popularity with her musical reading, "How the Elephant Got Its Trunk" and as a closing number the lovely "Poinsettia Drill" by the girls of Mrs. O. Williamson's class, brought a most entertaining program to a fitting close. The girls were all in white, with red caps, red girdles and a big red poinsettia at the back, and each carried a long red petal with which many beautiful combinations were made during the course of the several figures. Those in the drill were: Bonna Clarke, Ethel Rowland, Louise Widdis, Bryar Edmunds, Mary Burnham, Helen Mitchell, Vera Fallis, Martha Earle, May Ferren, Charlotte McMahon, Margaret Smith and Janet Dawson.

The accompanists of the evening were Misses Francis Jones, who had the major part of the playing; Mary Burnham, Dorothy McDowell, and Estelle Hetherington. B. B. Dawson, Cadet Instructor, was thanked for his services in training for the various drills, an activity in which Mr. Dawson excells, and the singing of the National Anthem brought the annual event to its conclusion.

ELEVEN KILLED BY AVALANCHES

Several Parties Buried Alive By Avalanches in the Alps Mountains.

SIX IN ONE PARTY.

GRENOBLE, France, Jan. 5—Avalanches near here took a toll of eleven lives. In an Alps pass an avalanche at the Franco-Italian frontier not far from Briancon when a snowslide estimated at from 25 to 30 feet high crashed down upon them. Theodore Webaux, one of the most prominent cotton manufacturer of Roubaix, his two sons, and Henry Bousquet, a member of the French council of state, were among the six.

Near Moutiers four young skiers from Paris, attempting to climb to Croix Des Frettes Pass, 8,000 feet high, are believed to have been overwhelmed by an avalanche. Nothing has been heard from them although they should have been back long ago.

Two Paris students, Robert Jones and Robery Midy were skiing at a height of 8,000 feet near Abriers when they were caught in an avalanche. Jones managed to extricate himself, but his friend was buried under many feet of snow.

Border Immigration Discussed At Windsor

WINDSOR, Jan. 5.—"Undoubtedly the unemployment situation in the border has been aggravated by the deportation of workers from Detroit," said Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor yesterday. "The problem will likely come before the cabinet, and it will be given thorough consideration."

Denying the report that he was en route to Washington, to discuss the matter with United States authorities and declaring that his visit to Windsor was not of an offical nature, the minister refused to give any definite interview or make any statement regarding information he had obtained.

For nearly three hours he conferred with members of the immigration committee of the Border Chamber of Commerce and members of parliament. The particular question discussed was the problem of the commuters and the many deportations which have been placed in effect by the United States immigration officials.

SEVEN ARE INJURED AS TRAINS COLLIDE

Trains Carrying Delegates to Convention Collide in Windsor Station.

WINDSOR, Ont., January 5. (C.P.)—Seven persons suffered minor injuries yesterday when two sections of a special Michigan Central train, carrying delegates to a convention, collided in the Windsor station during a heavy fog.

The collision occurred when the first section of the train was waiting to be pulled through the tunnel by an electric mogul. At the rear of this section was a light engine which had just been uncoupled after shunting the section into the tunnel siding.

This engine was rammed in the rear by the second section, a heavy train of ten coaches forcing it against the rear end of the first section.

Havelock Citizens Called By False Alarm

HAVELOCK, Jan. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—In the early hours of Sunday morning the citizens of Havelock were awakened by the sounding of the fire siren, but no evidence of a fire was to be found when they responded to the call.

In a village like this where fire protection is entirely voluntary this sort of thing is very annoying, as anyone who would call people from their beds in early morning hours, has a queer sense of humor.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Covered With Boils on Arms, Back and Neck

Miss Margaret Higgins, Dyment, Ont., writes:—"I was covered with boils on my arms, face and neck. I used plasters and other remedies with no results. My attention was drawn to Burdock Blood Bitters, so I decided to get a bottle. The results were marvellous, as in no time the boils had completely disappeared, and my skin was clearer and fresher than ever."

Mr. and Mrs. John Bradburn Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary Of Wedding

IN GOOD HEALTH

MILLBROOK, Jan. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—A pleasant surprise was prepared for Mr. and Mrs. John Bradburn, Cavan, on Christmas Eve when intimate relatives gathered at their home to mark the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day.

The bride and groom of half a century are in good health, though they are well up in years, and the presentation of a lovely clock as an expression of the congratulations and best wishes of their friends added to the pleasure of the anniversary occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradburn's wedding ceremony was performed by the late Venerable Archdeacon Allen, and their home for some time was in Michigan, but for the past seventeen years has again been in Cavan; their bridesmaid was Mrs. Elizabeth Williamson now of Peterborough and their groomsman, Teasdale Harkness, of Ida.

The guests who were present on Christmas Eve for the informal celebration of the golden wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harkness, Millbrook; Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. George Sisson, Mrs. S. English and Mrs. J. Braithwaite, all of Cavan, and all of whom are sisters of Mrs. Bradburn; Mr. T. G. Harkness is a brother. Another sister, Mrs. Jennie Johnston, resides at Kitiscottie, Alberta.

Refreshments were served the guests, whose arrival was entirely unexpected by the host and hostess, before departure was made for their several homes.

BOVRIL MAKES ONE STRONG

A BEDTIME STORY

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ICE SKATES.

"My goodness! There goes another one!" exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in the kitchen of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one morning. "That's the second in a little while!"

"What is it, Nurse Jane?" asked Mr. Longears, thrusting the point of his pink, twinkling nose through a crack in the kitchen door. "Did you see a second Bad Chap?"

"Oh, no, nothing like that!" answered the muskrat lady housekeeper, with a laugh that made her whiskers curl around the back of her neck. "Come in if you like, Uncle Wiggily," she went on, "and I'll tell you all about it."

"Thanks!" said the rabbit gentleman and then he followed his pink nose into the kitchen.

In the morning, when she was getting breakfast for the forty sixteen little bunny rabbit children, Nurse Jane never liked Uncle Wiggily nor his wife to come into her kitchen. She said it "fussed" her. So when Mr. Longears this morning heard Nurse Jane speaking all he dared to do at first was to thrust in his nose. Nurse Jane couldn't say much if he just put his nose in. But when she invited him all the way, Uncle Wiggily quickly entered. He saw Nurse Jane holding the handle of a frying pan in one paw and the pan part in the other.

"This is the second frying pan that the handle has come off from this morning!" squeaked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "I don't know what's the matter. As soon as I pick them up the handles break off."

"Maybe they have caught cold," suggested Mr. Longears.

"Nonsense!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "How could a frying pan that I put on a HOT stove catch COLD, pray tell me?"

"Well, maybe they caught hot instead of catching cold," went on the rabbit gentleman.

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Nurse Jane again. "But if this other frying pan loses its handle," she went on, "I don't know what I'll do, for I will have none left in which to cook the children's carrot mush. I wonder what's gotten into the frying pans all of a sudden?"

"I'll take these two broken pans to the tinker's so he can fasten the handles back on," offered Uncle Wiggily. "And if the third handle comes off, Nurse Jane, I'll be back with these two mended ones soon."

"You'll have to hurry!" spoke Nurse Jane. "For I want to give the bunny boys and girls their breakfast so they won't be late for school."

"I'll hurry!" said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose. Taking the two pans under one paw and with the broken off handles under his other paw Mr. Longears started for the shop of the jolly tinker dog who mended pots and pans for the animal folk of Woodland in the Orange Ice Mountains, where Uncle Wiggily lived.

As soon as the rabbit gentleman was out of his hollow stump bungalow he found it was very cold. It had rained in the night, but now the rain had frozen and the ground was slippery with snow and ice.

"I can slide half way to the jolly tinker's," thought Uncle Wiggily, "and hop the other half. Then I'll get there quickly."

Then Uncle Wiggily happened to think of taking a short cut across the duck pond near his home.

"The duck pond will be frozen now," thought Mr. Longears, "and I can walk across the ice on that, sliding when I feel like it, and I'll get to the tinker's much more quickly."

So Uncle Wiggily, carrying the pans under one paw and the long, shiny handles under the other paw, started across the frozen duck pond. But he had not gone far before he heard a noise behind him and, turning, he saw the Bob Cat coming after him.

"Clickity, clackity!" went the Bob Cat's paw nails on the ice. Uncle Wiggily began to run, but the Bob Cat ran faster. Then Uncle Wiggily began to slip on the ice.

"Oh," he thought, "if I only had a pair of skates I could easily skate away from this Bob Cat. Oh, for some skates!" Then he thought of the handles of the frying pans. "Why, if I could fasten them on my paws they would be like ice skates!" thought the rabbit, as he ran on ahead of the Bob Cat. Uncle Wiggily looked back again. The Bob Cat had slipped and fallen down. Boom!

"Now is my chance!" cried Uncle Wiggily. Tearing his handkerchief into strips he tied the long frying pan handles on his feet for skates and then, as the Bob Cat got up to chase him again, the rabbit gentleman skated away from the Bad Chap over the ice as fast as the wind. On and on skated Uncle Wiggily until he got to the other side of the frozen duck pond. Then, before the Bob Cat could catch up to him, Mr. Longears hopped into the jolly tinker's shop and he was safe.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5.—Prices were unchanged on the produce and dairy market here Saturday.

Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized butter was quoted at 31c to 31½c a pound and to retailers solids were 33c and prints 34c a pound. Receipts for the week were 2,937 boxes.

Trading was very light in Ontario cheese last week, receipts amounting to only 90 boxes, selling at 11c to 11¼c a pound.

On the egg market, Ontario fresh extras, in carlots, were quoted at 40c, rats 32c, pullets 30c and seconds 26c a dozen. British Columbia extras were 40c, firsts 33c to 35c and pullets 30c a dozen. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Last week's receipts were 7,463 cases.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots, were 85c per 90 pounds, bulk, and to retailers 95c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Influenced by suggestions of a loan to China to permit large imports of wheat, the grain market scored new upturns Saturday. As a plausible basis for the proposed loan, it was reported that wheat can now be furnished to the Orient cheaper than traders there can supply rice. On the other hand, skeptics here pointed to civil war in China as likely to prevent loan negotiations making much progress.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-8c to 3-4c higher. Corn unchanged to 1c up; oats, 1-4c to 5-8c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 5. — Another day of good buying brought further advances to the wheat market on Saturday, values at the close ranging 1⅞ to 2 cents a bushel higher. At the peak the May future showed a gain of 2¼ cents, reaching 58¾, but it closed at 58¼. July finished at 58⅝ to 59⅛ cents.

Moderate export trade, excellent buying through commission houses, and stronger Liverpool cables and Buenos Aires advances, all contributed to the better tone here.

Sentiment generally was much more friendly to the market, and it looked as though the wheat was passing into strong hands. Southern interests and other large concerns appeared to be investing at present levels and a broader European demand for Canadian wheat is anticipated.

There was a fair demand for cash wheat during the session, but the coarse grain markets were slow, though values held higher.

Futures:

Every man ought to have an interest outside of his business and the biggest and the best interest he can have is the improvement of the city in which his business is located. This is the view of the Chamber of Commerce.

LIFFORD, January 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — The marriage of Gladys Viola, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Spiers, of Franklin, and Mr. Douglas Deyell, son of Mrs. L. C. Deyell of Toronto, and the late David Deyell, took place quietly in Lindsay on Tuesday December 30, Rev. T. E. Holling officiating. The bride looked charming attired in a gown of French beige georgette and gold lace, with hat and shoes to match.

Following the ceremony the happy couple left for Toronto to make a brief stay with the groom's mother previous to leaving for their new home in Swastika, New Ontario where the groom holds a prominent position on the teaching staff.

The bride travelled in a gown of brown crepe romaine and Hudson seal coat, with hat, bag and gloves in gold color.

Previous to her marriage, over 80 of the friends of Miss Spier gathered at her home to present her with a miscellaneous shower. Guests motored from Lindsay, Reaboro, and Peterborough, as well as several from Franklin district. The evening was spent in cards and dancing. Mr. Sandy Veals made a pleasing address, which was followed by a reply by Miss Spiers. The large gathering was served with an abundance of dainty refreshments. At the close of the Public School for vacation, the pupils presented their teacher with a silver cake basket.

Montreal Maroons Take Canadian Group Lead

TORONTO LEAFS BEAT CANUCKS 2-1 TO TIE FLYING FRENCHMEN FOR 2ND PLACE IN STANDINGS

Jackson and Bailey Score For Winners—S. Mantha Tallies For Losers.

RECORD ATTENDANCE.

Last Period Rally Enables Maroons to Take 5-3 Decision From Bruins.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(By the Canadian Press.)—Four clubs in the Canadian group of the National Hockey League were victorious in the week-end schedule of five games.

Montreal Maroons snatched the leadership from their intra-city rivals, Canadiens, by scoring a surprise win over Boston, leaders of the United States' division, 5 to 3. The Habitants were the only senior group team to lose. They clashed with Toronto Maple Leafs in an inter-sectional struggle and finished on the short end of a 2 to 1 count, and are now deadlocked with the Leafs for second place honors. New York Americans kept within striking distance of Toronto and thed Flying Frenchmen by registering an easy 5 to 0 victory over Philadelphia and are only one point from the second rung.

Ottawa Senators halted their long string of defeats at nine by trouncing Philadelphia on Saturday night but they had to go into overtime to do it, finally winning.

A suspicion is becoming prevalent that Chicago's early season string of triumphs which gave them a commanding lead on their rivals, was more or less a flash in the pan. Playing at home Sunday they lost their second straight game to Detroit Falcons, who are now within a point of the third place New York Rangers, who in turn are just two points behind the Blackhawks.

In a hockey way the Canadien-Toronto tilt was probably the highlight of the week-end program. A new attendance record for professional hockey was established and thousands were turned away, testifying the great drawing powers of Montreal's colorful Habitants.

Goal-keeping by Lorne Chabot, which bordered on the sensational, was the main factor in Les Canadiens' defeat. They outshot their rivals and outplayed them, but simply could not outguess the Port Arthur boy in the Leafs' net.

Youthful Harvey Jackson snared "Hanoy" Day's rebound to give the Torontonians the lead late in the opening frame.

The Canucks knotted the count after seven minutes had elapsed in the second period when "Steamer" Mantha propelled the rubber from end to end and back-handed a shot into the Leaf cage which Chabot never saw. It didn't take the home club long to gain a lead, however, when "Ace" Bailey barged his past three Canadiens to snare Andy Blair's rebound and score less than four minutes later.

During the remainder of the period and particularly during the last half of the final frame the 9,000 fans were on the verge of hysterics as the Habitants unloosed a sustained attack which threatened every moment to end in the tieing counter being notched.

Maroons gave their large following at Montreal a real old-fashioned thrill when they notched four splendid goals in the last period to overcome Boston's two-goal lead and win by a margin of two points.

Art Ross' collection of all-stars started like certain winners when "Dit" Clapper opened the scoring with a pretty goal less than four minutes after the start. Dave Trottier stickhandled from end to end less than a minute later, however, and tied the score.

Goals from the stick of Art Chapman and Clapper late in the middle frame appeared to have the game clinched for the Bruins and there was not much merriment among the Maroon supporters when the last 20 minutes got under way.

Win for Maroons.

Jimmy Ward, Nels Stewart, and Hooley Smith apparently had a different viewpoint than the fans. Ward reduced the Boston margin in less than four minutes. Stewart then put the Maroons in the lead with a pretty brace of goals on passes from Smith.

The cellar occupants of their respective sections, Ottawa and Philadelphia, provided Quaker City fans with a hard fought nip and tuck struggle. The teams scored two goals apiece in the first frame and one each in the third to send the game in overtime. Hec Kilrea and Joe Lamb settled the result with two well earned goals before the Quakers scored in the last minutes of play.

Playing on successive nights proved too much for the Philadelphia, for they fell easy victims to the close checking Americans at New York.

Sinks First Goal.

Pat Patterson started the Amerks on the road to victory in the first frame, and Billy Burch, Red Dutton, and Normie Himes made it four to nothing before the second period ended. Bert Hughes notched the final marker in the last session.

Chicago fans did not take kindly to the defeat of the Black Hawks, and staged several mild demonstrations over official rulings. All the scoring was accomplished in the final chapter, the Falcons taking the lead on goals by Larry Aurie and Herbie Lewis, before the Hawks countered with a tally by Tommy Cook.

Puts Leafs in Lead

"ACE" BAILEY

Taking a pass from Blair, Bailey placed the rubber next the twine for the last and winning counter of the Toronto's 2—1 win over Montreal Canadiens on Saturday.

GUELPH CREATES THREE POINT TIE

Defeats Niagara Falls 3-2 in Ontario Hockey League Fixture.

SECOND STRAIGHT WIN.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(By the Canadian Press.)—Guelph created a triple tie for first place in the Ontario Hockey League Saturday night by defeating Niagara Falls, 3 to 2, in the only fixture played.

It was the Maple Leafs second straight victory and the Cataracts' second defeat. Three quick goals, two by Randle and one by 'Buck' Moore, after the Niagara club had taken an early lead, clinched victory for the Leafs.

Westwick opened the scoring for Niagara three minutes after the start but for the balance of the period the Leafs outplayed their opponents. After a scoreless middle session Westwick reduced Guelph's lead by scoring his second goal halfway through the final chapter.

Three games will be played tonight with the leading teams, Galt, Stratford and Guelph, swinging into action. The former entertain the Cataracts, while Stratford Nationals journey to Guelph. Oshawa and Kitchener meet at the latter city in a battle to decide which will vacate the cellar.

N.B.A. States Vote Against Schmeling

CHICAGO, January 5 (C.P.).—Early returns from the National Boxing Association's mail vote on a proposal to oust Max Schmeling as heavyweight champion, indicate the German will be without a title as far as the N. B. A. is concerned.

Ten states have sent in their votes to Major-General John V. Chain, president of the N.B.A., and eight have voted to vacate the throne. One other state recommended Schmeling be given 30 days to sign for a championship before vacating. The remaining state recommended 90 days before acting.

Joe Turnesa Wins Miami Golf Honors

MIAMI, Florida, January 5 (C. P.). — Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N.Y., professional, has succeeded to the Miami open golf title, relinquished voluntarily by Gene Sarasen, who had held it for four successive years.

With an almost mechanical tally of 73-73-7-4-74--29b, Turnesa yesterday blew off the lid of Florida's golfing treasure hunt.

Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N.Y., Henry Cluet, Stratford, Conn., and Eddie Williams, of Cleveland, tied at 295 to rank next to the winner.

MAROONS GAIN TOP POSITION CANUCK GROUP

Canadiens Given Setback as Result of Ross' Squad Victory Over Bruins.

TOTAL OF 23 POINTS.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5. —(CP)—The goddess of goals sprinkled her largess over the National Hockey League during the week-end, and some fairly high scores helped the averages, as a result, the world finds today that Montreal Maroons are leading the Canadian section, instead of the perennially leading Canadiens. In the American loop, Boston is still far in front, two full games ahead of the Chicago Blackhawks, who, for a time, threatened to make a runaway of the race.

As things stand now, Maroons have a total of 23 points, one full game behind are their fellow-citizens and Toronto Leafs. Just one half game further back are New York Americans, and Ottawa broke their long losing streak by downing Philadelphia. The Bytown boys have now won four games and tied one this season.

Boston has 26 points, Chicago is in undisputed possession of second place with 23; Rangers are next with 20, and Detroit is just one point behind. In last place, of course, is the luckless Philadelphia entry, The Phillies have won only one game this year and tied the same number.

Howie Morenz of Canadiens is still the leading scorer in his group, Morenz has scored 15 goals and five assists for 20 points, while next in order is Irvin Bailey of Toronto, with ten goals and seven assists. Ebbie Goodfellow, Detroit, has an even higher tally for the American section, with 15 goals and eight assists. Next in line is Bun Cook of Rangers, with 11 and nine respectively.

Primeau, of Toronto, is the leading helper of the Canadian section, with nine assists, while Boucher of Rangers, has 11 in the opposition loop.

There seems to be quite a war for the honor of scoring most shutouts. Up to last night, the Maple Leafs had the honor, with six. Four were scored by Chabot and two by Grant who was sold recently. However, last night Worters, of Americans, blanked the Phillies and now has six unassisted. Gardner, of Chicago holds this year's American section with five.

The same two unfortunates are bowed down with a load of penalties whether they are just unlucky in that the referee is looking, or what it is, Shore of Boston and Alex Smith, Ottawa, have more penalties than any two others. Shore has spent 65 minutes in the cooler, while Alex has been in there 55 minutes.

ACTION APLENTY IN C. G. E. LOOP OPENING TILTS

Feature Tangle Between Draftsmen and Office Clerks is Nip and Tuck Battle.

Switchmen Blank Took Makers

Machine Shop No. 2 Wins 1-0 Decision From Office No. 2 Squad.

Action, and plenty of it, was the keynote of the three game hockey program at the Brock street arena on Saturday afternoon, when six teams were engaged in the opening games of the C. G. E. Shop Hockey League.

The feature on the bill was the senior tangle between last year's rivals, the Drafting Room and Office No. 1, which resulted in a 1-1 tie and despite poor ice conditions, was a nip and tuck battle from start to finish.

In the first game of the day the Switchgear Department distinctly outclassed the Tool Room, No. 2 team, to take a 5-0 decision, and in the second battle the Machine Shop No. 2 won from the Office No. 2 team 1-0 in a very close checking affair.

The Drafting Office game started off with plenty of speed, but during the first period almost no attempt was made at combination, both teams being inclined to bunch. The play was fairly even until the Office ran into a flock of penalties and for a few minutes the vicious attack by the Draftsmen at this period was successfully weathered, and towards the end of the session the Office had a decided advantage, and only the steady work of Kearns in the Drafting net kept the Pen Pushers from scoring. The gunning of Williams, O'Toole and Tuck on the forward line of the Office was well timed and accurate, but they lacked finish around the net, and on two occasions perfect passes to centre in front of the Drafting citadel were not received.

In the second stanza the Drafting took the offensive and launched three men attacks on the Office cage, which kept Tommy Miller on his toes. Ken Miller, playing on the Office defence for the first time, was a real bulwark and shattered several drafting attacks. Rooke, Palmer and Meagher, on the Drafting attacking line, proved to be effective checkers. The Drawing Makers resorted to combination near the end of this frame, and the first goal came as a direct result, when Palmer made a snappy pass to Allen, who found the Office net. Play ranged from end to end during the remainder of the period and the Office tallied the tying goal with two minutes to go, when O'Toole whipped a shot at Kearns from a scramble in front of the Drafting net.

The final frame uncovered some torrid hockey, but soft ice made puck carrying practically impossible. Masterson and Allen were the best for the Draftsmen in this period, doing some very accurate shooting. Howe and Davidson teamed up well on the Drafting defence, using their weight to advantage, and both looked dangerous on some puck carrying attacks.

The teams:

Drafting Room: Goal, Kearns; defence, Howe and Davis; centre, Palmer; wings, Meagher and Rooke; alternate, Masterson and McLeish.

Office No, 1: Goal, Tom Miller; defence, Ken Miller and Williams; centre, Tuck; wings, Gray and O'Toole; alternates, Playford and Payne.

Summary.

First period: No score.

Second period: Drafting (Palmer) 12.00.

Office: O'Toole, 14.00.

Third period: No score.

Penalties: Playford, Williams, Miller, Davis, Palmer.

Referee: O' Kenneally.

Switchgear versus Tool Room No. 2.

The Switchgear Department trotted out a much improved team having added Whatley from the Office and Cadd, a fast forward, who is well known as a juvenile ball player, while the Tool Room ranks are depleted somewhat, and with the exception of Carlos Routley in goal, are a very mediocre aggregation.

The first period was a scoreless, close checking spree which revealed very little good hockey, but in the second the Switchmakers cut loose and bagged three goals in quick succession in a brilliant display of combination playing to practically cinch the game. Heal netted two goals on passes from Higgins and Cadd while Whatley tallied the third unassisted.

The teamwork of the Switchgear crew gave them the edge in the third frame also, although A. Griffin, Earle and Ridley kept Hope in the Switchgear net busy with long accurate shots. Cadd scored twice for the winners in this session, on both occasions, beating Routley from close in after lone rushes.

Despite the lopsided score Routley played a nice game for the Tool makers in goal but was given poor protection by the defence.

The teams:

Tool Room No 2: Goal, Routley, defence, A. Griffin and H. Griffin; centre, Muir; wings, Earle and Ridley; alternates, Fanning, Botterson and McKevin.

Penalties: Earle, H. Griffin and A. Griffin.

Summary.

First period: No score.

Second period: Switchgear, Heal (Cadd) 1.00.

Switchgear: Heal (Higgins) 6.00.

Switchgear: Whatley (Higgins) 10.00

Third period: Switchgear, Cadd, 8.00

Switchgear, Cadd 12.00.

Referee: O. Kenneally.

The Machine Shop No. 2 team tangled with the Office No. 2 team in the second game of the day and copped a 1-0 decision.

Both teams adopted a rather open style of playing and rarely resorted to combination; the winners, however, produced a strong defence pair in McGillen and Mowry, the latter scoring the winning goal unassisted.

McDonald, Parsons and Daniels were the pick of the Office while Copping played a brilliant game in goal. Hearst was the best for the winners.

The teams:

Machine Shop 2: Goal, Clarke; defence, C. McGillen and Mowry; centre, Reynolds; wings, Hearst and Tice, alternates, Roseborough, Hardie and Davies.

Office No. 2: Goal, J. Copping; defence, Whaley and Cowling; centre, L. Cheu; wings, McDonald and Parsons; alternates, Daniel Alcock and Jones.

Referee: O. Kennealley.

Penalties: Mowry (2), Whaley, McGillen, Cowling.

Yellow Jackets Defeat Detroit Olympics While Syracuse Wins From Windsor.

NO STANDINGS CHANGE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5. (CP)—Third period scoring splurges were plentiful in International Hockey League matches played over the week-end.

Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets moved up to within a point of the fifth place London Tecumsehs by rapping in three goals during the session to whip Detroit Olympics, 4 to 2. Syracuse notched a brace of markers in the third frame to beat Windsor, 5 to 4. Detroit rallied in the final period to hammer three goals into the Buffalo cage and beat the Bisons in one of the Sunday fixtures, 3 to 1. On Saturday night the Bisons had tied Windsor, 3-all by notching a brace of markers in the third chapter. Cleveland Indians defeated London, 3 to 1, and two of their counters were registered in the closing minutes of the game.

The teams scheduled for Saturday and Sunday games found the going anything but smooth. Buffalo and Windsor managed to snare a point apiece, while Detroit got three. No change occurred in the standing of the teams, the Bisons still leading by six points, but the Bulldogs have only a two point margin over the Indians, who in turn have the same margin over the Olympics.

Buffalo and Windsor practically exhausted themselves in the Saturday struggle at Port Erie which was witnessed by a capacity crowd. The Bulldogs gained a two goal lead in the first period, which the Bisons cut down to one in the second. Early in the third frame the Windsorites hposted the margin to two again only to have the Buffalonians rally strongly to notch two goals and deadlock the countwhich overtime failed to break.

Loss to Syracuse

Travelling to Syracuse the Bulldogs participated in a free scoring contest which saw them do down to a defeat after enjoying a 4 to 3 lead starting the last session. Each team scored thrice in the opening 20 minutes. Earl Robinson, the league's leading marksman, put the Bulldogs in front early in the second period. Two smart goals in the last frame, however, gave the Stars victory and improved their position somewhat at the bottom of the league table.

Doug. Young, Cleveland's husky defenceman, led his team to victory against London, by opening the scoring early in the first period and remaining a constant threat thereafter.

Ken Doraty put the Indians two up halfway through the third frame before the Tecumhehs entered the picture on Harry Connor's goal. Alex Gray, centre ice performer, clinched the verdict for his team by scoring with one minute to go.

A MARRIAGE OF CONVENIENCE

THIS modern romance has its inception in the Canned Music Promoter's conviction that he could love anything that would reduce his overhead expense.

You see, if theatre patrons can just be persuaded to accept less than their money's worth in the theatre, this happy couple can prolong their cacophonous honeymoon.

But the music-loving public has failed to bless these nuptials as expected. The Music Defense League is voicing a voluminous protest against the substitution of Canned Music for Living Music in the Theatre. You may add your influence to this great movement by signing and mailing the coupon.

Face Two Problems

Two problems involving players who have won national championships, will be brought up when the annual meeting of the Professional Golfers' Association of America is held. One results from the application for membership of George Von Elm, former national amateur champion. The other concerns the captaincy of the American Ryder Cup team, which will oppose Great Britain in the biennial match next summer at the Scioto Country Club, Columbus, Ohio.

It has been the custom to honor the current P.G.A. champion with the leadership of the United States Ryder team. The problem arises this year through the fact that the national professional champion, Tommy Armour, is not a member of the team because he is not native born.

Walter Hagen always has led the American forces in the international matches. He came by the office by the usual acclamation during the years he was P.G.A. champion, and last year, after Hagen had lost his title, his successor, Leo Diegel, declined in Hagen's favor because of the latter's long and successful tenure.

It would not be surprising to see Armour follow Diegel's example and indicate a preference for Hagen to remain team captain, should the Ryder Cup selection committee of the P. G. A. seek his views on the subject. It is understood that at the Ryder Cup matches next June an agreement has been reached whereby both the British and U.S. professionals will use the new larger and lighter ball.

Von Elm's status under existing rules of the professional association is a bigger puzzle as pointed out by the "Sport" Magazine, Philadelphia. The former amateur champion announced last month that he intended to compete for cash prizes but did not intend to become a professional golfer in the sense of teaching. Alex Pirie president of the P.G.A., said that his organization may create a new class of membership to make room for those who relinquish their amateur status but do not make a profession of golf. This appears to be a new trend in golf, Pirie said, with the possibility other amateurs may follow Von Elm's move. Heretofore to become a member of the Professional Golfers' Association in the States an applicant must have served a three-year apprenticeship.

New Lighter Ball

This week, to be exact last Thursday, January 1st, the new larger and lighter ball became the official golf ball in the United States and players in all championships from now on will have to conform to its use. It is the most revolutionary change in the game since the rubber-core ball was introduced some 25 years ago. There is bound of course to be criticism but apparently golfers in the States both amateurs and professionals have made up their minds to give the new ball a thorough "try-out" before they approve of it or condemn it. As neither the golfing authorities in Great Britain nor Canada have sanctioned the use of this new ball from an International standpoint, this year there is bound to be "a corridor of chaos."

Harry Cotton, the best of the young British professionals who recently defeated Abe Mitchell 10 and 8 in a match where the American ball was used by both players is of the opinion that (1) it was definitely a more difficult ball with which to play, (2) that it required a more varied and a more highly perfected technique, and (3) that anyone who mastered the American ball would find the British standard ball a comparatively easy proposition.

It is only fair to state that in the match where Cotton scored such an overwhelming victory, Mitchell had only the day before practiced with the new ball whilst his young opponent had been playing with it some weeks. If Cotton is correct, and Americans master the new ball, their supremacy over the British players in the years to come will be further accentuated and pronounced.

Springfield Indians Beaten By Providence

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 5—The Providence Reds annexed a breathless game from the Springfield Indians, pace-setters in the Canadian-American Hockey League race, by a 5-4-score, before 5,100 fans here Saturday night. The triumph, the first the Rhode Island six has scored over the Tribe this season, leaves Sprague Cleghorn's crew only five points behind the Indians.

A sturdy shot from "Gizzy" Hart, Red wing, who took a neat forward pass from Vail, decided the issue with little more than two minutes left. Fortunes ebbed and flowed in the struggle, Springfield twice overtaking the Reds, and finally taking the lead. Goals by Hart and Harrington sent Providence back into the van before Keller, produced a smart solo to tie things at 4-4. Then came the Hart-Vail combination.

Frank ("Deacon") Waite, leading scorer of the league last year, played his first game with the Indians since the New York Rangers let him out earlier in the week. He furnished two assists that resulted in goals.

BUFFALO DEFEATS FLYERS.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 5.—Buffalo scored a 1 to 0 victory over the St. Louis. Flyers in a fast American League hockey game here Saturday night. After a slow first period, both teams came back fighting hard in the second stanza and a rush by Oatman and Bouchard counted the only goal of the game. Oatman took the puck through the entire St Louis defence and passed to Bouchard.

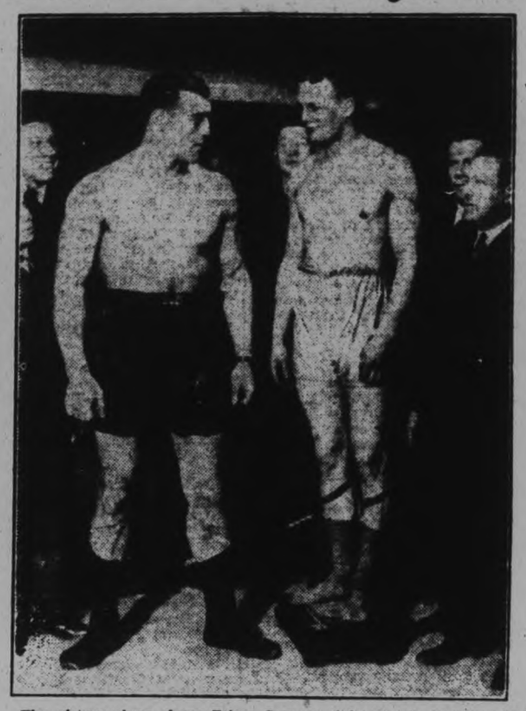
Italian Giant Battles With English Boxer



The picture above shows Primo Carnera (left) Italy's fighting giant, looking on as Reggie Meen, promising young English heavy weight, weighs in for the first, which Carnera won. He stands 6 feet 3 inches in stocking feet, and weights approximately 230 pounds, but against Carnera's mountainous frame Meens looks a mere stripling.

Canadian Rugby-Football Suffers Keen Loss In Death Of Reg De Gruchy

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—One of the most capable, one of the fairest and squarest officials who ever handled a gridiron fixture, a man whose judgment was respected on football fields all over Eastern Canada— that describes Reg. De Gruchy, whose sudden passing yesterday came as a distinct shock to his host of friends.

As captain of the Upper Canada College team over twenty years ago, and as a backfield star with T. R. and A. A. in later years, he won his laurels in many a hard-fought game. As an official, he was one of the most sought after, for the various clubs knew that when he served his decisions were final and impartial. Canadian fotball suffers a severe loss in his death. It is hard to replace men of his calibre. He came of a family whose name has been indelibly linked with the history and growth of Canadian football, and the sympathy of the sport world is extended to those who were near and dear to him. He will be mourned wherever football is played.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The University of Toronto and Yale hockey teams battled through ten minutes of overtime play to a 2-2 tie Saturday night in their annual clash at Madison Square Garden. The game was a hard, fast affair in which neither team could gain much advantage except when its opponents had a man in the penalty box.

The Eli displayed a fast passing attack and had a big squad to maintain thep ace, while Toronto offset this with a close defense and brilliant stick work. The back checking of the Toronto forwards held off many Yale drives.

CANADA MOURNS LOSS OF DR. AMI

Archaeologist Known as Founder of Canadian School of Pre-history in France.

WAS 72 YEARS OLD.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 5.—Canada today mourns the loss of Dr. Henry Marc Ami, one of her most famed scientific sons, and an archaeologist and palaeontoligist of international repute. Word of his death at Mentone, France, was received Sunday at his home here. He was 72.

In recent years, Dr. Ami was perhaps best known as the founder of the Canadian School of Prehistory in France, through which organization he made many expeditions to the Dordonne District for archaeological exploration work under joint auspices of the Canadian and French Government. Only a few years ago he excavated in the Dordonne area evidence that the Eskimo races now found in Canada's northern empire originated in Europe and his find startled the world of science.

His theory of the origin of the Eskimo was but one of many marked contributions he made to world knowledge and his long ine of fellowships was but a partial indication of the high place he held among men of learning of this century.

Dr. Ami gave to the world of letters a vast amount of scientific writing. His works relating to the palaeontological and chronological geology of Canada were widely sought.

Dr. Ami was born in Belle Riviere, near Montreal. He was the son of Rev. Marc Ami, a Presbyterian missionary who came to this country from Switzerland. Funeral arrangements are not completed.

Canadian Scientist Succumbs In France

OTTAWA, January 5. — Dr. Henry Marc Ami, one of Canada's outstanding scientists, died yesterday at Mentone, France, according to news received at his Ottawa home.

An archaeologist and palaeontoligist of international reputation, Dr. Ami startled the world of science a few years ago by his discovery of evidence tending to show that the Eskimo races, now found exclusively in the Canadian Arctic, at one time lived in France.

AGONY OF INDIGESTION

Shuddered at Food—Now Eats Anything

Don't say that indigestion can't be relieved until you have read this letter. The man who wrote it had tried all kinds of remedies. All kinds except one kind. That one kind was Kruschen. Eventually he took to Kruschen—half-heartedly, as you will note, he admits.

"I first started taking Kruschen Salts three or four years ago. For years previously I had suffered agony with indigestion. Night after night, for weeks on end, I had very little sleep and I was becoming a wreck of my old self for want of rest. I got so run down that I was advised to cut out my evening meal, and was recommended to take all kinds of remedies, but none of them did me any good. About Christmas-time, three or four years ago, I saw one of your adverts 'Take Kruschen Salts and enjoy your Christmas dinner,' or words to that effect. I started taking them, half-heartedly, I will admit, but after the first few doses my attacks got less and less. I kept on, and they completely disappeared, and I have been a regular 'Kruschenite' ever since. I am now 50 years of age, and I can eat anything at any time without any ill effects, and I sleep like a top—thanks to Kruschen."—J.H.C.

Indigestion is caused by a failure in the flow of the gastric or digestive juices. As a result, your food, instead of being assimilated by your system, simply collects and ferments inside you, producing harmful acid poisons. The immediate effect of the six mineral salts in Kruschen is to promote the healthy flow of the vital juices of the body. Your system begins working again like a perfect machine. And that means a blessed end to indigestion, and a renewed and whole-hearted enjoyment of your food without the slightest fear of having to pay the old painful penalty.

Five days of the New Year have passed into history and we have had time to look back on the things which have happened in the year just past.

* * * * * * *

As the New Year gets under way our memory is stirred, sometimes with regrets that the past year has seen us accomplish so little of the much we had hoped and planned to do.

* * * * * * *

Perhaps the old year only brings back to your memory days filled with sorrow, of illness and of discontent. If this is the case, then it is far better not to try to remember anything about that year.

* * * * * * *

More often there is a mixture of regret and contentment since the pattern of life usually has been traced with both joy and sorrow.

* * * * * * *

The mind in its backward glance dwells on first one and then another of the events of the past twelve months. Since these are now but memories, the wise person makes a selection from these, choosing to dwell on those that bring happiness rather than distress.

* * * * * * *

The power to do lies with each one of us. Happy thoughts like a magnet will draw other of a similar sort. If this seems controversial, try it out and see for yourself how its works.

* * * * * * *

I wonder if New Year's Day was a day filled with memories for you. I wonder, too, if your mind travelled forward as well as backward and you resolved to accomplish certain things in the New Year?

* * * * * * *

It isn't too late to make some good resolutions for 1931. Whether one determines that the year shall be one in which the adventures it holds shall be influenced for good by well thought out plans or not, there is one thing certain, each New Year is one of adventure. Each day during it one "must venture forth" to meet what it holds in store.

* * * * * * *

The adventurous path of the New Year has already opened up to you.

* * * * * * *

Whether 1931 will be a Happy New Year for you depends largely upon the way you walk along it and how you take its adventures.

* * * * * * *

But do your best to make it as happy for others as you possibly can, even if you're less fortunate than they. If you are compelled to bear some heavy burden in this New Year, bear it with a determination that you will not allow it to affect the happiness of others.

PASTEURIZED MILK RETAINS VITAMIN C.

When you see the trouble to which young mothers go to make sure that baby's food is all that it should be to insure growth and development, you may wonder how mothers in former days ever raised their children.

As you know, mothers in past days used nothing but milk. If their own milk was insufficient or unsuitable they used cow's milk sweetened slightly.

However, it was found that cow's milk was not always safe due to the number of times it had to be handled, and the length of time it took, before it reached the home.

In order to make baby's milk safe a system of treating it — pasteurization — was established, and now, in all large cities, babies are assured of safe milk.

Then came a fly in the ointment. Research men discovered that heating the milk deprived it of some of its vitamin C, which is a necessary factor in preventing scurvy.

Therefore, in addition to the milk, children were fed orange or tomato juice which is rich in vitamin C, and so growth and development proceeded satisfactorily.

However, more recent investigations would tend to show that it is not only the heating that lessens the amount of vitamin C in the milk, but the number of times it is handled, exposed to the air, pasteurized and repasteurized.

These research men are able to show that with proper handling and careful pasteurization or heating, that only a small amount of vitamin C is lost.

Now this is important because it means that a number of the well prepared milk products, at present available, are quite rich in vitamin C and may be safely and profitably used by mothers and others.

Another point is that the old practice of boiling milk, which has been passing out of use, because mothers felt that much of the "good" of the milk and the valuable vitamin C was being lost, is now felt to be wise and safe, as a good ly portion of vitamin C is retained even after boiling. This is worth knowing.

This all means then that while orange juice and tomato juice are splendid sources of vitamin C, good cow's milk, properly handled, still possesses an adequate amount of vitamin C.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 37 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan now decided he could better continue his search by traveling alone. Leaving the beasts and Mugambi to await his return, the ape-man came several days later upon a savage in the act of hurling a spear at a wounded white man. Instantly Tarzan recognized the intended victim, and his face went white with rage. The man was his prey—the black should not have him!

Surely this man had been aboard the Kincaid. Yet he had not been among those who had accompanied Rokoff at the village where Tarzan had been a prisoner! There could be but one explanation, he thought. This fellow it was who had fled ahead of the Russian with the woman and the child—and the woman also had been aboard the Kincaid. Quick as a flash Tarzan leaped upon the warrior, striking down his spear.

The black, whipping out a knife, turned to do battle with his new enemy, while the Swede cook, lying in the matted grass, witnessed a duel the like of which he had never dreamed to see. First with crude weapons, then with hands and teeth like primordial brutes, the two men fought. Now it dawned upon the wounded Swede that he had seen this white giant before and his eyes went wide in surprise.

This growling, rending, half-naked white man was the same English nobleman who had been a prisoner aboard the Kincaid!....The fight was over. Tarzan had been compelled to kill his antagonist who would not surrender. He leaped to his feet beside his fallen foe, placed one foot upon the broken neck, and lifted his voice in the hideous challenge of the victorious bull-ape. The Swede shuddered.

MINERS SEEKING GOVERNMENT AID

To Induce Mine Owners to Accept 45-hour Week Without Reduction in Wages.

140,000 OUT OF WORK.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 5. (CP)—South Wales coal miners to-day asked the Labor government to step in as arbitrator in the labor dispute which has tied up the important South Wales mines and thrown 140,000 men out of work.

Their deputation met Emmanueal Shinwell, secretary for mines, here this morning and Ramsay MacDonald was expected to take part in the conference before it ended. The miners want the government to induce the mine owners to accept the recommendation of the National Industrial Board for adjustment of the 45-hour week without reduction in wages.

CHANGE IN TRAIN SCHEDULE.

A change in train schedule is announced by the C.N.R. officials, to take effect on Monday, January 12. This change comes as a result of the amalgamation of two runs, one from Lindsay to Whitby, the other from Whitby to Port Hope. This latter service is a remnant of the old Canadian Northern Railway, the rest of whose tracks had been removed.

Trains will leave Lindsay on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 9.45 a.m., and run via Manilla and Whitby, arriving at Port Hope at 5.45 p.m. The return trips will be made on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, leaving Port Hope at 6.00 a.m. and arriving at Lindsay at 3.50 p.m.

These changes will be of interest to travellers in particular, as train connections between Peterborough and Lindsay for these trips will not be of the best.

ACCEPTANCE OF DUTY MARKS LIFE OF SIR JOSEPH FLAVELLE

Sir Joseph Was Born and Educated in Peterborough.

HEADS BIG UNDERTAKINGS.

(By Ralph M. Radford, Copyright 1931).

TORONTO, Ont. Jan. 5. (Special)—In October, 1927, just two years before the bubble of security prices burst and revealed the precarious heights to which business in overexuberance had climbed, Sir Joseph Flavelle stated: "When the present stock exchange boom will crack, I do not know. I do not know what will happen when it does, or what circumstances will lead to it. I do know what will happen when the inevitable reaction comes from a period of expansion. We cannot always deal in superlatives. There comes a time when psychologically the human family cannot go on and then we feel the reaction we will say we were all fools."

Certainly these were not the words of a "market prophet"; nor the statements of an economist attempting the sensational. They merely expressed the feelings of a student of human nature, who rather sorrowfully observed his fellows ignoring the existence of maxims which, through broad experience, had become to him industrial laws not to be broken with impunity.

It is not to be wondered that Sir Joseph, now he has more time to devote to such things, should be in demand as a speaker on business conditions, as a preceptor of youth and as a commentator on matters of national moment. His expression of opinion needs no other authority than his measure of personal success and background of achievement.

His quiet but confident acceptance of even the most arduous duties in the advancement of the general good has been an outstanding feature of a varied career and his financial and personal backing have been a large factor in furthering institutional and educational work in this country.

His position as head of the Ontario Industrial Research Council, inaugurated in 1928, has brought him to the fore frequently of late as an enthusiastic advocate of more co-operation among manufacturers and producers in meeting problems of modern business. In numerous addressed to industrials he has stressed the possibilities inherent in the foundation for improving conditions and efficiency in Ontario's industry and has urged a wider use of the facilities proved by this organization. He has expressed great faith that the research council will serve to halt the exodus of Canadian workers to other countries and anticipates it will play an important role in the period of hard work which, he claims, must precede complete recovery of industry.

Head of Large Undertakings

Sir Joseph was born and educated in Peterborough, started in the provision business in that town with his father and after a short stay in Lindsay came to Toronto in 1887. Five years later he was appointed general manager of the William Davies Co. Under his management the firm expanded to include not only other packing plants but a chain of several hundred stores. He became president of the company in 1912 and was head of the Harris Abbatoir Co. for several years. He sold out his interests in both companies in 1919.

Senator Cox, also of Peterborough, was influential in effecting his entry into the banking business. Sir Joseph was elected to the boards of the National Trust Co., Canadian Bank of Commerce and many industrial organizations. In 1903 he purchased the Toronto News in what is understood to have been an attempt to establish an entirely independent newspaper. He retired from this field in 1910 after sustaining considerable financial loss. He became head of the Robert Simpson Co., disposing of his interests in that concern last year in one of the largest financial deals in Canadian history.

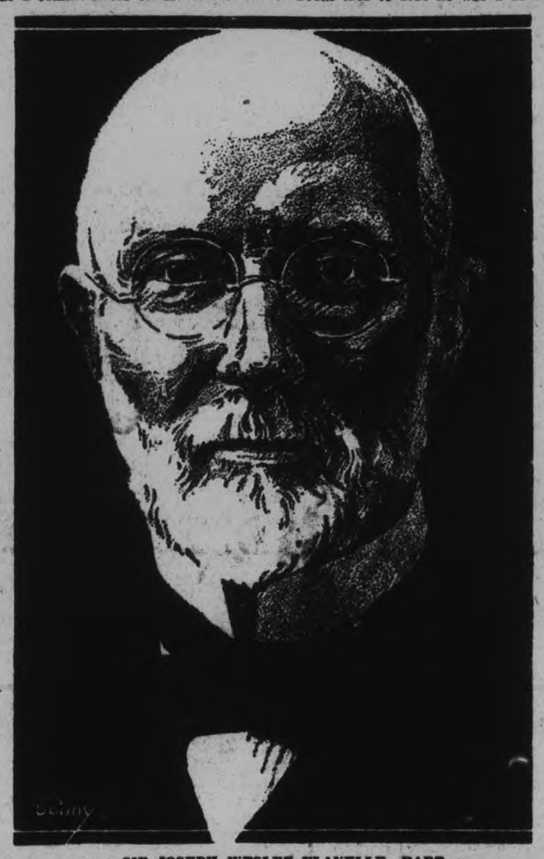
Despite his manifold business affiliations, Sir Joseph has been an aggressive figure in public service work since the opening years of the century. In 1905 he was appointed to the Toronto Board of License Commissioners. The following year he was created an LL.D. of Toronto University and elected chairman of the Royal Commission organized to recommend a plan for reorganization of that institution. He and Lady Flavelle have been identified with university activities for many years and have given a number of scholarships and other gifts.

On Hospital Board.

From 1902 to 1921 he was a member of the board of trustees of the Toronto General Hospital. To his initiative, ability and generosity is given the bulk of the credit for the erection of the new buildings on College Street. He is connected with the Canadian branch, British Red Cross Association, and the Toronto branch, Victorian Order of Nurses. Throughout he has been an active prohibitionist and worker in the Methodist and later the United Church, and is chairman of the board of governors of the West China Union University.

Exceptional tribute was paid his genius for organization when in 1915 he was appointed chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board, a position he held for the duration of the war and two years following. The baronetcy, a hereditary title, was conferred on him in 1917 in recognition of services in facilitating production and forwarding of war supplies. In 1920 he was made chairman of the first Canadian board of the Grand Trunk Railway at the time it was being taken over by the Canadian National Railways.

In politics he is an independent Conservative but has never been a member of either House, preferring to pursue his way free of the confining influence of party obligations. The Flavelle home, "Holwood," in Queen's Park, is one of Toronto's fine residences and contains, besides one of the first private organs installed in the city, many beautiful paintings of which Sir Joseph is an appreciative collector. He is an ardent patron of music and for many years has followed the activities of the Mendelssohn choir with keen interest.



SIR JOSEPH WESLEY FLAVELLE, BART.

WEDDINGS

BEAN—McCLENNAN.

A quiet wedding was solemnized by the Rev. James E. Graham in the Chapel of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, on Saturday, January 3, when Gertrude McClennan, eldest daughter of Mr. Thomas R. McClennan, of Peterborough, was united in marriage to J. L. Bean, also of Peterborough.

The bride wore a frock of mauve satin with shoes and hose to match and her attendant, Miss Robinson, of Peterborough, wore pale blue satin with dark shoes and hose to match.

Mr. Leslie Williams, of Toronto, attended the groom.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was held in Oshawa. The young couple will reside in Peterborough.

BANK CLOSES DOORS

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 5. (CP)—The State Security Bank, one of the most prominent state financial institutions in Zanesville, was closed to-day by O. C. Gray, state superintendent of banking. The superintendent said that "frozen loans" and depreciation in bond accounts had caused the closing.

INDIAN CABINET SCHEME OFFERED BY LORD SANKEY

Suggests Governor-General's Gov't With Nine Portfolios.

NOT FORMAL PROPOSAL.

Shafti Demands New System With Adequate Protection For Minorities.

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Jan. 5. — Lord Sankey, Lord High Chancellor in the British Cabinet, submitted to the Indian Round Table Conference today a tentative scheme for a Cabinet for the New India. It was not submitted as a formal proposal for the Labor Government, but coming from such a source it was significant.

"How would this sort of thing do", queried Lord Sankey as a Moslem speaker was addressing the sub-committee on Federal structure. Lord Sankey then suggested a Governor-General's Cabinet with nine portfolios.

The Portfolios

They were as follows:

1.—Finance.
2.—Law.
3.—Railways, posts and telegraphs.
4.—Education, health and lands.
5.—Industries.
6.—Commerce.
7.—Revenue and subjects such as administration of the customs on opium and salt.
8.—Minor departments, botanical and geological surveys, etc.
9.—Minister in charge of minor departments not indicated above.

Sir Muhammed Shafi stated the Moslem case, "India wants to be mistress in her own household," he said. Under the existing system, he declared, the Secretary of State in the British Cabinet was the "great mogul" of the Indian Empire. Sir Muhammed demanded a new system with adequate protection for minorities, especially for the Moslem minority. He agreed however that during the period of transition from the existing to the new system of Government for India some safeguards might be necessary.

The sub-committee observed one minute's silence in memory of the Princess Royal and Muhammed Ali, the latter having died after illness that set in soon after the Conference convened.

Lord Reading will state the position of the British Liberal delegates before the sub committee this afternoon.

WEAVERS STRIKE AGAINST SYSTEM

3,500 Walk Out in Protest Over "More Looms Per Weaver" Plan.

MAY AFFECT 200,000.

BURNLEY, Eng., Jan. 5 (C.P.).—Nine cotton mills in this busy spinning town shut down to-day as 3,500 weavers struck against the owners' demand that each weaver take over double the number of looms he has previously operated.

It was the first walkout in a united protest against the so-called "more looms per weaver" system which has been the subject of a series of fruitless conferences between men and employers for weeks.

Originally the walkout was to have hit ten mills, but the owners of one agreed to a temporary postponement of installation of the new system and the men remained at work.

The mills' owners ask that each weaver operating four looms take over four more at a substantial increase in pay, but the union contends the system would throw many men out of work.

There was a possibility that the strike would extend throughout the industry, affecting 200,000 men.

SUSPECT IN MURDER HELD.

CALCUTTA, India, Jan. 5.—(A.P.)—P. A. J. Hackerdon, an Anglo-Indian resident of South Calcutta, was arrested and brought before a police magistrate at Alipore, to-day, charged with abetting the murder of Colonel N. S. Simpson, Inspector-General of Prisons, who was killed here Dec. 8.

It was alleged that Hackerdon's revolver was used by one of Colonel Simpson's assailants.

Colonel Simpson was shot and killed by three Bengals who fired at him in his office.

During the hearing of an action in Division Court this morning one of the lawyers, addressing His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, hurriedly corrected himself after he had referred to "the Village of Ashburnham." His Honor said he did not object to that, "so long as you do not call it East City."

11 Italian Planes Cross Atlantic

ENGINE TROUBLE PUTS ONE DOWN OFF SAN PEDRO

Only Cripple of Squadron Taken in Tow By Watching Destroyer.

LANDED NEAR ISLAND.

Main Fleet Led By General Italo Balbo Lands in Natal Harbor.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 6 (C.P.).—A National Telegraph despatch reported the "Black Squadron" of four planes in General Italo Balbo's trans-Atlantic fleet landed in Natal Harbor at 4.00 p.m. (2.00 p.m., E.S.T.).

Fifteen minutes later two more planes came down, and the five others still in the air were expected momentarily.

A dispatch to-day said one of General Italo Balbo's fleet of planes was forced down by motor trouble in the sea off San Pedro in the St. Paul's Rocks and was taken in tow by an Italian cruiser stationed nearby.

St. Paul's Rocks is a tiny island used as a cable landing station, a short distance north of the equator and about 340 miles northeast of Fernando Do Noronha, where eleven of the planes were sighted this afternoon, heading for Natal.

The flight began to-day in the longest and most difficult lap of a nearly 6,000-mile air journey begun early December 17, with the departure of fourteen Savoia seaplanes from Orbetello, Italy, from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The flight may be continued on to Buenos Aires, which would run the total mileage of the trip well toward 7,000.

Stationed between Bolama and Natal are twelve Italian cruisers and other naval vessels, ready to race at an instant's notice to help any of the squadron which may find it necessary to come down in mid-Atlantic. The twelve vessels have been evenly distributed along the 1,600 miles of the ships' course and are believed to represent a sufficient precaution against disaster.

As the planes took off the first of the cruisers was notified by radio of the departure and the word flashed along the course to the other ships, each of which will attempt to sight the squadron as it passes and flash the word back to Rome, where Premier Mussolini will anxiously await word of its progress.

Two Small Islands.

With two exceptions, one so minor as to be hardly considered, the way is over open water with no intermediate landfall. About 125 miles north-east of Natal is Fernando do Noronha, Brazilian penal colony island, and between that and Bolama the lonely island rocks known as St. Paul's Rocks, used as a cable landing station. The latter would hardly offer any shelter should the planes be forced down in the event of a storm.

Four hours prior to departure it was supposed that a postponement of another day would be necessary because of continuing adverse weather conditions, but a slight improvement, together with reports from the cruisers standing between here and Natal gave General Balbo hope of further betterment and after midnight he gave the word to prepare for a takeoff.

Four of Crew in Each

Each of the twelve planes carries four men, two pilots, a mechanic, and a radio operator, 48 men altogether being engaged in the flight. Two of the fourteen planes which flew from Orbetello remained here, being flown thus far merely to act as workships to effect any repairs which might be necessary prior to departure.

The planes are flying in four groups of three each, the first three being painted black, the second three red, the third three white, and the last three green, the colors of Fascism, and of the Italian tricolor.

NORTH CAROLINA STORM KILLS SIX

Freak Wind Sweeps Across Country Leaving Path of Devastation.

DOZEN INJURED.

NORLINA, N.C., Jan 6. (CP).—Six persons were dead to-day in the wake of a freakish wind storm that late yesterday dipped down into two counties in North Carolina and one in Virginia, leaving devastation in its path.

Mrs. Grover Henderson was killed in the collapse of a farm house near Boydton, just across the State Line in Mecklenburg County, Virginia.

Near Ridgeway, a few miles from here in Warren County, North Carolina, four negroes, Jim Dunston and three sons, were crushed to death by the falling timbers of their home.

Six miles from Ridgeway, near Wise, Edna Harris, negro girl, was killed when the storm destroyed a negro farm life school.

Two negroes were injured near Yanceville, Caswell County, North Corolina, where the storm first struck.

Perhaps a dozen persons were injured in the vicinity of Boydton, Ridgeway and Wise.

SIR SAMUEL HOARE IS SKEPTICAL OF RESPONSIBLE GOV'T SCHEME

So Complicated, Be Workable Only By Existence of Good Will in India Itself.

NON-COMMITTAL ATTITUDE.

(By George Hambleton C. P. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The cold waters of doubt were thrown upon responsible Government for India by Sir Samuel Hoare, spokesman for the British Conservative delegates, in the Indian Round Table Conference to-day.

Sir Samuel did not reject the scheme submitted by Sir Tej Bahador Sapru and accepted yesterday by Lord Reading on behalf of British Liberals. His attitude was definitely non-committal. But he subjected the scheme to analysis and questioned whether it would work out at all.

Many Complications

"It would be so complicated," Sir Samuel said, referring to the Sapru conception of Responsible Government, would be so vulnerable to the attacks of critics, and would be so full of anomalies that it would be workable only on the basis of wide acceptance of the existence of goodwill in India itself."

And was, there any indication that at the present stage such goodwill existed in India? Sir Samuel asked.

His Summary.

Sir Samuel, who was Secretary of State for Air in both former Baldwin administrations, summed up the Conservative position in these words:

"Because, first, I have my doubts if the scheme outlined by Sir Tej would actually work, and because, secondly, I have not sufficient knowledge about certain vital aspects of the All-Indian Federation, I am bound to adopt a non-committal attitude towards the question of responsibility at the centre.

"I do not say that on no account and under no conditions would I ever agree to a particular scheme. I do not say I would not be greatly in-

School Pupils Pay Tribute to Canine

MONROE, La., Jan. 6 (C.P.)—Schools were closed here to-day so that their pupils might attend the funeral of Unalaska, husky hero of the Byrd Antarctic expedition who was crushed to death under the wheels of an automobile Saturday.

The hardy son of a malamute half-wolf, born in Lapland five years ago and destined to smash the frozen wastes at the other end of the world as the leader of Admiral Byrd's dog team, was here on exhibition with Lady, his mate, when he dashed across a thoroughfare to end his crowded life beneath a low-priced, coupe.

Scholarship Fund For English Pupils

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 6 (CP)—Subscription of $600,000 is now being made in Canada and England to be known as the "Canada scholarship fund" to bring British public or secondary school graduates to Canada for their university education and subsequent entrance to Canadian life.

Canada's allotment of the fund is half the total, most of which has already been pledged upon condition that a similar amount is raised in Great Britain, according to an announcement made to-day at McGill University where reports of the drive, now on in England to make up the British quota, are being received.

Twenty-five ships were launched from Belfast, Ireland, shipyards in 1930, as compared with 18 in 1929.

FOG AND DRIZZLE OVER NEW YORK SNARLES TRAFFIC

Coast Guards Rush to Aid Coal Freighter Aground Off Long Island.

35 MEN IN DANGER.

Liner Collides With Car Float—Trolley Hits Truck, 11 Are Injured.

NEW YORK, January 6 (C. P.). — A Long Island Sound steamship rammed a car float, a freighter sent out a distress call, and maritime traffic from liners to ferries in New York Harbor inches its way along to-day in a heavy fog which followed a January drizzle.

The passenger ship George Washington, bound in from Boston, struck the car float in the east river, pitching three box cars into the water, making the float helpless and punching a hole in the steamer's bow. Tugs took the float in tow, and the George Washington crept on toward her pier. Several other New England steamers anchored just below Hell Gate until the weather cleared.

Coal Ship Aground

The William N. Page, bound from Norfolk to Boston with coal, sent out an S.O.S. saying she was aground off Southampton, Long Island, with twenty-five men aboard. Coast Guards went to help her.

Ferries were far behind schedule, several ships postponed their departure until the skies cleared, and even land traffic in the Metropolitan area felt its way over wet pavements in the murk. A street car hit a city truck in Brooklyn in the mist and eleven trolley passengers needed medical attention.

The freighter City of New York, which picked up the crew of the fishing smack Marie off Scotland lightship last night, went on toward Philadelphia. The smack was sinking fast when it was abandoned.

ALLAN LEWIS IS BAILED FOR TRIAL

Crowd So Great in Police Court Room Spectator Faints.

YOUTHS SENTENCED.

Before an assemblage of interested spectators that packed every device of space in the court room and thronged the stairway and doors, Allan Lewis was this morning committed for trial by Police Magistrate Langley.

The proceedings today did not produce the excitement or thrill that the large audience had anticipated. Lewis was merely charged again by the magistrate. The charge was not altered, and remains criminal negligence. R. R. Hall, K. C., his counsel, did not enter plea or election.

Merely as a formality, Provincial Constable D. Sylvester was called to the box to testify. He gave details of the accident that resulted in death to Irene Stewart. Then Lewis was committed to be bailed for trial. Bail will be the same, $4,000.

The hearing of the case will now be delayed until in its natural course it comes up in the Spring at the General Sessions of the Peace, or at the sessions of the Supreme Court. R. R. Hall would not say if he will ask for trial by judge and jury.

The crowd in the room was so great that one spectator fainted.

Alexander Townsley and Andrew McCabe, who had pleaded guilty to burglarizing the Curtis' service station at the corner of Smith and Water streets and were on remand for sentence, appeared and were sentenced, to six months determinate and one year indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

John O'Brien alias Jack Shakespeare appeared again and again was remanded on a charge of stealing J. Micolla's horse and rig.

The plaintiffs are I. W. C. Solloway, Harvey Mills and their employers, William Kennedy McGee, together with the firms of Solloway, Mills (BC.) Limited and Solloway, Mills & Company, Limited.

An injunction enjoining Mr. Pooley and Mr. Cosgrave, who is representing the Attorney-General in a criminal prosecution of Solloway, Mills, will be brought in Supreme Court Chambers this morning. Fitzgerald Defeats Allan Mann By 14 Votes For Deputy Of Smith Township

WINDSOR IS RETURNED

Montgomery Defeats Reeve Tedford in Norwood By Two Votes

Henry Coons and Gordon Fitzgerald were re-elected Reeve and Deputy-Reeve of the Township of mith yesterday in one of the stiffest contested municipal elections in some years. Mr. Coons' majority over his opponent William Brown was 243, while Mr. Fitzgerald had a majority of only 14 over Allan B. Mann. George Mullen was the only man of the 1930 Council to fail to get elected, his place being taken on the municipal board by Fred Armstrong. Vivian Milburn headed the polls for councillor with 637 votes, Herbert McConkey was second with 533, and Fred Armstrong third with 440. Mr Mullen polled 427 votes, and Charles Westlake 312.

In Asphodel Adam Humphries was re-elected in a three-man fight over R. C. Breckenridge and P. McNulty. Mr. Humphries polled 267 votes, Breckenridge 195, and McNulty 130.

Ennismore again returned Thomas Cavanagh by a majority of 59, while in Burleigh and Anstruther the old Council was returned with Reeve Vernal Windsor at its head.

BELMONT AND METHUEN.

With results complete Reeve W. E Griffiths and ex-Warden Frank Breckenridge are tied, each having 186 votes, thus causing the same excitement in this municipality as occurred last year when Mr. Griffiths beat Mr. Breckenridge by only a few votes. The Council with the same two polls to be heard from will in all probability be composed of Isaac Anderson, H. R. Vansickle, C. F. Steenburg, and George Wright. 65,000 PASS BIER OF FRENCH HERO IN LAST TRIBUTE Battalions of Infantry to Lead Long Funeral Procession Wednesday.

Plan Impressive Ceremony.

Oration at Invalides Esplanade to be Read By Louis Barthou.

PARIS, January 6 (C.P.). — Frenchmen to-day gazed for the last time on the familiar, beloved features of "Papa" Joffre, first Marshal of Republican France, hero of the Marne and commander of the French Armies in the first two years of the Great War.

Sixty-five thousand persons were estimated to have filed by the catafalque in the chapel of the Ecole Militaire from 9 a.m. yesterday to 11 p.m. last night, and it was believed that many more would view the body to-day.

There will be but a five-minute wait at the Arc de Triomphe, one of the Marshal's last requests being that if he died in winter the people of Paris and the troops he commanded so long would not be subjected to the rigors of a long wait in the bad weather. The interment in the Invalides will be only temporary until a permanent tomb can be arranged at the family home at Louveciennes.

Troops of France to March.

In the long funeral procession which will accompany the body from Notre Dame to the Invalides will be battalions of infantry and cavalry, batteries of artillery, veterans' organizations, and foreign representatives, among them Ambassador Edge, who will act for the United States.

The family and members of the French Government will follow immediately behind the body. Directly ahead of the caisson bearing the body will walk his riderless horse, its

FOUR MINERS DIE IN GREAT BLAST

Rescue Workers Dig Frantically Through Slate For Four Missing Comrades.

SOME BODIES RECOVERED.

BECKLEY, W. Va., Jan. 6 (C.P.)—Four miners were killed and four others were unaccounted for to-day in an explosion in the Glen Rogers mine of the Raleigh Wyoming Coal Mining Company. The explosion occurred in a section of the workings a mile and a half underground.

Rescue workers brought out four bodies and were digging through falls of slate in search of the four men reported missing. Officials of the mining company described the explosion as "local" in character.

Four Bodies Found.

The bodies brought out were found in the first north entry. The other four men were believed to have been working in the second north entry.

The mine is located in Wyoming County, 3 miles from Beckley.

Only the presence of rock dust in the mine prevented the explosion from spreading to other sections of the workings, R. M. Lambie, chief of the State Department of Mines, said at Charleston.

Describing the mine as "extremely gaseous," Lambie said if it had not been rock-dusted, the tipple would have been blown off by a more severe blast.

Use Of Lash In Prisons Branded As Brutal

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 6.—"Sheer brutality—without the deterrent effect some people apparently think it has," was the term Hon. E. J. McMurray, former Dominion Solicitor-General used last night to describe the lash for prisoners. He was speaking on Canada's prison system before a meeting of the central research council of social agencies.

"We have outgrown use of the lash," Mr. McMurray declared. "It is beneath our civilization. It is not a deterrent. It brutalizes society and the individual who is punished. It brings about insubordination in institutions. There is nothing to recommend it and it is entirely out of keeping with our times."

Two Hold-up Men Rob Aged Couple On Chemong Road

Terrorized in Their Home Last Night By Two Thugs W. G. Johnston and His Sister Were Manhandled and Forced By Blows to Give Up Their Money.

OLD WALLET CONTAINING $20 IS ALL THAT AGED MAN HAD—THUGS NOT SATISFIED SO DEALT MORE BLOWS

Warning Them Not to Try and 'Phone or They Would Be Shot Thugs Left House—Police Lost Trail in Bad Snow Storm.

Terrorized in their home last night by two hold-up men, two aged residents of the Chemong road, W. G. Johnston and his sister, were man-handled and forced by blows to give up money.

Mr. Johnston, who is more than 70, lives about a half mile from the city on the Chemong road. His sister, who is also in the autumn of life resides with him. They had finished supper and were sitting comfortably in their kitchen last evening, when about 7:30 a knock sounded on the side door.

Mr. Johnston answered the knock. Having opened the door, he saw two men standing upon the threshold. One was big and powerfully built, the other about medium height. The big one sprang forward, gripping the aged man by the throat. Mr. Johnston was thrown helplessly to the floor. Strong fingers choked him.

His big assailant, easing up on his hold for a moment, demanded money. "I can't give you money while lying here," said Mr. Johnston. He was permitted to get up and was then pummelled with blows upon his chest. He was ordered to "hurry up and produce the cash."

A wallet containing $20 was thrown on the table by Mr. Johnston. Opening the bag, the big man counted the money. "That's not enough, we want more," he growled. Mr. Johnston answered that it was all he had. He was dealt more blows.

Warning him not to try and phone anyone or he would be shot, the men left.

Only the big man attacked Mr. Johnston. The other stood at the door saying nothing and taking no active part in the attack. Miss Johnston, who was in the room all the time, was not molested.

Provincial Constable David Sylvester was informed of the holdup less than a half hour later. In the swirling snow, he tracked the men from the house to the highway. There the tracks had been obliterated. No neighbors had been attacked or held up he learned upon investigation, and no one reported seeing two strange men about.

ALL NIGHT SNOW BURIES ONTARIO IN WHITE MANTLE

First Severe Storm of Season Fails to Halt Train or Motor Traffic.

PROBS SAY COLDER.

Blizzard Strikes Hard in Quebec and Montreal—50 Mile Gale.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 6. (CP)—A cold north-westerly wind and a sudden drop in temperature left the southern part of Central Ontario to-day with a stiff coating of hard snow and ice.

Riding on the tail of an all-day rainfall the first severe snowstorm of the season in this locality last night swept over the southern part of the Province and buried it beneath a great white blanket. Despite the heavy fall which was accompanied earlier by rain and sleet, only temporary interruptions were reported in train and motor traffic and only in the vicinity of Niagara Peninsula, where the storm was particularly heavy, where telegraphic and telephone communications interrupted to any extent. Electric power was cut off in some districts by the snapping of snow-laden wires but this was in only isolated instances.

Meteorological officials this morning reported the storm to be sweeping through the more easterly section of the Province into Quebec and down to the Maritime coast. Other sections of Ontario were reported "fairly mild" with the forecast for this district "mostly fair and colder."

Blizzard Hits Quebec.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 6 (C.P.).—The Feast of Epiphany, which to-day marked the end of the Christmas holiday season in the Province of Quebec, also saw the end of the mild Christmas and New Year weather. Reports from one end of the Province to the other told of an overnight and morning snowfall varying from five to twelve inches. The heavy fall was accompanied by high winds, which whipped it into blizzard-like proportions and piled up huge drifts.

At noon the storm was still raging, hampering attempts by the various municipalities to clear away the snow piles and re-establish disorganized communications. While no reports of seriously delayed trains or street cars had been received, motor traffic throughout the Province was at a standstill on all except the most frequented streets and roads. The highways were regarded as impassable temporarily. Poor visibility and high winds held all mail-planes grounded.

The City of Quebec, after enjoying one of the mildest early winters on record, woke to-day to find traffic practically impossible. A wind reaching an approximate velocity of 50 miles an hour, accompanied the storm there. Sherbrooke received seven inches of snow, necessitating the suspension of autobus traffic this morning. Private automobiles were also kept in their garages. In Montreal thousands fought their way to work in the teeth of a howling wind.

The full force of the snow-fighting apparatus, together with the "shovel-brigade," of otherwise unemployed, could not be set to work during the morning as the snow was still falling too heavily. Work on the main arteries of traffic was being pushed forward, however.

In improving a harbor at East London, South Africa, 370,000 tons of earth are being removed.

FORMER OFFICER GETS FIVE YEARS

Toronto Man Has 20 Lashes Added For Armed Robbery on December 5.

SECOND MAN GETS 6 YEARS.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 6. (CP)—Carl J. Johnston, former member of the Toronto police force, was sentenced to five years in Portsmouth Penitentiary and 20 lashes when he pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery while armed. Johnston pleaded guilty to robbing the store of A. Bonza on the night of Dec. 5 and despite his plea for leniency Judge Denton passed sentence.

Six years in Portsmouth Penitentiary with ten strokes of the strap was the sentence imposed on W. J. Buttery when he pleaded guilty to three charges of hold-up in Police Court to-day. Buttery was arrested recently after he had held-up a local cafeteria. He also confessed to robbing a local candy store on two occasions.

Mention Prince Arthur For Post In Canada

TORONTO, Jan. 6.—In a special despatch from Ottawa to-day, The Globe says:

"To the list of those who are mentioned as the probable next Governor-General of Canada may be added that of Prince Arthur of Connaught. It is rumored that the present Government here is desirous of having some one of the British Royal Family to grace Government House, and that Prince Arthur is the most likely choice. Prince Arthur served as Governor-General of South Africa, and during the war for a time was attached to the staff of General Sir Arthur Currie, head of the Canadian forces.

MAJOR BYGOTT ELECTED MAYOR OF CAMPBELLFORD FOR 1931, STONE DEFEATS G. A. KINGSTON

N. A. MacColl is Elected as Deputy-Reeve Over John O'Sullivan.

BLUE BEATS DAVIDSON.

A. D. Bennett Heads the Polls in the Election to Council.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 6. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). With a majority of 87 Major J. M. Bygott headed the polls in a race with Walter S. Wiggins and was elected mayor of Campbellford for 1931. The fight was a close one, the returns showing very little to choose from with the exception of polling station No. IV which gave Major Bygott a vote of 149 to Wiggin's 83.

For the reeve's chair the race was not so even. J. N. Stone, deputy reeve in the 1930 council, was elected over G. A. Kingston with a majority of 213. In this contest every poll gave Stone a majority, two stations, II and IV however being very slight.

The struggle for deputy reeve which was fought by N. A. MacColl and John O'Sullivan ended in defeat for the latter. MacColls' count above his opponent's was 245. His majority was strengthened by ward IV which gave him 165 votes to O'Sullivan's 64. Every ward gave MacColl a majority, No. IB however being only one vote.

In the fight for Commissioner for the Water and Light Board between the late mayor C. H. Davidson and James Blue, the struggle was the keenest. Blue headed the vote here with a count of only six votes. Every ward registered a close race, in one there only being a majority of one.

This year's council will see four new men round the table. A. D. Bennett, the latest arrival to the municipal ranks headed the list with a vote of 909, H. N. Carr following with a 732 count. Mr. Carr was on the last year's council. Ernest McKeel, another new man in the ranks, came third with 709 votes in his favor, while J. B. Battisby, entering his second term in office, polled 669 votes. The last two men on the list are also newcomers. Neil Thompson came fifth with a 488 count. F. F. Long completing the list with 434 votes. The two who went to down to defeat, W. J. Abernethy and R. H. Cole, are both old councillors.

The election as predicted was what could be termed hot, with the result that the returns are surprising in some respects. Four of last year's

GEORGE HOOTON DEFEATS ELSON

Lively Election In Cavan—Deputy-Reeve McKnight Loses

J. H. McGILL IS DEPUTY

MILLBROOK, Jan. 6. — Reeve George H. Hooton of Cavan township, the man who was largely responsible for the revaluation of the United counties of Northumberland and Durham for a new equalization of assessment, was re-elected yesterday by a majority of 77 over Harry Elson. The total vote was 447 to 370.

In the same field Deputy-reeve R. J. McKnight lost his seat to Jas. H. McGill of Centreville by the same margin of 77, the vote being 438 to 361. The 1931 councillors are Robt. McCamus, J. O. Ball and Arthur Wood, the latter being a new member.

Mr. McKnight was a member of the special county road commission this year, and had announced his intention of entering the wardenship arena and among the contending aspirants is the other Cavan representative, Reeve Hooton. The defeat of Mr. McKnight, therefore, removes one of Mr. Hooton's prospective opponents. And, by the way, another fell in yesterday's municipal frays, in the person of Fred Hyland, the quiet but capable reeve of Cartwright, who had intimated in December that he might toss his hat into the same ring.

The results for the deputy-reeve's position were:

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful antiacid and food corrective which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

BURMESE NATIVES IN FRESH UPRISING.

RANGOON, Burma Jan. 5.—(A.P.)—Burmese natives in the Yamethin district 250 miles north of here to-day raided a village at the end of the jungle, burned a number of houses and met the police in a brief skirmish, details of which were unavailable here.

The new uprising came on the heels of a similar revolt in the Thawawaddy district put down last week by British troops.

Man Has Prepared His Own Coffin

A story, known to be true, is told of a man, 65 years of age, in this city who is completely prepared for death and burial. He has carved both his and his wife's coffins out of beachwood. They are reported to be beautiful pieces of work. The gentleman has also bought his plot in the cemetery, and has his inscription all written, with the exception of the date of death, on a slab of marble. The gentleman is either a fatalist or a believer of the mottos, "Be Prepared" and "Here 'o-day and gone to-morrow," because both he and his wife are in excellent health.

CHINESE MOTHER STAYS IN CANADA

Deportation of 19 Year Old Gee Shu May Averted Through Immigration Minister.

INTERESTING HISTORY.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 6. (CP) — Through the intervention of Hon. W. A Gordon, Minister of Immigration, the proposed deportation to China of 19-year-old Gee Shu Moy, the wife of a British-born Chinese and the mother of a son born in Vancouver six months ago, has been averted. Instructions to this effect have been received.

Immigration authorities here had ordered the deportation of Gee Shu Moy on the ground that she had entered the country illegally. In Supreme Court Mr. Justice F. B. Gregory upheld the deportation order but expressed regret that he was unable to act otherwise.

Gee Shu Moy, when 13 years of age, was purchased for $100 in China and brought to Canada by a Chinese who represented to immigration authorities at Victoria, where she landed, that she was his daughter. She worked in a Vancouver restaurant and the foster father, it was alleged, kept her earnings and opposed her marriage here to Lim Pat Chung. The ceremony was carried out, however, in July 1929.

The publicity attending the foster father's opposition brought the case to the attention of the immigration authorities, who ordered the young wife's deportation because, according to regulations, she had entered Canada illegally.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 6.—Division of the Indian electorate by religious sects and minorities, as proposed at the London round table conference, was opposed in a telegram sent to London to-day bearing the names of 15 leading Mohammedans. "The retention of separate electorates is most undesirable as it means the negation of a Dominion constitution," the telegram read. "A large number of Mohammedans consider it prejudicial to their community."

HY CURTIS DEFEATED FOR REEVE BY OLD TIMER OF PERCY TOWNSHIP

W. J. Baker, 76, Returns To Council After 35 Years' Absence

C. J. BOYCE'S BIG VOTE

WARKWORTH, Jan. 6. — W. J. Baker's victory by a majority of 45 over C. H. Curtis for the reeveship of Percy township was one of the sharp surprises in Northumberland county municipal elections yesterday. The total vote in the six subdivisions was 560 to 505.

Alfred Merrill, one of last year's council, had been elected deputy-reeve by acclamation, and the three councillors for 1931 are C. J. Boyce, a new candidate who headed the poll, James Lamey and George Partridge, and the two unsuccessful nominees were Adam Campbell and William Partridge.

The temper of the ratepayers of the township was unmistakably manifested in yesterday's results. Only two of last year's council emerged from the nominations to help carry on the municipal affairs of Percy this year. The Reeve-elect, W. J. Baker, will in all probability be the oldest member of the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham this year. He will be seventy-seven next June, and readers of The Examiner will recall the report of his celebration of the fifty-fifth anniversary of his wedding at Christmas.

Mr. Baker returns to the council of Percy after an absence of thirty-five years. Another feature of Monday's polling was observed in C J. Boyce's success. He entered the field as a new candidate, and rolled up 692 votes. James Lamey, in second position, received 501 and George Partridge was next with 496.

The 1930 council was composed of Reeve W. H. Nelson, Deputy-reeve C. H. Curtis and Councillors Merrill, Lamey and Campbell. In yesterday's election the main appeal was based on the promise of economy. That may have explained the acclamation to

BELMONT AND METHUEN CONTEST RESULTS IN TIE FOR THE REEVE

MAY SEEK RECOUNT.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 6 (Examiner Correspondent)—As many predicted, the election in Belmont and Methuen council, was a close and hot one. The Reeveship was contested for by J. F. Breckenridge and W. E. Griffith. Each of these obtained 286 votes.

For a third time the so called "North Poles", namely, Oak Lake, South Lake and Lasswade have kept the final results of hot elections from the anxious citizens of Havelock and Belmont.

When T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A., of Havelock, defeated Wm. Anderson of Otonabee, in that memorable battle a little over a year ago, these poles announced that Mr. Lancaster was twenty-seven votes better than Mr. Anderson. This was only after keeping the whole of East Peterborough in suspense for nearly two days.

A year ago now these same poles held the secret for a day or so longer than any of the others, finally they gave Mr. Griffith a majority of twelve over Mr. Breckenridge.

This year, however, those interested arranged to have the results brought in late Monday evening, then only to cause more concern than ever by giving each candidate a total vote of 286.

Since the ratepayers can't decide on a reeve there are two ways of breaking this unusual tie. Either of the two candidates can ask for and obtain a recount before a judge; then if they still remain equal the

Leamington Wants No Gov't. Liquor Store

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 6. (CP)—Maintaining its reputation as a dry district the town of Leamington at its municipal election yesterday rejected the proposal for establishing a Government liquor store within its limits. The vote was necessary under the Liquor Control Act, because Leamington was under Local Option when the present law came into force. Electors who went to the polls voted the liquor store down by a decisive margin.

DR. W. E. WILSON WINS HASTINGS

ONE NEW COUNCILLOR

HASTINGS, Jan. 6.—Dr. W. E. Wilson remains Reeve of Hastings as a result of Monday's municipal elections. Reeve Wilson defeated former Reeve Dr. J. H. Hess by 216 to 160, a majority of 56, and three of last year's councillors also received a renewal of the ratepayers' confidence. They are C. B. Plant with 344 votes, John J. Collins 236 and Walter Powids 166, and A. Parker with 203 votes displaces R. C. Doxsee.

The defeated candidates for council were W. A. Lavoie 113, R. C. Doxsee 84, J. J. Perrault 75, S. Hatherly 45, and Wm. Lynch 41.

Yesterday's elections were especially marked by the contest for the Reeveship and also by the fact that four members of the 1930 council retain their places around the 1931 council board, among them being Dr. Wilson in the Reeve's chair. The returns indicate that the people of Hastings were satisfied with the Wilson administration.

In the following tabulation of the results polling sub-divisions 1 and 1A were at the town hall on the north side of the river and subdivision 2 was at J. J. Collins' office on the south side.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

White potatoes are such a favorite vegetable that it is interesting to realize that it is a native of North America. Many of our vegetables were introduced from other countries and were not wild vegetables common to North American soil.

• • • • • •

But not so with the potato—when Sir Walter Raleigh went to Virginia he was so pleased with potatoes he found that on his return voyage to Great Britain he took enough of the edible tubers back with him to begin growing them on his estate in the Emerald Isle.

• • • • • •

Potatoes must have rapidly become popular from this time and also cheap to grow for they acquired the name of Irish potatoes and are so called frequently to-day.

• • • • • •

It is recorded that the potatoes introduced previously into England by one John Hawkins were not white but yellow, potatoes such as we call sweet potatoes.

• • • • • •

The Peruvians called their white tubers "battata" which makes it an easy translation to our own word potato. These potatoes were introduced from Peru to Spain before they went to any other European country.

• • • • • •

The point is debatable whether England got them from America through Spain or her own colonists which were the settler ancestors.

• • • • • •

With such an interesting genealogy, it is not surprising that the potato is popular. It is for the housekeeper to become acquainted with some of their qualities and grades when buying potatoes when cooking and serving them.

• • • • • •

Potatoes are rich in starch but not in nitrogen. They require supplementing with other vegetables to supply a correctly balanced vegetable diet.

• • • • • •

Their flavor is not so pronounced that white potatoes fail to blend with other vegetables agreeably. This quality of blending makes them especially good to serve as one of the vegetables on a menu.

• • • • • •

Very small potatoes are graded as seconds. Very large ones are not desirable to serve except mashed or French fried potatoes. Small potatoes are good for parsley potatoes and potato salad

• • • • • •

But we find medium sized potatoes most in demand, and when buying potatoes we should see that they are the size suitable to your needs.

REV. E. SMITH GIVES ILLUSTRATED TALK

Women's Missionary Society Of Norham Church Hears Address on Newfoundland

NORHAM, January 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — An illustrated lecture on Newfoundland was given by Rev. E. Smith of Warkworth on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society of Norham Church.

Rev. D. R. Clare acted as chairman and during the evening a duet, "Ivory Palace" was sung by Mrs. Harry Wilson and Miss Florence Clare. Later, Rev. D. R. Clare and Miss Florence Clare sang, "There Is A City Far Away."

Dr. Smith, in his lecture on Newfoundland, said it was the oldest British Colony but it did not belong to Canada. An ancient verbal treaty by which the French had the privilege of drying their fish on certain portions of Newfoundland shore caused the French to lay claim to part of it, but this was settled in 1908 and all of Newfoundland was declared British.

Newfoundland is only inhabited along the coast as the interior is rocks and low scrub trees. The industries are fishing, mining, pulp and paper making and seal hunting.

Dr. Smith described the different kinds of fishing and told of a six weeks' trip which he and his wife enjoyed in Newfoundland, when he secured the views he had of the island. One hundred views were shown of the country in all its phases from the natural beauty of its rivers and mountains, the rural fishing hamlets and scenes on the ocean and land, illustrating the various industries, to the majestic architecture of the cities and shown in the various churches and public buildings.

A vote of thanks was given to Dr. Smith for the very interesting and instructive lecture.

ACCEPT SAPRU SCHEME.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The British Liberals have swung behind home rule for India, that is, for self-government with safeguards. But, as Lord Reading, former Viceroy of India, submitted the Liberal position at the Round Table Conference he made it clear, within these limitations, that the Liberal delegation to the conference stood for a Government of India responsible not to Whitehall, but to the Federal Parliament of the new India.

In all the essentials, Lord Reading, on behalf of the Liberal delegation, accepted the scheme submitted to the conference on Friday by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Hindu Moderate.

This scheme has in view the creation of an Indian Cabinet responsible to the Legislature in all subjects except defense and foreign affairs. These two excepted departments will be reserved to the Crown and the Ministers holding these portfolios would be appointed by, and responsible to, the Viceroy.

FOODS CAUSING SKIN AILMENTS.

For many years it has been known that certain articles of food would bring on an attack of the hives (urticaria) in some people; such an excellent food as eggs for instance will cause hives, even if eaten in a cake or other confection.

Raw fruits are great offenders, as also is too much meat in some cases.

However it is only recently that physicians have begun to think about certain foods as being the cause of such chronic skin conditions as eczema and familiar ailments.

As you know some individuals will tell you that their eczema comes on, or becomes worse at certain seasons of the year thus attributing the eczema to the weather, whereas the real cause is that at certain seasons they eat certain foods which are really the cause.

Now although the skin tests for certain substances are helpful, such as ragweed as a cause of hay fever, it would seem that the skin test does not show the reaction when food is the cause of eczema or other slow or continuous ailment.

Accordingly physicians now are making the tests by actually using large quantities of the suspected food to see if it aggravates the trouble and increases the itching, and then having the patient do without that particular food for a couple of days, and seeing if the itching will stop or grow less, and the skin irritation be less severe.

Sometimes the animal protein-meat, eggs, cheese and milk, is with held, and the vegetable proteins-beans, peas, bananas, bread- are supplied; or if a fruit or vegetable is suspected, as the cause, it is added to the diet.

Now this would seem to be a simple method of finding just what food or foods is the cause of the skin ailment, but you can see that as many of these foods form a large part of the everyday diet of most people, that trying to do without them entirely might be a serious matter from the standpoint of their health and happiness.

Dr. Urback, Vienna, suggests that if a very small amount of the food that causes the trouble is eaten one hour before the regular meal at which this particular food is served, it will protect the individual against the action of the large amount.

This method is certainly safer and easier on the patient than injecting food substances into the skin, which often causes severe shock.

The thought then, in any old skin ailment that perists for a long time, is to try and locate the food that may be the cause of it.

A BEDTIME STORY

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOWBALLS.

"What's the matter, Bobbie?" asked the Fox as he saw the Bob Cat, with his silly little tail, limping into the den one day.

"Oh, I slipped on the ice and fell," snarled the Bob Cat, who was cross and in a bad temper.

"What ice?" asked the Wolf, who was sitting in the den of the Fox, into which the Bob Cat had just limped.

"The duck pond ice," went on the Bad Chap, with the tail no bigger than your thumb. "It's frozen, you know."

"Yes, it was very cold last night," said the Fox, shivering. "Plenty of snow and ice now."

"Plenty of snow and ice, but very little food to eat," grumbled the Wolf. "Oh, for a nice, fat rabbit! Yum, hum!"

"That's what I was trying to get when I slipped and fell," said the Bob Cat, sitting down on his tail to keep it out of sight. For he was very much ashamed of it.

"What rabbit were you trying to get?" asked the Fox, picking up his ears and rubbing his hungry teeth with his red tongue.

The air seemed filled with snowballs.

"Don't tell me it was Uncle Wiggily!" howled the Wolf.

"That's just the rabbit I was chasing across the frozen duck pond when I slipped and fell," answered the Bob Cat.

"So that's why you are lame and limp and why you didn't catch Uncle Wiggily, is it?" asked the Fox.

"Well, I slipped and fell," snarled Bobbie as his Bad Chap friends called him. "But the reason I didn't catch Uncle Wiggily was because he put on some ice skates and went so fast that I couldn't keep up."

"Oh, then he had his ice skates with him?" asked the Fox. "Of course you couldn't catch a skating rabbit. No wonder!"

"No, he didn't exactly have his skates," spoke the Bob Cat, "Uncle Wiggily was carrying two frying pans with the handles off. He was taking them to the jolly tinker dog to have them mended, I guess. But when I chased him and fell, Uncle Wiggily fastened the frying pan handles on his paws with strips torn from his handkerchief and then he skated away from me and hopped into the tinker's shop before I could catch him."

"Well, regular skates, or skates made from frying pan handles, it's all the same as long as he got away," said the Wolf gloomily.

"What are we going to do about it?" asked the Fox.

"About what?" the Bob Cat wanted to know.

"About catching Uncle Wiggily, of course," went on the Fox. "He is still in the shop of the jolly tinker dog, but when he comes out we might throw snowballs at him, knock him down or plaster his eyes shut and then we could catch him. Eh, what?"

"A jolly good idea, I say!" growled the Wolf.

"Not half bad!" agreed the Bob Cat. "Not half!"

"Come on!" invited the Fox, and the three Bad Chaps hurried over the ice and snow to the shop of the jolly dog tinker. Truly enough, Uncle Wiggily was inside, having come to get the tinker to fasten back on the frying pans the handles that had come off. Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy needed the pans to fry carrot mush for the rabbit children.

"There you are, Uncle Wiggily!" barked the tinker dog as he finished fastening the handles on the frying pans. "They are as good as new. And I hope, when you get hom, the Bob Cat won't chase you."

"Thanks. I think he has run away," spoke the rabbit. "But I can't take the short cut across the frozen pond for I have no skates now. Unless I could use the frying pans."

"They would be more like show shoes" barked the jolly dog tinker. "No, I would advise you to go the longer way around the road," said the tinker. "I think it will be safe with the Bob Cat out of the way."

Holding the mended frying pans by their handles, Uncle Wiggily left the shop of the jolly tinker dog. But, no sooner had he gone a little way than up from back of some bushes popped the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat, each with snowballs in his paws.

"Crack him! Bang him! Pop him!" cried the three hungry Bad Chaps.

"Oh, dear! Here they are!" cried Unlie Wiggily.

He began to run. After him came the hungry animals. They began to throw snowballs as fast as they could, making them whizz around the ears of Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, if they hit me on the head and knock me down they'll surely catch me!" thought the rabbit. Then he remembered the frying pans he carried. Quickly he raised them up over his head, like shields the old-time soldiers used. The air seemed filled with flying snowballs thrown by the bad chaps. But did any of them hit Uncle Wiggily?

"Well, no, not on the head!" said the bunny, telling o his adventure afterward. "All the snowballs the Bad Chaps threw at me landed on the frying pans. Bang! Bang! Bing! The snowballs rattled on the pans and bounced off but they didn't hurt me and I got safely home to my bungalow."

"Fooled again!" howled the Bad Chaps as they slunk hungrily away.

MRS. MURPHY

Mrs. Murphy lived alone in a little log cabin on the north hundred. Her husband had been one of Grandfather's farm hands, but had long since departed this life after a well fought but losing battle with Irish Whiskey. The three Murphy girls were married and settled in another county, and the four Murphy boys were away "in the States" making their fortunes. But they managed to send their mother a little money now and then, and so with a cow and a pig and some hens and a garden Mrs. Murphy lived quite comfortably. And she might have lived happily if her arch enemy, Mrs. Kelly, did not dwell just across the line fence, and keep a pig which knew every weak spot in Mrs. Murphy's half of that same line fence.

Many a time when Mrs. Murphy returned from a visit to one of the neighbors, or a trip to the little post office of the X—— district, whither she had gone to mail a letter to one or other of the "chidder," carrying three eggs to exchange for a stamp, it was to find the Kelly pig uprooting her Late Rose potatoes in his quest for worms.

Then Mrs. Murphy, panting, down the hill, her sunbonnet flying from her shoulders, and with streams of profanity for Biddy Kelly, and showers of rocks for "that thafe of the world" her pig, chase the marauder into the road to go whither he pleased. Now, pigs are none too easy to corral, so by this time Mrs. Kelly would appear in her doorway, to state elaborately her opinion of such procedure. Whereupon streams of abuse flowed back and forth until both women were out of breath.

The story goes that upon one occasion Mrs. Murphy went to confession for her Easter duty upon the last day set aside for that purpose, and as she was leaving the church met Mrs. Kelly going in. That lady poured out the usual stream of blasphemous abuse, to which Mrs. Murphy was obliged to listen in silence, until at last, unable to endure it longer she said bitterly "It's aisy seein', Biddy Kelly, ye know Oi'm in a state of grace this minit, but glory be to God Oi won't be so for long!".

Mrs. Murphy had very strong dislikes which she never troubled to hide. On the road one morning she met little Tommy Ryan, and made her usual inquiries anent the health of Tommy and his family, and whether his father was yet working after the latest spree.

Tommy told her about the man who had been drowneded in Miller's dam on Sunday. Mrs. Murphy usually heard everything, but this was news to her, news which shocked her greatly.

'Aw, the poor man! Drownded in Miller's dam, you say. Was he a married man, Tommy?" "Yes, Mrs. Murphy," "Aw, the poor man!! Married an' drownded in Miller's dam. Tommy, I've knowed ye since ye was so high, an' ye wouldn't tell a lie to me. Had he any children, Tommy?" "Yes, Mrs. Murphy, he had five children." "Aw the poo man! Married, an' five children, an' drownded in Miller's dam. An' Tommy, was he an Irishman, Tommy?" "No, Mrs. Murphy, he was an Englishman." "Aw, t'ell wid him!!

Peterborough Commended In Fire Prevention Work

A Report of Merit issued recently by the International Committee on Fire Prevention and Clean-up Weeks for the National Fire Protection Association. This report is in connection with the activities of the recent campaign for Fire Prevention Week—October 5th to 11th inclusive.

Peterborough is highly commended for the splendid organization and good work that has been accomplished. With the excellent report of the great decrease in fire losses in the city during 1930 over the preceeding year, it is to wondered why Peterborough did not take first place in the "Under 25,000 Population Contest." If Kenora, Galt, Sturgeon Falls, Guelph and Sudbury are really in advance of this city, as they are judged, then Ontario ought to rejoice in her splendid fire protection.

In the period from September 28th to October 18th, there were 122 fireless weeks in Canada. Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton won first, second and third places respectively in cities of over 100,000 population in Ontario. Oshawa, Kitchener and London obtained the first three places in cities of over 25,000 population.

The Committee of Judges, appointed for the purpose of reviewing the reports submitted by the different municipalities in Canada and the United States, was composed as follows: Hon. G. H. Lewis, Deputy Fire Marshal of Ontario; Hon. J. W. Strohm, State Fire Marshal of Iowa; A. B. Wright of Buffalo; and P Mendelsohn of Detroit

A MATTER OF LIGHTS.

The tightening up of the enforcement of the regulations in regard to automobile lights, as indicated in the announcement that Major-General Victor Williams, Provincial Police Commissioner, has issued a warning that any motorist found driving a car in future without proper lights will be summoned, should meet with approval.

"Proper lights" mean, of course, two headlights and a tail-light—not merely one headlight, as some drivers seem to imagine.

As a matter of fact the conditions on the highways for a long period have justified a more drastic policy on the part of the authorities.

It is impossible to drive very far in any direction without encountering one of those one-eyed automobiles, driven by somebody who has got away with this faulty equipment so long that he has become indifferent to the danger he creates for other motorists and who feels that because nobody has said anything about it he might just as well save the expense involved in making his lights correspond with the regulations.

A systematic round-up of the offender, with fines that would prove that it is cheaper to comply with the law than to try to get by with faulty lights, would greatly improve motoring conditions and the decision, by this time no doubt passed on to all traffic officers, to summon car-offenders who disregard the regulations should be applauded by all careful and intelligent motorists.

TO-MORROW'S RELIEF MEETING.

The attention of all social service organizations and of citizens generally is called to the public meeting which Mayor Denne has called for the Council Chamber to-morrow night, for the purpose of discussing local conditions relating to relief and of co-ordinating measures of assistance by the formation of a central agency.

The Examiner is thoroughly satisfied that for some time there will be an unusual amount of relief required and that it should be dealt with—and can only be dealt with effectively—through the medium of a representative citizens' committee that would have general supervision over all relief work and ensure a systematic and business-like distribution of the aid required.

The willingness of those who have to help those who temporarily have not, should make the problem of taking care of the victims of present economic conditions a comparatively easy matter, provided there is the machinery for taking charge of relief and preventing over-lapping and exploitation.

The first step is the formation of a central organization and that development will be made possible if the attendance at to-morrow night's meeting is as large and as representative as the seriousness of the crisis merits.

THE RIGHT OF THE PEDESTRIAN.

A considered judgment delivered in Montreal by Chief Justice Greenshield of the Superior Court contains a sentence that a great many car-owners will do well to remember.

Awarding damages to a boy who had been struck by a truck, Mr. Justice Greenshield declared:

"The vehicle has no rights to the street superior to the pedestrian."

The tendency to exonerate motorists who run down pedestrians referred to by The Examiner in an editorial a day or two ago, ignores completely the law laid down by the Montreal judge.

The impression indeed has become prevalent, perhaps because of a belief that might constitutes right, that the automobile has the right of way and that it is the responsibility of the person on foot to protect himself.

A feeble old man starts over an intersection and the driver of an approaching car immediately sounds his horn for the pedestrian to get out of the way.

According to the ruling of Mr. Justice Greenshield the pedestrian has just as much right to signal the driver to stop.

Under present conditions however, it might be just as well for him not do anything of the kind, but rather to save himself as best he can.

The Stratford Beacon-Herald gives the reason when it points out that the driver of a car may have heard nothing about Chief Justice Greenshield; he may be and probably is, laboring under the impression that he owns the road and has a right to honk at people, make them jump and then glance at them for not having jumped farther and faster.

THRIFT COMES BACK.

If conditions are the same elsewhere as are reported in a despatch from Kingston the present temporary period of depression will have to be regarded as somewhat of a blessing in disguise.

According to the reports of Kingston bankers a greater number of savings accounts were opened there last month than for any similar period in years and these accounts are growing at an unprecedented rate.

Much of the distress caused by present conditions is undoubtedly due to the fact that thrift had become a forgotten virtue with a great many people and as a result there was no reserve to take care of a period of unemployment.

In some cases, of course, where wages were not large and families were it was a difficult operation to put anything by for a rainy day—but there are instances just now of assistance being required in households where substantial wages were earned under normal conditions, but while the process of keeping up with the Joneses had prevented the accumulation of a savings account that would have rendered the family independent even when confronted with a slack unemployment situation.

If people are learning to save—and evidently this is the case in Kingston—the slump of the past few months has taught a lesson that it is to be hoped has been permanently absorbed.

Let us hope, of course that the thing is not overdone.

If these saving accounts are being piled up by people who have no financial worries and who are retrenching when there is no real need for them to do so, the return to prosperity will be delayed.

On the other hand if they represent an attempt on the part of workers who realize the need of a nest egg in times of industrial depression, to fortify themselves against loss of employment for the bread-winner, the development is a welcome.

GETTING AWAY FROM "13"

Now we have it! That figure "13" has been causing all the trouble we have been experiencing this year. You work it out this way. Take the figures in 1930 and add them together, and if you do it correctly you stumble upon the total of 13. Apply the same thing to 1921, which was a lean year, and it runs 1 and 9 makes 10, and 2 makes 12, and one more is another 13.

There must be something in it, and the wonder is we have never thought of it before. But we do not come across another of these 13 combinations until the year 2029, which is 99 years in the offing, so it's certain that we are in for a long spell of good times.

It seems almost too good to be true. All the hustling around we have been doing to try and provide work for people; all the worry the farmers have been handling—it has been wasted effort, because all that was necessary was to wait until 1930 with the baneful influence of that 13 total had passed away.

And now we have stepped away from that 1930, and we suppose it will be only a matter of a week or ten days before farmers will be getting $1.50 for wheat and $15 a hundred for pigs with their boots on.

The only fly in the ointment is that there may be nothing in the theory—and to be quite candid, we don't think there is—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

WEATHER AVERAGES PERSIST.

Whenever the weather in any particular season strays from the popular acceptation of "normal," and so remains for any appreciable period, it is either classified as "unprecedented" or hailed as indubitable proof that the climate is changing and is no longer what it once used to be. The number of people who believe and say this is remarkable and they are inclined to stick to their opinion despite the testimony of carefully kept records. The weather bureau officials hardened to the vagaries of human memory, wear a superior smile when beset with the queries of the curious, dismissing them as bunk, or, to employ the latest fashionable term, "humbug," although they may affect more polite language.

The snowfall of this year or last year or next year, whatever it was, is, or may be, is certain to have been duplicated in some one or other of the yesteryears. Those methodical persons who keep weather records either for personal satisfaction or in performance of a public duty, on turning back to the pages of the past find that whatever differences are found in individual cases, the averages of the seasons vary only in slight degree. They thus confirm the official pronouncement that, generally speaking, things weatherly are, at any given date, much as they have been at some earlier date in the forgotten past.

Mankind is prone to insist that never before has there been a season resembling this we are now experiencing. If either the cold or the warmth apparently is unusual, the word at once goes out that it never happened before, but forgetfulness is responsible for this. For example, in November of last year deep snows fell in various districts of the continent. In Buffalo, Dunkirk, Batavia and the Mohawk Valley towns, it was freely asseverated that no November in history had ever brought similar quantities of the "beautiful." Then some diary keeper referred to his record where he found entries of blizzards and deep snow at approximately the same dates, and at once took all the joy out of life.

Unusually mild weather, extending for a few days in December, January or February, at once brings the familiar declaration that nothing like it had even been witnessed before. But apart from the written records some old resident with an abnormally accurate and retentive memory, recalls something closely resembling the latest of the weather wonders. Then after check and counter-check it is discovered to have precedents not once but several times. So even as regards the weather, there is nothing new under the sun. Of course, it is possible that at some unknown period in the future another glacial age may descend from the Arctic regions and restore the supremacy of the Esquimos. But if scientists are correct this abnormal frigidity won't come in our time.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

By TEMPLE BAILEY

He told her, after that, about himself. He had always been, he said, in a sense, held down. It was like that when you had a father who lived in the past and wouldn't face the facts of today. "You see he wants me to be a gentleman of the old school, the kind who wore swords, and rode to hounds, and put women on a pedestal. He has idealized the men of that time until you'd think they were Knights of the Round Table And everything I try my hand at seems to him futile. He doesn't want me to write because he made a failure of it and he hates the editors and critics. But I've written a bit and I know what I can do. And Jinny knows it. It was she who made me send things out, and sent them out again when I had rejections. But I've had some acceptances, and a few good checks. Jinny's got a bit of literary talent herself. Once or twice we've collaborated. That's why we are going to New York. We think we can make good. We'll be new to it all at first, for we've never been far from home. But we need just what we'll get, contacts and all that."

"Shall you hate leaving Annapolis?"

"No. I want to be free — to try my wings."

There was a pause while Mary Lee looked out over the blueness of the Bay. In Rickey's eyes she seemed placid and happy. And how could he know that she was not placid. That her busy mind was at work. Mary Lee wanted her own way. She had always had it. And she hated to be thwarted.

So presently she said, her blue eyes as cloudless as the sky, "You talk about being free. But aren't you a bit tied — to apron strings?"

He was amazed at her change of front, "I thought you said I wasn't weak-minded."

"I did. But I am wondering if your sister doesn't boss you a bit."

He flung up his head, "Boss me . . .?"

"Well, there are the candlesticks, you won't sell them if she doesn't want you to."

She stopped and let that sink in, and presently Rickey said, with a touch of sullenness, "You needn't think it's always like that. Or that I'm afraid . . ."

Her eyes met his steadily, "You're not afraid, of course. But I'd like to see you assert yourself. Not that I'm free from ulterior motives," she had a charming laugh, and her eyes were laughing, "but why not do it? You'll please me, and please yourself, and we'll live happy ever after."

He found himself laughing with her. "Why not? I'll tell Grogan when we get back."

She glanced at her watch with an effect of calmness, but her heart was beating wildly. "We'd better be going."

He helped her with the rugs, the cushions, the lunch box, and when at last he sat beside her in the car, he said, "By jinks, it will be a joke on Jinny."

Mary Lee had a moment of compunction. "It may be more than a joke," she said, soberly, then, with a sudden reaction, "but 'do as you please' is my motto, 'and reap the whirlwind.'"

A little later, Grogan receiving his instructions, asked, "Has your sister changed her mind?"

With Mary Lee's eyes upon him Rickey swaggered, "No, but I'll change it for her."

"I see," the auctioneer had a shrewd sense of what had happened. "Are you bidding for them, Miss Logan?"

"Yes. And if the price isn't too high I mean to get them."

But the price was too high. For before the candlesticks were offered, Michael McMillan came into the garden with Marty Van Duyne. And it was Michael who got the candlesticks.

Mary Lee did her best. She had the dealers against her, and more than that she had Michael. He bid doggedly and they were knocked down to him finally at a price much larger than he could afford. He took it philosophically. He wanted them not only for their historic value, but because they had belonged to Virginia. He had been surprised when Grogan offered them. He wondered if Virginia knew. If not, she should have them back.

Marty, congratulating him, said, "You've paid a fortune for them, Michael."

"Well, I wanted them."

"Do you always pay so high for the things you want —"

He shrugged his shoulders, "I want so little, Marty," and that was all.

It was when Marty went up with Michael to settle for his purchases that Rickey saw her. He was standing in the doorway, and so looked down on her, and as he looked everything else fell away, there was only that glimmering figure. Mary Lee Logan was forgotten, everything was forgotten, except that he seemed to float in endless space illumined by a silver light.

Marty was accustomed to admiration, but as she caught the boy's glance, she was aware of something more than admiration, a sort of breathless wonder that, quite strangely, shook her soul.

"Who is he?" she asked Michael in a low voice.

"Virginia Oliphant's brother."

"Do you know him?"

"I've talked with him, if you mean that."

"I'd like to — meet him."

Michael made the presentation carelessly, and Marty said, "How can you let all these lovely things go —"

"Because I am looking for lovelier things —"

She was puzzled, "What do you mean?"

"Well, I want to live. Down in this old town I've just — existed."

She found herself stirred by the emotion in his voice, the excitement, "Don't expect too much of life."

"Why not?"

"It never gives us all we expect."

"I shall — make it."

Again she was shaken. But she was silent. And presently she went away with Michael. When she reached the gate, she looked back, Rickey's eyes were still upon her. Such burning eyes under that bright thatch of hair. "He's different," she found herself thinking, "I've known so many men — but not one — like this —"

Rickey, still staring after Marty had gone through the gate, felt a touch on his arm. He turned to find Mary Lee Logan. "Who is that girl?" she demanded.

"What girl?"

"The one you have been staring at for the last fifteen minutes."

He seemed to wake from a dream. "Was I staring?"

"Yes. Who is she?"

"Miss Van Duyne of New York."

"How long have you known her?"

"About ten minutes."

"Ten minutes! Quick work, I'd say."

Rickey's face darkened, "What do you mean?"

Rickey turned away, but was stopped by her exclamation: "Oh, look here, I'm sorry."

"That's all right."

She held out her hand, "If I don't see you again, will you hunt me up in New York?"

"Are you leaving?"

"To-night." A shadow had fallen upon her, she was less gay, less irresponsible. She gave Rickey her address and he wrote it down. Then he shook hands with her again, and promptly forgot her.

Grogan came up, a tin box under his arm. "By the way, Oliphant," he said, "I've got a lot of cash these people have left with me. I'll give you that, and put the checks through in the morning. I don't want to motor up to Baltimore with a bunch of money on me."

He counted out the bills—something over a thousand dollars. "Put it in a safe place," he advised.

Rickey laughed, "I'll keep it safe, don't worry." He stuck it in an inside pocket, and swung down from the platform. A man standing near spoke to him—a loose-jointed, lanky creature.

"Come on out to the shack to-night, Oliphant. There's going to be some good fun."

"I can't Lute, not to-night."

"To-morrow then?"

"I'll see."

Chapter Four

An Answer to Arrogance.

The inn to which Mrs. Bleecker took her guests was a cozy place. The food was delicious. But the company! Mrs. Bleecker, artificial as the orchids she affected; Marty Van Duyne, exquisite and utterly at her ease; Lieutenant Bleecker, all gold and glitter; and Michael McMillan!

It was Michael who swayed things level for Virginia. He had a quality of friendliness which drew her to him as she had not been drawn to any of the others. She decided that she liked him even more than she had thought when she met him in the drawing room.

She sat beside Mrs. Bleecker, with Michael on her left. Beyond that Marty, beyond that Tony Bleecker. By all rights, Tony should not have been on the other side of his mother. But Jane had instinctively separated him from Virginia. She could never have explained her instinct. But in the months that followed, she was to recognize the correctness of her intuitions.

Marty, between the two men, was at her best. Her world was their world, she swept the conversation on to subjects entirely out of the range of the girl in the green sweater; she talked of sports in Florida, in Westchester, in England. She was, it seemed, a tennis player of some note, and horsewoman of skill and expertness. She did not say these things, but they were self-evident. Then, too, there were the new plays, the people in whose houses and, on whose yachts she had been entertained, and whom she had entertained in her own house and on her father's yacht. The men talked her language and so did Jane. But Virginia could not talk it. So she sat smiling, interested. And Michael, looking down at her, thought her charming, and Tony looking across the table had no eyes for Marty.

It was Michael who brought the conversation back finally to where Virginia could share it. "Some day, I'm coming to Derekdale and steal your Dutch spoons," he told his hostess.

"You must come, but not to steal the spoons." Jane found herself liking Michael, the flashing quickness of his smile, his wit and gaiety balanced by moments of somberness in which he seemed to draw within himself, and which piqued her into a desire to bring him out of the shadows into brightness again and brilliance.

Not that Jane analyzed it that way. Jane rarely analyzed. But she made up her mind she would see more of Michael, hence the emphasis on her invitation.

Michael was saying to Virginia. "What about the spoons? I fancy they have a history."

"They have. I am not sure that it is all true as it has come down to us. But it sounds well—you see there was a certain Richard Oliphant—"

Jane on the other side of her, broke in, "Tell it so we can all hear it."

So Virginia told it and told it well. She was absolutely without self-consciousness. She saw no difference between these people and herself. She was of their class and kind. And an Oliphant was an Oliphant.

It had to do with a gambling ancestor, a certain Richard Oliphant, who having lost everything at cards came one rainy night to a wayside inn without money for bed or board. By his wit and gallantry he won an invitation to supper from a dazzling young beauty just out from Holland. She was being served by her maid at a small table set apart from the others and supplied with her own linen and silver. When young Richard sat down he was handed a carved and heavy spoon with which to eat his soup—"One of the spoons you have, Mrs. Bleecker," Virginia explained.—He knew its value, and that it would pay for his bed. So he asked for a pen and wrote a verse which he offered to the lady in exchange for the spoon which he declared he would hold as hostage for her beauty. The lady read the verse, blushed, presented him with the token, and presently fared forth. Young Richard slept well, and in the morning gave the spoon to the landlord as security for what he owed, galloped to the house of a friend, borrowed a purse, played high again that night, won back what he had lost, and later won the lady! The spoons had been handed down through five generations, and the young Holland beauty was responsible for the red hair in the Oliphant family.

"There's a full dozen of them," Virginia supplemented, "but no one knows which spoon is the one which won a bride for Richard Oliphant."

She was flushed and a little breathless, but as beautiful as the dazzling lady who had given her her red hair. Michael's smiling eyes had encouraged her as she talked; they smiled at her now. "I hope they lived happy ever after," he said.

"Tradition has it that he drank himself under the table every night and died of it. And since then there has been in every generation a gambling and a drinking Oliphant."

Laughter greeted that. But in some subtle way Michael knew it was not a laughing matter. It was as if Virginia had flung out a bitter truth to counteract such romantic glamour as might attach itself to the history of the rackety and roistering Richard!

"Your story seems to have no moral," he told her smiling.

"Except that a gentleman who loses may win."

"Is there, by any chance," Mrs. Bleecker asked, "a copy of the verse that Richard Oliphant wrote?"

"Yes. We have a sampler with the verse in cross-stitch. The Dutch beauty did it in the early days of her marriage, undoubtedly before her husband drank himself under the table. Would you like to hear it?"

She gave it, charmingly, her chin lifted a little, the graceful words falling limpid from her lips.

"If east or west,
Or north or south
Be my direction,
This silver toy will show me Dian's face,
And thy reflection."

"Great stuff," Tony applauded, but Michael said only, "Will you say it over for me, so that I may write it down?"

He took out a notebook and pencil, and she repeated the lines, slowly, leaning her head towards him as she sat beside him. Her bright hair brushed his cheek. He had a mad desire to cut off a lock of it, and imprison it in the book!

He rose. "I must get back to the sale. There's a set of Sheffield porringers. Shall you bid on those, Mrs. Bleecker?"

"I have all the porringers I want, thank you. And there are some things I must talk over with Miss Oliphant."

"I'm going with Michael," Marty announced.

"You might as well go, too, Tony," his mother suggested, "then Miss Oliphant and I can have a comfy chat."

"You'd be entirely too comfy, Midget. I'll stay and see that you don't wheedle Miss Oliphant into selling that sampler. I know all your tricks."

So Tony sat with his mother and Virginia on an old sofa which was drawn in front of a smouldering wood fire. Mrs. Bleecker and Anthony smoked cigarettes. Virginia did not smoke, and Anthony was glad of it, not because he disapproved, but that it seemed to set her apart from the smart and sophisticated girls who were his friends.

As Virginia talked, Mrs. Bleecker became increasingly aware of her charm. She saw, too, that Tony was aware of it. He seemed utterly satisfied simply to be near her. And Mrs. Bleecker didn't want him to be utterly satisfied to be near anybody but herself. Not yet. Time enough when he could link his millions with those of some woman whose fortunes equaled his own—someone like Marty Van Duyne. And in the meantime he belonged to his mother in a sense he would never belong after he was married. He was always her attentive cavalier and did the things she wanted him to do. She intended to keep him heart whole if possible. To help him to avoid entangling alliances until she said the word.

And here he was being swept off his feet by Beauty in a shabby green sweater and shabby green hat. There was no doubt about it. Tony, who was usually bored was not bored. He was exerting himself to please Virginia Oliphant as he had never exerted himself to please any other woman.

He was asking Virginia: "What will you do now that you've sold your house?"

"We're to live in New York—my brother and I. He is going to write a book."

"You don't mean it? You ought to talk that over with McMillan. I understand he's an editor." He named the magazine.

A flame flew up in Virginia's cheek. "An editor—how wonderful!"

Tony laughed, "Don't say it like that, or I shall be jealous. McMillan isn't any more wonderful than the rest of us." He turned to his mother. "Midget, Miss Oliphant is to live in New York. We must have her up to Derekdale, and let her see her things there."

"I may not send them at once to Derekdale."

"Oh, you might as well. I'll tell Grogan. And then I can motor down and get you, Miss Oliphant, for a week-end, and you can come and eat with your own Dutch spoons!"

Mrs. Bleecker did not second the invitation. She glanced at her watch. 'Tony, it is after three. And we're dining in Baltimore."

She rose and held out her hand to Virginia. "Will you mind if we say good-by now?" It was, Virginia knew a dismissal. As far as Mrs. Bleecker was concerned Virginia Oliphant was done for! In the discard! Not to be considered, under the circumstances, as a social asset!

And who were the Bleeckers after all, but Hollanders of a burgher strain? The Oliphants could do better than that with their grants from the king, and with a ducal device on their coat of arms. Virginia's head went up. She had a fighting sense of wanting to show Mrs. Bleecker that she couldn't put things over in that autocratic manner.

But it was Anthony who did the fighting! "I am going to walk home with Miss Oliphant, Mother."

Mrs. Bleecker made then a mistake she was afterwards to regret. "I need you here, Tony."

"Sorry, Mother." And away he went, opening the door for Virginia as if he served a queen.

Left alone, Mrs. Bleecker stood very still. There were sharp lights in her eyes. And quite strangely as she stood there, she did not seem small. She seemed as tall as her towering fury.

Elected In Hastings

who was re-elected Reeve of Hastings at the municipal elections yesterday.

HY. CURTIS BEATEN FOR PERCY REEVE

Alf Merrill, apart from his experience. He had been classified as a watch-dog of the treasury, and apparently the electors were preoccupied with an effort to increase the guard. That may explain C. J. Boyce's heavy vote.

Prominent At Cobourg

With the retirement of Warden Herb Nelson and the defeat of Hy Curtis, the counties council this year loses two of its prominent members. They were both men of outstanding personality, and in the council and committee deliberations they were not only articulate leaders in debate, but their comments usually carried weight and on occasion could be either humourous or pungent. In this respect their successors will find a heavy task before them, but possibly the Percy ratepayers are not so concerned with forensic ability as with the commonplace of retrenchment.

At any rate Nelson and Curtis are among the missing this year, and the council and committee meetings at Cobourg will be duller because of their absence.

The details of the voting follows:

For Reeve

	Baker	Curtis
Norham	127	136
Warkworth	170	141
Dartford	87	80
Cobourg Road	62	40
Dutch Line	68	70
Wilson Set.	36	38
	550	505

For Council

Following the above order of the polling places the vote for councillors was as follows:

C. J. Boyce—181, 236, 103, 57, 68, 47—692.

Jas. Lamey—110, 127, 72, 70, 79, 43—501.

G. Partridge—124, 184, 83, 33, 34, 39—496.

And the defeated candidates:—

A. Campbell — 111, 123, 93, 45, 61, 34—469.

W. Partridge — 41, 85, 57, 17, 47, 16—263.

What To-day Means To You

"CAPRICORN"

If January 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., and from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. The only danger period is from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The planetary aspects of January 6th are on the whole, favourable, although there will be many trifling worries that will cause dissatisfaction and disappointment. The signs encourage efforts of importance, but do not promise much for smaller undertakings. Avoid speculation!

Children born on this January 6th will require more than usual care in infancy. Past this stage, they will develop into robust adulthood. Hard headed, and never dominated by emotion, they are bound to succeed. They will brush aside ruthlessly all opposition, and tear down all obstacles.

You were born on a January 6th? Then the world is at your feet, if you will only take advantage, without dilly-dallying, of the many opportunities at hand. You are exceptionally bright, not intellectual, but intelligent. You are full of vitality, endowed with common sense, and your vision is alway practical, never chimerical. Success generally attends your efforts, as you do not embark on any enterprise, regardless of its size, without having carefully weighed the "pros" and "cons." The same spirit animates you in your relations with others. You are never obsessed with the accuracy of your own point of view, and are always willing to concede that others may, in all sincerity, hold views diametrically opposed to yours.

Why then, with such a "make up" do you lag behind those who are not so generously gifted? Your horoscope reveals that you are spasmodic. You lack that continuity of effort which is essential to great achievement. Problems are attacked by you with a vim and an enthusiasm that call forth every one's admiration. The vim quickly vanishes, and the enthusiasm wanes, just as soon as you enter the drudging sphere—and there is always drudgery in every worthwhile achievement.

Your disposition is never soured by failure to make good. You realize your own defects and never "pass the buck." In the home, you will always find sympathy and understanding and deep affection.

FOOD SHARES ARE PROMINENT IN N. Y. ADVANCE

Wall Street Stages Advance Following Downward Trend in Forenoon.

MARKET IS DULL.

Goodyear Tire Drops Three Points—Call Money is Cheap and Plentiful.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. (CP)—The stock market found it difficult either to decline or to rally to-day, but had a little better success with the latter movement than with the former.

Resumption of realizing and short selling at the opening provided a downward trend through much of the forenoon, but excessive dullness developed when the leaders had sold off a point or two. Bears became somewhat nervous and covered, with the result that the market turned in its tracks, regained its recessions and began a slow advance. Volume remained small on the rally, although the buying embraced a rather broad list of issues with the tobacco, utility and food shares prominent.

Consolidated Gas, North American, American Telephone, Atchison, Southern Railway, Missouri Pacific, Warner Brothers, Lowes, McKeesport, Tin Plate, American Can, Case and others improved a point or more net when the pressure was lifted. Liggett and Myers "A" ran up 7 points and American Tobacco "B" up 2. American Sugar preferred and Great Western Sugar preferred rallied 4 and 3, respectively. Continental Baking "A", Purity Baking, Wilson Preferred, Armour of Illinois preferred, gained about 2. U.S. Steel advanced fractionally above last night's close.

Goodyear was again weak, dropping 3 points. Reports that the dividend rate would be reduced when the directors meet to-morrow as well as forecasts of general cuts in tire prices, the first of which has announced to-day by Goodyear of Canada, stimulated selling in the issue. Other rubber shares eased slightly.

Money was cheap and plentiful. Funds were offered privately at a concession from the stock exchange renewal rate of 1½ per cent.

ORIENT'S TRADE IS AIM OF WEST

Premier Anderson Urges Commission Be Despatched From Four Provinces.

USE RESEARCH FUND.

REGINA, Jan. 6 (C.P.).—The appointment of a commission representative of the four Western provinces to visit the Orient with a view to assisting in securing markets for Western products, will be taken up by Premier J. T. M. Anderson with Premiers J. E. Brownlee and John Bracken at Winnipeg to-day.

"If the other provinces are not prepared to join with Saskatchewan then we have under consideration a plan to take action on our own initiative," declared Premier Anderson.

Premier Anderson joined Rt. Hon. Richard B. Bennett en route to Winnipeg. Mr. Bennett and the Western Premiers are to confer at Winnipeg on agricultural relief measures.

"We have in this province a very considerable fund handed over to us when the affairs of the Federal Wheat Board were wound up," declared the Premier. "These funds have been used for research work on agriculture. We feel a portion of this income of this fund might well be used in securing better markets. Our greatest problem to-day is not how to grow more wheat, but rather how and where to sell more," Dr. Anderson declared.

While in conference with the Federal Premier and Western Premiers the Saskatchewan Premier will take up the question of securing of the School Lands Trust Fund, which amounts to approximately $18,000,000, and is held by the Federal Government. According to the natural resources agreement, the Province can take this money out in cash or in securities.

DECLINING METAL PRICES LEAD TO UNEASINESS ON MINE MART

Profit Taking Following Recent Rise in Gold Group is Also Factor.

Copper Prices Unchanged.

TORONTO, Jan. 6. (Special to Examiner.)—The mining market continued soft in spots to-day, though a number of issues displayed firmness in light turnover. Easier feeling is believed due to profit taking following the recent rise led by the gold group, appreciation having been sufficiently substantial in several instances to invite realization. In some circles it is felt the advance was largely professional in character with the public still waiting in the sidelines, and that a quiet period may be experienced with prices established somewhere around present levels.

Declining metal prices were another factor conducive to uneasiness. Silver dropped to a new historical low of 11-16 pence per ounce in London, copper, tin and lead were also lower abroad, and the American Smelting and Refining Co. reduced lead on this side ten points to five cents a pound. New York copper prices remain unchanged with outlook pointing to a period of moderate buying on foreign account and small demand for domestic account as consumers are well supplied.

The decline in the price of silver metal just now is the main disturbing influence in the commodity markets, according to some authorities. The ramifications of the white metal with respect to world trade are so great that many persons believe until silver is stabilized, international trade cannot be returned to anything like its former basis. It is especially serious to Great Britain in its relation to China and India, and to Mexico as one of the great silver producing countries of the world.

J. D. Perrin of Winnipeg, director of San Antonio Mines, is understood to be in town in connection with negotiations for financing this central Manitoba property. Nothing definite as to plans of the company have been learned but according to word around the street increased interest in gold properties is making it somewhat easier to secure funds for development. The Jowsey interests, and, incidentally, Bobjo mines, have been working towards this end for some time.

The trade of ore being milled at Dome Mines is reported to be higher than earlier estimates indicated. The amount of gold absorbed in preliminary operation of the new mill prevented an accurate estimate, but recovery now being secured is believed to be representative of the average. In view of the low operating costs due to decreased prices for supplies and the large reserve of broken ore in the slopes it is believed likely profits per ton this year will establish a record for Dome.

RUNNER REVEALS ALCOHOL SOURCE

Captured Smuggler Claims Supply Comes Over Niagara From Tonawanda, N.Y.

FINED $1,000 AND COSTS.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 6.—Alcohol from "Dry" United States is being smuggled across the Niagara River into Canada, it was revealed in Police Court to-day, when Paul Cornet, Niagara Falls, Ontario, pleaded guilty to the illegal possession of liquor.

Cornet's arrest followed a motorcycle chase last night. Cornet finally made a series of neat leaps over back fences while the constable's revolver barked a summons for him to stop. After the shots were fired, Cornet surrendered.

The officer returned and seized the car, discovering in it 29 gallons of alcohol. Cornet stated before Magistrate Burbridge to-day that the alcohol had been purchased from Jim Palamaris of Tonawanda, N.Y., and had been smuggled across the Niagara River in a boat.

Magistrate Burbridge imposed a fine of $1,000 and costs or three months in jail. The car and the alcohol were ordered confiscated.

INSURGENT CHIEF TO BURN CITIES

Sandino Claims He Will Destory Nicaragua Rather Than Let Marines Rule.

FINAL ORDERS ISSUED.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 6. (CP)—Representatives of Augustino Sandino, Nicaraguan insurgent chief to-day made public a letter from Sandino, said to have been written at his headquarters, El Chipoton, and smuggled into Mexico by way of San Salvador in which he says:

"In order to save Nicaragua it is necessary to destroy it.

"We have sent final orders to burn the cities of our Republic, because if the invading assassin, destroying our national autonomy, is going to rob us of our homeland, at least he will have to rebuild it over the ashes of our bodies.

"Good wishes to the people that regard without fear our destruction, fatherland and liberty. (Signed) A. C. Sandino."

Jose Constantino Gaonsales, who calls himself Secretary in Mexico to Sandino, also made public a telegram which he said had been sent to Senators King and Borah in Washington. The telegram said:

"Withdrawal of marines should be last act of the twenty years long drama of intervention of Nicaragua. Latin America repudiates American military intervention. I assure you that Sandino would lay down arms and our country would be completely and automatically pacified if the marines were withdrawn. Sandino and his followers are only defending Nicaragua's autonomy. We do not demand the withdrawal of the marines as a favor but as an act of undeniable and impending justice."

ART EXHIBITION TREAT AT LONDON

Greatest Collection Ever Assembled on View in Royal Academy.

FROM 31 NATIONS.

LONDON, January 6. — Art from Persian mosques forbidden to Christians, was seen by the western world for the first time this afternoon when the International Exhibition of Persian Art opened in the Royal Academy here.

The King is a patron and he and the Queen will view the exhibition privately later this month.

Valued at more than $30,000,000, the exhibits are said to form the greatest collection of Persian art ever assembled. It comes from 31 nations.

The exhibition has its bright moments, for exhibits range from priceless carpets to a dainty bit of carved pumice, used by some far distant Persian favorite to whiten her fingers.

Hung in the great octagonal entrance hall of the Academy are four huge court carpets centuries old. Two are loaned from New York by Sir Joseph Duveen, a third from Chicago, the carpet now belonging to Mrs. Dith Rockefeller McCormick and formerly in the collection of the Emperor of Austria, and a fourth from the Sanguski collection in Poland.

Boston museum has loaned its famous velvet and a collection of Luristan bronzes; the University of Pennsylvania early bronze Scythian gold, metal and velvets.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Sawit Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The Liverpool market was firm yesterday, closing 1 to 1 1-8 higher, about as due based on Winnipeg's action Saturday. The firm and steady cables gave this market a little stronger opening, the full upturn being half cent over the close on Saturday, but this was not hold, prices sinking until they reached the daily bids, which were from 1 to 1¼ away, and which held the market most of the day from further breaks, but there was no real support in the market, and the market acted heavy during the last hour.

At the start there was some fair buying by export houses against sales over the week-end but the demand was not broad and apparently was quickly satisfied.

The offerings were coming from the buyers of the past few days who were taking profits. There was a fair demand for cash wheat and spreads on some grades were quarter to half better but there was no pressure from holders, and the amount changing hands was very limited.

There was just a small, scattered business in export over the week-end. There was nothing in the flour situation, which continues very quite. The firmness in Liverpool was credited to the small worlds shipments, unsettled weather with general rains in Argentine, which is interfering with the harvesting and movement to seaboard while the weather in India is reported as too dry.

On passage supplies wheat and flour, decreased 4,216,000 bushels, and now stand at 27,272,000 bushels, these figures being quite small. The Canadian Visible supply decreased only 781,000 bushels, while the U.S. Visible increased 1,755,000 bushels. Canadian exports last week were only around 3,000,000 bushels. Buenos Aires was unchanged at mid-day, and that market will be closed Tuesday, due to Church holiday.

Chicago July wheat closed about 1¾ lower, while corn was about 1 3-8 lower. Winnipeg wheat futures closed 1¼ lower, and on the bottom for the day.

Coarse Grains—These markets were all weak and were more or less following the trend of the leading cereal. The cash markets were quiet with just the odd cars changing hands. There was no export business reported. Oats closed 1 cent lower, Barley 7-8 to 1 cent lower, and Rye 1¼ to 1½ lower.

Flax—Weak, dull and featureless. Demand very poor. General weakness in all grains was the main factor. Closing prices 1 7-8 to 2 lower. Liverpool due one to 1 1-8 lower based on Winnipeg.

EASIER TONE IN GOLD GROUP

Balance of Standard List Turns Irregular in Lighter Turnover.

DOME DROPS 15.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 6. (CP)—Easier tone continued in the higher-priced gold group on the mining market to-day, but balance of the list was merely irregular. Tate of turnover was somewhat below that of yesterday.

Dome dropped 15 to $9.05, Hollinger 10 to $6.30, Teck Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves 5 apiece to $6.35 and $2.00, respectively, Kirkland Lake gold 4 to 58, Sylvanite and Howey a couple each to 52 and 28 respectively, and Vipond a cent to $1.00.

In the non-producer close Big Missouis lost 3 to 43 and Macassa a point to 13. Eldorado was strong at 25, up 5, Columario gained 3 to 10, Mining Corporation was strong at $1.85, 5 above last night, and Nipissing advanced a like amount to $1.25.

Nickel and Noranda were unchanged. Lindsleys were a firm group with Cherritt-Gordon up 4 to 87 and Ventures a couple at 43. Abana recovered a cent to 15 but Amulet eased 2 to 32.

Nordon saw improved demand in the oils; price moving up 3 to 42, Dalhousie unchanged. Commonwealth fell 5 to 38. Higher-priced oils were steady.

LABOR FEDERATION EXPRESSES FAITH

Eighteenth Annual Convention of New Brunswick Association Opens To-day.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 6. (CP)—While present unemployment conditions in New Brunswick and the necessity for steps to bring about relief were recognized, strong faith and optimism for the future of the province was expressed by speakers at the opening of the 18th. annual convention of the New Brunswick Federation of Labor, which commenced a three day session here to-day.

Addresses were made by Hon. H. H. McLean, K.C., V.D., lieutenant-governor of the province, Mayor W. W. White of Saint John, Hon. L. V. D. Tilley, K.C., president of the executive council; Thomas Bell, K.C., Rev. C. Gordon Lawrence, Rev. H. Francis Gillen, and James A. Whitbone, who presided at the opening. Standing committees were appointed and the reports of the executive board, secretary-treasurer and president were received.

SIR S. HOARE

fluenced in my final attitude by the completed picture when it is filled in, and by comprehensive, complete proposals that come to us from a willing India.

"But I do say that with the information at my disposal, and with my doubts as to its workability, I cannot at present commit myself to a proposal that seems to be surrounded with so many practical difficulties and to be fraught with such vital consequences for the 300 million men and women who inhabit India, and the British nation that has taken upon itself a responsibility that can neither be forgotten nor destroyed."

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru then arose with a question whether Sir Samuel contemplated an all-India Federation without the Government being responsible to the Federal Legislature.

"I wish to see the completed picture before I give my answer," Sir Samuel returned.

"Well", commented Lord Sankey, Lord High Chancellor, who was presiding, "we must fill in the picture for Sir Samuel as well as we can." He called the next speaker.

Examines Sapru Scheme

Sir Samual Hoare welcomed an all-India Federation, adding that if the Conservatives insisted on safeguards, it was only because of their absolute necessity. Examining the Sapru scheme, he raised position of the Minister of Defense. (Under the Sapru scheme the Ministers of Defense and Foreign Affairs would be responsible to the Viceroy and not to the Legislature.)

If the Defense Minister is in the Cabinet, Sir Samuel asked, how would it be possible to reconcile his responsibility to the Crown with his responsibility to the Legislature. If he is not in the Cabinet how would it be possible to avoid dyarchy—duel British and Indian Government—at the centre, in its most extreme form.

Sir Samuel agreed that the proposed over-riding powers for the Viceroy made a deep breach in any system of responsible government. But he held that the retention of such powers, including those enabling the Viceroy to carry on in a constitutional emergency, was a necessity of the situation.

Cabinet Not Be Unit.

Under the Sapru scheme, Sir Samuel continued, the Indian Cabinet would not be a unit as the term was understood in Britain. It would be composed of nominated as well as of elected Ministers, of Ministers who acknowledged two distinct allegiances. The safety valve of a general election would not operate because a percentage of the members of the Legislature were to be nominated by the Indian Native States. He viewed the position with grave disquiet.

"I am doubtful of the wisdom of attempting to impose the British theory of Cabinet responsibility upon a Government which would differ from a British Government in almost all respects," said Sir Samuel. "Not because I fear a transfer of further powers from Whitehall to Delhi, and still less because I believe Indian Ministers are inferior to British Ministers—indeed, I am often filled with admiration of the ability of my Indian friends—but simply because I fear that an attempt would end in blurring the responsibility, in weakening the Viceroy's position, in making the central government of a great continent, in which there is such inflammable material, unstable at the very moment we are introducing the two great schemes of an all-India Federation and Provincial autonomy."

Sir Samuel also doubted the wisdom of attempting to apply the British House of Commons system to the Indian Federation. He was opposed to setting up in India a big popular assembly on the lines of the House of Commons, not because he was reactionary or a die-hard, but because he feared that the huge areas of India and the conditions of its population would make any imitation of the British political system impracticable.

Backs Sapru Plan

Mr. Jayakar, one of the leaders in the Home Rule movement in India, expressed approval of the Sapru scheme. He paid warm tribute to Lord Reading for his acceptance of the scheme, in essentials, yesterday.

Continuance of the present system of Government in India had become impossible owing to the suspicion and mistrust with which it was regarded, Mr. Jayakar declared.

"If England can create the impression in India that the safeguards she is asking are not dictated by a selfish desire to retain power, but are in the interests of India, I don't think there will be any serious objection in India.

"I don't want to bite off more than I can chew" Mr. Jayakar added.

No Statement Given On Probe Into Strike

LONDON, Jan. 6. —(AP)— South Wales mine owners conferred today with Emanuel Shinwell, secretary of the Miners Federation in an effort to reach a solution of the deadlock which sent 140,000 miners into idleness on New Years Day but there was nothing to indicate that the employers had receded from the wage and working schedule demands which brought on the strike.

The conference, attended also by the President of the Board of Trade, followed a Cabinet meeting at which the mine problem presumably was discussed although no statement was given out.

RECAPITALIZATION SPECTRE "DOGS" STOCK DIVIDENDS

Greed of Stockholders of Large Industrial Corporations Cause Of Present Depression in the Financial World, Says Boston Financial Times

BOSTON, Jan. 6 (Special to The Examiner.)—If the stockholders of the large industrial corporations consider the stock market a shambles let them look to their own greed as the cause of it.

Manifestations of prosperity were aplenty in the halcyon years of 1927, 1928 and 1929. Based largely on credit expansion, business flourished like a green bay tree. Corporate profits rose to sensational heights. Divisible earnings swelled and public appetite for common stocks created the greatest number of "blue chips" in the history of the country.

Stockholdes began to demand larger and larger shares of the swollen profits. But the corporations were lending money in Wall Street at high rates of interest, and then taking this cash out of the money market, and stopping a profitable financial operation, in which there were benefits for the companies lending the money—as well as perquisites for the directors—was not to be thought of.

Stock Dividend "Pacifiers".

The suggestion as a middle course to pacify the stockholder, and at the same time retain the cash, was "stock dividends." It was pointed out that earnings would justify increases in capitalization. Earnings were expanding, hopes were high, and modestly capitalized companies or then existing earning power could stand more common stock.

The suggestion was well received. The stockholder saw a means of getting something for nothing. He could, if he wished, sell his stock for cash. Many of them decided that their increased interest in the company was worth keeping. There were plenty of earnings to go around. And the stock-dividend and increased-capitalization orgy was on.

Be it said here, in the interests of fair play, that there were certain corporate heads who persistently refused to disgorge the temporarily increased earnings, and likewise refused to inflate their stock issues. The wisdom of their judgment is now apparent. But they were few and far between.

An Unbridled Orgy.

The popularity of the stock dividend idea spread like wildfire. Some directors went much further than the stockholders' wants. Increases in capitalization were made on any flimsy pretext whatsoever, just so long as it was plausible. Capital increases for the purpose of acquiring competitors at inflated values, first done tentatively, grew literally brazen. And the stockholders welcomed "rights to subscribe to new stock" as another "gift."

As the corporate profits grew stockholders became greedier. Stock dividends rights and splitups were hailed with shouts of glee, and a marking up of stock prices. To the stockholder there seemed to be no end of the crop of plums. No thought was given to a day of reckoning. According to the disciples of the "New Era" there was to be no day of judgment. There would be no penalties.

Conservatives Silenced.

And so it seemed. Many boards of directors at first refused to countenance the practice. Conservative bankers who stood firmly against the idea, on the basis that it was unsound and uneconomic, were called "killjoys," "crepe-hangers," "old fogies," "tories" and other derogatory names. Many of the terms were much harsher than those cited.

Little by little dozens of corporate heads were won over. Some whose experience and background made them recognize the folly of money-mad stockholders and directors, decided there was nothing to be gained by attempting to argue with vox populi, and allowed the hotheads to have their way. Their passivity is no defence now. They must take their share of the blame with the directors who not only permitted the capital inflation, but aided and abetted it.

Paying the Piper.

This watering of capital in a period of temporary business inflation, and an era of swollen earnings, had its first evil effect in the great smash of the fall of 1929. When the first chill winds of declining sales and earning power began to be felt throughout the length and breadth of America, prices of inflated and watered stocks began to tumble, and the crash of November, 1929, precipitated. Everyone wanted to turn watered stock into hard cash.—and failed.

Beginning January, 1930, the business Pollyannas rushed into print with statements that the business recession was only a matter of a few weeks or a few months, as their fancy suited them, and the watered stocks were held, despite the fact that it became increasingly evident that earnings were dropping to a point where dividends began to be in jeopardy. It was not until the actual dividend-slashing began that the stockholder realized that the earnings were not large enough to be continued on the inflated capital, the more the market declined. And the sensational paper losses that stared the stockholder in the face prevented him from selling.

A Serious Fallacy.

Within the past few weeks many stockholders have felt that the worst was at hand. Many who had seen stocks bought at $50 to $100 a share decline to one-tenth of those figures, were heard to express the opinion that "they cant go much lower."

And there have been plenty of buyers of odd lots of these punctured balloons at a few dollars a share, confident that they couldn't lose very much on such low-priced stocks.

But there is one thing they have forgotten, and it is now necessary to drag the skeleton out of the financial closet, and rattle its bones, because the spectre is, we believe, coming to life very soon, and will probably work plenty of havoc.

Sum it up in a single word—Reorganization.

Ask an old holder of railroad shares, and he will shudder at the thought. After the great period of railroad inflation, which was drawing to a close just before the great war, there came a sensational period of railroad reorganization—and a disastrous one for the holders of many railroad securities.

Bond issues and preferred stock issues were scaled down to a mere fraction of former equities, while common stocks were completely wiped out. Shares that had once proudly commanded three figures in former markets became just so much waste paper.

History to Repeat?

It is not very long ago that the largest publicly owned motor company in the country, which had liberally watered its capitalization found its earning power in a slump, where it became necessary to make its stockholders pay for the folly of capital increase enthusiasm, and reduced the number of shares by exchanging one share of new stock for five shares of old. The company put in a solid foundation for a future expansion, and has grown materially in the past few years. Nevertheless, there are many shrew analysts who are wondering whether, through the company's excessive zeal in distributing stock dividends in the blaze of speculative enthusiasm, the corporate history of this company may not be repeated.

Stockholders to Blame.

It is not going to be easy to fix the blame for what lies ahead. Whether the responsibility lies on the shoulders of greedy stockholders, or upon the directors who accorded to their wishes, the dance has been called, and the stockholders will have to pay the piper.

Capitalizations have been placed on some corporations that it will require a decade to grow up to. Some companies may never grow up to. their watered stock.

And the only way out of the difficulty is to squeeze out the water.

Strong Boxes no Protection.

Many shareholders that have put their stocks in the strong box, with a view to holding them until they "come back," are simply in the position of hens trying to hatch out doorknobs. They will be called upon to take a reduced equity, and tiny income—if any—for the term that business goes through the valley and begins to mount toward the new peak. Reorganization wields a sharp knife and cuts deep.

It is to be hoped—which we doubt—that stockholders have learned a business lesson, and that in times of prosperity they will not permit the companies of which they are the owners, to inflate the capital to a point where the burden of dividends becomes too great in the lean years. Too few of them attend stockholders meetings. They are too careless about the men whom they elect to manage the affairs of their companies. They are too eager for to-day's feast, and think nothing of to-morrow's famine, which could be tided over from the surplus accumulated in the fat years.

There are some companies that, despite an increase in earning power during the past decade have increased their dividends but little—some not at all. They have not watered their capital. They have pursued the even tenor of their way, giving their shareholders a good return on the investment.

These the spectre of reorganization cannot touch. It never will. But in comparison with those that have piled on thousands of shares—even millions—to capitalizations well-adjusted to peaks of prosperity and valleys of depression, they are few and far between.

The Price of Folly.

For those who have been unwise, the disaster of reorganization lurks in waiting to demand the price of folly. In the next couple of years this process will bring many pocket-aches to shareholders. But, after all, they have no one but themselves to blame.

In a succeeding issue we shall endeavor to exhibit some capital expansions of the past decade of corporations for which there seems help in reorganization that they may survive.

'THE EYE THEME' OF ROTARY TALK

Arthur Loucks Addresses Campbellford Club on Functions of Important Organ.

LADIES' NIGHT JANUARY 28.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 6 (Examiner Staff Correspondent)—The weekly meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club was held on Monday in the St. Lawrence Hotel, when Arthur Loucks, local eye specialist, was the speaker for the occasion. The president, H. N. Carr, occupied the chair.

Mr. Loucks took for his subject, "Our Eyes, and How to See." Speaking of the eye as the most precious of all the human senses, he pointed out that the insurance companies realized this fact by placing the actual loss of sight on the same basis as the loss of life. Of the eye as the "window of the soul," as it has so often been described by poets and artists, he stated that it was the true barometer of the conditions of the mind and body. It was the only place where the true make-up of a man could be detected, and where signs of honesty and trustworthiness could be found.

The eye, the speaker declared, exhibits the true characteristics of the individual, pointing out that an expert could see in the eye the picture of certain general diseases of the body.

Describing the structure of the eye, Mr. Loucks likened it to the camera and saw in that instrument its origin in the eye. The socket, the lids and the lenses were all described in detail, and the automatic adjustment of the eye for the purpose of proper focus was explained.

Of the retina of the eye the speaker stated that it was the most interesting and important part of that organ. Made up as it was of a screen of nerve tissues, it transmitted to the cortex of the brain through nerve impulses the series of pictures that the eye perceives in rapid succession.

Of the act of vision, Mr. Loucks explained that it was a physical impulse, and that nothing was real until it had come into contact with the brain.

Pointing out that everyone had two eyes, the speaker explained the reason for the lack of a double vision by the fact that nature, through its stages of evolution had created what was known as a fusion faculty, this faculty gave people an appreciation for depth.

The matter of ladies' night was brought up in open session by the club and it was agreed that this function be held on the last Wednesday in January.

Glen Thompson, the new manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was the guest at luncheon of H. W. Lapp.

clerk will cast the deciding vote. If both are agreeable the clerk can do this without a recount. It is rumored that certain irregularities will be investigated and may swing the majority to either of the reeves.

The absence of an election in Havelock village made the township election even more interesting and a number waited around unttil juite late to obtain the final results of the very interesting election in the township.

Like the Anderson-Lancaster fight it was a clean battle throughout the whole affair. Even the nominations, that brought out the largest crowd in the history of the place, were more than ordinarily clean and lacking the usual fire-works.

As one very old resident of the township said, "Well, it is the closest election I've ever seen." There wasn't one of the crowd raised an objection. We all agree that it will go down in history.

CHARGE BY DUPRE.

Intra Imperial Protection Assures Market of 500,000,000 Consumers is Claim.

QUEBEC, January 6 (C.P.). — The idea of Intra-Imperial protection, which would assure through the products of the Empire an immense market of $500,000,000 consumers, made great progress and roused many minds at the recent Imperial Conference. Speaking before the Canadian Club here Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor-General for Canada, made this declaration.

"You know," Mr. Dupre explained, "what was the feeling of the people at the opening of the 1930 conference. The whole British Empire turned its eyes toward London in the expectation of the announcement of principles which would help in overcoming the world-wide prices. The Canadian electorate had pronounced in favor of a protective policy; Australia had adopted an intensively protective system; also all the Dominions favored the extension of Imperial preference.

Press Called For New Policy.

"In England itself, under the urge of general depression and diminishing trade, the great newspapers called for a new policy; the Congress of Labor Unions showed itself favorable to placing of duties on foreign products and the opening of markets to Imperial products; the Federation of British Industry declared itself along the same lines; high finance itself issued a manifesto setting forth its belief in a policy of inter-Imperial production."

The Solicitor-General continued: "Never, heretofore, had the British world been so unanimous to accomplish an economic unity which would permit the assurance of the independence of its members by a logical and natural policy of preference within the limits of a splendid constitutional harmony.

"Despite the unanimity of the Dominions, despite the pleasure of the most influential portion of British opinion, the Labor Government for the moment refused to respond and collaborate. Despite the efforts of the leaders of all the delegations, the situation remains stationary."

Exposure of the Soviet party for the formation of the Anglo-Soviet Trade Corporation the capital for which was to be subscribed by the British public, caused underwriters to refuse to support it and thus postponed its launching.

Guelph And Galt Chalk Up O. H. L. Victories

OSHAWA 'PATS' IN WIN COLUMN FOR FIRST TIME

Steve Rice in Centre Sinks Winning Tally For Motor City Squad.

TIE FOR FIRST PLACE.

Guelph and Galt on Even Terms For Top Position, With Stratford in Second.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 6 (C.P.) — Guelph and Galt chalked up their third straight victories in the Ontario Hockey League last night, while Oshawa Patricias entered the winning column for the first time since the "Baby" loop started.

Galt handed Niagara Falls' Cataracts their third straight defeat, 3 to 2, while the Guelph Maple Leafs handed Stratford Nationals their first defeat, 4 to 0. The victory of the Pats was a lucky one. Shooting from mid-ice to relieve the pressure of a furious Kitchener thrust, Steve Rice, Oshawa centre, shocked not only himself but everyone else in the rink when his long looping shot brought on the red light, as Goalkeeper Clarke failed to block the puck when it bounced just in front of him and into the cage.

As a result of these three games, Guelph and Galt are now tied for the top rung with Stratford second, two points behind.

Galt Terriers won from the Cataracts by notching the odd goal during the second frame. Each team scored in the opener and repeated the performance in the final frame.

The game at Guelph was played on soft ice, but the teams displayed fine hockey nevertheless and kept the large crowd on their toes throughout. A major penalty to Walker, Stratford defenceman, proved a costly one for the visitors, as the Maple Leafs notched a brace of markers while he was off and these, coupled with a goal from the stick of Randle a few minutes earlier, practically clinched the game for the Leafs.

Oshawa Pats were outplayed by the Kitchener Dutchmen for most of the game. Barnes gave the losers the lead in the first period, but two quick goals reversed matters early in the second session. The home team then regained the driver's seat when Werner Schnarr scored twice in quick succession. Rice tied the score once again early in the third, but the Dutchmen appeared certain of scoring the winning goal any moment when Rice suddenly supplied the winning shot from centre ice for the Pats.

Bowling Alley Gossip

By Pin Boy

Pins flew high and wide last night at the K. of C. Alley when Doc Crough's skilled pin scuttlers tangled with Letteller's trundlers in a three-game play-off for the championship of the Monday night League. These two teams undoubtedly represent the cream of the bowlers in this league and the battle throughout was a nip and tuck struggle. Crough's team won the first half of the league by a substantial margin while Leteiller's outfit pulled away from the crowd to top the column in the second half and last night's series was to decide a winner.

After the smoke of battle, cigars, cigarettes and what-not had cleared away, the official scorer gave Doc Crough's team a winning margin of 126 pins and eighteen dollars in prize-money, while the losers will divide twelve bucks which will probably be expended in practising for the second lap of the league which will begin next Monday. Fred Hickey, lead off man led the winners with a triple of 840 while John Playford despite a flock of head pins was next in line with 729. For the losers Chief Gimblett and G. Fallen broke even with 732 pins apiece.

Crough's Team:
F. Hickey	210	348	282	840
J. Playford	306	291	232	729

T. Curvin	19	251	143	588
	1233	1097	1013	3343

League high single—Fred Martin, 304.

League high three—Bud Weese, 843.

League high average—V. O'Connell, 297.

Bud Weese actually had the highest average of any bowler in the league, but had not participated in 70 per cent. of the league games and for this reason was not eligible for the high average award. Vince O'Connell on the other hand had a higher three score than Weese, but as no bowler could take more than one prize, he was forced to forfeit this award to the next in line and be content with the high average prize.

DAVIS CUP HEAD TO RESIGN POST

Pressure of Business Forcing J. W. Wear to Vacate Important Position.

IN CHAIR SINCE 1928.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(C.P.)—Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia, soon will resign as chairman of the Davis Cup committee of the United States' Lawn Tennis Association, members of his family have disclosed here.

Pressure of business has forced Wear to decide against retaining the important committee post he had held since February, 1928. Not only is he established in private business but is chairman of the Alumni Board of Yale University as well and he no longer can find the necessary time to devote to Davis Cup affairs.

Girls' City League Opens January 17th

The Girls' City Basketball League will open its season Friday, 17th, at 8 p.m. The executive wishes all team fees and players' registration cards to be in before that date.

There will be practice games for all teams of the league next Friday at 8 p.m. Players are urged to be present at this time as the coaches will explain the 1931 rules.

South End League Games At Sacred Heart Rink

At a hockey meeting last night in the Raybestos, the managers of the South End City League decided to hold all their games at the Sacred Heart rink instead of playing junior games at All Saints' rink, as previously announced.

Four games are scheduled for tonight, each game consisting of three 15-minute periods. In the bantam section, the Fosters and Canucks tangle from six to seven; and the Ravens and Athletics follow from seven to eight. The juveniles begin with the Canucks and Raybestos from eight to nine, and Tigers and St. Peter's take the ice from nine to ten. Managers are warned against playing bantams over 16, and juveniles over 17, as such games will be forfeited.

Each team has its own sweaters, and the games promise to provide plenty of entertainment for the fans. No admission is charged.

Stribling Family Wants Quick Action

OCHLOCHNEE, Ga., Jan. 6—"All we want is a little action from somewhere. We'll fight Primo Carnera or Jack Sharkey or anybody, provided some promoter can get closer to making us an offer than just a lot of outside conversation."

That was the reply of "Pa" Stribling to-day to rumors that his son, W. L. Stribling, would be matched against Primo Carnera this Winter in Miami.

"Sure, we'll be tickled to death to fight Carnera," "Pa" said. "Just let somebody show me a contract. W. L. has fought both Sharkey and Carnera before and we'll be mighty glad to take on either of them in Miami for Madison Square Garden.

"In fact W. L. has been fretting for a fight for some time. All we get is conversation, when we want contracts."

Three Cornered Tie Possible in N. H. L.

LOOP LEADERS MEET RANGERS AT NEW YORK

While Canadiens Tangle With Falcons and Leafs Mix With Senators.

BATTLE OF STARS.

Clancy Will Perform Before Home Folks For First Time This Season.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 6.—(By the Canadian Press.)—It is just one possibility after another regarding the standing of teams in the National Hockey League. Last Saturday night when most fans expected a triple tie for the leadership to develop from the five game week-end schedule, Montreal Maroons upset calculations by winning from Boston and taking the driver's seat.

Again to-night the possibility exists of a three-cornered tie cropping up. The Maroons go to New York where they meet the free skating Rangers, which is not an easy assignment when a team is trying to hold first place.

Jinx May Survive.

In the meantime their closest rivals, Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, meet Detroit Falcons and Ottawa Senators, respectively. The Flying Frenchmen are at home to the Motor City hockeyists and are strongly favored to emerge victorious. The Leafs, too, ordinarily, would be favored to down the Bytown representatives but, they have not defeated the Canadian cellar occupants in Ottawa, since discarding the all-green sweaters of St. Pats for the blue and white Maple Leaf jerseys and there is considerable apprehension among Toronto supporters that perhaps the Ottawa jink still survives.

Both Maroons and Rangers have been plaing exceptionally fine hockey in recent games and a hard fought struggle is anticipated in Madison Square Garden. The teams have met once before, Maroons winning at Montreal on Nov. 25 by 5 to 2.

In their last ten games Maroons have won five, tied three and lost two, while Rangers have won six, tied one and lost three. Drawing a line on the merits of the teams from this angle, a nip-and-tuck battle is anticipated with Rangers slightly favored on account of playing in the Garden, where few teams of the northern section shine at their best.

It will be the second meeting of the season between the Habitants and Falcons. Clashing in Detroit on Nov. 27 the teams fought through 60 minutes of exciting hockey before the Falcons emerged victors by a 3 to 2 count.

Points Are Precious

Both teams will be trying their hardest to attain victory as points are becoming precious at this stage of the race. The Falcons can take possession of third place in the American group by winning, providing Rangers lose. By the same token Canadiens can tie their intra-city rivals for the lead by downing the Falcons if Maroons lose.

Fans at the Forum will see an interesting centre ice duel between Howie Morenz, hockey's most colorful performer and Canadian group leading goal-getter, and Ebbie Goodfellow, the Falcon's great mid-ice performer, who not only leads the American group marksmen but leads both groups as well in total goals and points.

After halting a nine game losing streak by defeating Philadelphia the Senators will face the leafs with renewed confidence. The Senators have the Indian sign on the Leafs for so long that the record wherein a Toronto victory in Ottawa is marked has grown decidedly musty.

The game marks the first time Frank "King" Clancy, Toronto's dynamic defence star, has performed before his home town folks since departing from the Senator ranks to wear the Maple Leaf.

Backed by Lorne Chabot's fine goalkeeping the Leafs beat the Flying Frenchmen Saturday and are optimistic of continuing their good showing in Ottawa. The team entrained for the capital this morning and expect a warm reception from their traditional rivals whom they defeated at Arena gardens by a two nothing score on Dec. 2.

School Students In 2 to 2 Hockey Draw

STIRLING, Jan. 6— (Examiner Corresondence).—The hockey game played between the High School and the University students, ex-pupils of the High School, resulted in a tie of 2-2.

The ex-pupils, Clinton McGee, Don Ross and Allen Meiklejohn, are of Queen's; Elgie Joblin, of Varsity, and Ned Potts of McGill University.

The line-ups were as follows:

ROCKNE FINDS NOTHING WRONG WITH FOOTBALL

Coaches Splendid Body Of Men Says "Irish" Mentor of Famous Squad

1930 CREW ONE OF BEST

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The Scandinavian master of the Irish — Knute Kenneth Rockne—planted his ailing dogs on the cushion of a soft chair in his hotel suite and gave up a vain effort to remain hidden in New York.

"Let's talk about anything," he told the Associated Press, "anything but football. I'm an invalid."

Whereupon the coach of the finest football team the country produced this Fall launched into a lecture on physiology, all about the ganglion of the sympathetic nervous system, which seems to have something to do with the swelling of his legs and the clotting of blood in his veins. He quoted extensively from books he has been reading on the subject and seemed a trifle embarrassed that with all these things wrong with him he still looked ruddy and hearty, anything but ill.

"I'm fine now," he concluded as he wound long rubber bandages about the calves of his legs. This will never bother me much again. A year ago my blood was full of streptococci, and that infection, probably from my tonsils, broke down the veins in my legs. Now the doctors tell me the infection is gone. I can do anything I want to, just as I always have, but I must rest two days a week during the next football season to get back the energy I use up."

IN TOUCH WITH COACHES

With that matter all straightened out, the Notre Dame mentor promptly switched the subject to football. He arrived in town yesterday for a week's visit, but his hospital stay at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., forced him to miss the annual coaches meetings here last week, all afternoon however, he received reports from coaches still in the City on the "inside" doings of the confereces.

"Football is all right just as it is," he insisted. "If I had been at the meetings there was nothing I could have suggested. I'm in favor of letting the game alone for a while. Why even the coaches are beginning to find out what it's all about.

"If anything, football is suffering from the two false American credos.

"First, if it interests and entertains people—there must be something wrong with it.

Second, if its successful—there must be something wrong with it.

PRECARIOUS JOB

"As a matter of fact there's nothing wrong. The game is in the hands of a splendid body of men, the college coaches. When you stop to think of it theirs is a precarious one, and keeping that job for another year sometimes depends for a family man on one single play of a ball game, the success of failure of a single pass? But did you ever hear of a coach today telling his men to hold in the line to prevent a touchdown? Do you ever see a coach violate the rules of sportsmanship? Our one fault is that we don't stick closely enough together when the reformers try to take command."

Rockne doesn't like to rate one of his teams above another, but he thinks his 1930 squad was about the best he ever sent out onto a field.

"Certainly I got one of the biggest kicks of my life out of this season," he said, "We went on through the last three games of that schedule and won without our fullbacks, Mullins and Savoldi. I guess we all like to win when we're challenged."

Rockne was asked if he were going into the sports writing business on the side, as a part-time member of a Chicago newspaper staff at a reported wage of $25,000 a year.

"How much" gasped Rockne.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars," he was told. "The story was printed today."

"Let me read about it, anyway," Knute grinned. "Can you imagine that?"

Benny Bass Retains His Lightweight Title

Bass met the shift Massey in a return bout at the arena last night and was voted the winner by a wide margin after 10 rounds. He scaled 128½, a half pound more than his opponent. The scorers gave Bass seven of the ten rounds, Massey two and called one even. Massey showed best in the early rounds, but before the bout was half over Bass slowed him up with a body attack that at times caused the challenger to wobble and hold on.

Hockey Notes.

Choates Juniors will hold a practise Wednesday night from seven to eight at All Saints' rink. All players should be on hand, as the regular team will be picked then.

Text Of Assessment Report Presented By Judge O'Connor

The text of Judge L. V. O'Connor's equalized assessment report to the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham is complete as follows:—

"To the Warden and Members of the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham:—

In the matter of appeals against the equalization of the assessment of the different towns, villages and townships in the United Counties by the towns of Bowmanville, Cobourg and Port Hope, and the villages of Brighton, Millbrook and Newcastle, made in the month of July, 1930.

Having been notified in writing by the Clerk of the Counties Council that all parties to the said appeals had agreed as by statute provided to have the equalization of the assessment aforesaid made by me, as the County Court Judge, I proceeded as by law provided to hear and determine the matters of the said appeals.

For this purpose I deemed it desirable at the outset to call a meeting of the head officials of the various municipalities comprising the United Counties, with their solicitors, if they desired to engage any, in order that we might determine the procedure to be adopted, the nature of the evidence and other material necessary to be submitted, and any other matters that would assist in the enquiry, and to arrange the dates upon which evidence might be taken as to the different municipalities.

The taking of evidence began on the 25th day of November, 1930, and was continued with little interruption until the 27th inst. (Dec.).

Valuators had been appointed by the United Counties for the purpose of equalizing the assessments, which valuation was not acceptable to the appellants, and not only were the valuators examined at considerable length, but the assessors of each municipality within the United Counties and officials and others interested in these municipalities were present at the several enquiries and gave evidence. A list of sales that had gone through in the different municipalities during the years 1928 and 1929 was carefully gone into and evidence was also taken as to other properties and as to conditions generally in order to enable me to ascertain as nearly as possible the actual value of properties in the counties.

Equalization of assessments becomes necessary by reason of the fact that assessors neglect to observe the plain directions of the Act: "That land shall be assesed at its actual value," that is, the amount it would readily bring at a fairly conducted sale between a willing buyer and a willing seller. To be added to the value of the lands is the amount by which their selling value is increased by buildings. The assessors should endeavor, and should be so instructed, to assess as nearly as possible at actual value as the Act requires. It is notorious that none of them do this,—and their percentages of assessments are by no means in the same relative proportion. The assessors in some municipalities assess on a basis ranging as low as 35 to 40 per cent. of the actual values of the property, whilst others assess on a basis of from 70 per cent. to 75 per cent. of actual values. It is to be noted, too, that the invariable rule is to assess the poorer properties at a very much higher rate than the better and more productive properties.

The business assessments and income of the different municipalities were accepted as indicated in the several assessment rolls. In an enquiry such as this it would have been very difficult to check these items.

Below will be found a schedule setting forth the equalised assessment of each municipality in the United Counties, based, of course, upon actual values, and also the percentage of the Counties' levy that each municipality must bear.

I am also preparing a further schedule setting forth in detail the manner in which I have arrived at the several sums set out in Schedule "A" as equalized assessments.

This enquiry has involved a great amount of time. The evidence will be found to comprise something in the neighborhood of six hundred pages of typewriting. However, the enquiry has been gone into minutely and I trust that the evidence and the other material contained in the volume which will be filed with you will be of considerable value to your council. An equalization of assessment has not been made for the United Counties since the year 1904, and was certainly badly required.

In view of the fact that equalization in the manner directed by the Act was necessary, I direct that the costs incurred shall be borne and paid by the Corporation of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, with the exception that any municipality employing counsel or solicitor must bear its own costs."

South Monaghan	924,803.95	1,7962

The substance of Judge O'Connor's report is contained in the above tabulated summary of the equalised assessments of the individual municipalities and also the percentage of the counties taxes which each municipality must pay. Presumably, the right-hand column of percentages is based upon the amounts in the equalised assessment column. Judge O'Connor says, for example, that South Monaghan shall be liable for 1.7926 per cent. of the total taxes raised by the counties. And that percentage is in fact the percentage which South Monaghan's equalized assessment is of the total; in other words, the percentage which $924,803.95 is of $51,589,815.82.

The practical application of these individual percentages depends upon the total amount of the taxes to be raised by the United Counties. Suppose the Counties require $350,000 in its 1931 budget. Then South Monaghan would pay 1.7926 per cent. of $350,000. And so on, with the other municipalities according to Judge O'Connor's column of percentages.

Slav Farmers Warned Against Coming to U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A warning that Slavic farmers and refugees who intend to participate in the settlement of the American Slavic Colonization Trust might "get stuck" was made to-day by Representative La Guardia, Republican, New York.

An announcement from New York yesterday said the Trust was fostering a movement to bring Russian and other Slavic farmer refugees into the United States, Canada and Mexico. The first colonization is planned for the Spring.

"In my opinion it is nothing but a stock selling proposition," La Guardia said. "Why, in past times, when farmers were making money, most colonization movements were miserable failures.

OTTAWA BUILDING RECORD.

OTTAWA, Ont., January 6 (C.P.).—Building construction initiated in Ottawa during 1930 had a total value almost twice as great as that of 1929. The 726 building permits issued last year called for an expenditure of $6,206,276. Comparative figures for the preceding year were 677 permits and $3,346,246.

The large increase is due to several large projects having been undertaken in 1930, notably the National Research Laboratory, a structure worth close to three millions.

WINERIES SEEK BAN ON PERMITS

Manufacturers Claims Native Product Business Being Ruined.

Protest To Control Board.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 6.—A resolution urging the abolition of the permit system in connection with the sale of native wines has been passed by the Ontario Wine Manufacturers Association and a deputation will present it to the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

The general view of over fifty wine makers from Western Ontario in the Niagara Peninsula was that the permit system was turning profits into losses and claimed their business was cut in half since the Control Board ruled wines could be sold by permit only.

The concession made by the Board permitting orders to be telephoned to the wineries was deprecated by the gathering as being practically useless, few permit holders being willing to yield up their permits to be endorsed by the wineries or otherwise let them go out of their possession.

After much discussion it was the general feeling that nothing short of reverting to the old system whereby native wines could be sold without a permit being necessary, would remedy the case of the wine-makers and the resolution was passed.

BAILEY THREE POINTS BEHIND HOWIE MORENZ

Detroit Star Only One Point in Advance of "Bun" Cook.

Sniper Ace of Toronto Leafs Has Seventeen Points to His Credit.

LAMB HAS 15.

MONTREAL, Jan. 6. — Although failing to register a single point within the week, Ebbie Goodfellow, centre ice star of the Detroit Falcons, still holds the lead among the pointmakers of the National Hockey League in the official statistics issued last night from the office of Frank Calder, president, these including the matches of Sunday night.

Goodfellow's 23 points, compiled earlier, still furnish the target for aspiring marksmen, but Fred "Bun" Cook, left wing of the New York Rangers, and Harry Oliver, right-winger of one of the Boston Bruin offensive divisions, both gained on the leader. Cook is now only two points behind his Detroit rival, having scored twelve goals and registered eight assists. Oliver is only a point to the rear of Cook, having ten goals and the same number of assists.

Howie Morenz, of Canadiens, leading the Canadian section pointmakers, bettered his average slightly in the past week by scoring a goal, which brought his total number of goals up to 15, tying him with Goodfellow in that respect, and his assists to five for a total of 20 points. The return to winning form of the Toronto Leafs is emphasized by the ascent of their leading sniper, "Ace" Bailey, in the scoring column. Bailey has now registered 11 goals and 6 assists for 17 points. Although his team is trailing in last position, Joe Lamb of Ottawa Senators has been scoring regularly, his 9 goals and 6 assists bringing him a total of 15 points.

Harvey Rockburn, the sturdy Detroit defence star, has taken a lead over all others in the matter of accumulating penalties. His total now reaches 66 minutes, five minutes more than Eddie Shore of the Boston Bruins and 13 minutes more than Aleck Smith, the Ottawa defence player, who tops the Canadian section.

HEXIMER LEADS MINOR SCORERS

Springfield Player Has Nineteen Points—Indians' Lead Reduced.

ARROWS ADVANCE.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—The Springfield Indians' lead over the Providence Reds, last season's Canadian-American Hockey League champions, was cut in half during the past week when the New York Rangers' farm lost its first two games of the season. Providence was aided by the Philadelphia Arrows in cutting the Indians' lead from ten to five points.

The New Haven Eagles defeated the Boston Tigers Saturday night and jumped into third place, the Bengals dropping back into the cellar, a point behind the Arrows.

Cecil Dillon, the league's leading scorer, was recalled from Springfield by the New York Rangers, and replaced by "Deacon" Waite. "Ohe" Heximer, also of Springfield, moved up to the top of the list with his total of 19 points, 14 of which resulted from goals. Leo Gaudreault, Providence, finished the week in second place with his total of 18 points. Eddie Burke and "Yank" Boyd of the Tigers followed with totals of 14 and 13 points, and "Glassy" Hart of Providence, was fifth on the list with 12 points.

Eddie Convey, New Haven winger, drew four minor penalties in Sunday night's game with the Tigers and jumped to the top of the high penalty carriers' list with a total of 25 minors and two majors. Nichols of Philadelphia, was again third with 23 minors and a major.

PHILLIPS EASILY OUTPOINTS GILLESPIE

Feature Bout on Queensbury Athletic Club's Program Last Night.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 6 (C.P.).—Conditioning himself for defence of his Canadian welterweight title, Jackie Phillips, Toronto, easily outpointed Jack Gillespie, Detroit, in an eight-round bout which topped the Queensbury Athletic Club's boxing card here last night.

Gillespie was outclassed by the Canadian champion, who punched the Detroiter almost at will. Phillips scored one knockdown for no count in the last round, but was unable to solve Gillespie's awkward style to land the finishing blow.

In the semi-final Sammy Hackett, Toronto, claimant to the Canadian featherweight crown, gave Don McLeod, Detroit, an artistic boxing lesson in their six-round engagement.

In the opening bout of six rounds, Allan Foster, Vancouver, heralded as another Jimmy McLarnin, hampered his way to a decisive victory over "Kid" Birch, English bantamweight.

Jackie Johnston, Toronto, another featherweight aiming at a crack at Leo "Kid" Roy's title, gave a wonderful boxing exhibition to soundly whip Johnny Posky, Detroit. The local fighter won every round.

BRICKER TO ATTEMPT COME-BACK

In view of the fact that the 1932 Olympics will be held on this continent the long distance marathoners are starting to smart already. Rumors from Galt, Ontario, say that Cliff Bricker will attempt a comeback during the coming year. Bricker thrilled the followers of the sport two years ago and headed the field. Success after success was his until the Olympics at Amsterdam, then came the unbelievable defeat after months of carefully worked out plans. The blow was more than any man could stand and Cliff forsook the game. The champions of this sport are not only young bloods and as a result Cliff apparently has decided to wipe out that black mark against a most brilliant and amazing rise to fame. Bricker has been doing a little road work lately and it is known that he will be an entry in the Good Friday races this year. Should he make a favorable showing in this event he will probably be sent to the Boston Marathon. The situation is somewhat different this year there being any amount of new material in the sport and there is no way to revive interest as quickly as by the rise of a new star in any sport. Take the case of Frenchy Belanger and the flyweight boxing game. He made the game in Canada and the game made him. The return of Cliff Bricker will not only be welcomed by his fans but will also help the officials to select a team again for the Olympics that need not take dust from anybody.

"DUKES" DEFEATED IN SENIOR MATCH

Port Colborne Beats Marlboros 2-1 in Overtime Tilt.

TORONTO, January 6. — Port Colborne "Sailors" emerged victors over Toronto Marlboros, after ten minutes of overtime at Arena Gardens here last night. Bill Mountain, the Ports alternate right wing, accepted a pass from Jerry Shannon to drill one past Harris from close in after three minutes had been played in the second overtime period for the winning marker, and then the entire Port Colborne team managed to hold off the desperate attempts of the locals to net the equalizer.

After a rather slow beginning the game turned out to be a thriller and the display of hockey by both sextets was of a high order. Marlboros had many golden opportunities to make the game safe in the first few minutes, but loose work on passes, and wild shooting, left them goalless. On the other hand, almost the first time the puck was in Marlboro territory a goal resulted. Jack Cuthbertson, tall Port centre player, started a rush at centre ice, which Levinsky and Mepham halted without difficulty, but they then neglected the puck, and "Fan" Heximer, who was following along, took it around right defense and in on Harris, who had no chance. This goal was in eight minutes, and it required seven more for Marlboros to gain the equalizer. Hughie Plaxton, who incidentally played a bang-up game for his first appearance in three seasons, checked his man at centre, and then proceeded to stick handle his way through the Port Colborne team, to put the disc behind "Dinty" Moore.

VAN VOLKENBURG IS DEFEATED AT POLLS BY 114 OF MAJORITY

Robert Innes and W. J. Duncan, Reeve and Deputy-Reeve Respectively, For Seymour—W. S. Milne, Thomas Fry and W. S. Grills Are Elected to Council.

1,025 VOTES POLLED IN MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 6. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)—With a big vote cast in the township of Seymour, Robert Innes came out victor over last year's reeve, G. Van Volkenburg, with a majority of 114, and will assume the position of chief executive in the council for 1931. For Deputy Reeve, W. J. Duncan led his opponent, John Locke, with a lead of 235. Out of the five contestants for councillors, W. S. Milne, Thomas Fry and W. S. Grills were elected to office, H. T. Rutherford and W. Rowe were the defeated candidates.

The fight as predicted was a stiff one. Late Reeve Van Volkenburg led only in three of the eight polling stations. Trent River being his stronghold. With Reeve Innes, West's, English Line, Stanwood and Meyersburg gave him majorities.

For Deputy reeve, Connelly's was the only poll that gave Locke a majority, all other stations returning Duncan with a large vote, three of which run to three figures.

In the ranks of the councillors, Milne lead the race with a vote of 693, Fry came second with 462 and Grills was third with a total of 429. Rutherford came forth with a count of 404 and Rowe was at the bottom with 392 votes.

It was estimated that about 1,025 votes were cast in the township, this being considered a large proportion. The shuffle in this year's council was not altogether unexpected, although the defeat of last year's reeve came as a surprise. Two new men will be round the table this year, Grills and Fry.

The report of the vote for the township by polls is as follows:

	Wests	Connelly's	English Line	Stanwood	Peterick's	Minie wood	Meyersburg	Trent River	Total

SHOULD BE FAST GAME.

The Norwood-Havelock Combines are here to-morrow night with the intention of taking home a victory from the Peterborough O.H.A. Juniors. It will be the first meeting of the season.

The Combines are a husky outfit, and do not hesitate to use their weight, while the Peterborough boys depend more on speed. The ice should be fast for the game, as no skating will be allowed on it before to-morrow night. If, as may be expected the large number of fans who attended the other game here is swelled to any extent, late-arriving fans will have to be content with back seats.

Chicago Breaks Out Of Tulsa Oilers Tie

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 6.—(CP) — Chicago Shamrocks stand alone to-day at the top of the American Hockey League because Sam Timmins proved a better goalie than "Porky" Levine in last night's overtime match against Minneapolis Millers. The Rocks' win, by two to one, lifted them out of a first-position tie with Tulsa and prevented the Millers from becoming an immediate threat for the lead.

Gordie Brydson evened matters for Chicago in the middle session after Mike Riley had sent Minneapolis ahead. Eddie Wiseman slid a pass across to "Mac" McKenzie for the winning Chicago goal after five minutes of extra play.

MINERS IN WALES ASK GOV'T TO ACT

Would Have Coal Pits Run By the State as During Great War.

MEETING ARRANGED.

LONDON, Jan. 6.— The MacDonald government has been asked by officials of the South Wales' Miners' Federation to take over the mines, as an emergency measure and thus end the idleness of the 140,000 men who have been out of work a week, owing to their refusal to accept a cut in wages. The miners pointed out that the State ran the pits for a time during the Great War, and urged the Government to again step in, at least temporarily.

The spokesmen for the men conferred with Rt. Hon. William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, and with Emanuel Shinwell, Parliamentary Secretary to the Department of Mines, which comes under the Board of Trade. After declaring their findings to the Prime Minister, Mr. Graham and Mr. Shinwell, with the Prime Minister's consent, invited the owners to a meeting today.

Schmeling Willing To Fight Under N.B.A.

BERLIN, January 6 (C.P.). — Max Schmeling, writing in the Berliner Zeitung, says he will defend his world heavyweight title in Chicago against any opponent picked by the National Boxing Commission, but that he will not defend it in a New York ring where he won it.

Schmeling said he would not enter a United States ring where the New York Athletic Commission had anything to say about the referee.

The German boxer had some harsh things to say about the New York Commission and especially James J. Farley, the chairman.

"Only with bleeding heart and after many days' deliberation could the New York Commission, headed by Mister Farley, bring itself to recognise me as winner of the title bout." Schmeling wrote. "While the National Boxing Commission with thirty-three states behind it recognised me the day after the fight

"Mister Farley, good friend of Jack Sharkey, never could reconcile himself to a non-American holding the title."

AT SOCIAL GATHERING

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 6 (Examiner Correspondence)—A gathering of unusual interest was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, Yelverton, to mark the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. The guests numbering about sixty included a large number from the immediate neighborhood and others from Peterborough, Lindsay, Bethany, Ida, Orono and Lifford.

A dainty buffet supper was served to the guests, the dining-room table was centred with a three-storey wedding cake and silver candles. Assisting in the dining-room were the Misses McCamus and McQuade and Messrs. Norman, David and Vance Wilson.

Following the supper and address which spoke in glowing terms of the appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson as citizens was read and replied to by the groom of twenty-five years ago and a silver tea service as presented to them, as well as numerous gifts.

Richard Wright acted as chairman and J. J. Clarke was accompanist for the music. Thomas McCamus, of Ida gave several vocal solos and Miss McQuade several instrumental numbers. Miss McCamus gave several well received reading and Junior Clarke provided instrumental music.

Ephram Evans, of Orono, uncle of the groom gave a very interesting account of the history of the house, which was built seventy-four years ago and which many delightful times had been spent therein. A notable feature, Mr. Evans remarked was that during those seventy-four years only one girl had been born in that home.

Messages from distant friends were received during the evening.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 6. — Small export demand and heavy offerings combined to force wheat values down on the Grain Exchange yesterday. At the close figures were 1½c below Saturday's quotations.

May wheat closed at 56⅜c bid, and July at 57⅞c or 58c per bushel. Cash wheat advanced ¼c to ½c, despite the decline in the futures, but coarse grains failed to show any activity, and dropped fractionally lower.

Futures:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close	Prev. Close
May	.56⅝	0.56⅝	0.56⅜	0.56⅝	0.58¼
July	.59⅝	0.59⅝	0.57⅞	0.57⅞	0.59⅝
Oats—
May	.0.29	0.29¼	0.28¼	0.28¼	0.29¼
July	.0.29⅞	0.29⅞	0.28¾	0.28¾	0.29⅝

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Increased supplies and deceased demands led to sharp breaks in grains late yesterday. One reason given for lessened buying was talk that the Wickersham prohibition report would favor retention of the prohibition laws. Liberal enlargement of United States visible supplies both of wheat and corn were announced.

Wheat closed irregular, 2 cents net lower to ¼ cent advance; corn 1⅛ to 1⅛ off; oats ¼ to ⅝ down, and provisions unchanged to 17 cents up.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Jan. 6—Trade was good on the local butter market yesterday—that is, in comparison with the dull times of the last few weeks—and large lots moved out of storages and into consumptive channels at prices ½c better than quoted before. The old spirit was back in trade and brokers were not having much trouble in disposing of good size lots of fair scoring solids. Prices were 30½c to 31c for No. 1, and 29½c to 30c for No. 2, and the general opinion was that higher quotations would be in effect in the near future. Storage stocks have been depleted to a great extent during the past few weeks, while the market was low and many dealers have started to replenish before prices become higher.

Egg Prices

The egg market was very weak with prices for graded supplies sagging to new levels at 38c for extras, 33c for firsts, 28c to 29c for pullet extras, and 23c to 24c for seconds, in free cases. Brokers found little demand for any kind of eggs and reported storage stocks moving very slowly. Country shippers were offered 35c for extras, 30c for firsts, 22c for seconds, and 20c for pullet extras, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were quoted 43c for extras in cartons, 43c for extras, loose, 38c for firsts, loose, 32c for pullet extras, and 28c for seconds.

Cheese

Cheese was slightly weaker at 13c for new large, 13¼c for twins and 13¼c for triplets, to shippers, but steady at 15c for new large, 15¼c for twins, and 15½c for triplets, to the retail trade.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Pneumonia Left Her With a Terrible Cough

Mrs. A. W. Fever, 861 Jane St., Toronto, Ont., writes:—"Eight years ago I had a very serious illness. I had a bad attack of pleurisy and pneumonia and was six months in bed. This illness left me with a terrible cough. I tried several cough medicines, but they did not seem to have any effect. One day my mother brought me home a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after I had taken several more I noticed my cough gradually leaving me. Since that time if ever my husband and children or myself have had colds I always get 'Dr. Wood's'."

Division Court Action Is Lost By Defendants

A note for the sum of $227 given by Louis Green, merchant tailor and clothier, of George street, this city, to the Heyland Brand Clothing Company, and which was endorsed by that company to the Dominion Bank, Toronto, and was not paid when due, formed the subject of an action heard before His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, at Division Court here yesterday.

Louis Green, who was represented by A. L. Elliott, defended the action on the grounds that the bank knew the Heyland Brand Company owed him a sum of money many times in excess of the note, therefore should not have discounted the note.

His Honor held that it had not been satisfactorily established that the bank had notice of indebtedness of the Heyland Brand Company to Green at the time the note was discounted, and gave judgment against both defendants for the amount of the claim.

B. E. Park acted in the interests of the plaintiffs.

REEDS ELECTED IN OPS

In a hotly contested election yesterday in Ops Township, Thomas H. Reeds, of Reaboro, was elected Reeve in a three-cornered fight by a majority of 76, his opponents being J. Davies and William Graham. Six candidates ran for council, the winners being J. G. Endicott, J. Naylor, T. Hutton and W. J. Reeds.

EXAMINATION CLINIC OF MUCH VALUE TO THE CAMP OFFICIALS

Dr. C. B. Waite Commended For Work Among Kiwanis Underprivileged Children

A GREAT SUCCESS

Dr. C. B. Waite, M.D., in presenting his annual report as chairman of the Kiwanis Underprivileged Child Committee, provides some interesting facts and figures concerning the establishment of the clinic, which is under his direct supervision, for the examination of children who desire to attend the summer camp run by the Kiwanians at Jackson Park; the summer camp itself and the praiseworthy work among deformed and crippled children.

Commenting on the work which Dr. Waite has so conscientiously performed, Governor I. P. McNabb, at the recent installation of officers ceremony, in connection with the Kiwanis Club, stated, "The establishment of a clinic to examine children attending the camp has proved valuable as it gave the underprivileged child's committee a record of each, to file away for reference."

"Children found up to normal weight were returned home making room for others requiring attention. Through this method, more children in real need have used the camp to their advantage. The committee intends to follow the children up in their homes, so as to carry on the work during the fall and winter months."

"The summer camp is a fine piece of work," he stated, "for the development and strengthening of the children into sturdy, strong men and women."

"Valuable work has been done among crippled children by Dr. Waite, who has had the assistance of Drs. E. H. Wood and F. C. Neal," concluded Governor McNabb.

The clinic for undernourished children was opened in June, 1930, and there were four sessions at which 100 children were examined. Seventy of these children were recommended for the summer camp. In connection with this branch of Dr. Waite's work, he pays tribute in his report, to Drs. F. O'Reilly, G. Murray Fraser and W. S. Fitzpatrick.

Greater Success

The camp at Jackson Park was a greater success than ever, during the past year, and altogether there were 370 children attended. The average daily attendance was 75. "Such attendance is in excess of the accommodation of the camp, which is only supposed to accommodate 60," he states, adding that "we have quite frequently had over 80 children and on one or two days we had 87. This is too much work for one nurse, and if we are to continue at this rate, we shall have to enlarge the camp and employ another nurse. Two hundred children were examined at the camp, these being children who did not attend the clinic."

"About fifty children who attended examination at the camp, were sent home, since they were not undernourished. Thirty-five spent one week or less at the camp and most of these were children who were sent home as soon as examined. A few of them did remain at the camp for various other reasons. Fifty spent two weeks or less at the camp. A lot of these came during the last month or so before the camp closed. Others however gained rapidly to their normal weight and were sent home. Thirty-four children stayed for a period of three weeks; nineteen for four weeks; twenty for five weeks; four, six weeks and three seven weeks.

The average gain of each child was roughly four pounds, the maximum gain being eleven and a half pounds. Some of the children did not gain at all, or only very little, and a number of these had diseased tonsils, which the parents either refused to have removed, or else they were not attended to for other reasons. Seventy-two children were recommended for removal of tonsils and thirty of these were operated upon. "Unfortunately," observes Dr. Waite, "Dr. Cameron, secretary of the Health Association, was away at the time when we were trying to arrange for operating upon some of the children and the arrangements were not completed before the camp closed."

Two children developed scarlet fever, but were quickly noticed by the nurse and kept away from other children, no case resulting. One case of infantile paralysis also developed in a child who had been at the camp, but fortunately, the child was kept at home from the earliest symptoms. One other child was quarantined on account of smallpox in the family.

The children averaged five pounds under weight, and the average for the really bad cases would be considerably higher, probably seven or eight pounds, he stated. The worst cases of undernourished children were those who attended the pre-camp clinic, and during the last month were getting a lot of children who were very little, if at all undernourished, or underweight.

"We are very indebted to Miss Mulholland, who gave a great deal of her time all through the summer to the work of the camp, and also to the Canadian Legion for the use of the hall for the clinic," said Dr. Waite, who, in conclusion, recommends that in order to follow up the cases, particularly those of underweight, a clinic should be held every month for this purpose."

65,000 PASS BIER

stirrups reversed in token of mourning, and led by its bridle by the dead Marshal's orderly.

Nothing will be left undone to contribute to the solemn pomp and impressiveness of Wednesday's national obsequies which in some ways will be the farewell of the French Army to one of its best beloved commanders. Stores and theatres along the Champs Elysees have been ordered to extinguish their flashing signs during the progress of the cortege. The Bourse will be closed and at those theatres which remain open, veteran actors will read Joffre's famous orders to his troops given before the Battle of the Marne.

Workmen were busy to-day erecting the stands in the Invalides Esplanade, which is to be entirely reserved for veterans, the Marshal's family and representatives of the Foreign Powers. Those gaining admission will hear the funeral oration of Senator Louis Barthou, Minister of War and personal friend of the deceased Marshal, and will watch the troops of France march for the last time before the great soldier who, in 1916, brought them from defeat to the heights of victory.

Thousands Wait to Enter Chapel

Thousands were gathered long before dawn to-day outside the Ecole Militaire awaiting opening of the doors to the chapel when they might pass before the bier. During the night new doors were arranged for the chapel so that a greater number might view the body.

Mme. Joffre and members of his staff remained throughout the night on watch at the bier.

Just as morning broke Mme. Joffre arrived quietly at the chapel of the Military School from her home where she had gone shortly before and attended a Mass celebrated at the altar behind the body of the Marshal.

While a standard bearer stood behind the calafalque and four officers stood rigidly with uplifted swords at its corners, Mme. Joffre knelt before the altar murmuring the prayers of the Mass, which was softly intoned by Mgr. Chaptal, Auxiliary Bishop of the Diocese of Paris.

The only others present were the devoted officers of the Marshal's staff, General Issaly, Colonel Desmazes and Captain Saint Cernin.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 38 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As the echoes of the blood-curdling cry died away ,Tarzan turned toward the prostrate Swede. His face was cold and cruel, and in the gray eyes the Swede read murder. "Where is the woman?" growled the ape-man. "What have you done with the child " Like a bronze image—cold, hard, and relentless—he stood over the helpless man, waiting to wring such information from him as needed, and then to kill.

The Swede tried to reply, but an arrow entirely through his chest caused the words to die in his throat. Presently the paroxysm passed and again the wounded man's lips faintly moved. Tarzan knelt down and again demanded: 'Where are they?" The Swede pointed up the trail. "The Russian—he got them," he whispered. They catch us. "I fight, but they wound me and leave me. He take your wife and kid."

Tarzan started in amazement at the words! So the fugutives were his own wife and child! His fierce eyes blazed with the passion and vengeance that with difficulty he controlled. "Why were they with you? What have you done to them? Speak quick. Tell me the worst or I will tear you to pieces with my bare hands!" A look of pained surprise came over the Swede's face. "Why," he whispered, "I did not hurt them."

"I try to save them from dot Russian. Your wife was kind to me on dot ship. I hear dot little baby cry sometimes. I got wife and child too, in Sweden.' Something in the man's tone convinced Tarzan he was telling the truth. Quickly his mood turned from hate to pity. "I am sorry," he said very simply. He lifted the Swede tenderly in his great arms, comforting him as the wounded man breathed his last.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

SNOWFALL HEAVIEST OF YEAR.

After experiencing the mildest winter weather on record, Peterborough City and district was yesterday visited by a severe snowstorm, and to-day the countryside was blanketed in a mantle of white. All is clear! No trouble is reported either by the Bell Telephone Company or the Peterborough Utilities Commission, but good sleighing is reported from all country districts.

The snowfall has also provided work for some of the city's unemployed, who were engaged this morning in clearing sidewalks and thoroughfares.

MEN WANT FARM JOBS

The Examiner has the opportunity of placing ten or twelve men with farmers for the winter months. A certain amount of experience in farm work is necessary, but the men would be assured of lodging and food for the cold weather, and enough money to give them a start in the spring. Anyone having such qualifications is asked to telephone 1600 or come in to The Examiner office.

BEDDING WANTED

The members of the Firemen's Relief Fund are making an appeal for bed clothing. They have one or two beds, complete with springs, but lack the mattresses, sheets, blankets and pillows. Other articles, such as clothing, stoves, etc., will be gratefully received.

ASHES IN WOODEN BOXES

The Fire Department was called to a fire on 210 Perry Street at 7:55 a.m. today. The fire was caused by hot ashes being put in a wooden box. In a very short time the whole house was filled with smoke, as was the adjoining residence. However, the flames were soon put under control and damage resulted entirely from the smoke. In this connection the attention of the public is drawn to the fact that there is a law against depositing ashes in boxes or pails; metal containers are provided for this purpose.

A call was answered for a chimney fire on 128 Rubidge Street at 8:04 a.m., but little damage resulted.

Chancellor Snowden has announced that the cost of increasing old age pensions in England by $1.26 a week, with a consequent similar increase in widows' pensions between 65 and 70, would be $139,750,000, rising to $187,500,000 in 10 years.

MAJOR BURWASH GREAT EXPLORER

Canadian Explorer Will Address Open Meeting in Collegiate Assembly Hall.

SERVED IN FRANCE.

Major L. T. Burwash's recent spectacular flight over the North Magnetic Pole and King William Island in search of the Franklin records is but a fitting climax to a life spent in Arctic and sub-Arctic exploration and investigation. But behind the spotlight of publicity that has shone achievement lies many years of patient untiring toil in the North.

He is recognized now as the foremost Canadian explorer and it is admitted that he knows more about the North, its wealth and hidden possibilities, more concerning the Eskimoes than any other Canadian past or present. Soon after graduating in Mining Engineering in 1897, Major Burwash went to the Yukon. Since then with but few intermissions he has been constantly engaged in cutting new trails across the North in an effort to learn its mysteries and uncover its mineral wealth.

From 1915 to 1919, Major Burwash was on active service in France. On returning he immediately returned to the North as an official of the Department of the Interior. Since 1922 he has been that department's Chief Investigator. During 1923 and 1924, including an entire winter, he carried out extensive exploration and investigation on Baffin Island. The year 1925 and 1926 were spent along the Arctic coast from the Mackenzie delta to Hudson Bay. In 1927, he visited the Eskimoes of James Bay and the east coast of Hudson Bay. Another two years' work along the Arctic coast followed in 1928 and 1929 with a second winter spent on and in the vicinity of King William Island. Finally, in 1930, came the aerial expedition that brought his long years of Arctic work into the limelight.

Major Burwash comes to Peterborough on Thursday evening to address an audience in the Collegiate assembly hall at the invitation of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada. His subject will be "Exploration in Northern Canada" and he will describe some of his experiences in exploration work. The address will be illustrated with slides and films.

Huston, aged 52, born and brought up in Peterborough, Ontario, was fatally injured in New York City and died in the Memorial Hospital there on Saturday. He was conscious until the end. Mr. Huston was employed as foreman of a steel construction gang of the Karl Koch Company, New York.

While at work on an apartment house on 76th Street, in some manner he slipped and fell a distance of three storeys.

On November 1st he was married to Mary Ellen Megahey of Hamilton, Ont. The wedding took place at Trinity Episcopal Church, Hartford, Conn.

The late Mr. Huston was born at Peterborough and became acquainted with Mrs. Huston in 1914. He returned to Hamilton a year ago and renewed acquaintanceship.

Surviving are his sister, Alice, and a brother, Walter, both of Toronto.

For many years the late Mr. Huston was employed by the Karl Koch Steel Construction Company in New York.

Liberal Conservative Association to Give Donation to Well Babies' Clinic.

The meeting of the Women's Liberal Conservative Association held in Hooper's Palm Rooms yesterday afternoon was very largely attended.

A short business session followed at which it was decided to give a donation to the Well Babies' Clinic.

Splendid reports were given by the delegates who attended the annual meeting of the Provincial Conservative Association held in Royal York Hotel, Toronto, last month.

Mrs. L. H. Deyman, the south ward delegate, spoke on the speech of Alex. Edwards, M.P., of Galt, Ontario, whose subject was "The Prevention of Dumping of Surplus Foreign Goods on Canadian Markets." He advocated the raising of the tariff so that it would be impossible for foreign goods made by child labour in many instances to enter Canada and compete with prices of goods here. He mentioned particularly the dumping of cheap hosiery on our markets.

Mrs. A. Kent, delegate for West Ward, gave paper on "Vocational Education in Gardening and Agriculture" as taken up at the annual meeting by the Hon. I. L. Kennedy. She emphasized the advantage to farmers of the short term vocational courses in agriculture.

Mrs. A. A. Fowler, delegate for the East Ward, spoke on Mrs. Plumtree's talk on vocational education, extolling the good work accomplished all over the province by the introduction of vocational schools, where students not suited to academic work could receive an education along lines best suited to their abilities.

Mrs. A. Stinson, Centre Ward delegate, took up the speech of Hon. Mr. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare. She particularly mentioned the work being done in the Boys' School at Bowmanville and the Boys' Home to be established in Toronto for boys after leaving the Bowmanville school. She also spoke of the establishment of a similar school for girls at Galt, Ont.

Mrs. Fallis thanked the delegates for their excellent reports and announced that the others would give theirs at the annual meeting which will be held in the Paragon Hall on Monday afternoon, Jan. 19th.

At this juncture Mrs. Fallis announced her resignation as president on account of her manifold duties in connection with the party work. Being vice-president of the Provincial Executive she expects a busy year and felt it would be impossible to cary on her work as president of the local association. Her resignation was accepted with deep regret, several of the members expressing their deep appreciation of her services during the past eight years in which the Association had grown from a mere handful to the present large and efficient personnel. They felt she had indeed earned a well merited rest.

The nomination then took place by ballot but there will be no contest for president, as Mrs. G. S. Cameron the first vice-president, was unanimously elected as president for the ensuing year.

Before closing Mrs. Fallis thanked all for the splendid support and cooperation they had given her during her long term of office and bespoke for Mrs. Cameron the same loyalty.

The meeting closed by singing 'God Save the King.'

MARSHAL JOFFRE IS LAID TO REST NEAR NAPOLEON

Two Million Parisians Brave Freezing Weather to Attend Funeral.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

Entire French Army Acts as Guard of Honor For Beloved Warrior.

PARIS, Jan. 7. — (AP) — The body of Marshal Joffre, hero of the Marne, rested today in Les Invalides, hall of French immortals, whose massive dome shelters the bodies of Napoleon and Foch.

Two million Parisians braved freezing weather to stand outside Notre Dame and along the route to Les Invalides for hours while the funeral cortege, in sombre ceremony, proceeded from the cathedral to the temporary resting place of the man who saved France from the invader in 1914.

In front of Les Invalides war veterans who had suffered wounds while serving under "Papa" Joffre were given seats of honor while Senator Louis Barthou, Minister of War and personal friend of the Marshal, extolled his services to his country.

Career Outlined

M. Barthou traced the Marshal's military career and explained his strategy at the Marne, which was that the retreat before the battle was his preparation for the contest. He compared the Marshal with Washington and Franklin, and in his peroration commented that although misjudged he had felt no bitterness, and had said nothing which would risk harming the fair name of France.

He lauded the move which sent Joffre to the United States in 1917, and extolled the Marshal's conduct there as one who possessing glory did not lack modesty. "Joffre has made no mistake," M. Barthou said, "the brotherly accolade of the two peoples came as a realization of all his hopes."

"No one has better recognized than Joffre the great achievements of these millions of men who, willingly dropping their peaceful occupations, crossed seas which were alive with death, and thousands of miles from

NEW BODIES ARE PUT ON BUSSES

Peterborough Bus Company Is Calling All Its Old Busses In.

COMPLETELY OVERHAULED.

Despite the fact that business is not as good as in former years, the Peterborough Bus Company is determined that its customers shall ride in greater comfort. To insure added comfort and service to its riders the bus company two months ago inaugurated a program which, when completed, will bring nine new busses to Peterborough.

All the old busses are being taken off and transported to Walkerville where their old bodies are taken off and scrapped. New bodies are built on the chassis, and the motor of every bus is completely rebuilt. "This is a costly program," admitted Lorne Mitchell, manager. "But it is made as an effort to give the riding public better service." Several more busses have still to undergo this treatment and then a complete change in the rolling stock of the local company will have been made.

The maintenance staff of the company here has also been changed in the past six months and the efficiency of the staff improved. The transporting of riders about the city is no small industry. The monthly pay roll of the company here reaches $3,000.

The company still maintains its five routes which gives transportation service to every district in the city.

The Weather

Another cold wave (probably short-lived) spread over the district last night and to-day. Lowest temperature last night 2 above zero. After daybreak the thermometer went down to 3 below zero. At noon it reached 10 above.—W.P.

CAUSES OUTLINED FOR HARD TIMES

Deachman Claims Russia or Wheat Pools Not to Blame For Farmers' Plight.

BLAMES NATIONAL SPIRIT.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 7. — Major causes of the present hard times of Canada's farm lands are the prevailing high distribution costs and intensification in other countries of the national spirit in the opinion of R. J. Deachman of the Canadian Consumers' League. In an address before an Ottawa Service Club, Mr. Deachman said neither Russia nor the Canadian Wheat Pool should be blamed for "the hopeless plight of the western farmer, with grain prices 50 per cent. lower than a year ago." The national spirit, which had increased yearly since the war, was the top-ranking cause. High cost of marketing came next.

The United States, France and Australia were described by the speaker as leaders in promoting the national spirit. They had declined to buy in Europe and other countries had followed suit.

"We cannot go on exporting and continue the great trading nation we have been since 1914, unless we are willing to import," Mr. Deachman added, "for nothing in the world can change that economic law."

CRESWELL TIGHE IS UNDER ARREST ON THEFT CHARGE

Provincial Constable David Sylvester Arrests Man in Home at Warsaw.

CAUGHT IN STORE.

Citizens Seeing Burglar at Work Give Alarm and Pursuit Follows.

After an all-night chase in which most of the residents of Warsaw took part, Provincial Constable David Sylvester returned to the city at 6.45 this morning and lodged Creswell Tighe in the police cells.

Tighe was charged to-day before Police Magistrate Langley with having burglarized Payne & Darling's general store in Warsaw. He pleaded not guilty.

What quantity of goods was stolen from the store is not fully known as yet. However, the theft took on serious proportions when it was found this morning, on opening the safe, that $200 was missing.

Committed About Midnight

The burglary was committed about midnight. It is alleged that Tighe gained his entrance to the store by smashing the glass in the front door.

The broken glass did not remain unnoticed for long. Two residents of the village, Thomas Clements, who also has a store, and a young man named Payne, observed the shattered door. Peering inside the store, they saw the burglar as he rummaged about the shelves with the aid of dim light from flickering matches.

Immediately the two hastened away to the telephone in Clements' store. They informed Payne and Darling, the two merchants, of the marauder's presence in their store. A 'phone message was also sent to local police headquarters, which was relayed to Provincial Constable Sylvester. The message was: "There's a burglar in Payne and Darling's store and he's right there now."

By this time nearly the whole village was aroused and the citizens began encircling the store. It is thought that the burlgar took fright about this time and fled from the store. Two men, as they approached the store, saw a man running toward them. Seeing them he turned while still a 100 yards away, and faced across a field. The burglar's escaping movements were also observed by a woman from her bedroom window.

It is alleged that the burglar ran

DUNLOP REPORTS $628,000 DEFICIT DURING YEAR '30

Provincial Revenue Up $3,303,000 Due Chiefly to Succession Duties.

LIQUOR PROFITS NORMAL.

Motor License Fees Lower By $2,300,000—Gas Tax Gains.

TORONTO, Ont., January 7 (C.P.). — For the first time since 1926, the annual pre-sessional report of the Provincial Treasurer shows a deficit.

Hon. E. A. Dunlop, newly appointed Treasurer, attributes the generally prevailing unsatisfactory economic conditions for the deficit of $628,000 revealed in his first statement. This despite an increase of $3,303,000 in the Provinces revenue, due largely to an increase in succession duties.

A peculiar feature of the report is that notwithstanding the business depression the sale of liquor did not decline to any extent in comparison with the volume recorded during the "boom year of 1929.

Liquor Revenue Same.

The last fiscal year's revenue from the Liquor Control Board amounted to the sum of $7,511,000. In that year sales of liquor, wines and beer amounted to $56,360,569. Profits during 1930 from this source were "practically the same as last year," Mr. Dunlop states.

Ordinary revenue for the year totalled $57,325,000, while ordinary expenditure was $57,956,000. Both

PROMINENT MEN RECEIVE THREATS

Notes Claim Radio Makers Using Device Writer Made Without His Consent.

50 DETECTIVES ON TRAIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.— Almost a dozen men of prominence have received notes from a disgruntled inventor whose threats against Owen D. Young, head of the General Electric Company, caused a guard to be given to him recently.

Fifty detectives, including the police bomb squad, have been seeking the man, who they say is a former radio dealer and who had charged in his letters that a device he invented is in use by radio manufacturers without his consent or compensation.

Officials of the Radio Corporation of America, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., A. Atwater Kent, Powel Crosley, Jr., Bishop Francis, J. McConnell of the Federal Churches of Christ in America and the Revs. Daniel Poling and Harry Emerson Foodick were named today as among those to whom the letter-writer had sent missives in the last seventeen months. Other letters, not threats, were received by Congressmen and State officials, including Governor Roosevelt.

Arrest of Thugs Expected by Police

Arrest of the two thugs, who assaulted W. G. Johnston in his home on the Chemong Road early Monday evening and forced him to give up $20, is expected within the next thirty-six hours by the police. Provincial Constable D. Sylvester has been working on the case, and has had the assistance of the city police. He stated today that he thought he had the men identified, and if his suspicions were correct arrests will quickly follow.

INSURGENT CHIEF REPORTED LIVING IN BURMA JUNGLE

Officials Believe Leader Escaped When Troops Sacked His Palace.

BLOND BURMAN, MYSTERY.

Captured Proclamations Show Revolt Was Definite Plot Against British Rule.

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 7.—Officials to-day expressed the belief that Burma's "man who would be king," reported killed in a battle with British troops, January 3, was still alive. They thought that the mysterious leader of the recent revolt, in which many lives were lost, escaped when his bamboo palace in the wilds near Tharrawaddy was captured and destroyed by British troops.

There still, however, was no explanation of the blond Burman who was found dead, dressed in robes of princely rank, when the troops finally entered the rebel stronghold.

Copies of a proclamation found on the body of one of the dead insurgents have reached authorities here. They say it reveals that the insurrection was not, as was at first believed, a protest rising against tax collections, but a definite revolutionary plot against British rule.

Jungle Combed

The rounding-up of rebels since the decisive battle near Tharrawaddy, January 2, when the bamboo palace was destroyed is proceeding satisfactorily, reports here said. Columns of troops and military police have combed the jungle country of the Tharrawaddy district, meeting little opposition and taking many prisoners.

The revolt broke out late in December, when at least one British official and several Burmese assistants were killed. In the fighting that followed the rebels battled desperately and seemed to be directed by some master strategist.

Some said this directing force was the "Golden Crow," a descendant of Burma's traditional ruling family, who sought to regain the throne. This was apparently borne out by later developments and it is the "Golden Crow" that officials now believe to have escaped the punishment set for him.

The blond Burman, whose dead body, wasted by disease, was discovered by troops, may have been a Prince of the ruling house, it was thought.

BENNETT ENDS VISIT TO WEST HEADS EASTWARD

Provinces Will Be Asked to Submit Detailed Statement of Positions.

SITUATION REVIEWED.

No Announcement as to Outcome of Parley With Western Premiers.

WINNIPEG, Man., January 7 (By Frank Flaherty, C.P. Staff Writer). —Premier R. B. Bennett left for Ottawa to-day, bringing to an end his New Year's visit to the West. Mr. Bennett's trip included both business and pleasure, for in addition to spending a few days in his home city of Calgary, he delivered an important address in Regina and met the Prime Ministers of the three Prairie Provinces in a conference at Winnipeg.

The agricultural situation in the West, arising out of the low prevailing price of wheat, was before the Prime Minister during his entire trip. In his speech at Regina he outlined in a general way measures the Federal Government was prepared to take to meet the condition. In his conference with the Provincial Premiers here yesterday he discussed details, but no announcement was made as to the arrangements arrived at.

Two Agriculture Discussions.

Matters relating to the agricultural situation now fall into two divisions, those in which the Provinces and the Dominion are jointly concerned and those with which the Dominion will deal alone.

In the former class comes the question of relief for farmers. Mr. Bennett announced the Dominion would co-operate with the Provinces in providing free seed-grain, food, and fuel to farmers in need. The conditions under which such relief will be afforded and the proportion of the cost to be borne by the respective governments were discussed at the conference yesterday.

The question of securing additional markets for Canadian wheat is primarily a Dominion matter. The opening up of a market in China and other Oriental countries is at present interesting the producers of the West. Premier J. T. M. Anderson discussed with the other Provincial Premiers his project of sending a trade delegation from the Western Provinces to the Orient. At the same time, the Dominion Government has instructed Hon. H. H. Marler, Minister to Japan, to go to China to discuss trade matters with the Nationalist Government of that country.

Discuss Wheat Pools' Position

The relations of the wheat pools to the banks and the Provincial Governments were before the conference of Premiers but no announcement on this question was made. Officials of the banks and the wheat pool, however, were present for a considerable time.

In connection with farm relief, the only new announcement was the provinces would be asked to submit detailed statements of their positions. Premier Anderson added that it was obviously the duty of the Dominion Government to give the situation consideration where the credit of any province was impaired.

Laborites Balking At Evening Dress Must Miss Banquet

LONDON, Jan. 7 (C.P. Cable). —A difference over the wearing of evening dress at the forthcoming banquet of the Institution of Civil Engineers, involving two Labor Members of Parliament, is arousing some amused comment. George Bernard Shaw is the only other prominent Socialist who refuses to wear a dress suit, and his objection is more aesthetic than social. He has himself recorded that at one time his only suit in the world was a dress suit and he had to wear it constantly, so that he was forced to wait until evening before he could go for a walk.

Walter Ayles, Labor M.P. for North Bristol, refused an invitation to attend the banquet because they would not make an exception and allow him to wear a lounge suit. Now a colleague on the Labor benches, D. J. Vaughan, who had accepted an invitation, says he must decline to attend if they persist in their attitude towards Ayles. "Royalty makes exceptions, why should not you?" he asks the sponsors of the banquet.

YOUNG LADY FOUND UNCONSCIOUS BESIDE BURNED RUINS OF HER CAR; WHISPERS DETAILS BEFORE DYING

Stranger Being Given Lift Orders Halt on Moors 14 Miles From Newcastle.

CLUBS GIRL ON HEAD.

Auto Set on Fire Pushed Over Cliff With Victim in Back Seat.

OTTERBURN, Northumberland, England, January 7 (C. P.). — Her head bashed in and her body virtually roasted, pretty Evelyn Foster, 28 was found semi-conscious beside the smoking ruins of her automobile on the frost-bound moors near here last night.

In a slight moment of lucidity before she died this morning she told her father that a stranger had accosted her on Tuesday night asking her for a lift to Newcastle, saying that he had come from Scotland.

Orders Halt.

About fourteen miles from Newcastle she stronger ordered the girl to turn the car around and halt. He then clubbed her over the head, tossing her on the back seat and setting fire to the automobile, which he shoved over a cliff.

Miss Foster told her father that she fought off unconsciousness while the car bounced down the valley flaming furiously, when the automobile struck a boulder and halted. She was able to drag herself from it. She did not know how long she lay unconscious before a bus driver and conductor discovered her and rushed her home.

This little Northumberland town has become greatly excited over the crime, which is the third "torch murder" mystery in England of the last few weeks.

Maxton Refuses Offer of Degree

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Jan. 7 (C.P. Cable).—James Maxton, Labor member of Parliament and leader of the Independent Labor Party, so-called left wing, has declined to become an honorary Doctor of Law of Edinburgh University. The offer of the degree was made by Sir James Barrie when he was installed as Chancellor.

"I have a great admiration for the Scottish Universities," says Maxton to-day. "Nevertheless I feel that anything tending to mark one man out from another should not be acceptable to the Socialist. My regard and affection for Sir James Barrie has been increased by the understanding way in which he appreciated my grounds for refusing the honor."

FURTHER PLANS BEING OUTLINED FOR INDIAN GOV'T

Suggest Viceroy Have Power to Issue Ordinances in Case of Breakdown.

Reading's Action Cheering.

Political Activity No Longer Confined Solely to "Intelligentsia."

LONDON, Jan. 7 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent).—Responsible Government for India was the plea of a number of Indian speakers at to-day's meeting of the committee of the Indian Round-Table Conference.

Sir C. P. Aiyar outlined his ideas in which he included provision for the Viceroy to have power to issue ordinances in the case of a complete breakdown of constitutional Government under any new Federal scheme. But in all other cases the ordinary machinery should be left to deal with matters, he said.

He observed also that political activity in India was no longer confined to the "intelligentsia." Disappointed and angered commercial classes were also become active, he said.

India Pleased

Sir Sultan Ahmed, a Moslem barrister, declared the Indian response to the speech of Lord Reading had been electric. The acceptance by Lord Reading on behalf of British Liberals, of the essentials of the scheme of Federal Government proposed by Sir Tej Badahur Sapru, had created an extraordinary impression in every Province of India, it was shown in cables he had received. Bombay was particularly pleased.

Sir Sultan also remarked that the "non-committal" reception of the Sapru scheme by the Conservatives was not disappointing to him, because the Conservative spokesman, Sir Samuel Hoare, had pointed out he had not arrived at a definite opinion on any point. He had hopes, he added, that in the fullness of time the Conservatives would fall in with Lord Reading's view.

Sir Bupendra Mitra, one of the Indian financial experts, is continuing the discussion this afternoon. He remarked before lunch adjournment that Sir Samuel Hoare wanted a strong Central Government in India.

"But could any government be stronger than one based on the goodwill and contentment of the governed?" Sir Bupendra asked. "It is possible for the British Government to rule India with the bayonet. But would such a rule bring a contented India?"

Fog and Frost Shrouds British Shipping Ports

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(CP)—Fog and frost shrouding wide areas of Great Britain and Ireland today hobbled shipping and land transportation services.

On some roads traffic ceased entirely as visibility extended only a few feet. In the suburbs of London last night vehicles of all kinds crawled in convoys headed by men walking, carrying lighted lanterns.

AUSTRALIA TO NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Jan. 7.—(C. P.)— Guy Menzies, young Sydney aviator, to-day made the first light plane flight between Australia and New Zealand. He took Charles Kingsford-Smith's "Southern Cross Jr." over the 1,200 miles between Sydney and Westland in 13¼ hours. He came down in a swamp near Ross, damaging the plane slightly.

OAK LAKE POLL DECIDES ISSUE

J. F. Breckenridge Leads W. E. Griffith By 287 to 286 in Belmont and Methuen.

MAY BE RECOUNT.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—The chief topic of conversation in Havelock district all day Tuesday was close elections and recounts. Later on the topic was changed somewhat when the returning officer brought out the official returns from Oak Lake. These gave J. F. Breckenridge a majority of one over his opponent, W. E. Griffith.

The very unusual election here caused the whole country to turn their eyes to this township. A great deal of this might have been avoided had not those who brought in the returns from Oak Lake made an error in the quick counting of the votes in the poll-book. It was given out as eight votes for each candidate, but there were seventeen listed in the poll-book. They looked in the ballot box a second time and found the deciding vote to be for J. F. Breckenridge. The other part of the ballot gave one vote to each of the following councillors: I. Anderson, C. F. Steenburg and Norris Whitney. The total now are:—

For Reeve.—J. F. Breckenridge, 287; W. E. Griffith, 286.

For Council.—Anderson, 346; Barrons, 84; McGowan, 147; McNeeley, 179; Sanders, 166; Steenburg, 201; Vansickle, 272; Whitney, 207; Wright, 206.

This leaves the council for 1931 as follows: Isaac Anderson, H. Vansickle, Norris Whitney, and C. F. Steenburg.

The only new member headed the polls as is often the case, following the old saying, that the longer one serves the people the less popular one becomes.

It is almost certain that Mr. Griffith will ask for a recount, when it is so close.

Burma Rebels Loot Two Native Villages

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 7. — Two hundred houses were burned and a mountain constable fatally injured in an attack of 100 "Dacoits" or rebels on the villages of Hmansi and Wasaw near Yamethin Sunday.

The rebels robbed several village headmen of their guns and cartridges and one headman was left lying wounded in the jungle. Police and a detachment of troops were rushed to the scene and despatched parties in all directions to intercept the rebels.

Military police have been posted on the outskirts of the district and Gurkhas are patrolling the town.

PETITION TO UNSEAT W. A. FRASER IS ABANDONED IN OSGOODE HALL

All Four Petitions to Unseat Members Are Being Dropped.

DISMISSED BY JUDGES.

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7. — Legal proceedings to contest the election of four members of the Federal Parliament, including William A. Fraser, Northumberland, came to an end today with the preliminary sitting of the judges at Osgoode Hall to set the dates of trial. A petition against the Hon. James Malcolm for North Bruce was formally abandoned by J. Keiller McKay, counsel for the three electors who filed the petition, and Mr. Malcolm's cross petition against William Mitchell, Conservative candidate in the North Bruce election, was likewise abandoned by N. W. Rowell, counsel for Mr. Malcolm. The two other M. P.'s concerned are George Spotton, North Huron and George B. Nicholson, East Algoma.

The petitions of Mr. Fraser and the other two were dismissed later today when the court had received formal proof that notice of the hearing was served, since no one appeared for the petitioners.

Chief Justice Rose and Mr. Justice Wright were the judges appointed for the North Bruce and Northumberland petitions and Justices Kelly and Logie were to have heard the North Huron and East Algoma trials.

A transatlantic liner being constructed at Belfast, Ireland, will carry 1,500 passengers.

CHICAGO WOMAN SAYS HUSBAND KILLED ST. THOMAS BRAKEMAN

Police Puzzled as Victim Apparently Shielded Attacker on Death Bed.

THROWN UNDER TRAIN.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 7 (CP)—Five months after Russell Gorvett, St. Thomas brakeman, died declaring he had slipped while making a coupling, a telegram from Chicago police yesterday suggested he had been pushed to his death by a hobo.

Trainmen were frankly puzzled by Gorvett's whispered ante-mortem statement that he had fallen beneath the wheels. There was no occasion for the brakeman to be making a coupling when the tragedy occurred, they said. Chief Constable Gunson of St. Thomas was suspicious. As there had been no witnesses of the fatality, the coroner's jury, however, last July returned a verdict of accidental death.

The following wire has come from William Norton, Chicago Chief of Detectives.

"In custody here Jerome Johnson, 24 years old, whose wife informs us he made an admission to her that he was beating his way between Buffalo and Detroit in July or August of this year and at St. Thomas encountered a railway employee or a detective who attempted to put him off the train. Johnson assaulted and threw the man under the train and thought he had killed him. Please rush answer if you have a record of such an accident and if you want him."

Capt. H. O. Taylor, head of the Michigan Central Railway police, St. Thomas division, has left for Chicago to question Johnson, whose implication in the case followed an attempt to enlist on the Chicago police force. It was while investigating his past history that the Chicago police heard his wife's amazing story of what she said her husband had told her.

RIVER FLOODING LOWER QUEBEC

Blizzard Halts Ferry Service With Levis—Long Detour Necessary.

57 MILE GALE.

QUEBEC, Jan. 7.—The waters of the St. Lawrence River, lashed all day by a 57-mile gale, suddenly rose over the river banks last night and invaded the cellars of many of the houses of lower town and also flowed over the streets and into the basements of the waterfront district of Levis, across the river from this city.

The gale blowing upstream, forced the floating fields of ice against the current and crated a dam, it was believed, and the situation was serious for waterfront dwellers and business houses. At some points in lower town the flood waters had reached a depth of seven feet.

Yesterday the blizzard had caused complete stoppage of the ferry service connecting the two cities of Quebec and Levis, and travellers were forced to detour by special train over Quebec Bridge, some miles above this city.

Renahan Plane Wheel Is Found On Shores

Renahan carried wheels in his pontoon-equipped plane when he dropped from sight.

PILOT'S BODY FOUND.

Main Squadron Led By General Balbo Will Continue to Rio de Janiero.

NATAL, Brazil, Jan. 7.—Thousands of natives of this far northeastern tip of the South American continent gathered here to-day to gaze in amazed admiration at ten great Italian seaplanes which yesterday flew across the Atlantic to complete one of the greatest achievements of aviation history.

The ten planes, three of them black, three green, two red, and white, floated easily at anchor in the Potengy River, none the worse for the gruelling journey of nearly 1,700 miles from Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, West Africa.

Day after tomorrow the air caravan will continue its journey down the Brazilian Coast to Rio de Janeiro, alighting in Botofogo Bay near the Presidential Palace to complete an odyssey of 7,000 miles which began with departure from Orbetello, Italy, on December 17.

Two Planes Collide

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 7. (CP)—A dispatch to La Nacion from Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, to-day said that two of the planes of the Italian transoceanic expedition collided off Praiabranca yesterday shortly after the the planes took off for Natal, Brazil. One of the planes fell in flames, the other returning, damaged, to Bolama.

The body of the pilot of one of the planes was said by the dispatch to have been recovered yesterday.

Government censorship was lifted to-day but details were witheld largely, to avoid alarming families of the fliers.

More than half a million dollars is being spent to blast away a hill in Sweden to permit construction of a canal to connect the Baltic Sea and Lake Malaren.

They are now awaiting favorable weather to take off again. Their proposed stops on flight are Bermuda and Azores.

TORONTO EMPIRE CLUB TENDERS FERGUSON FAREWELL BANQUET

New High Commissioner Hopes To Play His Part In Service to Empire

MANY DUTIES UP

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (C.P.)—Endeavors to produce greater trade within the British Empire, to develop intercourse to that each part might know the other better and to inform British manufacturers and capitalists what Canada has in store for them, will be the first duties of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson when he arrives in London to take over his post as Canadian High Commissioner.

Speaking at a farewell banquet tendered him yesterday by the Empire Club, Mr. Ferguson discussed what he termed the "uppermost thoughts in the mind of every Britisher." He was going to England, he said, because it had been impressed upon him that he might be of some service to the British Empire. He knew little or nothing of specific functions of Canada House, he said, but he fancied these would be among the most important of his duties there.

It was the lack of knowledge of Canadian opportunities that had prevented the investment of British capital in Canada on a greater scale. If people could be interested in the great possibilities one might be able to do something toward establishing in Canada branches of great British industries, Mr. Ferguson said.

He fancied another of his important duties would be the migration of British people to Canada. The vigor and vitality of this country required from time to time a fresh infusion of British people, and though the time at present was not ripe, he felt the careful selection and location of these people were the most important details of the policy which for future use should now be prepared.

SECESSION CRY RAISED IN WEST

Barr Colonists Want Action Unless Present System is Changed.

AT LLOYDMINSTER.

SASKATOON, Sask., January 7 (C.P.). — A new cry for secession of the West from the rest of the Dominion has been sounded in Saskatchewan. The latest demand, placing secession as an alternative to a change in the present system to a "standard of living as British people," was voiced at Lloydminster, on the northern border-line between Saskatchewan and Alberta, the district settled by the famed Barr colonists.

Almost unanimously, a resolution was passed on Saturday by a gathering of farmers and business men so extensive as to necessitate an overflow meeting, according to reports from Lloydminster. J. Wesson, director of Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, and A. J. Macauley, vice-president of United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, were among the speakers at the meeting, at which a varied number of resolutions were approvde.

The secession resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas this mass meeting of farmers and business men, knowing that our demands call for legislation by Governments which is necessary to establish a standard of living as British people, and who wish to trade our commodities for goods of equal value from the Mother Country, therefore be it resolved, that, in case of refusal to change the present system, to ensure the farmer and major organization to bring about secession and set up a Western Dominion under the British flag."

TYPHOON CLAIMS 150 LIVES

Twenty-seven persons drowned when the steamship Lozano foundered. Thirty others died in the sinking of fifty fishing boats.

FREIGHT CAR IS DERAILED

C. N. R. Morning Train From East is Held Up at Birdsall's Station.

A box car on an east-bound freight train on the Canadian National Railway left the tracks in the vicinity of Birdsall's Station between five and six o'clock this morning, causing some slight interruption in the passenger schedule.

"Train number 101 Belleville-Peterborough due in this city at 9 a.m. is expected here at ten o'clock," said Alpine McNab, the company's agent to The Examiner. He added that train Number 90 leaving here at 8.35 a.m., for Campbellford and Belleville would in all probability be unaffected, as by the time it reaches Birdsalls it is confidently expected the track will be cleared."

The cause of the car leaving the tracks is not known. The auxiliary train from Lindsay passed through here en route to the scene of the mishap at 7.25 a.m.

STARTLING TURN TAKEN IN PROBE OF CREW'S ACTION

Movement of Several British Ships For Spring Cruise Halted.

SUBS HELD IN PORT.

Cruiser Involved — Formal Court Martial is Certain.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 7. (CP).—The Plymouth correspondent of the Daily Mail asserts that such startling revelations have come out of investigation into an act of insubordination on H.M.S. Lucia on Sunday that the movement of several ships for the annual spring cruise on Thursday have been cancelled.

An order cancelled the sailing of the Lucia, 30 members of whose crew are under arrest. The Mail's correspondent says that similar orders have been issued for the cruiser Norfolk, whose Captain, C. B. Pickett is a member of the court trying the Lucia offenders.

Subs Detained

He adds that all submarines of the "L" class, of which the Lucia is parent ship as submarine depot vessel, also will be held in Plymouth.

The name of another war vessel, the cruiser Vindictive, also is brought in. The Mail's story says a statement made at the Lucia trial links Sunday's events with an incident aboard the Vindictive some time ago, but no details are given.

At yesterday's hearing, the correspondent continued, a surprise occurred, and the evidence taken was viewed as so important that additional witnesses were called and the inquiry was prolonged, with the certainty that a formal court-martial will be held.

Ex-King's Guard Retiring at 84

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (C.P.).—An interesting career that included service in the Metropolitan Police of London, England, at one time personal bodyguard to the King and for the past twenty-five years a guardian of a local financial institution, is recalled by the retirement of George Cuddy at the age of 84.

Thirty years ago, as Inspector George Cuddy of the London Police Force, he retired, but after five years of inactivity, decided to start anew, and came to Canada. He is the eldest of a family of five boys, all of whom became constables. The youngest, Alfred, is the present deputy commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Would Have Been Revolution Long Ago But For It, Says Lloyd George.

TIME TO BUILD ARK.

BOURNEMOUTH, England, January 7 (C.P.) — Right Hon. David Lloyd-George, former Liberal Premier, expressed the opinion here yesterday that there would have been a revolution long ago had it not been for the British dole.

He said, however, that in retrospect he believed it would have been better to spend the money providing work rather than maintaining unemployed in idleness.

Speaking at the laying of the foundation stone for sea defence works which will cost approximately $450,000, the former Premier declared that unemployment seemed to be creeping over the world because there was too much wealth, too much corn, iron, coal, steel and other products.

He said he believed that there was no justice in allowing one man to starve, through no fault of his own while there was one crust to spare in the nation's cupboard.

He opposed making provision for unemployment, but he felt that a time of depression and unemployment offered an opportunity to attend to things overlooked in a time of prosperity.

"There is a deluge," he said, "with the rain falling on both the innocent and guilty. Now is the time to build an ark."

In improving a harbor at East London, South Africa, 370,000 tons of earth are being removed.

New C.G.E. Works Manager Is Announced

C. A. SALMONSEN STARTED CAREER AS OFFICE BOY

New Works Manager of Canadian General Started With Company in 1909.

WAS HIGHLY HONORED

Saw No Future in Office So in 1911 Started as Machinist Apprentice.

In his valedictory to the employees of the Canadian General Electric Company on the last day of the old year, Mr. E. G. Patterson publicly announced as his successor in the position of works manager Carl A. Salmonsen, who for several years has been general superintendent.

So the old order passes in the management of the Peterborough plant of the C.G.E. Company. Mr. Patterson has retired after forty-two years' service with the company, thirty-eight of them in this city, years of responsibility and authority that made Mr. Patterson's name almost synonimous that of the C.G.E. An old chapter has been closed and a new one begun. Naturally the human phase of this transition is temporarily predominant, and if there is a.. undertone of pathos in a sudden emphasis upon the biologic fact that men grow old, that the nibbling years steal the bloom of vigor from the receding period of manhood, there is also a compensating factor in this continuous human equation,—the bright side of youth, eager, ready and challenging, coming into its own and bringing its fresh vitality, its keen enthusiasm, its strong attachment to the methods and ideals of its own generation, and perhaps, too, its broader outlook and ideas.

A Romance of Business.

And so it has come about that the office of works manager at the Canadian General Electric Company's plant in Peterborough has a new occupant, Carl A. Salmonsen, a young man of thirty-six whose career presents a notable romance of modern business. It embodies an enthralling theme of fictionists—success crowning the dreams and ambition of youth while there is yet ample time to savor it, and, according to probability, to consolidate it as a base for further accomplishment.

The personality of the manager of the Canadian General Electric Company has always been of more than ordinary interest to the people of Peterborough, because this city has felt that its hopes and future were bound up to a very considerable extent with the progress of its largest industry. For that reason among others the personality and background of the new works manager attracts the interest of his fellow citizens Perhaps, also they wonder about the secret of his success, with the question of how a comparatively young man was chosen to direct one of the outstanding factories in this country.

Began As Office Boy.

It all leads back to the boy that Carl A. Salmonsen must have been in Schenectady. In September, 1909, he got a job as office boy in the Patent department of the General Electric Company. For two years he worked around that office, but the experience left him dissatisfied with the prospects farther along the road. He must have been gifted with clairvoyance, for he decided that there was no future, at least no short cuts, in the office job.

According to the records of the General Electric Company young Salmonsen requested that he be transferred to the machinist apprenticeship course in February, 1911. That step, disclosed Mr. Salmonsen's initiative, a characteristic that later helped to win for him the 'Charles A. Coffin Certificate of Merit," the highest honor awarded by the General Electric Company to its deserving employees.

Father's Misgivings.

When he went home with the news that he had quit the white-collared office job to enter the shops, the Salmonsen family was frankly dubious about the wisdom of that leap into the crowded ranks of the factory with its thousands of employees. The father thought it was a vocational mistake and said so, but he must have soon realised that he had underestimated the abilities of his own son. But "the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts," and middle age usually prefers the seeming "sure thing" to the dim "long chance."

The C.G.E. machinist apprenticeship course usually takes four years to complete, but, with overtime and earnestness, a man can graduate in three years and a half. Carl Salmonsen in that preparatory stage of his progress proved that he was out of the ordinary class of novices. He graduated in November, 1914, and then spent six months "over the board," with mathematics and engineering mechanics on the side. For a time he was employed as a toolmaker, and also worked half a year as tool designer in the motor department. He was then transferred to one of General Electric Company's sections producing war material, and in 1916 he was loaned to the Artillery Fuse Company. Returning in 1917 he was made assistant foreman in one of the tool departments, and in 1919 he was transferred to the mechanical superintendent's office.

Broader Opportunities.

Under Christian Steenstrup, consulting engineer in charge of mechanical research, Mr. Salmonsen followed special mechanical problems through the shops, and assisted in research and production problems on copper brazing work which Mr. Steenstrup supervised. Evidently Mr. Salmonsen had swung into the full stride of his capability in these opportunities of self-development and advancement, and the personal facet of his character is indicated by the following reference to his promotions in the Schenectady Works News of July 6, 1923: "It requires no great investigation to discover that wherever Carl has worked in the shops he has made many real friends. They hate to see him leave their section, but it pleases them to see him win recognition and responsibility. Mr. Steenstrup says he regards him as a young man of great promise, "whose progressive ideas, diligence and ability have shown from the first."

His Success Accelerates.

In June, 1923, Mr. Salmonsen was appointed as general foreman of the punch press department and tool room. At that time he was 28 years old, but he was supervising the work of five hundred men. His next advancement followed in 1925 when he was appointed foreman of Section "K," one of the manufacturing divisions of the General Electric Company's plant in Schenectady, and then at the end of August, 1928, he was transferred to the Canadian General Electric Company in Peterborough as general superintendent.

Such is an outline of Mr. Salmonsen's career from office boy in 1909 to the position of manager of the big local C.G.E. plant. The series of dates merely mark and set off separate, cumulative results, strides that were accomplished in the seven-league boots of intelligence, industry and initiative. Mr. Salmonsen had apparently accepted the golden maxims of the old copybooks as true, and they justified his faith a hundredfold.

Tribute From Associates.

Coming to Peterborough a stranger, a new man, he brought not only his hard-earned experience but also the good wishes and the personal recommendations of his former associates of Schenectady. One of these interplant credentials was from the Works Council of the General Electric Company, the other was from the G.E. Foreman's Association.

But, first the company's testimonial to Mr. Salmonsen's abilities! It is registered in the Charles A. Coffin Foundation award which was established by the General Electric Company for the encouragement of signal contributions by employees of the company toward the increase of its efficiency or progress in the electrical art. The certificate is signed by Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, and by the secretary of the Charles A. Coffin Foundation. The accompanying citation, Feb. 5, 1924, of Mr. Salmonsen's accomplishment which earned this distinction for him was as follows:

"Carl A. Salmonsen, General Foreman, who has been with the Company thirteen years. Mr. Salmonsen took over the Punch Press Department when conditions were very unsatisfactory. Under his leadership working conditions have been materially improved, the capacity of the shop materially increased through rearrangement and modification of the machinery, and the output per man has increased more than 20 per cent with a corresponding increase in earnings, largely due to better feeling on the part of the men. The esprit de corps of the department has changed in such a remarkable way as to reflect great credit on his efforts."

Workmen's Esteem.

The G.E. Works Council is a representative and numerous group of men elected by the employees. Their formal expression of goodwill and esteem is one of Mr. Salmonsen's proudest possessions. At the meeting of the Works Council August 7, 1928, following the announcement of Mr. Salmonsen's transfer to Peterborough, a resolution was recorded in the minutes as follows:

"In view of the numerous promotions achieved by our worthy co-worker and friend, Mr. Carl A. Salmonsen following his services as office boy, a completion in 1914 of the Machinist Apprentice Course, which fitted him for the succeeding stages of advancement until December, 1925, when he was appointed Superintendent of Section K; and in special recognition of his recent appointment as General Superintendent of the Canadian Works of the General Electric Company at Peterborough, Ontario, which has obviously resulted from his exceptional capabilities and pleasing personality:

We, the members of the Schenectady Works Council, as representatives of his thousands of co-workers and friends, want him to know that while his achievements thus far are gratifying to us, it is our sincere wish that his future efforts in this new field of endeavor will bring to him still greater success and achievement.

We want also to assure our co-workers at Peterborough, that they will receive a "square deal" in return for their efforts to co-operate with him in his wish to understand the delicate human balance which exists between "service" and its reward.

Tribute By Foremen.

A similar compliment was paid Mr. Salmonsen by the G.E. Foremen's Association of which he was president. Part of their resolution was: "Resolved that we heartily commend him to the foremen of the Peterborough plant, knowing that they will receive at his hands that same co-operation and goodwill that has characterized his work with us, and further that we extend to him our hearty congratulations upon his appointment, and best wishes for success in his new field of endeavor."

Mr. Salmonsen was also the president of the Apprentice Alumni Association, which honored him with a farewell banquet.

His Peterborough Interests

In his two years' residence in Peterborough Mr. Salmonsen has already won a host of friends within the factory and throughout the city generally. His first evidence of substantial interest in this C.G.E. community was the purchase of a home. He became an active member of the Y.M.C.A., was elected to the Board, and was one of the conspicuous leaders in last summer's building fund campaign in which his enthusiasm and organizing ability found free scope in his first public effort. When J. F. H. Wallace was transferred to Montreal by the Sun Life Insurance Company necessitating his retirement as leader of the Friday Night Supper Club at the "Y," Mr. Salmonsen was invited to take the chairmanship. His own youth and his interest in young men are qualities that have made an ideal chairman for this earnest group.

At the Canadian General Electric plant Mr. Salmonsen has shown a marked sympathy and support for all progressive helpful activities intended for the welfare of the employees, some of them being the Foremen's Association, the shop suggestion system, the manufacturing of apparatus heretofore imported to the local plant, the training and promoting of men within the factory for more important positions, these and many other ideas and innovations have received his hearty encouragement, and not a few of them were probably sponsored by him.

In his new position as Works Manager there is already every evidence that Mr. Salmonsen will merit and receive the same high esteem which was accorded him by his fellow employees of the Schenectady plant and that he will be given the whole-hearted co-operation of the entire personnel of the "C.G.E."

By Way Of Comment.

There is an old axiom that like attracts like, and applied to the new management of the Canadian General Electric Company it suggests, if a suggestion may be ventured, that Mr. Salmonsen will naturally and unconsciously find a special interest in those employees who manifest in their work the qualities which have helped him up the ladder of success. If he was energetic, keen on the job, and eager to co-operate for the welfare of his company, he will no doubt be attracted to those C.G.E. workers who give evidence of the same characteristics. And the secret of his own success, apparently, was not only his initiative, but also his determination to master each job, to place his feet securely on one rung of the ladder. Promotion obviously followed preparation, and gradually that first office boy position diminished more and more in contrast with the progressive achievements that led directly to the responsibility of Works Manager in Peterborough.

BOARD OF EDUCATION CLOSES YEAR WITH CASH BALANCE OF $218.62

Final Meeting of 1930 Board is Held in Library of Collegiate.

INSPECTORS REPORT.

The valedictory meeting of the 1930 Board of Education held last evening in the Library at the Collegiate Institute, disclosed a very pleasing state of affairs, in so much as the year closed with a favorable cash balance of $218.62. G. H. Thompson, secretary-treasrer, was highly commended by the Board for having prepared the estimates so carefully.

Congratulating the members of the Board, Dr. J. J. Craig stated: "As chairman it is pleasing to me to find that the actions of the Board have received so little serious criticism, and have so pleased public opinion as to warrant our acclamation." He also voiced his appreciation of the co-operation he has always received from all members of the Board and of the various chairmen of committees. "I have been on the Board several years," he remarked, "but the past two years have never been better. There have been very few difficulties to smooth out."

After presenting the report of the Finance Committee, E. F. Reid thought the Board were to be congratulated in having kept so closely within their $309,000 appropriation.

James Dutton—"I would like to add a word of commendation, as I was one of those responsible for a large expenditure last year. It makes Mr. Thompson's work all the more to be commended. There was equipment required for the Collegiate which was not foreseen, and the very necessary work on the public schools ran into a lot of money."

Mrs. W. R. Morris, in presenting the report of her committee, stated, "Your Supervision Committee, after considering the matter of dental and medical service carried on in the Public Schools, recommend that the Department of Education be asked to have the Departments concerned carry out a survey of both dental and medical services in the Public Schools; the survey to include the nurses of both departments."

"That the matter of sharing a portion of the fee charged for music instruction (now paid by the pupils) receive the sympathetic consideration of the Board, but that no action be taken at present."

"That the matter of an allowance to Miss Jory, towards the expenses of her car, be referred to the incoming Supervision Committee for further consideration and to report."

"Your committee after consideration, recommend that in order to temporarily relieve the over crowded condition at the Collegiate Institute, the Rotary system be established in the academic department, and that the working out of the details be referred to the Principal and the incoming Supervision Committee."

Mr. Dutton, presenting the report of the Property Committee, recommended that the Board take no action concerning the petition for Sunday school accommodation in King Edward School. He pointed out that the matter first came to the attention of the Board in the form of a letter from Rev. Mr. Ross. The committee had gone into the matter from all angles, and had discovered that to accommodate the Sunday school class of 42 children at King Edward School, would necessitate that all books and equipment be removed from the room; that they be put back into place for Monday mornings and that the janitor be in attendance for this purpose and also to heat the premises.

In connection with the Advisory Vocational Committee, Mr. Dutton said two fire extinguishers had been installed at South Central School, while satisfactory arrangements have also been made regarding fire insurance. He also reported the removal of the aviation school from the Collegiate Institute to South Central School.

A Large Increase

A statement from the Ontario Penny Bank, showed an increase of almost $3,000 in the savings of Peterborough Public School children during the past year, as compared with the sum of $12,869.97 at this period last year. The total figure now stands at $15,331.

Message of Condolence

On the motion of Mr. Dutton, seconded by Mr. Reid, it was decided, "that the secretary be instructed to forward a letter of condolence to Inspector A. Mowat in his bereavement.

"Every member of the Board, doubtless feels deeply for Mr. Mowat at this time," stated Mr. Dutton. "Not only has Mr. Mowat sustained a great loss, but the citizens also. The late Mrs. Mowat was a woman of exceptionally fine type and had made many valuable contributions to the city."

School Inspector's Report.

During the course of the meeting the reports of the inspectors of the Ontario Department of Education were read.

W. A. Jennings who visited the Collegiate on December 9, 10 and 11 said, "This school possesses a staff, the members of which are giving excellent services to the community. The Principal is a good administrator and the teachers well qualified for their work. The Board is to be congratulated on their judgment in appointing teachers. There seems to be a desirable spirit here, fostered no doubt, by such features as the daily assembly, the school magazine, the carefully guided athletics and other extra curricular activities."

"In one respect however, the work here is suffering. I find the ratio of about 37 pupils per teacher. The regulations fix thirty pupils per teacher, as the maximum. I visited classes where 56 pupils were being taught literature and mathematics, laboratory classes of 40 attempting to do practical work and gymnasium classes of 90. These conditions are decidedly unfair to teacher and pupils. Lectures may be given to pupils in classes of this size but the teacher cannot watch individual progress or individual needs. Three additional teachers are required to make the ratio of pupils to teachers satisfactory. I have confidence in the ability of the Principal," the report continues, "to introduce and maintain the Rotary system here. The Board of course would have to provide the necessary equipment. I had pleasure in meeting the chairman of the Board and also the chairman of the Property Committee."

H. E. Amoss another of the Department's inspectors who visited South Central School on December 11, states, "Class discipline has greatly improved since the previous inspection. A gratifying change in the attitude of pupils toward the class is the result."

Inspector Albert H. Leake, who visited the Household Science Department, Central School on December 4 is of the opinion that, "originality and resource characterize the work of both teachers and pupils and the highest commendation can be given to both."

Regarding the other departments at Central School, he states, "it would be very desirable to have organized schemes of elementary manual training in the grades and to allow the boys of the senior third class to attend classes in the manual training room."

Respecting the Household Science at Prince of Wales' School, Inspector Leake reports that owing to circumstances beyond his control he did not make an inspection of this class in the year 1929. He is satisfied however, that the teacher is conscientious, faithful and efficient and that great progress is shown.

In other departments at Prince of Wales' School he states, "Very satisfactory work is being done. The organization is working smoothly and it would be a decided advantage if the senior third class could be given some instruction in the manual training and the work be organized for the lower grades as provided in the curriculum."

The inaugral meeting of the 1931 Board, is to be held on Thursday evening of this week.

In some places where tips are abundant, the employee pays the employer for the right to work for him, declared a witness during a recent hearing before the Ministry of Labor Commission in London.

KELLY IS REEVE, FENELON FALLS

Candidates Favoring Reinstatement of Dismissed Constable Are Defeated.

CLOSE CONTEST.

LINDSAY, Jan. 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—The municipal contest in Fenelon Falls on Monday was fought on one chief issue—the reengagement of ex-Constable D. Gordon, whose dismissal in November by the 1930 council created a division in that body as well as among the ratepayers. The subsequent litigation in which Mr. Gordon sued the council and the municipality for salary and assessment work were dismissed by His Honor Judge Swayze. A section of the ratepayers desired, it is understood, to re-engage the officer. The candidates put up by this element suffered defeat. Mr. Foster Kelly was elected reeve over Andrew McFarland by a very small majority.

LIQUOR REVENUE FAILS TO DECLINE

Slump in General Business Results in Provincial Deficit of $628,000.

REPORT BY DUNLOP.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8.—Despite the slump in general business of 1930 which resulted in a Provincial deficit of $628,000, revenues from sale of liquor did not decline, the annual professional financial statement issued by Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, reveals.

The amount received from the Liquor Control Board was practically the same as last year, the statement says. The last fiscal year's revenue from the Liquor Control Board was $7,511,000, while sales of liquor amounted to $55,560,569.81. On the assumption the revenue for 1930 "was practically the same" it is believed the sales also will reach almost the same figure as in 1929.

DOCTOR IN CRASH.

Cannington Physician Badly Cut About Face When Car Piles Into Ditch.

LINDSAY, January 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—Answering a hurried call to the bedside of a patient, Dr. C. B. Graham, of Cannington, was badly injured in an auto accident near Port Perry. The doctor, while nearing a corner, failed to make the turn, his car taking to the ditch. He sustained serious cuts from broken glass as well as severe bruises about the body. He made his way to a farm house and a physician from Port Perry was summoned. After the cuts in his face had been stitched up, the plucky doctor attended his patient. It is thought that sleep had overcome the doctor on the highway.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 7. — Bullish feeling entered the Winnipeg wheat market yesterday and carried values 1¼ cents to 1 cent higher than the previous close. May wheat ended the session at 57⅞ cents per bushel, and July at 58⅞ cents to 59 cents.

Good export sales, amounting to 300,000 bushels overnight, and buying by other outside interests injected the bullish feeling into the pit. Export buying yesterday, it is believed, the same figure as the overnight total.

Fair activity was displayed in the cash wheat with prices unchanged to ⅛ cent better. Fractional advances were also recorded by coarse grains which were featured by the activity in oats.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 7.—Egg prices were unchanged yesterday on the local dairy market, but the heavy snowfall of the last two days is expected to bring higher quotations at the beginning of next week. Dealers pointout that owing to the large stocks on hand prices have been lower than usual for some time, but the heavy snowfall will prevent additionla stocks from accumulating here, the farmers being unable to bring in the produce.

The butter market was slightly stronger, carlot prices being ½c higher at 31½c a pound for Eastern Townships prime. The cheese market was steady at from 12c to 12¼c for current arrivals. Other lines were steady and unchanged.

Cash grain prices followed the Winnipeg advances and were generally 1c a bushel higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—With corn receipts the smallest in many months, almost at the vanishing point, grain prices jumped yesterday. Speculative buying of corn future deliveries broadened and the market rose 3⅛ cents over the day's bottom figures. Commission house trade was larger than for some time past.

Corn closed strong, 1⅞ to 2½ cents higher, wheat unchanged to 1¼ up, oats 1 to 1⅝ advanced, and provisions showing 5 to 20 cents gain.

Because French manufacturers of electrical equipment are unable to supply the great demand, German and Swiss companies are obtaining large orders in France.

At the dedication of the school of religious drama at Bournemouth, England, recently, it was announced that serving of refreshments would be delayed because the cakes had been stolen.

HELP THE KING'S DAUGHTERS.

Always in the forefront when kindly assistance is needed the King's Daughters are finding their activities increasing and their opportunities for service redoubled by the present period of depression and many families this winter have had reason to be thankful for the existence of such an organization.

Naturally the expansion of its works calls for a greater amount of financial assistance than usual and accordingly the organization has decided to hold a charity dance and bridge on Friday of this week, behind which are friends of the King's Daughters and citizens generally, who appreciate the work being carried on, are expected to rally.

The opportunity to spend a delightful evening and at the same time to materially assist a most worthy cause is not likely to be missed by the public.

The function can be recommended to the community as in every way meriting support, particularly in view of the unselfish and effective community service the King's Daughters have been noted for.

IN A NEW ROLE.

Old time theatregoers found their thoughts travelling a long way back into the past yesterday when they read that Ernie Marks had been elected Mayor of Oshawa.

Who, among the senior residents of Peterborough, has forgotten the Marks Brothers who every season brought a week or two of melodramas and farce-comedies, plentifully interlarded with specialties, and at a price within the reach of everybody?

Who doesn't remember genial old Tom Marks and Robert W. Marks and Ernie Marks and May A. Bell Marks and the rest of the stars of the kerosene circuit whose presence in town each year was an annual thrill comparable only to the visit of the Guy Brothers Minstrels and the Lincoln J. Carter melodramas, full of such excitement as only the most vivid of modern talkie serials could hope to match?

And who fails to recollect "Jerry the Tramp," "Mast Lynne" and, the other old favorite plays that held the audience in Bradburn's Opera House in suspense until the curtain came somewhat unsteadily down for the last time and the tinney piano tinkled out the notes of the National Anthem?

The Ernie Marks of those days has doffed the grease paint and the rouge of the theatre and to-day is seen in a new role, that of the chief magistrate of Oshawa, a decidedly different part, it must be admitted, but one that the former actor and manager will play with dignity, with geniality, and we venture to say, with success.

SYSTEMATIC PLAN NEEDED

The urgency of a better system of relief distribution is so great that the attendance at to-night's meeting, called by Mayor Denne for the purpose of organizing a community relief committee, should be thoroughly representative.

Every organization in the city that has in the past done its share of assisting needy families should see to it that there is a delegate or two from its membership present to-night so that the movement to co-ordinate the city's relief may have he impetus of the united support of the social service organizations behind it.

Conditions in regard to relief are abnormal; something more adequate than the ordinary methods of distributing assistance will have to be devised and it is hoped that out of the public meeting to-night will emerge an organization thoroughly representative and alive to the situation.

While there are some signs that the worst of the depression is over the return to better conditions will be slow at first and in the meantime there will be a large number of families who will find it difficult to keep warm and nourished and who will have to be assisted if dire suffering is to be avoided.

A community committee with a central clearing house for the systematic distribution of relief will enable Peterborough to tackle this problem with a maximum of effectiveness and a minimum of waste effort.

THE USE OF THE LASH.

The decided stand taken by Hon. E. J. McMurray, former Solicitor-General of the Dominion, in regard to the lashing of prisoners convicted of serious crimes is in direct conflict with the views of most of Canada's judges and with the opinion of General Hughes, Inspector of Canadian prisons who has had a long experience in studying criminal types.

Mr. McMurray maintains that the use of the lash brutalizes society and the individual who is punished, that it is not the deterrent that some people claim it to be.

General Hughes and other authorities, on the contrary, strongly urge the whipping of prisoners guilty of serious crimes of violence.

The whole thing should hinge, The Examiner believes, on the effectiveness or otherwise of the use of the lash as a warning to others.

If it is true, as Mr. McMurray claims, that it has not proved a deterrent, there is no excuse for utilising it merely as a punishment.

On the other hand if it does serve to prevent other would-be criminals from setting out on a criminal career, its maintenance as part of our prison system is justified.

Brutal it may be but no more brutal than some of the crimes for which its use is authorized and if it helps to check the epidemic of serious crime there should be no hesitation—and judging by recent sentences there won't be—about ordering the whip for those convicted of major crimes against society.

ONTARIO'S SEASHORE SUMMER RESORT.

The Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway Commission is considering the erection of a hotel at the proposed terminus of its line to James Bay. The proposal is that the hotel should cater, not only to business trade, but summer-resorters as well.

An Ontario salt water summer resort certainly looks like a novelty. Canadians, however, may be in the same position as those people of United States who regard Canada as altogether a land of ice and snow if they hold that opinion about the James Bay territory.

While the season is short the weather at the Bay in mid-summer is said to be delightful. According to the Canada Year Book the daily mean temperature of Moose Factory, the James Bay terminus is higher than Port Arthur and higher, also, than at Montreal, Quebec and Fredericton, N.B. For a period of thirty-three years it is given as 41.2 degrees. Toronto over thirty years has had a mean temperature of 45.4 degrees. The figures for the extreme are not at hand, but if it is correct to assume that mid-winter at James Bay is much colder than Toronto and other places, mid-summer must be warmer. The seashore at Moose Factory would, thus, be quite a delightful place in July.

Talking of weather, it is unfortunate that Ontario should get so much unfavorable publicity from White River. Doubtless the reports of extreme cold at White River are correct. The general public, however, does not get an accurate picture because White River is in a cold channel between Hudson's Bay and Lake Superior and its weather does not actually represent the weather of Northern Ontario.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

CANADA'S POSITION

At this season of the year it is customary for newspapers and public men to discuss national questions, national accomplishments and national prospects. This year has been no exception. Despite the depression of the last fifteen months, however, we find little pessimism, either in the papers or in the forecasts made by leaders of finance and industry. All seem to be agreed that Canada is making a rapid recovery and that she should be in the forefront in the better days that 1931 will undoubtedly produce.

* * * *

Mr. Beatty, for instance in an article published in New York, points out that Canada, on the whole, has suffered less than other countries whose position in world trade is as great or even greater. There is no question, he added, but that, as compared with the United States, not only has Canada's business activity not fallen off to the same extent, but there exists a reasonable expectancy that a return to normal conditions may not be so long delayed.

The president of the Canadian Pacific stresses, also what might be called the mental side of the depression warning against it in the following paragraph:

> "There is, I believe, a danger of becoming increasingly pronounced a psychological side to the present situation, and it does no good. Its influence would be to deepen depression and to further postpone the recovery that authoritative observers say is already perceptible on the horizon. Canada has successfully ridden out worse storms than this, and some of them were far back in the days when the country was not nearly so well equipped to meet adverse conditions."

* * * *

Mr. Bennett, in a speech at Calgary, has also emphasized the psychology feature. "Our closeness to other peoples," the prime minister told the people of his home city, "has much to do with our ideas of depression. We get the idea the whole world is out of joint and the phychology of it is reflected in the morose and solemn way some men walk about the streets of Calgary." Leading up to the thought quoted above, Mr. Bennett mentioned that modern science, by eliminating distance and speeding up communication, enabled the people of all countries to know what was going on in the others. This had the effect of making the present depression the greatest world depression on record, for news of hard times in all other parts of the world had a cumulative effect on the psychology of Canadians.

One has only to recall the beginning of the slump in 1929 to appreciate the force of the premier's observation. Business was going along in its accustomed way at that time. There was little unemployment and no one seemed to be worried about anything. Suddenly, prices began to tumble on the stock exchanges. Almost overnight everyone began to be pessimistic. People who were steadily employed and who did not know what a stock exchange looked like suddenly began feeling sorry for themselves. Many of them—despite the fact that their incomes and their assets had not changed an iota—began to curtail their purchases. Like wildfire, it seemed, the poison spread. By Christmas the whole continent of North America—to say nothing of the world at large—was in the throes of a great depression.

It was a depression for which there was little excuse, because it was a depression out of all proportion to the bad features of the business slackness. It was a depression founded on human weakness, on idle rumor, on silly gossip more than on any substantial reason. Like a forest blaze, it was easy to start, and hard to stop. Only now it is being stopped and the process is naturally somewhat slow.

* * * *

We have mentioned the mental side of the picture and the inevitable reaction in Canada to depressed conditions, on the stock market and otherwise, in the United States and other countries. There is another side, of course, and that has to do with the Canadian wheat situation. There can be no denying the fact that the successful raising and sale of the Canadian wheat crop is the greatest single business factor in our country. As we said the other day, a good crop and a satisfactory sale of Western grain, means good business for the whole of Canada. And, the other way 'round, failure of the Western crop, either from natural causes or inability to find a satisfactory market, means a bad year for the rest of the country as well. That is why Mr. Bennett and his colleagues are so anxious to solve the problem that now faces the Western farmer. That is why the premier made his bold offer of reciprocal tariff preferences to the Imperial Conference. That is why Mr. Bennett visited France to discuss the situation with the French Government, and why Mr. Marler, our minister to Japan, has been instructed to see what can be accomplished in China with respect to the sale of wheat there.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The keenness shown in municipal elections in this district on Monday must be regarded as a healthy sign.

Snow plough contractors read the paragraph in this column last night about how easily they were escaping this winter, then harnessed up their horses and did a little snow removal for a change.

BURNING BEAUTY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Anthony, careless for the first time in his life of his mother's disapproval, was saying to Virginia, "I've got to see you again."

"Have you?"

"Yes. When?"

Virginia had a sudden sense of excitement. She was not sure that she wanted him. She was not even certain that he attracted her. Yet to let him come to her would be an answer to his mother's arrogance. He should come to her shabby old house and be glad to do it!

So she said: "Why not have supper with Rickey and me to-morrow night?"

"Sunday?"

"Yes. At seven. We'll have to eat in the kitchen. But it's a nice old place. All the rest of the house is torn up."

"I'll eat anywhere—with you."

"Then I'll expect you."

"You're a—oh, I don't dare say it," he laughed triumphantly, and held out his hand. "It has been a great day, hasn't it? Meeting each other?"

She parried that. "It has been a great day in more ways than one."

He left her then, and she went on into the garden. Grogan, the auctioneer, stood in the open door talking to Rickey. He said, as Virginia came up, "You are to be congratulated on the results of the sale. I didn't dream we'd get such prices. But people went crazy. I never saw such bidding as there was for those candlesticks."

The blood all seemed drained from Virginia's body. She faced her brother. "Rickey, you didn't!"

He was sullen. "Yes, I did. Everybody was clamoring for them. It would have been a shame to lose the money."

"Who got them?"

"Michael McMillan."

Virginia was conscious of a sudden sense of hurt, as if someone had struck a blow at her heart. Oh, he had seemed so kind! Yet he had robbed her of the only thing she wanted. He was a Judas—selling his soul for—candlesticks.

She pushed by the two men and went into the house. Rickey followed her. Seeing his sister's white face he made a stammering defense. "Grogan insisted. He said—"

"I don't care what he said. Oh, Rickey, how could you . . ."

She put her hands up to her eyes, pressing the lids to keep the tears back. Rickard was at once by her side. "Oh, Jinny, don't," he cried. "You must n't. I didn't know you cared—"

She could not tell him of her wild sense of disappointment in Michael McMillan. She sobbed with her face hidden against her brother's coat. "It isn't just the candlesticks—it's—everything—"

"I know," his lips were against her hair. He loved her when she was like this, leaning on him. It was only when she tried to dominate him that he resented her.

Chapter Five

Pan Pipes in the Rushes.

In the meantime, Michael, utterly unaware of his offence, had been carried off by Marty for a walk through the Yard. "It's a heavenly day," she said, "and I need the exercise. It's all right for Jane to motor eternally, she's the type to stay slim forever. But I'm not."

Michael said the obvious thing. "You're lovely enough as you are. Why worry?"

"Worry is the price of beauty," Marty told him, "In these days."

"Not any more in these days than in other days—look at the old portraits—elaborate hairdressing—powder and patches—backboards to straighten figures—corsets to confine them—"

"Yes," Marty agreed abstractedly. It was apparent she was not listening. "What do you think of Virginia Oliphant?" she demanded, suddenly.

Michael dare not tell her what he thought. His pulses pounded at the sound of her name, but his voice held no hint of his inner excitement. "she seems rather unusual."

"She's amazingly attractive," Marty admitted, "I didn't realize it at first But when she recited that verse—she was startling—"

They walked along the sea wall. "Tony's fallen for her," Marty vouchsafed, presently.

"Do you think so? How long has he known her?"

"He met her this morning."

Michael laughed. "The chances are he'll forget her to-morrow."

"One can never tell," Marty's answering laugh was lazy. "If he keeps it up, I wish you'd cut him out. Tony's my property.

It was lightly said, but he knew she meant it. Marty would brook no rivals. And when she wanted a thing, she was ruthless in her methods.

"Who am I to cut Tony out?" he asked her. "What chance has a civilian against brass buttons?"

She turned and looked at him, "Every chance, and you know it. Don't be so modest, Michael."

"My dear girl, aren't you drawing on your imagination?"

"No. And she's the kind of woman you ought to marry."

Dead silence for a moment, out of which Michael said, "I'm done with marriage." .nd that was the end of it.

When finally they reached the Inn, they found the big car standing in front of the door, and Mrs. Bleecker and Tony waiting. "Where in the world have you been, Marty?" the little woman inquired, tersely. "Tony has been looking everywhere for you."

"It does him good to look." Marty smiled at Anthony as he helped her into the car.

Michael was urged to join the party. "We are dining with friends in Baltimore," Jane told him. "They'd be delighted to include you, and you could go on with us to New York in the morning."

"I'm staying over here," Michael said, "for the week-end. I'm sorry."

"I'll see you again, old chap," Tony informed him. "When I get back, I'll hunt you up at the hotel."

Michael did not care in the least whether Tony hunted him up at the hotel. He cared only about Virginia Oliphant. He meant to see her before he left Annapolis. Why not? One might at least grasp the happiness of the moment.

When at last the Bleeckers drove off, he went to his room and telephoned long distance to his secretary, stating his change of plans. There was no one else to whom he could telephone. Since his wife's death he had lived alone. In his apartment in Gramercy Park there were two impassive Japanese servants. Nobody would care whether he came or went. It had been years since anybody had cared, even when Helen was alive.

It was in the late afternoon that he left the hotel and made his way to the Oliphant house. He found the garden deserted, the house empty. A note, stuck in the door, stated that the occupants of the house would return at seven Michael ,sauntering through the rustling garden, came upon a sundial, its pedestal overgrown with ivy. It was ancient and interesting, of old brass, green as the ivy about it. A cross slanted across the dial, threw its shadow and marked the hours. At its base in old English letters were the words—"Post tenebras lux—"

"After the shadows light—" Michael translating mentally, had a thrilled sense that this might be an augury for the future. Would the day ever break—for him? He touched the cross with the tips of his fingers, and the gesture had in his mind a significance. It was as if he kept faith with himself in some mystic fashion.

Leaving the garden, he passed through the town, went over a long, low bridge which spanned the east branch of the river and came to a path which led through sunlighted fields, and shaded groves of pine and oak. Following the path, he reached at last a secluded spot which gave a view of the river.

Here he laid himself down to rest, stretching at full length in the dry sweet grass, and pillowing his head on his arm.

He loved the out-of-doors with a passion which was second to none in his nature. Yet for ten years he had been caged. Girst in an apartment on Park Avenue with Helen, now in his own smaller apartment in Gramercy Park. And when he had not been shut up in apartments he had been shut up in his office. Such holidays as he had allowed himself had been shared, perforce, with Helen. And Helen had ghosen fashionable resorts to which she had carried with her trunks of charming clothes She had been very lovely to look upon when she wore the clothes. That was why he had married her—because she had been so very beautiful, and he thought her beauty more than skin deep.

His boyhood had been spent away from cities. His father had died when he was six his mother when he was nine. He had divided his time after his mother's death, between one grandfather's somewhat depleted acres in Virginia and another grandfather's seemingly inexhaustible forests in Maine. There had been schooldays in Switzerland, with winter sports; summer holidays in rural England with cousins who had cows and bees and orchards; and when he had gone to college, it had been to his rich grandfather's alma mater in Maine, set around with hills and far from the haunts of men.

And then, finding at college that he wielded a facile pen, Michael had sought New York as the mecca for aspiring authors. But he had given up his own writing to edit a magazine. Then he had married, and in all those years Pan had piped among the rushes and Michael had shut his ears to the sound. Yet it had been, perhaps, the reason for his great success that he had opened the pages of his magazine not to those who wrote of degeneracy and despair, but to those who wrested romance from life—the romance of sea and of prairie, of mountain and of plain. All that he had hoped for, he bought for his magazine.

His wife had had no sympathy with his success. He was letting himself be, she had told him, unpardonably provincial. He had refused to argue with her. How could one argue a thing like that? Pan had never piped for Helen. That would have been his answer if he had cared to make it.

And now Pan was piping! The river swept by, and up from the sedges came a thin, fluting sound. There were those who might have said it was the wind among the rushes. But Michael knew better. It was Pan.

There were other sounds—the call and twitter of flocking birds, getting ready for the great enterprise of migration; the mewing note of gulls as they dipped towards the shining waters, or poised above on pointed wings; the far-away roar of a Navy plane, its course set for the Chesapeake.

Then, all at once, breaking in, the sound of voices. Michael, peering through the screen of pines, saw walking toward him across the fields, Virginia Oliphant and her brother.

The sun was setting and lighting the world like a conflagration. The fence rails and tree trunks were laced with the wine-red of Virginia creeper and the vermillion of poison ivy. The ground was carpeted with dried grass and fallen leaves, amber and jade and scarlet. The needles of the pines had a glittering quality as if they were coated with ice, and as the two young people came at last to the water's edge, sky and river shone with an almost unearthly radiance. And of this radiance Virginia Oliphant seemed the center and the source. To Michael, raising himself on his arm to look, she was like a splendid young goddess, her face uplifted to the sun.

She spoke to her brother, her words coming clear and vibrant through the chill air: 'Oh, Rickey, if you could get all this in your book!"

"All what?"

"This beauty, this burning beauty. Use your pen as you would a brush—so that the pages would be as gorgeous as some oil painting."

She had turned towards her brother, eager, ecstatic. "Our lives have been so drab—we've lacked flame and color. You could write all that we have dreamed all we have missed—"

He seemed to catch the idea, "Like the old Florentines? A modern story yet gorgeous as old brocade—or painted Spanish leather."

Virginia's hand was at her throat Michael could almost see the flutter of her heart. "Could we call it—Burning Beauty, Rickey? Could we?"

Michael checked a quick exclamation. He knew a good title when he heard one. The name began to swing back and forth in his mind.

Young Oliphant dropped down on a log, "It might do. But I'll have to think about it. Of course you know it won't be your book but mine, Jinny."

There was a smugness about his statement which made Michael furious. The young cub! As if the girl wasn't worth a dozen of him!

But the girl did not seem to resent it. 'I know it will be your book, darling," she said, soothingly, and sat down on the log beside him. Then in silence the two of them watched the radiance die. The girl's hand crept into her brother's, and the boy drew her to him so that her head rested on his shoulder. There seemed to be great affection between them, in spite of the boy's intense egotism. Perhaps Virginia understood him as no one else could understand. Her tenderness was like that of a mother, asking nothing, forgiving all.

When she spoke again it was of Rickey's future. "Daddy has always lived too much in the past. He wanted us to keep to the old ways. But we must find the best in the new. Sometimes I feel as if we were starting out on unknown seas, with our sails set for favoring winds. I believe they are going to blow you straight towards success."

The boy's voice had a note of impatience. "I shall be a success when I am free—"

The sun dropped below the horizon. The world was amethyst and gray. The air was clear with the illumination which comes before the dark. Virginia rose. "It's getting late, Rickey. We must go."

As they passed Michael's hiding place, he heard her say, 'How much money did Grogan give you?"

"A thousand in cash."

"Where is it?"

Rickey slapped his chest. 'In here."

'Oh—you oughtn't to be carrying so much money."

"It was too late to put it in the bank."

"When you get back to the house you'd better hide it in a safe place."

"You worry too much, Jinny."

They walked on, their voices growing fainter and fainter. The wind sighed in the rushes. The pipes of Pan played a plaintive tune. Darkness had fallen on the waters, and one burning star hung high in the purple heavens.

It was time to go, but Michael still lay there, looking out into the darkening night. Suddenly he was aware of a rustle near him which was not made by the wind or the wings of some late homing bird. A man was rising up from a flat boat which had been hidden among the rushes at the edge of the river, and presen ly the dark form went padding along the path the two young people had taken. It came to Michael that he was on their trail—that he knew Rickey had a thousand dollars in his pocket.

Michael jumped to his feet. As he, too took the path, he saw the golden arc of the moon spanning the horizon. It gave light to the little grove as he went through it, and when he came again into the open, it showed Virginia and her brother walking slowly across a stretch of pasture.

Even as he looked, they entered the second grove, and Michael's cry rang out as the man came up behind Rickey.

Turning at Michael's shout, Rickey grappled with his assailant. The two men struggled, and Michael arrived just in time to hear Rickey say, disgustedly, "It's Lute Carney."

'Well," the man's tone was insolent, 'what you goin' to do about it?"

Rickey gave an embarrassed laugh, 'Let you go, I suppose."

Michael interposed, "Surely not."

'He's drunk." Rickey said, "he wouldn't have hurt me."

"He knew you had money."

"I tell you he's drunk. Lute's not a thug."

Virginia had not spoken. She said, very low, to Michael, "Don't let him go. Don't."

Rickey's voice was sharp. "This is my affair, Jinny. I'll manage it."

"Oh!" The exclamation was one of smothered distress. She began to walk on and Michael followed her.

'What does your brother mean by it?" he demanded.

'Don't ask me—"

'If I help!—"

'You can't."

Michael stopped and looked back to where the two men stood. "Is it safe for us to leave them?"

'Rickey won't like it if we don't."

'He is making a great mistake."

She spoke suddenly and rapidly: "Mr. McMilland, do you remember the story of the spoons? How that old Richard Oliphant gambled and drank, and that in every generation there has been a drinking and a gambling Oliphant? It is picturesque and romantic in the past, but in the present it's hateful and horrid. That's why I am trying to get Rickey away from here.He plays cards with a lot of older men—Lute is one, and he has a dreadful influence."

He saw that she was at the end of her self-control. "Is there anything I can do? Let me be your friend."

She hesitated, then said very low, 'How can you be my friend? When you can't keep faith with me?"

He stopped and looked at her in surprise. 'What have I done?"

'Oh, why did you buy the candlesticks when I told you I wanted to keep them?"

'I bought them to save them. Don't you realize that when they were put up, they'd go to the highest bidder? And I knew you wouldn't want just anybody to have them. They are yours now, if you will take them."

She drew a quick breath of relief, "Oh—I am stupid. Do you know what I was calling you?"

"What?"

'Judas."

They laughed together, the eager laughter of two people who have found each other out of a world of men and women. Their laughter was stilled, however, as Rickey joined them. "Lute was eating from my hand before I left him," he said with a touch of boastfulness. "He was drunk as a lord."

"Rather a dangerous sort of friend, I should say," Michael remarked.

Rickey blazed, 'He's not my friend—he's not a gentleman!"

"I see," drily.

'No, you don't see," Rickey's tone was insolent, 'but I don't know that it is any of your affair."

"Rickey," his sister protested.

"Oh, well," the boy plunged on ahead of them, walking alone.

Commander-In-Chief

A new portrait of General Sir Philip Chetwode, G.C.B., D.S.O., the new Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Army. The General received a rousing welcome on his arrival at Bombay recently to take up his new duties. He was former Chief-of-Staff of the Army Headquarters in India.

What To-day Means To You

"CAPRICORN."

If January 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., from noon to 2 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 9.30 p.m. The unfavorable hours are from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 4 p.m. to 6:15 p.m.

January 7 holds out many bright prospects. The planetary aspects favor the business, as well as the social, side of life. Changes will be made apparent that will bring success, and old friendships, almost forgotten, will be renewed to the advantage of all concerned.

Children born on this January 7th will always be a source of anxiety. Not only will health conditions be a disturbing influence, but, as the years roll by, weakness of character will create forebodings. These children must be surrounded with a harmonious environment.

If you were born on a January 7th, you are a plodder, and the signs denote that you will get there." Your ambition is graded. Once you have reached what you thought was the acme of all your desires, you see other heights ahead, and then set out to conquer them. You are contented, but never satisfied. Slowly, but steadily, climbing all through life, until dismayed by danger, encouraged by past performances, you are bound, in your own sure, slow way, to achieve success.

You are self-contained, never explosive. You trudge, whilst others may run. You remain calm, whilst others lose their heads. You concentrate, when others diversify. You work, when others play. There is nothing spectacular about you. A strong personality does not exude from you. As a social companion, you are not brilliant nor all the time entertaining. You are solid, and, in every sense of the word, dependable and sincere. In your considered judgment, there is only one way of doing a thing—the right way. No makeshifts appeal to, or are used by you.

Your disposition is a tolerant, although not a cheerful one. You are too silent to be congenial and too 'matter-of-fact" to be romantic. The few friends you have are loyal and true. In home life, you will command the respect of one and all. You may not inspire a violent passion but you will, however, create and atmosphere of solid affection that will endure forever.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Gawlf Company Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The market, while firm, was rather featureless yesterday, and only a small volume was passing. At the start there was fair buying with exporters taking fair amounts, and overnight sales were estimated at 300 000 bushels. This demand became satisfied during the first ten minutes and the opening bulge of ⅛ cent was lost, but was quickly recovered and the bulk of the day's business was done at this level. However, there was a quiet absorption going on for export and foreign account, and with the offerings extremely light, the market made further gains during the last hour finally going through the daily offers, and 1⅜ above the previous close. There was a little short covering in the final upturn. Export sales overnight and again yesterday morning was placed at 600,000 bushels. There was a little better tone to the demand for cash wheat with spreads on straight grades unchanged to ¼ better, and most of tough grades ½ better. Offerings were light and only a small volume was changing hands. Flour trade continues featureless, so far as new business is concerned. Liverpool started off firm, but closed 1 penny lower, about as due. There was little or no change in the general news. Argentine markets were closed and Broomhall reported a slow milling demand for foreign wheats with supplies in England and on the continent ample to take care of all immediate requirements. Winnipeg futures closed 1¼ to 1 cent higher.

TORONTO LIST IS IRREGULAR

Walkers Only Issue to Hold Steady in Later Trading, Following Early Upturns.

GENERAL LIST FIRM.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7. (CP)—Individual stocks thrust upward in the first two hours of trading on Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, Ford of Canada, Supertest and Walkers featuring the rise. Ford sold up to 24½ for a gain of nearly a point, Supertest shot up to 33, up more than a point, and Walkers strengthened to 7½.

Profit-taking reduced these gains in all but Walkers late in the second hour. Ford came down to 24, Supertest reacted go 31¾, its previous close, but the Support which had caused the liquor issue to move so strongly, showed no signs of weakening and the stock held practically at its best.

The list as a whole was firmer, though no wide gains were registered. Brazilian gained about ½ point, Nickel firmed to 16 1-8, oils as a whole, held at their previous level. Noranda made a sudden move after the first hour, risin one point to 16. Bell Telephone, C.P.R. Service Stations, the steels and foods were about the same as last night.

DUNLOP REPORTS

figures represent an increase over last year.

The total increase in expenditure over 1929 is listed at $6,579,000.

Monies expended for debt retirement amounted to $3,859,000. Of this total the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission paid $1,607,000 through its sinking funds and the Province paid the balance.

While liquor profits are up to normal most other sources of revenue showed a decrease. Particularly was this the case in connection with the gasoline tax revenue, which showed an increase of $2,259,000, but fell short of the amount expected as the five cent tax had been in effect a full year as compared with seven months during 1929.

Motor Receipts Down

A reduction of $2,300,000 in motor vehicles licenses is noted in the report, which points out this is attributable to the decrease in license fees put into effect at the beginning of the year.

In the Department of Lands and Forests bonus and timber dues fell short of the previous mark by $1,139,000 on ordinary account, due to slack conditions in the lumbering industry. Stock transfer tax, land transfer tax, company registration and the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway returned the Government less than last year.

A cheering note is struck in the report affecting the Mines Department, where revenue from sand and gravel royalties increased by $143,000 and tax on mine profits by $105,000. Miners' licenses and recording fees, however, showed a decline of $75,000.

The cessation of the Dominion Government grant for technical education accounted for a decrease of $159,000 in the revenues of the Department of Education, the report states.

England's proposed law closing butcher shops on Sunday exempts retail dealers in meat for Jews or for ships.

Situation Improves In Kirkland Lake

NORTH BAY, Ont., January 7 (C.P.). — The situation in Kirkland Lake is greatly improved and the epidemic of septic sore throat is definitely checked This statement was made to-day by Dr. W. E. George, district medical officer of health. There are now only about 75 cases out of a total of over 400, and there have been no deaths. The source of the disease was undoubtedly the milk, he points out, and once that was checked up there was no more trouble. One dairy in the camp has already put in a pasteurizing plant, and two others are following suit immediately. In the meantime milk has been pasteurized in North Bay and shipped back to the camp, the process being under the supervision of the Department of Health officials.

FAMOUS THEATRE OPENS IN LONDON

Historic Sadlers' Wells Presents 'Twelfth Night' as Re-opening Feature.

PRINCE WELL PLEASED.

LONDON, Jan. 7 (By Thos. T. Champion, C.P. Staff Correspondent).—"A wonderful achievement considering the present shortage of money," read a message from the Prince of Wales, received at the opening of the remodelled Sadlers' Wells Theatre last night.

The opening was an important affair in the theatrical world, for the rebuilding of Sadlers' Wells, with a history of nearly 300 years, has taken five years and has cost $500,000.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson made a speech and Dame Madge Kendal beamed approvingly on speakers and audience alike. The outstanding figure of the evening, however, was Miss Lilian Bayliss, who at Sadlers' Wells and the "Old Vic" has achieved the permanent establishment of Shakespeare and Grand Opera without any of the taxpayers' money.

Appropriately enough the opening production was "Twelfth Night."

According to provincial health authorities the disease may prove to be diphtheria. A third child, it was stated, had died from the sickness at Mile 327.

MINING BRIEFS.

TOWONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (Special to Examiner.)—Lindsleys and a few of the miscellaneous stocks held the floor on the mining market to-day briskdemand resulting in several interesting price advances. The rapid rise in Eldorado is believed to be due to the successful outcome of tests made at Ottawa on radium ore, from the companys property in the northwest territories but nothing official has come out as yet.

Mining corporation was another strong spot in anticipation of an early announcement regarding assay results of drill cores from the Ashley-Garvey property in Matachewan. According to local gossip the two drill holes, at a depth of about 85 feet, are understood to have encountered gold ore of commercial grade over mineable widths. Further drilling will proba bly be done to cut the vein below the first holes.

Pete McDonough, well known prospector, is in town discussing future plans for opening up of the eleven claims held by the Sourdough Syndicate immediately south of the Ashley-Garvey find. Prominent local interests, including ventures, are connected with this organization.

Ajax oils No. 2 well in the Oklahoma City field known as Ekroat No. 1, was to have been shot last night. This has been postponed until to-day, it is understood, and word is momentarily expected. This well penetrated the Wilcox sand for a distance of 235 feet, a thickness believed to be the greatest yet encountered in the field. Ajax No. 1 known as Lindsay No. 3 was recently put on production under the pro-ration schedule and in 23 hours and 46 minutes produced 64,462 barrels of oil, the company has completed twelve wells in the Brantford Indian Reserve, having an open flow estimated at well over 1,250,000 cubic feet. It is expected the company's thirteenth well in the district will be started to-day.

Acme Gas and Oil Company's well in Oklahoma field was given a second test Wednesday, and in a three hour period produced 11,000 barrels of crude, while 600 barrels of gasoline were recovered from the gas flow. The test has to be suspended as storage tanks were filled. When tanks are emptied it is expected a four hour test will be made to-day. The referee has to make a test of all new wells in the Oklahoma field in order that the rate of pro-ration may be established under prevailing regulations. At present these call for 2 percent of open flow for a period of 24 hours. Production from the three hour test yesterday is estimated to have a market value of approximately $14,000.

A BEDTIME STORY

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY JUMP.

Uncle Wiggily was walking up and down, to and fro, in his hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Dear me, Wiggy! Can't you keep still until I finish reading the paper?" asked his wife. For she always read the morning paper after her husband had finished with it at the breakfast table. "Why are you tramping up and down so much—so restless like?" asked Mrs. Longears.

"I guess I need to go out in the ice and snow, run and jump around and twinkle my pink nose and look for an adventure", answered the bunny gentleman. "I am tired of staying in the bungalow!"

"But after the Bad Chaps so nearly caught you yesterday, when you were coming home from the jolly dog tinker's with the mended frying pans," spoke the rabbit lady, "you said you were not going out again and look for an adventure in a long time."

"Well, it's a long time since yesterday," her husband replied. "And I really must go out." He took from the rack his tall, silk hat, that Baby Bunty had once made white with paste.

"Well, if you go out do be careful!" begged his wife. "Those Bad Chaps will get you some day and I'll never see you again. Oh, Wiggy, do be careful.'

"I will," promised the rabbit gentleman. "As soon as I have a good adventure, I'll come hopping home to you. Yes, I'll come hopping home! I'll come hopping home. When I have one adventure, then I'll come—hopping home!" And Uncle Wiggily sang the last words long drawn out and musical like.

"Let us hope so," said his wife as she turned the paper to see what well-dressed rabbit ladies were going to wear this winter.

Uncle Wiggily hopped over the snow, he slid upon the ice, he ran around the fields and jumped through the wintry woods.

"Oh, this is jolly weather, I'll glad I'm all together and not in pieces nibbled by those three Bad Chaps so bold. I'm happy and I'm snappy, I'm never cross or scrappy. Among my joys are girls and boys this winter day so cold!"

As Uncle Wiggily sang this he began to skip and hop to keep warm, for it was really very frosty. Behind a bush, not far from where Mr. Longears was feeling so happy the three Bad Chaps sulked in hunger. There was the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat.

"Who is that singing! Is it you?" snarled the Fox, looking at the Wolf.

"Not I! Why should I sing?" snapped the Wolf.

"Was that you singing, Bobbie?" asked the Fox of the Bob Cat.

"No, indeed! I'm too hungry to sing! Why! Why!" cried the Bad Chap, with the silly litle tail as he looked through the bushes. "It's Uncle Wiggily!"

"Don't tell me that rabbit is out there!" exclaimed the Wolf.

"Truly he is!" cried the Fox, taking a look. "Oh, luck is with us once more. Come on! Let's chase him. He's jumping around so fast he will never see us until we are almost up to him. With three of us chasing him one of us ought to catch him!"

"Come on!" mewed the Bob Cat.

The three Bad Chaps rushed out of the bushes at Uncle Wiggily. As soon as the rabbit gentleman saw them he stopped jumping and singing and began to run. Oh, how fast he ran and jumped.

"He'll get away from us!" howled the Wolf.

"No, he will not!" said the Fox. "See, he is running down hill. At the bottom of the hill is a steep place. He won't dare jump to the bottom. He will have to stop on the edge of the jumping off place and we can catch up to him easily. Come in!"

On ran the Bad Chaps after the rabbit. Uncle Wiggily felt so spry that he thought he could easily beat them in this race.

"It will be a jolly adventure to tell my wife," he murmured. But alas! Down the hill, ahead of him, Uncle Wiggily saw the steep place. "It's too steep for me to slide down," he said to himself. "And it is too far to the bottom for me to jump. But how else can I get away from the Bad Chaps? Ah, I know! I'll do a funny jump!"

Mr. Longears stood close to the edge of the high place at the bottom of the hill. Down came rushing the hungry Bad Chaps.

"We've got him now!" howled the Wolf. "He doesn't dare jump!"

"Don't I? Just watch me!" cried Uncle Wiggily. Then he gave a funny backward jump, high up in the air, over the heads of the Bad Chaps landing safely on the hill behind them. Then Uncle Wiggily began to run up the hill to get away. And the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat were so surprised by the bunny's funny backward jump that they slid over the edge of the high place and bumped their noses very hard.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Mr. Longears as he ran home. "It's a good thing I know how to jump both ways."

GENERAL ADVANCE CONTINUES IN THE WALL STREET TRADING

Financial Markets Higher With Continued Improvement in Bond Section.

LATE PROFIT-TAKING.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7. (CP)—News of the expected January stirrings in the steel industry helped the share market further along the road of recovery to-day.

The financial markets generally were higher, with continued improvement in bonds. Stocks were bought in fair volume early in the day, but the market turned full as profit-taking dropped out here and there after midday. Advances were largely moderate. Rails made the most conspicuous headway. Atlantic Coast Line, an erratic issue of late, shot up nearly 10 points. Rock Island preferred gained 6, and Frisco 5. Such issues as New York Central, Atchison, Rock Island common, Lehigh and Illinois Central gained 2 to 4. Utilities and numerous industrials gained a point or two, including U.S. Steel American Telephone, Byers, National Steel, Woolworth, Underwood Elliott, Standard of N.J., and Lehman Corp. Chemicals, however, were under pressure, Matheson and Allied losing 2 to 3. Electric, and Case declined about 2 points.

KINGSTON PARTY BELIEVED LOST

Pieces of Boat Found on Main Duck Island Identified By Friend of Lost Men.

THREE SEARCHERS MISSING.

KINGSTON, Ont., January 7 (C. P.). — Further indication that the boat in which Cecil Phillips, and Captain William Sheridan of Kingston, and Anthony Kane of Oswego, was a prey to the waters of Lake Ontario in the vicinity of the Main Duck Islands, was given to-day when it was learned that Glen McConnell, a 14-year-old boy, visiting on Amherst Island, found at Point Pleasant, a point on the island, portions of a boat. One of the pieces was brought to the police station here, and Bruce Lowrey, who had made the previous trip to the Main Duck Island with Phillips, stated that it was certainly a piece of wood from Phillips' boat.

There were many pieces found, some with attachments which are used in a boat such as Phillips used. Two cushions have also been found, and they have also been identified by Lowrey as being from Phillips' boat. The conviction is fast growing locally that all three men have gone to a watery grave.

As to the boat in which the would-be rescuers, Stanley Fairbanks, Russell Wemp and Walter Rikley set out on Sunday, nothing whatever has been heard, and while search has been made no trace has been found of them. It is believed in Bath that the three men have put in somewhere to shelter, and that they have run out of gasoline, having only a fifteen hour supply when they left bath.

At that time they had only a day's supply of provisions with them. Word is being anxiously awaited at Bath for return of the tug Salvage Prince which was put out from here early this morning, and which is making a thorough search of the waters about the Main Ducks, False Ducks and Amherst Island.

Plane "Tradewind" Lands At Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 7. — (C.P.)—The monoplane Tradewind landed in the harbor here at 2 p.m.

The monoplane carried Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William MacLaren, United States aviators, on the second leg of their flight to Europe. They had taken off at Hampton Roads earlier to-day.

Strong winds blew across the harbor and the sky was overcast on their arrival.

The pair landed at 2 p.m. (1 p.m., E.S.T.) after a flight of almost seven hours.

The distance was about 600 miles and the aviators had hoped to average 100 miles an hour. The strong winds, however, cut down their estimated speed.

Former Naval Officer Wanted In Sarnia

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 7 (C.P.)—Douglas G. Jeffrey, said to be a former Commander in the Royal Navy and a member of the late Sir Ernest Shackleton's expedition to the Antarctic, was to be brought here from Toronto to-day to answer a charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. He was arrested in Toronto yesterday on a warrant issued here, alleging that he secured lodging for himself and a woman at a local hotel and cash on a cheque for twenty pounds issued on a bank in London, England, which was not honored by the bank on which it was drawn.

Idle Fairy Castle Of California

The result of a whim. An eccentric resident of Alhambra, Calif., had this miniature castle built as a whim for his home. He used it, only for a short time, when he became tired of it and it has since been idle and has been the ideal fair castle for the kiddies of the neighborhood who use it as a playground. It is typical of the fairy castle of Grimm's fairy tales.

District Churches

NORHAM UNITED CHURCH

NORHAM, Jan. 6 (Examiner Correspondence)—A New Year's service was held in Norham Church on Sunday morning, when the choir sang the anthem, "Thine for Service."

Rev. D. R. Clare preached from the text, "Then Samuel took a stone and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying, 'Hitherto has the Lord helped us.'"

As an introduction, the reverend speaker told the story from which the text was taken and emphasized the fact that while the people fought, Samuel prayed. He spoke of the significance to the Jews as they compared this to Moses who prayed in a similar way for his people.

"Then Samuel erected a monument. We are all familiar with monuments since we find them erected in all localities. We are erecting monuments in our lives. What we should all strive to raise is the monument of goodness. Paul called it charity; Jesus called it discipleship; John Wesley called it perfect love and General Booth called it "Helping Others," but what ever it is called, we can all erect the monument of goodness by living up to the standard set by Jesus."

At the close of the service, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to a large congregation.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 7. (Examiner Correspondence) The service at Saint Andrew's United Church on Sunday morning was most impressive in character, with the spiritual atmosphere particularly predominates, as two recently-elected members of the church session, J. H. Might and John R. George, received ordination as elders, the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.A., B.D., conducting the service, the congregation and the other ten elders all having a part in the solemn ritual.

The anthem, "Come Unto Me" sung by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. H. W. Johnston, with solo by Mr. Johnston, was peculiarly appropriate, and the hymns also were in keeping with the spirit of consecration that was strongly in evidence throughout the service.

The reception of a new member to the church roll, Miss Mabel Meadows formerly of Port Hope, through a letter from her pastor, expressing her standing in full connection and high esteem in the United Church of the nearby town, added to the impressiveness of the morning's worship.

A large number of communicants partook of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, which followed the reception, and ordination, the new elders being among those who assisted the pastor with this part of the service. The list of elders making up the session of Saint Andrew's church now includes Brothers J. Whitfield, H. W. Johnston, G. E. Burnham, P. Stinson, W. E. Ball, J. H. Might, H. A. Earle, W. Fred Pallis, J. Albert Brown, T. H. Aiken, J. H. George, and Dr. A. Jemison, who is the session's clerk.

CAVAN

On Sunday evening in Cavan Church the service was appropriate for the New Year.

The pastor, the Rev. J. E. Whitham, gave a splendid sermon emphasizing the fact, that if we wish to hasten the return of prosperity, and have the ensuing year brighter and better for everyone, we, as a people, must put first things first. If we help to establish the Kingdom of God and His teachings in our midst, all other things will follow.

The communion of the Lord's Supper was observed and three new members were received into the church.

TRENT RIVER

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 7 (Examiner Correspondence)—Rev. W. R. Archer, pastor of the United Church preached the first sermon in the New Year, Sunday afternoon to a large congregation, taking his text from Psalm 116:12, "What shall we render unto the Lord for all his benefits." Mr. Archer compared the similarity of the last night of the old year to the last night of our life. "If people know the need of others they are bound to help. After all what we give doesn't represent giving or enterprise. We ought to thank God for currency, if we cannot go to serve as missionaries we can give, if we get filled with the study of God in our home and ask Him to pour out His love to us—In 1914 to 1918 think what it cost? To those who gave money considered it little to give when they could not go to serve for their country—counted it a privilege— not a task. We say "We've been giving regular to the church — that is the Lord's money."

In conclusion the pastor urged the congregation to help in the cause of missions and in years to come they would thank him for doing so as there was a large door of opportunity which we could meet through our currency.

Envelopes were passed throughout the congregation for the donations from the members of an extra Christmas gift for those who need the life-giving power of His gospel, sent by the Missionary and Maintenance Committee.

Gift Shower Held

The "in as much" gift shower was held Friday night at the United Church. The Rev. Mr. Archer was chairman for the evening. A short program was given including readings given by Mrs. Knowlton Waters and Milton Hawley, and vocal duet by Mesrs. W. W. Redden and John Ruttan. Mrs. Waters gave the scripture reading. The gifts were distributed throughout the needy in the community.

FENELLA

"I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last," Rev. 22:13. "These words have a peculiar significance for us at this particular season," said the Rev. R. W. Paton in his Sunday evening sermon in the Fenella United Church.

Mr. Paton had a special New Year message for his congregation. "We have passed another milestone," said Mr. Paton, "let us therefore look back for a little while on the year that has gone, that mixture of joy and sorrow, hope and disappointment, failure and success which we call life. We have closed another volume in our life story, what has been written is written and cannot be changed!

"No matter what the experiences have been God has been leading us and has brought us safely to this moment. Each experience had its lesson for us and was the fulfilment of His Divine purpose.

"Now let us look forward for a little while, we stand upon the threshold of a New Year and an untrodden path. Let us begin the New Year by making Jesus the Alpha and the Omega, of our business life, our home life, our church life. Christianity must be loyally practiced in every deed and every day. As you realize the sins, mistakes and failures of the past year do not be content to continue along that same path. Do not continue to cling to that idol that has come between you and Jesus Christ. Cast aside every sin and weight that so easily beset you.

"The church is composed of men and women and what it means to the cause of God depends upon how Christ is manifested by those who compare it. It is possible for the church to fail to represent Christ and His cause. The Holy Spirit can only come down where brethern are dwelling together in Christian unity. Make your church effective by making Jesus the Alpha and Omega of your church life."

Mr. Paton's wish for his congregation was "that God may be with you to the first milestone and the last one."

An appropriate solo, "Our Father Through the Coming Year," was well rendered by Miss Donna Talling, at the close of the sermon.

Letter Of Thanks Read At Meeting

NORWOOD, Jan. 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—At the January meeting of the Norwood Women's Institute a number of communications were read thanking the Institute for donations of money which were sent to the Northern Relief Fund and for Christmas Cheer which was sent to several local people.

A communication was also read from Roseneath Dramatic Club regarding the play, "Marrying Anne" and it was decided to put the play on in the town hall on January 12, under the auspices of the Institute.

It was decided to make an outfit of winter clothing for a small girl, the directors to be a committee in charge.

An exchange of Christmas gifts was made before the serving of refreshments by the hostesses, Mesdames Rogers, Townends, and McMillen.

PREMIER SCULLIN ARRIVES HOME

Finds Australia Not Alone in Her Troubles—All Parts of Empire Worried.

EARNEST EFFORTS NEEDED.

FREMANTLE, West Australia, Jan. 7 (C.P. Cable, via Reuter's).—Prime Minister James Henry Scullin reached Australia yesterday after his visit to England and Europe, during which he attended the Imperial Conference.

The conference brought the representatives of the British Commonwealth closer together, Premier Scullin remarked. Australia's efforts to solve her problems were being watched with keen interest by her partners in the Empire, he said.

Premier Scullin also his visits to other countries had impressed him with several facts, namely, that Australia was not alone in her troubles, and that Governments could only play a part in reviving trade. The earnest efforts of all sections of the community were also required, he stressed. He had found how important it was, visiting Britain at the present time, to talk with commervial and industrial leaders as well as with political leaders.

THINGS WORTHY OF NOTE

Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Mr. Bennett has with characteristic courage and ability reached without delay the fundamental in our present western grain difficulty though it involves the complete collapse of all the fancy Conservative theories spread before the public last summer.

He has found that "Canada First" and the rest of the world nowhere will not work; that is if Canada is at the same time to be largely dependent upon the rest of the world for her export trade. With one stroke he has cut down to the root of the matter. If Canada is to be sufficient unto herself she must establish not only one home market but a multitude of home or local markets.

So long as Britain was the world's workshop the world market was quite a simple affair. Britain did the industrial work and the rest of the world paid for it in food and material resources. But the time came when the U.S. entered the arena and Britain had consumed her natural resources in iron and had to go to Sweden. Then the transportation of the modern world began. Gradually every country became industrial as well as agricultural and trade diminished until at present it has become quite limited.

Knowing this fact and realizing what it means, Mr. Bennett has thrown over his fine promises and impossible policies and has faced the truth before it is too late. That the west was to live on the bounty of Canada was, of course, merely a hold-up. "Let each locality in the West," he says, "be its own manufacturer and food raiser. That is the true plan." Whether it is or not it is the only remedy for unemployment. After all trade is only the handing of the work of one man to the work of another for payment of each product. Just as the whole of literature is the manipulation of the alphabet, so is the whole of trade the manipulation of that one simple act. Mr. Bennett is a great financier and he has not hesitated to face the basic fact. This policy will make a very tame cat out of Canada after all the big ideas we have indulged in but it is the true one. Some day a genius will arise who will startle the world and start his country on the road to glory and prosperity as before but not so long as people who barely know their right hand from their left have power to decide the matter at the polls.

While he was away Mr. Bennett was very badly served of his "help." They have got him into a nasty mess. Quebec is a province in which all denominations of religion are fed out of the public or government treasury. It is the old plan. We have the remains of it in Ontario where churches and other institutions have their taxes paid by the public. It is a plan that works perfectly where it can be worked at all. But it does not apply to the whole of Canada. Hence when this government voted its twenty million dollar relief fund it should have said that those parts of it given to provinces were not to go to religious organizations or works but it did not say so. When Quebec went to hand out to Protestants, Catholics, Jews, etc., the fund, the Bennett government said, "No." That "no" should have been said before. Now it leaves Mr. Bennett in a very nasty position. Quebec newspapers are already calling loudly for Meighen. They demand that Bennett take him in. He will do what Quebec wants, they say. Certainly he showed what he would do to get into power, before.

It has now been discovered that what has long been thought is true—that alcohol is the medium by which solar energy is absorbed by humans. When human cells lose this alcohol they become decayed or tubercular. Hence consumption. It has also been pretty well decided (see Dr. Goldberg, of Montreal) that giving people old or young serums to prevent disease before they actually are attacked is a gross blunder and the cause of the loss of much of the vitality of children who indeed are often given the disease by the injections.

J. H. Burnham.

NO UNFAIR METHODS

Editor Examiner.

Dear sir:

Your editorial of January 5th re change in buying milk for human consumption, beg to correct your impression as to the danger of unfair methods practised on the producer. For years all milk purchased for cheese making and condensing has been purchased on the butterfat basis.

The Ontario Milk Producers at their annual meetings for the past two years passed a resolution asking the Government to enact legislation so that all milk sold for human consumption be paid for on a butterfat basis. This Act is now in force and to make it legal for the government inspector to enter a manufacturing plant to check up the man who does the testing for butterfat a certificate is granted to some man in each plant whom the government is satisfied is capable of operating the Babcock Test. This has been the same practice that has been followed in the cheese and butter factories. A cheesemaker or buttermaker must have a certificate from the Department to make cheese or butter and the new law now appoints a man under a certificate and if he does not do the work honestly his certificate is cancelled and he is out of that job for life. In short the same system is in force in milk distributing plants that has been in force in the cheese and butter factories for years.

G. A. GILLESPIE.

SHADOW SOCIAL MUCH ENJOYED

Social Evening Held By Young People's League at Bailieboro

ENTERTAINING PROGRAM

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A most interesting and enjoyable evening was spent at the Young People's League on Friday evening held in Bateson's Hall when it took the form of a program and shadow social. The hall was almost filled and an instructive and amusing program was staged by the young people.

The president, Fred Barnard, led the devotional while the vice-presidents each gave a brief outline of the work they planned to carry out in their respective departments throughout the balance of the winter months. Mrs. N. Thompson of the missionary department spoke on the mission work, Miss Clara Seense on the citizenship work and Miss Marie Barnard on the social and literary work of the League.

Eight of the members drew slips and spoke for a few minutes upon the subject alloted to them. The impromptu speeches made plenty of fun while instruction could be taken from all.

A sheet was placed along the front of the hall and with Fred Barnard as auctioneer and Stanley Johnson as clerk the shadows of about twenty-five of the girls of the league were auctioned off to the highest bidders. The bidders were active and run the shadows up as high as seventy-five cents.

The meeting had been called to get sufficient funds to make up the missionary allocation and the boys responded generously to the call.

WATER SHORTAGE BECOMING SERIOUS

Farmers In Bailieboro District Water From Distance For Stock

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The water shortage in the district has become a very serious problem. While many farmers daily draw large loads of water for many miles to keep their stock watered, others drive their herds many miles to creeks, ponds and lakes to get a drink.

This not only keeps the stock in a poor condition but it makes hard labor for the farmer who has to spend the greater portion of the day watering his stock.

The major portion of the wells and cisterns throughout the vicinity are dry and the farmers claim the springs are going back into the earth. The ground has become so dry it is absorbing the surface water from the springs.

The majority of the farmers claim they have never before witnessed such a shortage of water.

SCHOOL MEETING LARGELY ATTENDED

Leslie Lang Replaces Elmer Rowan on Lifford Line Trustee Board

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 7 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual meeting of the ratepayers of Lifford School was held on Wednesday morning at the school house with a much larger attendance than in any previous recent year.

Archie Wilson was secretary and Charles Staples chairman for the meeting. In the election of trustees, Elmer Rowan whose term was expired was replaced by Leslie Lang.

The trustees are: James Strachan, Walter Neals and Leslie Lang with Archie Wilson secretary-treasurer for the coming year.

MILLBROOK

A pleasant party, during Christmas week, was enjoyed by the girls of Mrs. Offa Williamson's Sunday School class, who were entertained at tea at their teacher's home, Seventh Line, Cavan, when a most enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. Williamson provided conveyance for the girls to and from his with its Christmas decorations, games and music entertaining the group happily, the gathering about the attractively-laid tea tables giving opportunity for emphasis upon the social element.

The guests included: Bryar Edmunds, Mary Burnham, Bonna Clarke, Janet Dawson, Ethel Rowland, Louise Widdis, Helen Mitchell, Vera Fallis, Martha Earle, Eleanor Ferren, Charlotte McMahon, Margaret Smith, Bessie and Lois Dawson.

Mrs. Harry Dawson assisted the hostess with the entertainment and the service, at the tea hour, of her young guests, and a hearty vote of thanks was extended Mr. and Mrs. Williamson for their delightful hospitality before the home-going of the happy group.

NORWOOD, Jan. 7.—(Examiner Correspondence). — At the regular meeting of the Women's Institute held on Friday in the Institute rooms, it was decided that the members would meet to do sewing for some needy families.

The president was in the chair and after the opening exercises, the business was transacted. The members are putting on a play on Jan. 12 in the Town Hall, entitled, "Marrying Ann."

The meeting was brought to a close with the exchanging of gifts, and a social half hour was spent.

OMEMEE, Jan. 7. — (Examiner Correspondence.)—The rooms of the studio were filled on New Year's night with an audience gathered to hear a pleasant recital given by the piano pupils of Miss Mary E. Thorn, of the staff of Peterborough Conservatory of Music.

The comments made at the conclusion of the recital expressed much pleasure at the work of the pupils, especial mention being made of their technical ability and their powers of interpretation and expression. The following is the program:

BREAKS QUARANTINE.

Authorities May Prosecute Mrs. Cross, of Tweed, For Defying Orders.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 7. (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Robert Cross of Tweed was visiting her sister, Mrs Fred Pollock of Town, when diphtheria broke out in the Pollock family. She wanted to go to her home in Tweed, but was warned by Dr. Holdcroft, the local M.O.H., not to leave the premises. Defying him she broke quarantine, after the Pollock family had retired, and went to her home in Tweed.

Dr. Holdcroft at once notified the Provincial authorities, who located her and her two children in Tweed and immediately placed her under quarantine.

The Provincial Health authorities purpose prosecution to demonstrate to others quarantine is not a joke, as considered by some, but a law to protect other people.

GRATEFUL LETTERS ARE BEING RECEIVED

Christmas Cheer Brought Relief To Many Families Who Were In Want

The Examiner continues to receive grateful letters from several of those that different organizations have been able to help during the past few weeks. One is as follows:

"I feel I must and thank you for the basket we received before and at Christmas. I cannot tell you in words how delighted we were with the groceries and toys, also bread and milk tickets which helped us all in having a right good Christmas. And the children were so pleased with their toys which we are unable to provide for them, owing to being out of work. We must again thank you for your kindness to us."

Another asks for work, if possible:

"We thought we would drop you a line to thank the parties who were kind enough to send the nice order of groceries which we received on New Year's Eve, which was indeed a great help, as we did not know what to do.

"I am a young man, age twenty-three, and would consider it a great favor if The Examiner could in any way help me to get a job, truck driving, or a job of any kind would be more than appreciated."

A contributor who sends us in a donation of five dollars for the Relief Fund strikes an optimistic note when he says in his letter: "I think a good motto for this time would be, 'Bono animo ex; tempora mutate sunt' (Be of good cheer; the times are changing)."

THE DARE OF 1931

Father Time has reaped a year;
"Nineteen-Thirty's" garnered in.
Little "Thirty-one" is here.
Daring you to go and win.

Years gone by are gone to stay.
Errors, too have gone with them.
Backward glances lead astray—
Part of Satan's stratagem.

Life's ahead! The sky is clear;
Blue to where it meets the sea.
Launch your craft, up sail and steer
Straight out where the tide runs free.

Use your head! It's yours to use.
You're the cook and you're the mate.
Not a chance you'll have to snooze.

Yes, and you're the look-out, too!
Fogs will come and blear the sky.
Look ahead and you'll come through
With a brighter, keener eye.

Storms will clutch and rip your sails,
Snap your spars and shake your ship.
You'll become as hard as nails.
Boy, oh, boy, you'll like the trip.

Hang on, lad, each gale you ride
Teaches you another trick.
For your training, storms were made.
Emulate the plaster—Stick!

Voyages each year will bring
Greater prizes than before.
Staying with the ship's the thing.
Why then loaf and rot ashore?

Captain of yourself are you!
Will you shirk the dare and run?
No! You'll be the skipper who Took the dare of "Thirty-one."

Victoria, B.C.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a 16 oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make 16 ounces. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

If you are a homemaker who is an expert housekeeper, you will consider the house as a whole when doing your work.

• • • • • • •

It is so easy to become absorbed in the occupation that is at hand, that other parts of the dwelling than just where she is, do not get their full share of attention.

• • • • • • •

It is true that the kitchen takes the largest share of a housewife's time. This is because so many of the departments of housekeeping come under kitchen work.

• • • • • • •

The preparation of each meal and the clearing away and washing dishes afterwards, all culinary tasks, laundry work in the average home, the care given cleaning equipment—these are but a part of the duties that are done in the kitchen.

• • • • • • •

It is a deliberate decision not to stay in the kitchen, that prevents the housewife from remaining in it longer than she should, if due care is to be given the rest of the home.

• • • • • • •

There are few times when she cannot see something more than she could do right in that room, at the time when she must turn her back on it and go elsewhere.

• • • • • • •

The apportioning of time by schedule to each part of a house so that all get due attention is so difficult that it is not worth while.

• • • • • • •

The arrangement must be flexible as each day brings its own requirements. There are days when the sewing room demands most of one's attention.

• • • • • • •

On some other day in a house that is well run, the rooms other than the sewing room come in for their part of the attention.

• • • • • • •

And so each day must have its time graduated to suit special emergencies. There can be no hard and fast rule.

• • • • • • •

The imperative matter is for the homemaker to consider the house as a whole and divide her attention so that the place reflects an equitable balance of attention.

• • • • • • •

It is in the nicety with which work is balanced to the good of each part that determines whether a woman is an expert housewife or not.

The X District School

At the crossroads where the Tenth Line dipped to meet the Lower Road stood a little schoolhouse of the X.. district, a wooden structure which had been painted white when built some thirty years ago, but was now peeled to a shabby grey.

The desks were built of the same lumber by the carpenter who laid the flooring, and were now deeply and completely covered with various initials and designs. A box stove, which devoured many cords of three foot maple during the winter, stood in the centre aisle quite near the door, and a long line of stove pipe ran up the room above the teacher's table into the chimney over the cupboard where the crayons and the stock of slate pencils and the oak ruler, with which punishments were meted out, were kept. Two blackboards on legs leaned against the wall at either side of the teacher's table, and around the walls hung the maps which had been placed there when the school was built. Three windows on either side supplied sufficient lighting, and to the north was a charming view of hills and pine forest.

The yard, sloping down to the Lower Road, was the width of a concession line. The wavering walk came up from the picket gate, through the four old cat ground, between the two discouraged flower beds, to the foot of the porch stairs with their shiny broad wooden rail. Few, indeed, were the children who ever walked down those stairs.

The teachers were young girls of seventeen or eighteen, sometimes the daughters of X—— farmers. It was usually their first school, and they seldom stayed beyond the year, leaving to obtain a higher salary than the X—— district trustees felt justified in paying. But they were very much in earnest, those young teachers, and gave of their best.

There were rarely more than a dozen pupils in attendance from April to November. No boys were to be found in the classes above Juinor Third, as boys of that age were needed at home on the farms. In November, however, they would swarm back: and one found young men of eighteen or twenty patiently trying to recall what they had learned the previous winter in Junior Fourth. Beyond Senior Fourth not one boy in a hundred ever went. But it was a mistake to think the young men of X —— uncultured. They knew a great deal about a lot of worth while things. They were honorable, fine types of young manhood. Some would remain to cultivate the land which their grandfathers had wrested from the forest, but many went to the cities to make their way, and they were successful,—as sons of those daring pioneers of early X—— days well deserved to be. One of the X—— boys is now general manager of one of the largest departmental stores in the fifth largest city of the world. Not a wonderfully brilliant boy, as I remember him. Just a serious, honest youngster who put his best into each task which came along, no matter how disagreeable it might happen to be, with the result that he did things just a little better than most people took the trouble to do them. That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

NO MYSTERY ABOUT REDUCING WEIGHT.

I can't understand why there is so much mystery about the reduction of weight. On every side you read about the different ways of reducing as recommended by various authorities.

Now I've no fault to find with the authorities or their methods, but there is really no secret about reducing or removing fat from the body.

The fat, ninety-nine times out of every hundred, was deposited in the body by eating more food than that particular body required. Fat is really surplus energy stored up by enery producing foods — the starches.

When starches are eaten, Nature meant that they should supply you with heat and energy. After supplying what your body needs, for the processes of the body, any extra amount left in the system was supposed to be used up, burned up, by exercise or work. If you do not exercise or work sufficiently this extra starchy food, in most individuals, is stored up as fat.

Therefore, as some one has well put it, "gain or loss of fat is a matter of bookkeeping, representing the balance between the supply and demand in the body."

Drs. L. H. Newburgh, and Margaret W. Johnston, University of Michigan, remind us that body weight is due to two factors — gain or loss of tissue and a gain or loss of water.

These research physicians state definitely that stout people will burn up starches and prevent accumulation of fat if they will eat just the amount of food they actually need.

They have been able to foretell the exact weight reduction that will take place in overweight individuals by a certain date or number of days or weeks, if they eat a certain definite reduced amount of food daily. Sometimes the overweight does not begin to go off for a number of days, and there is some discouragement, but in a few days the reduction begins and the fat goes away rapidly making up for the slow beginning.

They state that there are two groups of overweight individuals. The first group includes various human weaknesses, overeating and ignorance. The second group is composed of conditions that cause a decrease in the activity of the body, less physical work to do.

So you see there is no mystery to reduction. If you are willing to eat less and work more you are bound to get results. If you don't take the extra food into your system, you'll not store it as fat. If you are too fat and take exercise, the fat is bound to go off.

"It tastes good!" SAID BETTY BUTTERWORTH

age 7 years

Rejoice, mothers—here's wonderful news about cod-liver oil

You know how children hate cod-liver oil. What a struggle it is to make them take it! But try this emulsified form—and you'll make the same happy discovery that Mrs. Butterworth of Edgewood Rd., Long Branch, Ontario, did.

Mrs. Butterworth, like thousands of other mothers, knows what wonders cod-liver oil can do for youngsters, but she's never been able to make her daughter like it. So when we called on her recently, she gladly consented to let Betty try Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil.

Betty took a spoonful. "Why, this tastes good," she smiled. "I like it!"

Pleasanter to take— but that isn't all!

Pale, thin, run-down children need cod-liver oil. Give it the pleasantest way—give Scott's Emulsion. Scott's Emulsion hasn't that strong "fishy" taste. It brings you purest, Norwegian cod-liver oil in its pleasantest form—a perfect emulsion. Easier to take—easier to digest. You get more good out of Scott's Emulsion and you feel the benefits quicker.

Scott's Emulsion contains no alcohol. It is rich in vitamin A, the growth-promoting vitamin that helps guard against disease. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It also contains vital mineral elements that aid in forming sound bones and teeth. This gives Scott's Emulsion a special advantage for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers.

Get Scott's Emulsion to-day. At your druggist, in large home size and small traveling size bottles. Sales Agents: Harold F. Ritchie and Company, Limited, Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., January 7 (C. P.). — High scoring was again the rule in the National Hockey League engagements last night, and in all, 25 goals were registered in the four games played. The highest score of all came in the Detroit-Canadiens game, when the Falcons downed the doughty Canadiens by a 6-2 score

The Maple Leafs still lead in the shutouts, having registered six in all. In the American group, Chicago has scored five.

FRIDAY GAME IS CALLED OFF

Default of Orono in Intermediate Group Leaves Locals Without Scheduled Game.

PLAY JANUARY 23.

It will be some days before the Peterborough Intermediates swing into another game, and meanwhile hard work and plenty of action will be the rule of every practice.

Officially the Petes are scheduled to entertain Orono here on Friday night, but the game is off since Orono early decided to drop out of intermediate hockey, and defaulted all games.

The next game for the Petes is scheduled for January 23, and brings the hard-hitting Port Hope Ontarios here. However, it is most likely that the Petes will be tossed into a game long before that time since there are two postponed engagements in the offing. One is the game with Bowmanville, which was scheduled for the Brock Street Arena on December, but which was not played because of poor ice. The other is the game that was to have taken the Petes to Port Hope last Monday night.

The Peterborough executive is in touch with both teams in an attempt to try and swing the games on soon. It is likely that the Bowmanville battle will be staged here early next week if all conditions are right.

With colder weather assured and better ice conditions in the offing the Petes will be able to get in much work. On Friday night when they clashed with Oshawa for the second time they showed a vast improvement over their first appearance against the redshirts. In fact, it was only with a certain amount of luck and a first period lead, that permitted Oshaaw to cop the verdict. With more work a bigger improvement is bound to make itself felt in the Petes' play.

Although they have lost twice to Oshawa the blue and white are still much in the lakeshore group fight. They still retain a big chance of grabbing off second place earning the right to clash with the first place team, which will likely be Oshawa, for the group championship.

Doukhobor Children Warned From Schools

NELSON, B.C., Jan. 7 (C.P.). — School attendance among the Doukhobor colonies south of Nelson was not normal to-day owing to community Doukhobors fearing harm would come to their children if they sent them to the class-rooms.

On Friday last community Doukhobors received an anonymous letter declaring that children sent to the schools would be blown up.

To-day some children showed up, but when guards were not placed around the schools they left. Attendance at the main Brilliant school was not badly affected.

CONTENDERS FOR ALLAN CUP HONORS

With a trip to the 1932 Olympic games held out as a special prize to the winner of the Allan Cup next spring, western Canada is out to make a great bid for Canadian amateur hockey supremacy. Regina, which has not won the Allan Cup since 1914, has developed two powerful clubs, the Vics and Aces, that are regarded as real threats in Saskatchewan, where senior hockey is very much on the up-grade. Above are pictured: Johnny Clark (4) goal-tender of the Vics, star custodian of Saskatchewan's "Big Six" and a prospect for professional hockey; Hubert Davison (1), centre of the Vics, a former pro., who since his reinstatement has been going great guns; Clarence Mahon (2), organizer and captain of the Aces, a heady centre ice man, and Harvey Dodge (3) defence star of the Aces, who is another Regina prospect for the moneyed ranks.

Olympics Are Downed By Cleveland Three Goals to One.

TWO SCORES ARE SAME.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (By C.P.) —Windsor and Detroit won the two games scheduled in the International Hockey League last night. By a coincident the scores were identical, the Bulldogs trouncing Pittsburg, 3 to 1, and the Olympics downing Cleveland by the same margin.

It was the first time this season the Windsorites have been successful against the Yellow Jackets, who prior to the contest had visions of winning and climbing into fifth place ahead of London. A quick goal, however, by "Baldy" Northcott, following a passing bout with "Bat" Phillips and Duguid, dampened the Smoky City outfit's hopes somewhat and when Duguid notched a brace of goals in the final session, after a scoreless middle chapter, the Yellow Jacket dream had completely disappeared. Tex White scored the line Pittsburgh tally late in the game.

The win enabled the Bulldogs to creep up within four points of the leading Buffalo Bisons.

Tied for Third Place

Minus the services of Farr and Gillie, the Olympics fought the Clevelanders on even terms until the third frame when they notched two clever goals to assure themselves of victory and a third place tie with their opponents.

There was no scoring in the opening frame, but the Detroiters took a brief lead in the second on Daly's goal. Stewart Dunning knotted the count less than two minutes later on a pass from Doug Young and the count remained deadlocked until O. Williams put the Olympics in front five minutes after the start of the third. Jimmy Herbert consolidated the lead by scoring six minutes later.

Only one game is scheduled tonight. The Yellow Jackets move down from Windsor to London and victory will place them one point ahead of the Tecumsehs. The latter, however, have no intentions of letting such a development occur and after several days' rest should be in fine fettle to improve their status in the standing. Tecumsehs are four points behind Cleveland and Detroit but have a game in hand over both.

STIRLING BEATS MADOC 1 TO 0

Homesters Winners in First Game of Trent Valley League in Hastings Town.

POOR COMBINATION.

STIRLING, Jan. 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—The first game of the Trent Valley League between Madoc and Stirling played on local ice was run off here last night before a large crowd of six hundred rabid hockey fans. The tussle ended with the home team on the winning side by 1—0 count.

The game was a heavy checking affair, little or practically no combination being played by either of the teams. Kenneally handled the bell.

Line-up:

Stirling.—Goal, Morton; defence, Ingram and Beatty; wings, V. Little and A. Little; centre, Davies; subs., Ackers and White.

Madoc. — Goal, Hulin; defence, Harkey and Andrews; wings, McGuire and Johnson; centre, Henereau; subs., Moon, Watson and Anderson.

SKI CLUB WILL BUILD NEW RUNS

Recently Organized Body Planning to Conduct Membership Drive.

MAKE EXCELLENT START.

The newly formed Peterborough Ski Club is now running at top speed, though the work of membership and organization is not yet completed. Already some 75 people have applied for membership, and a C.G.E. employee has promised the enlistment of some 35 more from his shop. These numbers include many out-of-town skiers interested in the formation of such a club. A Rochester, N.Y., man has signified his intention of joining up so that he can ski here while visiting the city from time to time during the winter.

More or less informal meetings have been held for the past few weeks, and now the rules of the club have been drawn up and a membership campaign is to be inaugurated. Applications for membership were issued on Monday. A meeting of all interested in skiing is called for Thursday evening at 7.30 in the Chamber of Commerce On this occasion enthusiasts will be able to learn what has been accomplished since the club's inception, and what is on the slate for the future. Membership fees are to be very small in order to encourage a large enrolment.

Build New Runs.

At present the skiers are using a hill owned by the C.G.E. The club's officials are awaiting permission from Toronto for the erection of a clubhouse and runs. Certain small difficulties have to be cleared up, but the organizers are enthusiastic concerning the outcome. They hope to be given the right of way through to Jackson Park where they would erect a hut for those wishing to stop off for a few minutes on a run. From here it is planned to continue the run over a fine slope to Nassau, and thence up the river. If plans mature, huts will be erected all along the run for the convenience of the club members.

The Peterborough Canoe Company has donated sufficient lumber to the club for the building of a clubhouse. Designs are to be submitted by members, who will build the structure themselves.

Thus the Peterborough Ski Club has made an excellent start, and the Thursday evening meeting should prove interesting to all out-of-door sports enthusiasts.

NEW YORK REMOVES SCHMELING'S TITLE

Chicago Will Probably See the Next Heavyweight Championship Bout.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (C.P.)—Chicago, it appears, owes the New York State Athletic Commission a rising vote of thanks. The Commission, by stripping the heavyweight title from Max Schmeling, virtually has assured a title match between Schmeling and W. L. (Young) Stribling in Chicago next June.

Nor is that all the Commission's action accomplished. It left, or so it would appear, Jack Sharkey in the role of "outstanding contender" in New York State, but with no one in sight for him to fight.

Although other boxing centers, Detroit, Jersey City and Philadelphia for instance, have plunged in with others for the serious consideration of Joe (Yockup) Jacobs, manager of Schmeling. It was understood that Chicago held the inside track for the title bout and would get it.

Nate Lewis, Chicago promoter, several days ago offered Schmeling $500,000 to meet Stribling with the title at stake and, at the moment at least, there seems no reason why the Teuton slugger should not accept. As for Stribling, he already has come to terms with Lewis.

REPAIRS NEAR END.

BERLIN, January 7 (C.P.). — The Dornier Works announced today that the big seaplane DO-X is scheduled to start her trans-Atlantic flight to America on January 20. Repairs to the wing which was damaged in a fire last month are nearly completed, and the crew left for Lisbon, Portugal, to take over the plane last night.

For the first time since it was dedicated in 1753, the Mansion House, home of the Lord Mayor of London, is empty, city officials having moved to a hotel while the building is being modernized.

SMYTHE SQUAD HELD TO 2—2 DRAW BY SENATORS IN OVERTIME FIXTURE

Jackson's Long Shot Evades Ottawa Goalie to Tie the Count.

CANUCKS LOSE AT DETROIT.

Maroons Drop 5-1 Decision to Rangers at New York.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7. (CP)—Defeat of Montreal Maroons and their intra-city rivals, Les Canadiens, and Ottawa's fine showing against Toronto's fast climbing Maple Leafs, were the high spots of last night's National Hockey League four game program.

Maroons were decisively outscored by New York Rangers, 5 to 1, while Canadiens suffered their first home defeat of the season and their second loss to Detroit Falcons, 6 to 2. Ottawa and Toronto fought through 70 minutes of gruelling hockey to a 2-all tie, while at Boston the Bruins chalked up their first victory over Chicago in three starts by a 5 to 2 count.

While the much talked of three-cornered tie failed to develop in the Canadian group the race for the leadership could not be any closer. Only three points separate the Maroons, Leafs, Canadiens and Americans, in that order and all four participate in intersectional struggles on Thursday. By splitting the points with Ottawa the Maple Leafs secured possession of second place by one point over Canadiens and they are just that much behind the Maroons who they meet at Arena Gardens on Thursday.

The Cook brothers were again to the fore as the Rangers avenged themselves for their early season defeat at Montreal. With the Gothamites leading 3 to 1 halfway through the third period Bill Cook broke loose and notched a brace of goals, ten seconds apart, on passes from Brother Bun, to clinch the game.

Butch Keeling started the Rangers off right by scoring seven minutes after the start on a pass from Jerwa. Early in the middle frame Bun Cook increased the lead on Frankie Boucher's pass. Less than a minute later Nels Stewart scored the only Maroon tally by hammering Babe Seibert's rebound into the cage. Less than seven minutes later Nels Stewart scored the only Maroon tally by hammering Babe Seibert's rebound into the cage. Less than seven minutes later Fred Thompson again gave the New Yorkers a two goal lead by taking Dillon's pass to score.

The final period was marked by numerous penalties including a major to Seibert for cross-checking. It was while he was off in company with Earl Roche that Bill Cook did his little goal scoring act to convince the Maroons they were beaten.

Canadiens simply could not make their efforts click against the Falcons. They skated as fast as ever, stickhandled prettily but their passing and shooting was off.

Little Aureal Joliat started them on the way to victory when he scored after less than five minutes play, but The Habitants were unable to hold the lead and Herbie Lewis knotted the count before the frame ended.

George Hay and Carson Cooper put the Falcons well in front in the second period by scoring two quick goals. G. Mantha reduced the lead on a pass from S. Mantha and hopes of Canadien supporters for victory ran high.

A brace of rapid fire goals by McCabe seven minutes after the start of the final 20 minutes which was supplemented by a third tally from the stick of Larry Aurie 10 minutes later, completed the route of the Flying Frenchmen who apparently had not recovered from their strenuous game in Toronto the Saturday previous.

Toronto did not completely shake the jinx that has been dogging their heels in Ottawa, but the result was satisfying nevertheless to Maple Leaf supporters.

Both teams played fast, rugged hockey, and each took a turn at taking the lead. The Leafs scored first in opening period when Hal Cotton converted Ace Bailey's pass into a hard shot from close-in that Alex Connell never had a chance to save.

Hec Kilrea evened matters early in the second frame by darting in to snare his own rebound off the boards and beat Lorne Chabot. Danny Cox then put the Senators in front 13 minutes later when he was left unchecked in front of the Leaf cage. He easily beat Chabot after receiving a pass-out from Len Grosvenor.

The third and overtime periods developed into a rare struggle with neither team able to secure any noticeable advantage.

Boston increased their lead to six points over Chicago in the American group by unleashing a hurricane offensive against the Black Hawks in the first period of their encounter, which netted the Boston cause three goals. Taffy Abel, giant defence man of the Hawks, wrenched a knee just prior to the Bruin attack and will be out for a fortnight.

Hal March scored Chicago's first goals late in the second frame following a brilliant individual rush, but Cooney Weiland nullified that goal with Boston's fourth counter early in the third session. Johnny Gottselig put the Hawks back in the running by scoring while the Bruins were two men short. Red Beattie completed the scoring in the last minute of play.

BENNETT CONFERS WITH McFARLAND

Session on Wheat Question Held Later With Prairie Premiers.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 7 (C.P.). —Shortly after his arrival here yesterday, Premier R. B. Bennett conferred with Hon. I. McFarlane, head of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers' Limited, central selling agency for the prairie pools.

The grain market situation and prospects for the marketing of the 1930 wheat crop are believed to have been the subjects under discussion, but no statement was issued following the conference.

Immediately after the meeting, Mr. Bennett left for the Legislative Buildings where he is meeting the Premiers of the Prairie Provinces in Premier John Bracken's office to discuss the grain situation, agricultural relief and natural resource problems of the Western Provinces.

No Finger-Printing Of Taxi Men Is Edict

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7 (C.P.).—Mayor William J. Stewart announced yesterday, after an interview with Judges Coatsworth and Morson, his colleagues on the Police Commission, that there will be no further finger-printing of taxi-drivers. His Worship learned yesterday that although the by-law, whereby all taxi-drivers were to be finger printed, had been laid over until July some drivers had been asked for finger prints when they applied for their new license this year. Although the by-law caused considerable discussion when it was introduced before the Board of Control some months ago, it was decided to have it set aside until the new council were able to consider it. When it was learned yesterday that some drivers had been finger printed, Mayor Stewart announced that he would take it up with the commission, and as a result the practice will be discontinued.

Deny Brokenshire's Condition Is Critical

TORONTO, Ont., January 7 (C.P.) —Rumors that Jack Brockenshire was in a critical condition in the hospital were questioned to-day by Dr. A. J Prentice, physician attending the self-confessed murderer of Police Constable Roy McQuillin. Though Dr Prentice would give no definite opinion he said there was no need for alarm although Brockenshire has been running a temperature for the past few hours.

Brockenshire, who was captured after a lengthy chase by about 500 police constables, suffered abdominal wounds which, according to his physician, are slowly healing. Although it was recently reported Brockenshire would leave the hospital this week, Dr. Prentice predicts that he will be confined to the institution for some time.

Brockenshire's Hopes Of Life About Even

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7.—Only an even chance of life is conceded John Brockenshire, 22, of Windsor, who has been in hospital here since his capture by police after the slaying of police constable Roy A. McQuillin for which Brockenshire and a companion, Harry Clarkson face a charge of murder.

Dr. A J. Prentice, medical attendant of Brockenshire stated today the condition of his patient had grown worse. Signs of bronchial pneumonia have been found as well as a possible kidney complication, he said, but tests will have to be made before this is definitely ascertained.

DOC CRANDALL IS BACK IN BIG LEAGUE AGAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Old Doc Crandall is coming back to the Polo Grounds after an absence of fifteen years.

How many baseball fans in New York remember the Doc and how and when that professional handle was fitted to his name?

It was Damon Runyon who hung that medical moniker on a young farmer from Indiana in the era of McGraw's three-time winners. Crandall could serve that old pill in an emergency better than any pitcher in the National League. He was a doctor of sick ball games.

At forty-two Crandall is the lone active survivor of a team that won three consecutive pennants and established McGraw as a commanding figure in baseball. Old Doc was still heaving 'em last season in the Pacific Coast League, rounding out a continuous service of twenty-three years on the firing.

Coming Back to Coach.

His powerful, stooped shoulders will not propel a baseball or swing a bat next summer when he returns to the scene of his early triumphs, for Old Doc is coming back as a coach for the Pittsburgh Pirates. At that he may serve as a pinch hitter for his eye is keen and his baseball brains have not been addled

What McGraw would give for Crandall's pitching cunning back of one of those young arms next season!

He was a member of that swashbuckling crew of Giants that stole pennants on the bases in 1911, 1912 and 1913. No relief pitcher ever answered so many emergency calls When Mathewson, Marquard, Tesreau, Wiltse, Ames and such stalwarts couldnt hold the enemy Old Doc was summoned to do his stuff.

CURLING

On a fast ice, the opening schedule game of the season was played at the local curling rink last evening and was keenly followed by a large gathering of the "clans."

"Professor" Downey made a beautiful draw on the last end to defeat the popular secretary, Jack Manneord 11-10. The "bankers" also proved too much for the Green brothers, Skip Fraser triumphing with a 14-6 score. The Best father and son combination had their hands full with the C.G.E. Engineers, but pulled through with a margin of three shots.

"Dicky" Davidson—the father of curing—has a snappy bunch of colts in Braund, Robertson, and Widdess who helped him to victory over Donaldson with the score 13-9. "Tommy" Donaldson's new mackinaw was apparently too long to go the twelve ends.

It is understood that Walter Oke who won out against Howden is going to give "sweeping" lessons, particularly to some of the older members.

The scores last night were:
Best 11 vs. Cruthers 8.
Davidson 13 vs. Donaldson 9.
Howden 10 vs. Oke 14.
Mayneord 10 vs. Downey 11.
Fraser 14 vs. Green 6.
Bacon 15 vs. Henry 8.

To-night"s schedule game, which commences at 7.45 o'clock, will be played between the following rinks:
Seymour vs. Foote.
Turner vs. Cairns.
Fitzgerald vs. Penrose.
Hall vs. Martin.
Medd vs. Westbrooke.
Clegg vs. Campbell.

A decidedly novel innovation is taking shape on the ice this season, in the shape of swallows and the Canadian ensign, which have been placed on the rink prior to flooding. They show up to great advantage through the ice, and add a touch of the artistic. It is the first time such a thing has been attempted locally, although it is stated that it has long been the practice in Quebec Province to decorate the ice in this manner. Herb Martin proposes adding further figures and patterns of a vivid hue in the near future, to fill in the bare space between the boughs.

After a weighty trial Officer Mival, arrested on the charge or stealing $5 from fellow policemen of the Birmingham, England, force, has been found not guilty.

Visitors Play Speedy Game Carrying Most of Action Into Millers' Territory.

NORTHEY INJURED.

Campbellford Relies on Strong Defense Line—Hepstanstill Stars in Net.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 7. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Battling to the last second to count an evening goal, Lakefield went down to defeat before Campbellford, with a score of 1-0 in the Junior O.H.A. fixture staged at the Davidson Arena, Campbellford, last evening.

Playing with a very fast forward line, the visitors kept the majority of the play in the Millers' territory, making their opponents rely a great deal on their defence line and their goalie. The game was fast and featured by heavy checking, in all twelve penalties being given. One of the Lakefield players, E. Northey, had the misfortune to fall backward on the ice in the first period, breaking his wrist. This interfered with the visitors' defence, but they were ably substituted, although the line was weakened to some extent.

Lakefield excelled in their speed, their forward line showing good combination. Pressing hard into the Campbellford area, they held their entertainersc lose home, making great play at close quarters. Campbellford however played a good game of defence, fighting for every inch of the ice, and featuring some determined rushes, breaking through the visitors lines and pressing their goal. Hepstanstall in the Campbellford net played a splendid game, saving the Home Towners from defeat repeatedly. If anything, Lakefield have the fastest team of the two, with better combination in the forward line, but Campbellford excelled in their defence and the strong goal tender.

W. A. Jackson of Peterborough refereed the game, keeping the play clean. He had a hard job however, as play ranged all over the ice in quick succession.

Full Of Action

As a whole the game was full of action and good one for the fans. Although loose in places, it showed that the boys were keen on the game, and did their best to put up a good brand of hockey. Lakefield have an exceptionally fast team and showed good coaching, their forward line being their strong point, while with Campbellford, their defence proved them in better stead and their goalie was more than good.

The line-ups were:

CANOE CLUBS WIN BY FOUR GAMES

TORONTO, Jan. 7. — Paddlers picked off all the points in the Big Four junior O. H. A. game at the Arena Gardens last night, Toronto Canoe Club taking the top position of the division by beating Marlboros 4 to 3 in 20 minutes of overtime, while Parkdale Canoe Club toppled Varsity 4 to 3. Toronto Canoe Club, Varsity and Marlboros were all in a triple tie for the lead before the four and a half hour hockey session started, and when it was over about midnight Parkdale was credited with its first win of the season, while the Dukes missed a golden chance for a second upset.

Parkdale's victory over Varsity was the big surprise, for on their last meeting the Students swept to a 9 to 1 win. Last night it was different, with Bill Slean's six checking the Students into submission and taking advantage of easy openings for goals. Varsity's defence played poor hockey, allowing the Paddlers in for easy scores, the first two goals being of the gift variety, but on the play the Paddlers deserved their win.

The game was mostly a battle between defences, both sides meeting with little success in ther efforts to get in close. Varsity did most of the attacking, seemed superior individually, but were weak around the nets, most of their good work being ruined by failure to finish their offensive thrusts. The Students had play in Parkdale's territory most of the time an dalthough they had many chances for goals they tossed them aside by careless passes or poor shooting.

TIGERS DEFEAT ST. PETERS 1-0 JUVENILE GROUP

Feature Tilt of South End League Opener is Ding-dong Battle.

HICKEY STARS.

Raybestos 3-2 Decision From Canucks in Other Juvenile Tangle.

Four snappy hockey games opened the season last night for the South End City League. The Sacred Heart rink had a fast sheet of ice and it kept up right to the end. Most of the boys were in good condition for the time of years, and they played hard and clean throughout.

Fosters and Canucks of the bantam section started it off with a bang, O'Leary putting Fosters ahead early in the first period. Canucks tried hard to even it up, but couldn't break through. The second period showed plenty of action but no goals, but in the third frame Fosters countered again from the stick of Williamson. Canucks were much the lighter team and only their gameness along with some nice goal-minding by Panera kept the score so low.

The teams:

Referee, W. Rogers.

Ravens Take It On Chin

In the second bantam game, between the Ravens and Athletics, it was a case of check and body-check with the Ravens taking it on the chin 4-0. The winners played a careful game, sending only one and two men down the ice at a time, and as their lead grew, they played a strictly defensive game. The Marino brothers tried hard for the Ravens but were checked too hard and often.

Referee, W. Rogers.

Rays Defeat Canucks.

Raybestos beat out the Canucks of the Juvenile section 3-2, but the losers made it a game before they quit. The first period was fairly even with both teams counting once but in the second the Rays broke away and netted the puck twice to make it 3-1. In the last stanza, however, it looked like they had shot their bolt, as the Canucks buzzed around the Rays' goal continuously. But they only scored once, and had to skate off with the short end. Vitarelli and Shaughnessy got the goals for the Canucks, while Peel, Alcock, and White scored for the winners.

The teams:

Canucks—Goal, Fleming; right defence, Hallahan; left defence, Vitarelli; centre, Collins; right wing, Hill; left wing, Shaughnessy; alternates, McCarthy, Kearns, and Revoy.

Referee—J. Jones.

Tigers Nose Out Saints.

The last game was the feature one of the evening with the Tigers nosing out St. Peter's Juveniles 1-0. It was a ding-dong battle all the way through, the play moving rapidly from one end of the rink to the other. The first two periods were scoreless, though the boys worked their heads off to net one. Midway through the final frame, Watson got in on the St. Petes' goalie and rifled one past him. From then on, the game was faster than ever, but the Tigers weren't going to lose that one goal lead. Both teams carried some fast players, with Hickey of St. Peter's lookingg to be the outstanding star on the ice.

The teams:

St. Peter's — Goal, Young; right defence, Gainey; left defence, White; centre, Koster, right wing, Sweetman; left wing, Hickey; alternates LeBarr, McCallum, and Sullivan.

Referee—H. Ranger.

CIVILIAN RIFLE CLUB ORGANIZED

Will Hold Matches Every Thursday on Miniature Courses at Armouries.

SPECIAL TOURNEYS.

An enhusiastic meeting of the Civilian Rifle Club was held last night in the Armouries, and evidence pointed to the club getting away to a good start. A president and a secretary were elected to represent the Militia, and a working committee to look after the civilian end of the club.

Those elected were: President, Capt. E. Nicholls; secretary, Lt. J. Parsons; range committee, David Clements, Grant Rightmeyer, Alex. McIlvena, J. Welsh and J. McGrath.

It was decided to hold a match every Thursday evening during the winter months in the miniature range at the Armouries. The range has been overhauled and equipped with new .22 Lee Enfield rifles, so there should be no excuse for poor shooting.

Lt.-Col. Charles Ackerman made the generous offer to have the rifles equipped with Bisley sights and to have them properly beaded, provided the club could produce a team of five or seven men of the calibre required to do match-shooting. This would put the team on equal terms with any in Canada so far as equipment is concerned.

There will be a special sheet on Thursday evening, with prizes for the best marksmen. Every ex-member of the C.E.F., the naval unit, present member of the Militia or Cadets may join the club.

"B" Company Wins Softball Decision

In the opening game of the Garrison Softball League, played in the Armouries last night, "B" Company defeated their regiment rivals "D" Company to the tune of 15-7. It was a good game, with both teams getting plenty of hits, but the winners bunched theirs in the first, second and fifth innings to put the game in the bag. "D" Company scored in every inning except the first, but could never catch up.

Score by innings:

"B" Company . . . . . 5400510—15
"D" Company . . . . . 0211111— 7

"B" Company—Pitcher, Trennum; catcher, Guppy; 1st base, James; 2nd base, Williams; 3rd base, O'Brien; short stop, Brown; right field, Grisdale; centre, McDonald; left field, Smedmore.

The executive of the Garrison Softball League is requested to attend the meeting Thursday night at the Armouries, when the softball schedule will be drawn up.

COMEDY FOX SOUND NEWS ACT

TIDY GAME HERE THIS EVENING

P.H.C. Juniors Hook Up With Norwood Combines First Time This Season.

EXPERIENCED PLAYERS.

Joe Dwyer's Peterborough Hockey Club Juniors will encounter the fast-stepping Havelock Combines at the Brock Street Arena this evening. It will be the first game for the blue and white sweatered athletes since their contest with Stratford in the S.P.A.

The Peterborough Juniors are far from being an unknown quantity, however, since they have several of last year's players and the others are all experienced ice performers. The Havelock Combines have fully demonstrated in their two games with St. John's that they are a valiant crew of hard-playing effective youngsters. More than one hockey enthusiast admits that they are the team to beat for the group championship.

The tangle to-night should provide smart hockey entertainment, since the Peterborough team will be out to win their spurs in their first official start, while the Combines would turn hand-springs for a win. Ice-maker Fred Thirnbeck has the finest sheet of ice of the season for the game.

The following players are requested to be at the Brock Street Rink at 7.30 for the O.H.A. fixture to-night: Foley, Dossee, Woods, McCulloch, Tuck, Epps, Jones, Begley, Scollard, Thirnbeck and Archambault.

ELSIE FERGUSON IN "SCARLET PAGES."

This is one of the popular trial scene stories in which a court-room case for murder chains the attention, in the stellar scene. Elsie Ferguson, long a favorite of the legitimate stage, and renowned in her earlier years as the best-dressed actress of her time, is the heroine and carries off the honors beautifully. The talking screen has brought to the movie audiences these expert men and women of the stage, who get their stuff over by using all the little tricks learned so carefully through years of public acting. It is a different technique entirely from that of the old deaf and dumb drama, where feminine pulchritude and masculine virility were apt to be the chief considerations.

So Miss Ferguson turns her eyes and lowers her voice effectively and reddens her lips, all just a little too much, all in the manner of the old 'legit'. But she puts it over very well and makes a very attractive Portia in the trial scene, where she bests her rival, the District Attorney, in a struggle for the release of a girl who obstinately maintains that she murdered a man, and gives no reason for the act.

Miss Ferguson as Mary Bancroft, has splendid support; in Marion Nixon, playing the part of the accused girl, Norah Mason; in John Remington, as the District Attorney, John Halliday, and in the young and good-looking Bob Withers, as Grant Lawrence.

It is an entertaining and sentimental drama that delineates the expanding and facile viewpoint, even with regard to feminine morals, of the modern mind. The dead past is relegated to an innocuous obscurity and the actors sail on to pleasant happy harbors. "Scarlet Pages" do not matter in an age when ethics are pleasantly elastic.

A very interesting portion of the program is the visit of the "Rambling Reporter" to the ancient city of Constantinople, or Istambul, as the new name has it. Then there is a cute comedy called "Hold the Baby", and a new wrinkle in a barber shop that cuts hair to music and the sound of a "boop-a-doop" song from a pretty lady's lips.

Oshawa Takes First Game On Whitby Ice

WHITBY, Jan. 7.—Oshawa juniors maintained their position at the top of their O.H.A. group by administering a 2 to 1 defeat to the Whitby entry here last night. It was a hard pill for the locals to swallow as they had made elaborate preparations for a victory. Mayor Bowman officiated at the opening ceremonies.

Rowden opened the scoring for Whitby soon after the game got under way but although the home ads had other chances to score they were unable to increase their lead.

Two lapses on the part of the Whitby defence pair accounted for two goals by Bradd and Drinkle in the second period, while the locals were kept off the score sheet. The third period was not productive of much good hockey. Donnelly in the Whitby net making some sensational saves to avert a score.

Baseball Gossip.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Members of the Yankees and Giants who await the daily visits of the mailman with eagerness, hoping that he is toting a 1931 contract, must continue to exercise their patience, if any. It will be some time before the good or bad news will be deposited at the front door of numerous old homesteads stretching from here to California and Texas. All the Brooklyn players have learned the verdict on their 1931 stipends but the Giants and Yanks must continue to hope.

Along about January 15 the Yankee contracts will be placed in the mails. Four of Joe McCarthy's men are not worrying about the figures inasmuch as they signed two-year contracts last Spring. Heading this group is Babe Ruth, who will struggle along on a mere $80,000 again this year, as he did in 1930. Tony Lazzeri, Earle Combs and Bill Dickey also attached their signatures to long term documents last Spring, but not for quite so much.

All the other Yanks will get new papers, including Lou Gehrig, who is sure to top the incoming class in the amount of revenue to be derived for 1931 performances. It is understood that the club will frown on the idea of signing any players this year for more than one season. That resolution has been made in the past by many clubs, but there is a tendency to break it at times when a player is recognized fixture and appears likely to be in line for bigger and better terms a year hence.

Giants Follow Suit

The Giants' contracts will go out even later. Some time between Jan. 20 and Feb. 1 will mark their start from the Giants' office. There are no holdovers among the players so everybody will get a nice long envelope, with good or bad news therein. Bill Terry will get the top figure but there is no telling whether it will coincide with William's ideas. "For one year only" will also be the slogan here.

Joe McCarthy is due in New York late this week but his visit here will have nothing to do with contracts. As a newcomer to the league McCarthy is not in position to decide what the individual player should receive. The business of signing the players will be done by the business office, just as it is done from the Giants' office after John McGraw fixes the sum.

OUTLOOK FOR THE MOTOR INDUSTRY

(By R. S. McLaughlin, President General Motors of Canada, Ltd.)

The last great peak of motor car production in Canada was in 1929, when more than 262,000 cars and trucks were delivered by the automotive manufacturers of the Dominion. This point looks all the higher just at present, because we are in a valley. Future motor car production seems difficult to forecast for the same reason. Our perspective of the future is likely to be handicapped by our present position. But while the industry may not immediately surpass its record of 1929, there is no doubt that the coming years will be years of progress and development and also of increased volume of production if the industry attains to the place in the sun which it deserves. I would not like to predict what the motor car production in Canada will be in 1931, but I am confident that there will be a buying recovery, which will likely be quite marked in the last half of the year. As far as General Motors of Canada is concerned, we are definitely preparing for a broadening of the market, and we are spending more money then ever on the strengthening of our field force and in helping our dealers to a stronger position in the market.

Business Upturns.

Looking at conditions generally in Canada, I believe that the way is being paved for a business upturn. I think that for some time one of the most stubborn elements that had to be overcome was the psychological one; confidence in business and financial circles was much below normal, and this was not justified by any actual crisis in the country's buying power. This is not mere theory, and I would like to cite the "Dynamiters" Club of General Motors of Canada in evidence. This organization came into existence because it was claimed that the country was suffering from what one executive called "conversational blues." The Dynamiters Club, consisting of salesmen, dealers, and service men of General Motors adopted the motto: "We're Out to Make Business Better," and they went out preaching faith and courage. In three months the salesmen who belonged to the Dynamiters Club rolled up a total sales volume of $11,815,000 in new and used cars, proving conclusively that there was good purchasing power where there seemed to be none. As another bit of evidence we might cite the sales record of the McLaughlin-Buick 1931 models. When they were placed on the market at the first of last August, the outlook was not exactly perfect, yet in three months the McLaughlin-Buick branches in Ontario were able to report sales exceeding those of the same period last year.

Taking a long view, there seems to be plenty of ground for optimism. The saturation point for automobiles in Canada is certainly not in sight. There is something like a million and a quarter cars and trucks registered in the Dominion, but there are hundreds of thousands who have yet to purchase their first cars. Replacement demand is piling up just now, and may soon exercise an influence on the volume of production, but car sales to new consumers are still capable of great development. Our highways are lengthening from year to year and there is at this moment a greater national sentiment for good roads in Canada than ever before. Our farm market is suffering just now to a degree almost unprecedented, but I have faith that it will exhibit a revival before long.

In Second Quarter.

The automobile industry in Canada is entering on its second quarter century. Looking back on the first twenty-five there are a number of lessons to be learned. I could name nearly a dozen automobile companies which started making cars in Canada but which disappeared from the scene after only a brief existence. These almost forgotten concerns all confirm me in my opinion that it is not economically feasible to design, develop, and manufacture a car complete in Canada in competition with cars made in outside countries where tremendous production prevails. A strong affiliation with a parent organization having large production is necessary if an automobile manufacturing organization in Canada is to carry on at all under existing conditions. These conditions, of course, include the rapid changes which are brought about in design and quality by the advance of engineering, by competition, and by the demands of the public.

TRENT WATERWAY PLANS EXHIBIT AT NEW YORK MOTORBOAT SHOW

Best Exhibit In History Is Promised By Those In Charge

QUEBEC ORGANIZING

Preparations are at present going on for the Trent Waterway—Iroquois Trail exhibit at the National Motorboat Exhibition in New York City from January 16 to 24, inclusive. Specimens of fish and game, finely stuffed and mounted, together with a large number of hand-painted illuminated pictures depicting Kawartha Lake—Trent Waterway summer activities, will be included in the exhibit.

As an item of special interest there will be a genuine bark canoe made by the Indians of Algonquin Park Reserve, arranged for by the courtesy of the Ontario Department of Highways. There will also be two motion picture machines in continuous performance throughout the exhibition showing Peterborough Kawartha Lakes, Trent Waterway scenes, and general Ontario films.

It is expected that the exhibit will be better than the long list of showings made by the Association since its inception in 1920, as the Chamber of Commerce and the Association feel that a strenuous effort should be made this spring to stimulate the flow of tourist traffic during 1931, thereby aiding merchants and manufacturers considerably.

These exhibits are financed by the twenty or so municipalities along the Waterway system which are assessed at the rate of five cents per head. Under this plan Peterborough, being the largest community of the Trent Waterway, is naturally called upon for the largest grant. Last year it amounted to $1050. With this money the Association publishes displays and distributes booklets, arranges broadcasts, and exhibits at New York, Cleveland, Pittsburg, and this year perhaps Chicago and Philadelphia as well.

In justifying this expenditure the officers of the Association point out that last summer tourist money left in the city amounted to nearly $350,000 traceable through chartered banks, while in the immediate district (of a 50-mile radius, which may be said to be Peterborough's trading area) the tourist revenue traceable in the same manner amounted to about $600,000.

It has been noted that the Province of Quebec is organizing tourist bureaus where information is given unsparingly, and is spending enormous sums of money for bringing the tourists into that province. As a province Ontario has not done so well, but the officers of the Chamber of Commerce point out that they have kept the attractions of the Kawartha Lakes and Trent Waterway before the public with good effect, and where lucrative travel into other parts have fallen off, this section is holding its own, and even taking on an aggressive attitude.

This is to be seen by the fact that in the past season tourist revenue in this district showed an increase of $21,000 over the year before, in spite of the depression felt all over the country, thus making a record unequalled by any other resort section in Ontario.

It only remains to interview any of the business men of the city to gain a real insight into the advantages resulting from a vigorous solicitation of tourist traffic to this city. Increase in sales means decrease of prices. This more than reimburses the property owners who have to pay slightly more in taxes, and so the 5 cent per capita plan is more than justified by the returns accruing from an increased tourist trade.

Famous Scarab

Above is reproduced photograph of scarab of the reign of Shabaka, emperor of Abyssinia, first king of the 25th Egyptian dynasty, valued at $100,000. It lay for nineteen years in the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, without its significance being recognized. It was discovered by Prof. S. A. B. Mercer of the University of Toronto on his return from Abyssinia last fall.

REEVE AND DEPUTY ARE BEATEN IN HOPE

Two of 1930's Councillors Are Elected as Reeve and Deputy-Reeve.

VOTE WAS LARGE.

The electors of Hope Township turned thumbs down on Montford Wilson, 1930 deputy reeve, and Ben S. Dickinson, 1930 deputy reeve, who were seeking re-election for the respective offices, and two 1930 councillors were favored by the ratepayers for the two chief offices. C. G. Mercer was chosen reeve by 370 majority and Wm. G. Lightle deputy reeve by 461 of a majority. The vote was one of the largest ever polled in the township.

MENACING CLOUD HANGS OVER 1931

Unemployment Grows Worse Over World Says International Labor Office.

PRICES FALL.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 7.—The year 1931 begins "under a menacing cloud of practically universal industrial depression and unemployment", the International Labor Office said in a publication issued today and France, for the first time, is showing signs of "appreciable slackening in industrial activity.

There is hardly a country in the world whose unemployment situation has not become more serious during the past two months, the report says. Seasonal causes have something to do with this condition, it continues, "but the seasonable movement is merely added to continued growth of the general depression."

The Labor Office professes to see evidences of "very close connection between the increase in unemployment and the fall of prices." This fall, the report says, which appeared to becoming to an end in November, has set in again with new vigor. The fall of prices is essentially a monetary phenomenon, but monetary causes are by no means the only ones operating in the present crisis."

The announcement accompanying publication of the report calls attention to a study of unemployment upon which a report will be made Jan. 26 or 27. Among the questions studied were tariff competitions, unsatisfactory distribution of capital and raw materials, and the difficulties of adapting methods of production to the requirements of consumption.

Scout News and Notices

ST. JOHN'S TROOP

A very good turn out of boys was on hand for the weekly meeting of the 1st St. John's Peterborough Troop last Friday in the Parish Hall.

After the usual opening and inspection the boys were sent to patrol corners for kim's game. Later in the evening the scoutmaster took a game with the boys. This game proved very popular.

During the evening former A. S. M., R. G. Howden visited the troop and paid a personal visit with each boy. This was much appreciated at the campfire. Mr. Howden spoke a few words to the boys and in the course of his remarks voiced a hope that this troop would be outstanding by its lack of selfishness. This idea was also expressed by the other leaders.

A few scout yells proved to Mr. Howden the boys' appreciation of his visit and remarks. The meeting closed in the usual manner—the lowering of the flag and the National Anthem.

The boys are urged to make it a point to be on time at all meetings.

YOUNG MEN URGED TO STAY ON FARM

Optimistic Note Sounded For Early Improvement in Agriculture Conditions.

UNION PRAISED.

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 7 (C.P.) — A note of optimism regarding the early improvement of agricultural conditions in Ontario was sounded in addresses at the 52nd annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union here.

Prominent agriculturists from all parts of Ontario are in attendance at the two-day gathering. Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Deputy Minister J. B. Fairbairn were guests at the dinner, both delivering brief addresses in which they highly praised the work being carried on by the union.

Mr. Kennedy also issued a strong appeal to the young men of the province to stay on the farms and to be proud of their calling.

The chief speaker was Dr. Archibald, Director of the Ontario Experimental Farm at Ottawa, who dwelt at length on problems confronting the farmers in the Province. Dr. G. I. Christie, President of the Ontario Agricultural College, presided.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 39 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan buried the Kincaid's cook in a shallow grave, all he could do for the man who had given his life in the service of the ape-man's wife and little son. Then he again took up the pursuit of the Russian, certain now that Jane was held captive. When darkness settled, a heavy rain set in and for a week the storm raged, completely obliterating the trail the ape-man sought.

When the sun at last broke through the clouds, it looked down upon an almost frantic Tarzan. For the first time in his life the ape-man had been lost in the jungle! And somewhere in this savage land his wife and son lay in the clutches of the arch-fiend Rokoff. It seemed cruel beyond words! Had Nature thwarted him? Tarzan of the Apes knew not what direction to take!

At length he decided to continue northeast and some days later came upon another native village the inhabitants of which fled the instant their eyes fell upon him. Tarzan pursued them and after a brief chase caught up with a young warrior. From him he learned that a party of whites had passed through the village several days before, telling them of the terrible white devil and his demons who followed them.

The native further told Tarzan that the white man had promised them a fabulous reward if they would kill the white devil. Tarzan in this saw the cunning hand of Rokoff. He asked the native if they had seen aught of a white woman and a little child. "Yes, 'bwana," said the warrior. "There was a woman with them—and a little white picanniny. It died here in the village and they buried it."

PROBABILITIES.
Light to moderate winds; mostly fair to-day and Friday; becoming milder.

POPE PIUS DENOUNCES BIRTH CONTROL

Alleged Thug Arrested in Cobourg

GORDON DUNDAS IS SERVING TIME IN COBOURG JAIL

Is Believed By Police to be Implicated in Monday Night's Hold-up.

ONE STILL WANTED.

Dundas Was Arrested By Chief Murphy of Port Hope on Drunk Charge.

Gordon (Dude) Dundas, 716 Water Street, claimed by police to be one of the pair of thugs who early on Monday evening entered the home of W. G. Johnston and beat up the aged man, forcing him to give up money, is in the Cobourg Jail.

City and Provincial Police here breathed a sigh of relief when the news came from Cobourg that Dundas was under arrest. Since early on Tuesday morning the police search for Dundas was never let us.

One Still Wanted

The scent became hot only a few hours after the assault, and police immediately set out on the hunt.

However, with the arrest of Dundas, police admit their job is only half finished. They still are on the hunt for the other thug, whom they believe is Cecil Smith, a young man residing with his mother in the north end. The arrest of Smith somewhere along the lakefront is expected within hours. Provincial police are said to be close on his trail.

Dundas was arrested by Chief E. Murphy, of Port Hope, in that town late last night. He was brought up on a drunk charge before Police Magistrate Campbell in Port Hope this morning and sentenced to fifteen days in jail. He was at once taken to Cobourg and lodged in the county gaol.

About noon Provincial Police at Cobourg informed police here of Dundas' arrest, since his description, along with that of Smith had been flashed to all towns and cities within a radius of 100 miles of here early on Tuesday. The Cobourg police told The Examiner to-day that there was no mistake, they were sure it was Dundas, the man wanted here for robbery with violence.

Warrants for the arrest of Dundas and Smith were sworn out yesterday by Provincial Constable D. Sylvester before Magistrate Langley, The Examiner was told.

Police say here that there can be no mistake that Dundas and Smith are the men who committed the dastardly assault upon old Mr. Johnston. The victim of their blows gave a good description of his assailants. Also police learned that on Monday evening Smith and Dundas were together. They hired a taxi about 8 o'clock in the evening, about a half hour after the crime, and drove about the city for three hours. At 11 p.m. they left the taxi at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets.

From then on the men's movements were unknown to local police. It was stated that they had left the city, and the search was being pressed in neighboring towns.

Dundas is about 6 feet in height and powerfully built, while Smith is short. Dundas's name appears often on local police records. He has appeared in court again and again under the Liquor Control Act, and for other minor offences. One time he impersonated a police officer to win the affections of a girl, police say, and was charged and convicted for the offence. On September 17 he was convicted as a third offender under the L.C.A., and was sentenced to three months in jail. He was released on December 16.

BANDITS GET $6,000 IN MONTREAL BANK.

MONTREAL, Que., January 8 (C.P.). — Five men to-day lined up the staff of the St. Denis Street branch of the Royal Bank of Canada against the wall and seized $6,000 in bills. The armed bandits escaped.

Amy Will Abandon Flight to China

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 8. — (C.P.).—The newspaper Gazeta Polska said to-day that Amy Johnson, the British aviatrix, had decided to abandon her flight across Siberia to Peiping, but would go to Moscow by train and from there return to England.

Airliner on Ground Gets Lost in Fog

LONDON, Jan. 8. — The fog which has shrouded England for several days was clearing somewhat to-day, but remained dense in patches. At Croydon it was so thick that an airliner which had landed safely became lost while taxi-ing to its hangar.

Employees of the airfield who heard the noise of the engine and rushed out to help the plane were also lost and it was half an hour before the hangar was finally reached.

Street Car Revenue Decreases $453,000

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8.—(C.P.) — Toronto street cars carried seven million fewer passengers during 1930 than in the previous year, according to a report issued to-day by F. L. Hubbard, chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission. Mr. Hubbard attributed the decrease, which resulted in a consequent decrease of $453,000 revenue, to the economic depression and the lack of snow which allowed citizens to use motor cars more than usual during the winter months.

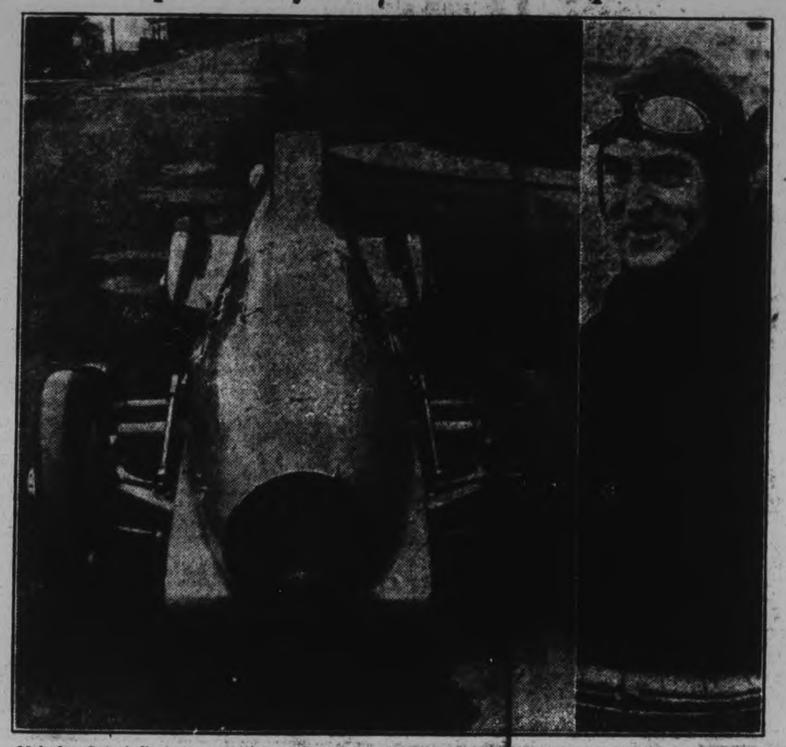
The Weather

The lowest temperature last night was 4 below zero. Towards morning the temperature rose somewhat, but at daybreak it was still close to the zero mark. The sun is now rising about one minute earlier each morning, but its effect is hardly noticeable. It will not be until about St. Valentine's Day before any marked change is seen. The difference in the evening is recognizable.—W.P.

Campbell Ready to Defend Britain's Speed Title



Malcolm Campbell, famous British motorist, is going to Daytona Beach next month to defend the speed record which the late Sir Henry Segrave established two years ago. Campbell is the only living motorist who has driven a car at more than 210 miles an hour and he accomplished this feat when he took his 'Bluebird" (shown above) to Africa in 1929. The British motorist's new "Bluebird," with which he hopes to exceed 231 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, is very similar in design to Bluebird I.

NAVAL INQUIRY QUIETS CRITICISM

Relations Between Officers and Men Likely Good as Ever Says London Paper.

SUBS JOIN FLEET.

LONDON, January 8 (By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — "From what we know of conditions in the Navy, we shall be greatly astonished if it cannot be shown that the loyal spirit, and relations between officers and men, are as good as they have ever been," said the News-Chronicle to-day.

The comment was provoked by an Admiralty statement, issued by the Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord, concerning the detention of 30 sailors of H.M.S. submarine depot ship Lucia, for alleged insubordination. The Atlantic Fleet was sailing to-day on the annual spring cruise and it was understood the four "L" submarines would go along without their depot ship.

The Admiralty deprecated the action of a certain section of the press towards the Lucia incident. At the same time the orders to hold the four attached submarines and the cruiser Norfolk, also attached to the unit, were countermanded. The only missing unit as the fleet sails is the Lucia herself.

"The point of importance," says the News-Chronicle, "is that a Naval Court of Inquiry is now sitting to establish the actual facts. Let us await the findings and if they appear unsatisfactory, then is the time to offer criticism and to demand full public disclosure."

The newspapers which had printed wild rumors when the arrests of the sailors were effected on Sunday, even mentioning the word "mutiny," were silent to-day.

Colored Man Held On Murder Charge

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 8. (CP)—John Murphy, 32, colored and a resident of Detroit, was arrested this morning at the Canadian Steel Corporation plant and is held for Detroit police in connection with the death of James Jackson, also colored and resident of Detroit.

Both men work for the Steel Corporation. Murphy was a boarder at the Jackson home in Detroit since July. It is alleged that when Jackson returned home he found Murphy in company with Mrs. Jackson. An argument followed and Murphy was ordered from the house. As he was leaving Jackson is reported to have fired two shots at him and Murphy is said to have returned the fire, one bullet lodging in Jackson's abdomen and causing death a few hours later.

The men have worked on this side of the border for two years.

Waterloo Barbers, in Price-Cutting War, Reach 10 Cents for Men; Children Free

KITCHENER, Ont., January 8 (C.P.). — A tonsorial price war is raging in unabated fury in Waterloo at present with the end not in sight. The sliding of prices for the cutting of hair began this week when a group of barbers reduced haircuts from 40 to 30 cents, with shaves reduced from 20 to 15 cents. Another group retaliated with 25 cent haircuts, and the latest volley in the battle was fired while barbers were enjoying the weekly half-holiday yesterday when one barber posted a notice, "Haircuts, 10 Cents, Children Free." As a result of this war Waterloo, and many Kitchener citizens have visions of again venturing forth for a haircut, shave, and a cigar with hopes of getting a nickle back for Sunday collection.

Waltz Only Dance Interests Prince

LONDON, Jan. 8 (C.P.). — The Prince of Wales likes the waltz above all other forms of dancing.

Johann Strauss, nephew of the Waltz King, came to London to attend a ball at which the Prince was supposed to be present but did not attend.

The next day His Royal Highness invited Strauss to his residence at York House and discussed the ball and waltz music.

Strauss is quoted as saying that the Prince received him most cordially, and after dancing with a woman partner, while Strauss played, told him that the waltz is now the only dance that interests him.

WOMAN CRUSHED BENEATH TRAIN

Engineer Sees Toronto Resident Fall on Tracks But is Unable to Stop.

INQUEST ORDERED.

OAKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 8.—(C.P.) Struck down by a fast travelling Canadian Pacific allway train a short distance from this town yesterday afternoon, Mrs Melva Fax, of Toronto, was instantly killed. The remains of the woman were taken to the morgue where they were in charge of Coroner Dr. J. H. Stead and Chief Constable David Kerr and for some time her identity was unknown. Near the spot where the woman was killed was found a purse containing some street car tickets and a few cents in change, which later aid in her identification.

The train which was bound for New York, was in charge of Engineer Walter B. Carruthers and Conductor R. Campbell both of Toronto. According to a statement of the engineer he saw the woman throw herself on the tracks but was unable to stop in time to avoid hitting her. An inquest will be held.

NEW BROADCAST MAKES HISTORY

"Maker of Dreams" First Play in Synchronized Sight-sound Dramatic Production.

FROM STATION W9XAP.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.— Side-stepping sinister looking equipment, a small audience squeezed in between humming machinery in the control room of station W9XAP last night and watched from behind the scenes what is believed to have been the world premier broadcast of synchronized sight-sound dramatic production.

The nerves of Broadway stars nearing a first night were not more taut than those of the trio, Irene Wicker, Vinton Haworth and Douglas Hope, who last night made television history in their appearance in "The Maker of Dreams".

The play, a delightful fantasy, portrayed Pierrot and Pierette about to drift apart when the manufacturer of dreams finds them The cue, "hey, you guys, ready," marked the arrival of the important moment. Lights blazed, machinery hummed.

"The Maker of Dreams" went on the air to be received by those with a television and radio combination set, the effect being a close relative to a small talkie, but not without many flaws as yet. The most disturbing is perhaps the horisontal bars across the image. But the experts say "give science time."

The great wall of water from 25 to 50 feet high swept along the coast for 40 miles and rolled 300 yards inland, he said. The Sapora mission station and the Mandang trading settlement were wiped out.

LABORITE GOVT'S POLICY ON INDIA IS ALMOST READY

Lord Sankey States Time Arrived For Actual Construction of New Constitution.

ANNOUNCED END OF WEEK.

Outline Likely Be Similar to Proposals Lord Reading Suggested.

LONDON, Jan. 8. (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald will announce the Labor Government's policy on India at a plenary meeting of the Round-Table Conference towards the end of next week, or early in the week of Jan. 19.

This information was given the delegates to-day by Lord Sankey, Lord High Chancellor. He declared it was plain that the time for actual construction of the new constitution had arrived.

"I think I am entitled to say that we welcome as warmly as the other delegates to the conference, Lord Sankey said on behalf of the Government, "the very helpful contribution which Lord Reading (Liberal spokesman) made to our discussions.

Follow Reading's Proposals

"I myself believe that it is along such lines as he suggested that a solution will be found for our difficulties. I am sure that all parties desire to join in taking steps to restore peace and prosperity in India and to satisfy the ambitions and aspirations of her wisest sons. I have no doubt that he will realize that before long."

Lord Peel, Secretary of State for India in the former Baldwin Government, replied to some criticisms of the speech of Sir Samuel Hoare, Conservative spokesman. It had been

Secretary Of Letters Gets Clerk 12 Months

KITCHENER, Ont., Jan. 8.—Louis von Neubronn, former local postal clerk, was sentenced by Judge Clement in the County Judge's Criminal Court today to six months determinate and six months indeterminate, in the Ontario Reformatory, after having pleaded guilty to secreting letters in transit at the local post office on October 14 last. According to the Crown two inspectors of the department had noticed the clerk conceal six letters in his pocket which it was alleged, he threw on the floor ten minutes later after having been taken into custody by the officials. As the letters which were not opened, contained money the Crown also laid theft charges which were withdrawn after the accused had pleaded guilty on the first charge, that of secreting letters.

Ontario Is In Lead In Railway Deaths

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 8 (C.P.). — Thirty-four persons were killed and 242 injured during October, 1930, in railway accidents on Canadian lines, according to a return issued to-day by the Board of Railway Commissioners. Railway accidents took a toll of 29 lives, with 193 injured, while five persons were killed and 49 injured at highway crossings. There were 213 railway accidents and 27 at crossings.

The Province of Ontario, with 17, had the largest number of crossing accidents. In these five motorists ran into the side of trains. In one case a car stalled on the crossing, and in another the driver was found to be under the influence of liquor.

Four-fifths of the automobiles owned in Brazil were bought on time.

Old Doctrines Are Reaffirmed In Encyclical

Pontiff Claims Modern Social Conditions Have Tended to Lessen Restrictions Observed Formerly—Declares Marriage Laws Made By God Not Man.

GREAT NUMBER OF MEN EITHER ENTIRELY IGNORE OR SHAMELESSLY DENY SANCTITY OF WEDLOCK

Strong Stand Taken Against "Such Modern Travesties as Trial, Companionate or Short-term Marriages," Branding Such Practises Grave Sin.

VATICAN CITY, January 8 (C.P.). — Birth control, trial marriage, and divorce were scathingly condemned to-day in an encyclical of Pope Pius XI. reaffirming the Catholic doctrine of the sanctity of matrimony. It was the first such expression of the Holy See on the theme in 50 years.

The encyclical contains 16,000 words, drew upon the full sources of ecclesiastical authority for its precepts, which, mandatory on the faithful, the Pontiff said he hoped to see accepted by all men.

He expressed himself as follows:

Birth Control — Those practising birth control the Pontiff describes as "branded with the guilt of a grave crime." Abortion is termed "murder."

Divorce — The age-old Catholic doctrine of the indissolubility of marriage for any reason whatsoever is reaffirmed.

Companionate Marriage — Experimental marriage of any sort the Pontiff utterly condemns.

Marriage — Its sacred, permanent character is reaffirmed by the Holy Father, who lists its blessings as children, conjugal fidelity, and honorable obedience to matrimonial obligations.

Modern Woman — She owes obedience to her husband but not at the sacrifice of dignity or to the point of obeying unreasonable requests.

Sex Education — The Vatican condemns "exaggerated physiological education," although maintaining that the basis of happy or unhappy married life is laid in preparation during youth for matrimony.

Sterilization — No human agency has the right, the Pontiff declares, to impair or destroythe generative function of the body. He advised, however, that persons to whom sterilization would be applicable not be married.

Wedlock Ignored

The encyclical calls attention that 'a great number of men either entirely ignore or shamelessly deny the great sanctity of Christian wedlock, or even, relying upon the false principles of a new and utterly perverse morality, too often trample it under foot.

"And since these most pernicious errors and depraved morals have begun to spread even amongst the faithful and are gradually gaining ground,' in our office as Christ's vicar upon earth and supreme shepherd and teacher we consider it our duty to keep the flock committed to our care from poisonous pastures and preserve it from harm.

Affirming that the laws of marriage are of God, "the author of nature, and by Christ our Lord by Whom nature was redeemed," the encyclical declares, "these laws cannot be subject to any human decrees or to any contrary pact, even of the spouses themselves."

St. Augustine Quoted.

The words of St. Augustine are quoted to put forward that of all the blessings of marriage, children hold first place. St. Paul, the Pontiff said, declared, "I wish young girls to marry to beget children, to be mothers of families."

"Both husband and wife, however," the encyclical states, "receiving these children with joy and gratitude from the hand of God, will regard them as a talent committed to their charge not only to be employed for their own advantage or for that of an early commonwealth, but to be restored to God with interest on the day of reckoning.

The second blessing of matrimony, the Pontiff says, is that of conjugal honor in the mutual fidelity of husband and wife, and the words of St. Augustine again are quoted that the marriage rights may not be denied by either of the parties to each other nor permitted to any third person.

ATLANTIC FLIGHT RESULTS PLEASE GENERAL BALBO

Claims Trip Difficult Because More Gas Than Usual Was Carried.

ONE CREW PERISHED.

Squadron to Take Part in Erecting Monument to Flier Delprete.

NATAL, Brazil, Jan. 8. —(AP)—General Italo Balbo, Italian Air Minister, receiving newspapermen aboard the cruiser Malocello last night, told them that he was content with the results of the flight of Italian air squadron from Africa, to Brazil since it had exceeded his expectations.

"Although two aeroplanes fell into the ocean the crew, were saved and ten other planes arrived at Natal after a wonderful flight. Cruisers picked up the two planes, which ought to reach Fernando Noronha, one today and the other tomorrow. After repairs are made they will fly either here or to Bahia.

"One plane was lost, probably as a result of a short circuit, and the crew perished. Another was left at Bolama in view of an accident to the motor but the crew was saved. (Bolama dispatches say the sergeant mechanic was killed.)

Difficult Flight

"The flight to Natal from Bolama was very difficult, because each plane carried 4,600 kilos of petrol, more than others which have made the flight, since we wished to have enough fuel to continue on to Bahia. During the night the moon was invisible because of heavy rains. There were clouds throughout.

"The flight of seventeen hours was carried out, as planned, in formation, but the system is very difficult in view of the necessity of autonomy of the groups of planes. We passed one ship, an English boat, of which we asked our position.

"I am very content since the flight exceeded my forecasts of success. Accidents are inevitable in aviation. It is the first time that a squadron has flown from Africa to Brazil.

"I am very grateful to the Brazilian Government and the Brazilian people for the reception given our squadron. We had hoped to leave Thursday today for Bahia, where we will remain three days, but we are deferring our departure so that we may participate in inauguration of the monument to Delprete, trans-Atlantic aviator who was killed in 1928 after a flight to Brazil."

Asked what was to be done with the seaplanes, General Balbo replied that he could not say until the flight had been finished

New York-Paris Fliers Postpone Start, Day

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 8. — (C.P.)—Postponing their original intention to hop off immediately for the Azores on the second stretch of their projected flight to Paris, Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William MacLaren, who flew here yesterday in the monoplane Tradewind, said they would remain in Bermuda overnight until repairs can be completed on the ship's oil feed line.

Weather conditions were unfavorable for flying also, and the visitors accepted an invitation to an official reception this afternoon by Acting Governor Evans. To-night they were to be guests at a dinner in their honor by the manager of the hotel where they are staying.

Five Fliers Killed In Atlantic Flight

BOLAMA, Portuguese Guinea, Africa, January 8 (C.P.). — Five Italian aviators died and three others were injured at the start of the great aviation adventure which carried ten seaplanes from this point on the West African coast to Brazil on Tuesday.

The official report shows that 14 planes—two of them repair and replacement units not scheduled to make the trip originally—took off.

DOMINION TO PAY 95 PER CENT. OF PENSIONS COST

Unconfirmed Announcement Is Made By Premier Bracken of Manitoba.

ELECTION PLEDGE.

Premier Bennett is Mum and is Rather Surprised at Announcement.

WINNIPEG, Jan., 8. (CP)—The Dominion government in future will pay 95 percent. of the cost of old age pensions, it was revealed yesterday by Hon. John Bracken, Premier of Manitoba.

Mr. Bracken, in commenting on the western premiers' conference here Tuesday with Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, disclosed that assurance had been given by Mr. Bennett that the provinces would be called upon to pay only five percent. of the old age pensions charges as compared with the 50 percent. now contributed.

Mr. Bennett in his election speeches had promised relief for the provinces in the cost of old age pensions, and Mr. Bracken in his comment to-day said:

"With regard to old age pensions, the Prime Minister amplified his previous statement and made it clear that the dominion would pay 95 percent. of the cost.

Legislation, it is indicated, providing for the larger payment by the federal government, will be introluced at the forthcoming session of parliament.

Surprised at Announcement

FORT WILLIAM, Jan. 8. (CP)—Premier R. B. Bennett, who passed through here last night on his way to Ottawa, declined to make a statement on the question of the federal government absorbing 95 percent. of the cost of the old age pension scheme. Premier John Bracken of Manitoba announced yesterday this had been the substance of an undertaking transmitted to the premiers of the prairie provinces by Premier Bennett at a conference in Winnipeg.

Premier Bennett while declining to issue a statement in the matter, was surprised at the announcement being made.

WOULD RESCIND SALARY BY-LAW

Toronto Alderman Gives Notice of Motion to Rescind Salary Grab By-law.

ALSO CANCEL LUNCHEON.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8 (C.P.) — Action has been started to rescind the "salary-grab" it became known to-day, Alderman Baird Ryckman, who headed the poll in Ward Four, has given notice to the City Clerk he will move at the first meeting of the 1931 City Council that this vexing question be removed from the records.

The new alderman stated he was in favor of the ratepayers having the right to determine such matters as salary increases at all times.

Mr. Ryckman also declared he intended to take steps to secure cancellation of annual city country inaugural luncheon. The money expended each year on this luncheon, he said, could be devoted to the needs of the unemployed.

The salary-grab was so-called when the City Council last summer voted members of the Council, Board of Control and the Mayor, substantial increases in salary. Much criticism was aimed at the move by the press. Such a furore was created the salary increases did not become effective, as an injunction was secured by a local newspaper editor against payment. The by-law, however, is still on the records at City Hall.

WAR TO DEATH BEING WAGED BY HUGE BOOTLEG SYNDICATES

Days of Independent Rum-Runner Past—$3,000,000 Organizations Fight It Out

MURDER AND CUT PRICES

(Special to The Examiner, Copyright, 1931.)

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 8.—(CNS).—The day of the independent rum-runner, who waged intermittent warfare with his competitors and continual warfare with coastguards has faded into limbo with the hoop skirt and bustle. The privately owned schooner, making occasional runs to the great wet way otherwise known as Rum Row, has completely disappeared from the Atlantic ocean. For big business has taken over the rum racket, and a three-cornered war whose proportions are amazing to the layman is in progress.

Prominent in the warfare is the United States Coastguard Service, and the other two corners of the triangle are filled by two syndicates whose headquarters are located in the New England States of the land of the dry.

These syndicates commenced operations in a serious way about four years ago. The radio, fast motor trucks, speed boats, and an intricate spy system came into operation, and gradually the smaller rum-runners were forced to give up the ghost on account of lack of capital. Some idea of the capitalization of the syndicates may be formed from authoritative information given your correspondent to the effect that one group was capitalized at $3,000,000. Be that as it may, the multitude of operators has dwindled to two of these great groups.

War to Death.

Recently one of these groups announced a drastic cut in prices. The result was that the other syndicate was compelled to operate at a loss for a short period. Then the war began.

It is impossible for any except those controlling these companies to list the events of the war. It is fairly well established that Jack Diamond, assaulted and left for dead in a New York hotel was one of the victims. A Quebec man was recently shot dead on the streets of New York, and a young man died very mysteriously at a prize fight. Unaccountable automobile accidents have occurred, and there are skippers of Nova Scotia schooners, who steadfastly refuse to set foot ashore in American territory, and watch themselves very carefully in Halifax.

Elaborate Spy System

And then there is the coastguard. Through their elaborate spy systems, each gang keeps a careful watch upon the other, and many occasions appear when it is a simple matter to tip off the coastguard that a certain schooner of the rival syndicate will be in a certain place at a certain time. The result of this may be summed up as follows: November 2nd, schooner Mazel-Tov was seized off Block Island with 403 sacks of assorted liquor; Nov. 23, schooner Good Luck, seized off the same place, with 501 cases; Dec. 17, the schooner Maskinonge, seized off Providence with 1,600 cases of liquor; Dec. 19, schooner Shanaluam, seized off New York with 5,000 cases; Dec. 25, schooner Audrey B., seized with unknown amount of liquor in Fort Pond Bay, L.I.; Dec. 28, schooner Elinor Joan, of LaHave, N.S., seized with 2,800 sacks of liquor off Greenport, L.I. Besides these there have been many smaller seizures which are not listed above. In the cases listed, the value of the cargo in each case was not less than $20,000, and the topper of the list is the Elinor Joan, who gave up $100,000 worth of choice liquors to the coastguard.

It is interesting to note that practically all of the above ships are built in Nova Scotia, are registered in that Province, and are commanded and manned by Nova Scotians. It is also worthy of mention that they are not the old coastwise schooner type of rum-runner. The Maskinonge and Mazel-Tov (Hebrew for "Good Luck"), both built at Lunenburg, N.S., were equipped with high powered short-wave radios, and each had two large, modern smoke-screen devices. Their deck-houses were shielded with armor-plate steel. It has been estimated that their initial cost was not less than $100,000 each.

Government Approves Theatre Remodelling

E. Cauley is advised by the architect, Murray Brown, A.R.I.B.A., Toronto. It is expected that work will be proceeded with about the end of the month.

VETERAN IN NEED GETS NO PENSION

Somerville Township Man's Plight Revealed When He is Haled Into Court.

ACTION BEING TAKEN.

LINDSAY, Jan. 8.—Entering the Great War in the prime of life at the age of 28 years, in 1915, now 17 years later Richard Westover, Somerville Township, who has the Croix de Guerre of France, the Military Medal and Bar of the English Army, and other decorations for conspicuous bravery, has a bad case of consumption as a result of being gassed in action, and in spite of the fact that he has a wife and family dependent upon him, receives no pension.

Situated as he is in Somerville Township, 100 miles away from the Pension Board, in dire want with no way of getting to them to present his case, this man has only his medals and ailment to show for the best four years of his life, which were spent in the defence of his country.

His case was brought to the attention of the authorities, when he was found guilty of aiding in breaking up a "horespower" to sell for junk, and Lieut.-Col R. I. Moore of the Victoria-Halliburton Regiment is now taking his case up with the Pension Board, while he is remanded until next Tuesday to try to get him a pension and secure for him admittance to Christies Street Hospital.

According to the story told, (he enlisted in Fort Frances with the Fifty-second Infantry and first went into action in January, 1915, and did not get back here until January, 1919. In one of the actions, according to the story, he was gassed when a gas shell exploded near him, and after a short rest was back in action, so nothing shows on his records as it would if it were in a gas attack that he contracted the injury.

CABMEN FEAR RACKETEERING

Board of Police Commissioners to Investigate Situation in Toronto.

CONDITIONS SERIOUS.

TORONTO, Ont., January 8 (C. P.). — The Toronto Globe in a newspage story to-day states that the Board of Police Commissioners will be asked to investigate "racketeering" among certain local cab drivers, in league with the local underworld.

"So serious is this condition," The Globe continues, "that drivers say they operate in fear of being taken for a 'ride' by these racketeers. In many cases, it was learned, they innocently found themselves implicated in crime just through picking up criminals as fares, to learn in making their runs that they were actually aiding the desperate characters in their work."

The Board of Police Commissioners will meet on January 15 to inquire into police fingerprinting of taxi drivers. In the meantime the fingerprints of those already taken before the order stopping the practice was issued, will be kept by the police until after the meeting of the Board.

FERGUSON GETS WARM GREETING AT LAST BANQUET

New High Commissioner Reviews Record of Administration, at London.

OUT TO AID EMPIRE.

Federal Members Present and Pay Warm Tribute to Ex-Premier.

LONDON, Ont., January 8 (By Jack Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer). —"I am going to do whatever I can to promote intercourse between the Old Land and the Dominion and between Canada and the other Dominions of the British Empire," that is the promise of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, former Premier of Ontario, who leaves in the near future for England, to assume the post of Canada's High Commissioner to London. "I am going to try to increase contacts so that we may be drawn closer together so that each may assimilate the best elements of the other. That, I believe, is the contribution Canada wants me to make to Imperial welfare."

Mr. Ferguson made his last official appearance in Ontario here last night when he was royally feted by the Western Ontario Conservative Association before more than 1,500 persons. With Mrs. Ferguson, he faced eulogies from people prominent in commercial, educational, and industrial life at an overflow meeting which had representation from every county in Ontario.

In a few words, the retiring leader painted a vivid picture of the British Empire as the ideal agency to elevate, improve, and stabilize civilization and to give it competent leadership. Throughout his public life he had striven for a united Canada so that Canada as a unit might make a worthwhile contribution to the Empire, and by so doing contribute to the good of the world as a whole. For the conservation of this Empire, "We have fought and sacrificed in war time, and we should do it now in these strenuous difficult times of peace," he said.

Six Year Old Makes Hit

Little Dorothy Taylor, six years old, of Tiderton, Ontario, provided the feature of the evening when she spoke to Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson. Standing on a table so that she could be seen, the little lassie delivered a short but exceedingly brilliant address in which she eulogized the work performed by the leader on behalf of education in the Province.

Officially representing the Dominion Government, Hon. Hugh Stewart, Minister of Public Works, spoke briefly and told of his lifelong friendship with Mr. Ferguson who had been his neighbor. The new Commissioner had had from his earliest years, the gift, the capacity for public service and to that he had consecrated his life.

Hon. Arthur Sauve, Postmaster General in the Federal Cabinet, and representative of French Canada, paid tribute to Mr. Ferguson's work in bringing into closer harmony the two races in Canada.

Premier George S. Henry, who succeeds the High Commissioner as Prime Minister told of the excellent work he had done for the Province when he was in Queen's Park, and mentioned briefly that he himself would find it difficult to live up to the position which had been so ably occupied by Mr. Ferguson.

Arthur R. Ford, President of the Western Ontario Conservative Association, presided at the meeting. He thought, he said, "that Ontario would not seem the same without Mr. Ferguson."

Following the dinner, Mayor Geo. Hayman of London, presented Mr. Ferguson with an illuminated address and the freedom of the city. Mrs. Ferguson received beautiful baskets of flowers from the city and from the women of Wester Ontario.

BARN IS BURNED NEAR HAVELOCK

Art Coons Loses Horse, Turkeys, Grain and Implements in Blaze.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

HAVELOCK, January 8 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mr. Arthur Coen met with a heavy loss last week when his up-to-date barn, fitted with modern equipment, was completely destroyed by fire. Both Mr. and Mrs. Coon were away at the time, Mr. Coon being in Havelock and Mrs. Coon at a neighbor's.

The fire was well started when it was first noticed. Neighbors succeeded in getting out some of the stock, but there was a horse, seven or eight turkeys, some grain and wheat, and machinery burned.

Bad luck seems to be the lot of the Coon family, as their home was burned on this farm about a year ago. The cause of the fire is unknown, as Mr. and Mrs. Coon had just finished the chores and gone out.

QUALITY IS NEEDED IN DAIRY INDUSTRY

Dairymen Are Urged to Sell the Boarders Which Are in Their Herds.

CORNWALL, Jan 8.—(CP)—Canada's dairy industry will recover from its slump and dairymen once more will be on the road to prosperity when those connected with the industry realize that quality is the all-important factor, J. P. Griffin, secretary of the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, told delegates to the annual Ontario Dairymen's Association yesterday.

Mr. Griffin urged herd owners to keep only profitable stock, using the Scales and Babcock test to eliminate the "boarders" from their herds. He points out that the Canadian farmers successfully to compete with those of nations were production costs are low, must cut their own costs to the minimum.

"The milk producers in particular must get down to business," Mr. Griffen said.

STRIKE BLAMED ON MINE OWNERS

Refusal to Recognize National Industrial Board Whole Cause, MacDonald Says.

SPEECH CAUSES SENSATION.

SEAHAM HARBOR, Ourham, England, Jan. 8.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in an address here last night, threw most of the blame for the stoppage in the South Wales coal fields upon the mine owners.

Speaking on his own constituents the Prime Minister declared the owners had declined to recognize the National Industrial Board. If they had done so, "there would be no cause or fear of a dispute in South Wales" he said.

The Prime Minister's statement caused something of a sensation. He states at the same time that hopes of an early settlement of the dispute were being entertained. It was admitted that his speech would give strong encouragement to the Trade Union leaders.

LADIES' ASSOCIATION HAS SPLENDID YEAR

Total Receipts of Millbrook Church Organization Was $726.10.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 8 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. J. Albert Brown was hostess for the annual meeting of the Ladies' Association of Saint Andrew's United Church, the meeting being held at her home, Tupper street, on Tuesday, at 3 p.m., the retiring president, Mrs. C. C. Garside, taking the chair for the opening devotional and business period.

Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones led in prayer following the devotional reading by Mrs. Brown. The annual reports were the next feature of interest; the secretary, Mrs. F. H. Smith, stating that eleven regular meetings had been held, with a good average attendance, one member had been lost through death, one through removal, and four new members enrolled in the twelve months. There are now sixty-three members of the association. Baskets of Christmas cheer had been sent out to sick members of the community, and greeting cards to shut-ins through advancing years, rather than ill-health.

The treasurer's report was presented by Miss May Duncan, and showed total receipts of $726.10; fifty dollars had been contributed to the church thankoffering, fifteen dollars to the anniversary occasions of the three outside churches of the circuit, while expenses in connection with necessary renovation at the parsonage had totalled $153.40; a new stove cost $16; and taxes were $80.75. At present there is on hand $187.17, with fees received at the meeting of $5.45.

Rev. Mr. Jones took charge of the election of officers, the list for 1931, with an included change of a committee of three taking the responsibility of the president's duties, being: Presidential Committee, Mrs. C. C. Garside, Mrs. J. Albert Brown, and Mrs. J. L. Byam. Vice-President, Mrs. H. Ross Edmunds; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. J. McKnight; Secretary, Mrs. I. M. Nattress; Treasurer, Miss M. Duncan.

Committees will be appointed at the next regular meeting, and the hostess, assisted by some of those present, served ice-cream and cake during the social hour enjoyed at the close. A former president, Miss M. E. Needham, who served efficiently for several years, was warmly welcomed to the meeting on Tuesday.

PRIEST IS ELECTED AGAINST HIS WILL

CONCORD, N.J., January 8 (C.P.). — The Rev. Napoleon J. Gilbert, pastor of the Holy Rosary Catholic Church of Hookset, failed to appear yesterday to occupy the seat in the New Hampshire House of Representatives, to which he was elected on the Democratic ticket last November.

Rev. Father Gilbert is, so far as known here, the only Catholic priest entitled by election to a place in a State legislative body. He was chosen by the voters of the town of Hookset despite his public protest and a refusal to "take part in politics," even to the extent of tendering a formal resignation.

Growing Deaf With Head Noises? Try This.

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to take. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

PILES

Ended Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and McDermid & Jury Bond's Drug Store invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 8, 1931.

A PROVINCIAL DEFICIT.

For the first time since 1926 the Ontario Government reports a deficit, the pre-sessional statement of Hon. E. A. Dunlap, his first since he assumed office as Provincial Treasurer, indicating that ordinary expenditures for the twelve months ending October 31 exceed the Provincial ordinary revenue for the same period by $626,000.

As a matter of fact if the provincial treasury had not been especially well favored in the matter of succession duties—not a stable source of revenue—the deficit would have been a great deal larger for these duties during 1930 showed an increase of $4,600,000 over the previous year.

Hon Mr. Dunlop blames hard times for the failure of revenues to balance receipts, justifying his claim by pointing out that the gasoline tax although bringing in much more revenue than in 1929, fell short by $750,000 of the estimated returns from this source, while other departments also suffered.

The deficit, however, is not due to a falling off in the total revenue for that was $3,303,000 higher than last year, but to an increase in expenditure of $6,979,000 of which election expenses of $56,000 and a contribution to old age pensioners of $2,105,000 formed a considerable part.

The figures are subject to some revision before the Budget is brought down next month but are not likely to undergo any radical changes—at least not to the extent of wiping out the deficit now announced by the Provincial Treasurer.

CANADA'S GREAT EXPLORER.

The Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, which has given Peterborough citizens an opportunity to hear many outstanding speakers on subjects of great interest, has once more placed this community in its debt by making it possible to hear Canada's most famous explorer, Major L. T. Burwash, whose recent flight in search of records of the Franklin Expedition has made him a world figure.

Major Burwash who will address an audience in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall to-night and his subject, "Exploration in Northern Ontario," guarantees an evening of enjoyment and education.

Few people in this country know half as much about the north as does this distinguished Canadian and none know as much about its secrets and possibilities.

Practically all his adult life, with the exception of the years he served in France during the great war, has been spent in blazing new trails across the north.

The Yukon, Baffin Island, the Arctic Coast from the Mackenzie Delta to Hudson Bay, the shores of that great bay itself, the King William Island district are all familiar spots to Major Burwash, who crowned a career of intensive exploration by his famous aerial expedition into the far north last year.

NATIVE WINE.

Manufacturers of native wine in Ontario are sending a delegation to wait upon the Liquor Control Board and urge that the regulations permitting Ontario-made wine to be sold only under permit be rescinded.

The winery proprietors claim that the permit system is a handicap to their business and has resulted in a very marked decrease in the volume of sales.

That may be the case but the request of the manufacturers for the abolishing of the new restrictions is not likely to be acted upon in view of the very reasonable attitude of the Liquor Control Board that it should have the same control over the sale of wines as it has over that of other intoxicating beverages.

Native wine, a drink with a high alcoholic content, has figured largely in police court circles ever since the Liquor Control Act came into force.

Police departments know that it has probably resulted in more charges of drunkenness than any other alcoholic beverage sold in the province.

Its cheapness, the readiness with which it could be attained and its potency, combined to make the Ontario produced wine a source of trouble and the decision of the Liquor Control Board to seek a more direct control of its sale through the permit system was based on a realization on the part of the members of the Board that such a step was necessary in the interest of better conditions.

REAL EMPIRE TRADING.

A recent order-in-council rescinding all duties on tomatoes entering Canada from the British West Indies affords a practical example that trade between two section of the Empire can be stimulated if there is the will to seek the way.

As a result of the lifting of the duties hundreds of thousands of pounds of Bahamas tomatoes are coming into this country and will continue to come during the winter months and until Canadian-grown tomatoes can enter the market, when all imports will be cut off to protect the home producers.

The tomatoes from the Bahamas are said to be of finer flavor and higher in food value than those that this country has been importing from California, Florida and Mexico and equally important from the viewpoint of the consumer can be sold in Canada at prices well below those from the United States.

The tomatoes are being brought to Canada in Canadian National steamships with specially fitted compartments while railway cars built to afford the required warmth distribute them throughout the Dominion.

It is estimated that the imports for the season, which will end April 1 will total between seven and eight million pounds—a sizeable trade indeed and one that is likely to become a permanent winter feature, which every advocate of greater trading within the Empire should welcome.

CANADA AND SOUTH AMERICA.

On February 21 a number of Canadian business men and officials will sail from Halifax on the Canadian National steamship "Prince Robert," bound for Buenos Aires. They will be on their way to attend the Empire Trade Fair in that famous South American city, where Canada will have her own pavilion on the Fair grounds.

This is by no means an ordinary pleasure jaunt, or need not be. For at this time, when all the nations are reaching out for world markets, Canadians can hardly ignore the extremely valuable market offered by Latin-American countries for the products which Canada is in a position to supply.

The trade demands of South America centre largely round manufactured articles, inasmuch as it is almost altogether self-sufficing in respect of food, and is not as yet industrialized to any extent. The three principal products which Canada can supply with advantage are, automobiles, rubber manufactures and farm implements and machinery. Heavy manufactures such as steel builder's supplies, railway equipment, mining equipment and factory machinery also offer opportunities for the Canadian manufacturer and exporter.

Among agricultural implements Canada can furnish South America with farm machinery, dairy equipment, wheels for horse-drawn vehicles and silo machinery. Requirements under the heading of automotive products includes service station equipment, used cars, truck, hardware, automobile electric supplies, accessories and garage equipment.

In the circumstances, any failure on Canada's part to promote trade with South America would be a serious neglect. The field is there, and it will become greater, and if Canadians are not ready and willing to cultivate it, others will not be so slow.—Ottawa Journal.

PAST AND PRESENT BREAKFASTS.

Now with the festive season over, and even the over-indulgent in the recuperative stage, the time seems appropriate to consider the question whether it is wiser to feast or to diet. Those who surrender to the natural instinct are inclined to agree heartily with the old saying, once accepted as an axiom, that a feast is preferable to a famine. They neglect no opportunity to reduce precept to practice and have no compunction whatever in flouting the advice of the doctor or dietitian who prescribes rules, with which however he is not always, personally, scrupulous in the observance. Thereby he acquires a twinge of conscience that escapes the mere layman who continues to vaunt his prowess as a trencher man.

In the years that are now regarded as antique and outgrown the whole, children and grown-ups, assembled together at the morning mead, regarding the laggard with cold and hostile eye, and secretly, often openly, rejoicing at his penalty of cool viands and lukewarm liquids. For in the winter season of northern climates such as our own, steaming platters of savory meats and the appropriate adjuncts were plentiful and distributed with lavish hand. For was it not equally axiomatic that a firm and solid foundation must be laid for the labors of the day, the reserves of the previous day having disappeared during the hours of repose. The theory may have been empirical and unscientific but it left the fortunate subjects well fortified against weather vagaries and inclemencies.

If the proof of the pudding be the preeing o't the offspring of that now remote generation had no reason to cherish fear over what the future held in store. Many of the elders of the present age who grew up and flourished on the breakfast fare of that day are now successful and in some cases famous exemplers and leaders in their various industrial and professional spheres. They stand for the day supreme in their mastery of law, of finance, of engineering, of administration and a dozen other valuable fields of human activity. Even if some of them have yelded to the persuasion or pressure of the younger growth of infallibles, who deny that their astonishing success in guiding civilization through the greatest of revolutions may have been due, in greater or less degree, to the magnitude and quality of the old-time breakfast.

These survivors of the past, with their inherited or instinctive predilection for the good things of life, are now invited to believe to-day that half a cupful of citric juice, a modicum of pre-cooked cereal and a wafer or two of toast form the ideal fare whether a man, woman or child. For have they not been effectively inoculated with the obsessional dogma that the future welfare and prosperity of humanity at large depends on the supersedence of the abundance of the past by the poverty of the present breakfast table. The pity of it is that the veterans of the earlier time may not survive to judge how far the modern consumers of orange juice, cereals and toast compare with their predecessors who recked naught for these substitutes for the good old square meal.

Well, maybe the doctors are right and maybe they are not. There, to be sure, was the Italian who dieted from the age of 40 to the age of 104, when he died. According to his book he lived to this old age because he ate sparingly and "pickingly." The chances are, however, that if he had lived on sausage and buckwheat cakes and things of that kind he would have lived to be 140. Old Parr of England lived to that age and ate what he wanted at every one of his meals, the number of which you can obtain by multiplying 365 by 140 by 3, making due allowance for leap years. The expert gets his fee for telling one how to dine. He also intimates that if you don't diet the undertaker soon will get his fee. However, there are a good many of us willing to take a chance and in the winter season of good things to eat take full advantage of the opportunity.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Every reeve, except one, who faced the electors in Wellington County was defeated. That might be described as a real landslide.

Another western meeting has approved of a resolution favoring secession. Such motions, however, do little to solve the wheat problem.

BURNING BEAUTY
By TEMPLE BAILEY

"You must forgive him," Virginia apologized, "he isn't himself. He's a dear ,usually. Things have upset him."

"Don't weaken him by being sorry for him," Michael advised.

"But I love him," she said simply yet with a passion which silenced his arguments.

"It is something," Michael said in a moved voice, "to be loved like that."

They had come to the edge of the grove to where the river stretched before them in a shining flood. Rickey was so far ahead that he was hidden by the curve of the shore.

Michael stopped and looked down at Virginia. "No one," he said, "has ever loved my weakness as well as my strength."

Her eyes raised to his, "Not your mother?"

"She died when I was a child."

"Was there never anyone else?"

"There was my wife.She never loved me."

"Oh—" In the white moonlight he saw her face with a sort of divine pity on it. "I'm sorry—"

He lifted her hand and kissed it. And he knew in that moment what in all the years he had yearned for—someone to be sorry.

He held himself from further demonstration. He must not go too fast. She had drawn back a little when he had caught up her hand. Yet he had not offended her. He was sure of that. He glanced down at her and saw that her face was turned up to the sky. Aware of his glance she said, with quick-drawn breath, "I love these nights—with the river singing—do you ever hear the river sing—?"

"I hear Pan—pipe—"

"It's wonderful, isn't it?"

"Wonderful."

He told her then a little of his boyhood. "I'm always telling myself that I'll get away from cities. It's strange that men who love the sea, the mountains, the desert, are content to shut themselves up in offices. Think of what life might be out-of-doors, if one dared risk it? Yet I spend my days being looked after by my secretaries and my Japanese servants, and going from my desk in a sky-scraper to my desk in a cliff-dweller apartment. If one only had the courage . . ." .

He stopped there. He must not—he must not. Why, he would be asking her before he knew it to sail the wide seas with him, to go out into the desert . . .!

Out of a long pause, he said, "What shall we do about the candlesticks? I am afraid if I keep them you will still be thinking of me as—Judas."

"Oh, no . . . And you'd better not give them back. Rickey would hate that.'

"Rickey," he said, with a note of impatience, "do you ever think of anyone but Rickey?" Then as he caught her little cry of protest, he added: "Forgive me."

Yet often in the months to follow he was to ask that question: "Do you ever think of anyone but Rickey?"

Sometimes he was to ask it with the desperation of despair. He was yet to learn that strength is always at the mercy of weakness. That Virginia Oliphant was of the stuff which braves storm and wind at the cry of a child or the bleat of a lamb.

When they reached the house Rickey stood waiting for them on the steps. "I think," he said, his head high, "that I owe you an apology, Mr. McMillan. I was in a beastly mood."

Michael knew then, as he was often to know afterward, the disarming effect of Rickey's charm. The boy had his arm on his sister's shoulder, and as he spoke he drew her toward him. Standing there to-gether in the moonlight, they seemed to embody all that was youthful and inspiring. Michael felt old and world-weary beside them.

"Why remember anything," he said smiling, "that is unpleasant?"

He hoped Virginia would invite him to come in but she did not. So he said good-bye and walked away in a tumult of emotion. Why hadn't he asked if he might see her to-morrow night? How could he endure the dragging hours which must intervene until another meeting?

The next morning Michael went to service in the Navy Chapel. He had not been to church for years—not since the day of Helen's funeral. The affair of the funeral had been one of great pomp and ceremony. Helen's family had insisted that it should be so, and nothing had been omitted which would add to the effect. The casket had been covered with a pall of pink roses, there had been candles on the altar, a surpliced choir singing celestial music. And Michael had looked on and had not shed a tear. He had been called cold-hearted. But what he felt had been too deep for tears. He could not weep for that which he had lost. For he had lost Helen long before the passing of her physical presence. Their married life had been a failure. It had been, perhaps, as much his fault as hers. She was born to dominate, and he would not be dominated. From the beginning the battle had been that of strong personality against strong personality. Several times they had faced the chaos of separation, but had been held together by their mutual distaste for publicity. Then Death had given them their divorce. And that had seemed the end of it. But had not been the end, for Michael had known himself disillusioned. If not a hater of women, at least indifferent. He felt that he could not bear a second time the hurt which had come to him through Helen.

That morning in the Chapel, however, his thoughts went forward to the days before he had known his wife. To the days when he had sat in church beside his mother—that little lady-mother of his, poor in worldly goods, but rich in spirit-possessions. A beautiful, beautiful lady-mother. He rarely thought of her without an ache in the throat and a wearing at his heart. Helen's family toasted of its blue blood, but it was blood bhich ran thin and cold. His mother's forbears had been Huguenots—gallant and God-fearing gentlemen, sons of gentlemen, but not afraid to work with their hands in the new country which had given them refuge from persecution.

And who was he to come after them? A money-getter. Material-minded. A sophisticate. In the eyes, indeed, of these gallant and God-fearing gentlemen, a sinner? Yet he felt that his mother would have found excuse for him. She would have known the stress of soul of the child he once had been.

A visiting bishop spoke and what he said was soul-stirring. Gathered in the pews were the midshipmen, slender, steel-strong youths, who were some day to lead the men who would defend their country's honor. The great window above the chancel showed an illumined Christ walking on the sea—on the windows to the right and left in memory of famous admirals, triumphant angels lifted golden wings. The whole atmosphere was one of faith in an unseen world. But Michael had lost faith in everything. He asked nothing of life except the day's work, the right for place on the ladder of success. He had won his place, yet he had not followed the light which had guided his boyhood. His mother had held aloft a torch, and he had thrown it down.

Yet with Virginia Oliphant—might he not lift again the torch? It seemed to him as if in the golden space about him, Virginia's spirit hovered. He remembered the things which yesterday, when he had listened from behind his screen of vines, he had heard her say to her brother. So his mother had talked to him. So such women spoke to the men they loved.

He left the church in a mood of exaltation, and came back to his hotel for luncheon. He had resolved to see Virginia that afternoon, or perhaps that night. Surely she would let him come—

It was a bit early, and he sat for a moment in the lounge of his hotel before going to the dining room. And while he sat there, he saw Anthony Bleecker come down the wide steps which led to an outer entrance, stopping here and there to speak to people he knew. At last he reached Michael. "Still here, McMillan?"

"Yes."

Tony dropped down in a chair and lighted a cigarette. "Great old sale, wasn't it? Mother sent word that you're to come to Derekdale for a week-end. She's got a lot of things to show you."

"I'm a busy man."

"Oh, well, you'll find Midget's things worth looking at. She's decided little person. She'll have that sampler from Virginia Oliphant. You'll see—"

Michael's heart jumped at the name but he said nothing.

"Beauty, isn't she?"

"Who?"

"Virginia Oliphant."

Michael didn't want to discuss her.

Tony went rambling on—"I'm to have supper with her to-night in the old kitchen. I'm rather keen about it."

Michael sat there with an impassive face, but he knew that he hated Tony, hated all his glory and glitter.

He did not go into the dining-room. He went out again and walked for miles, coming to the place where last night he had seen Virginia Oliphant lift her arms to the sun. Oh, all women were alike They looked like saints, but they gave their favors to men indiscriminately. Until yesterday morning Virginia had never seen Anthony Bleecker, and here he was discussing her beauty,lightly, with laughter. Michael could not speak of her without a sense of her sacredness.

He was a fool, of course. He had told himself that before. The sun shone brightly on the river, the gulls flashed against the blue. But for Michael the glory of the day had departed. His heart was dead.

CHAPTER SIX
RICKEY FAILS TO COME TO SUPPER.

To Anthony Bleecker the thought of his rendezvous with Virginia Oliphant held a piquant tang of anticipation. He called it that to himself—a rendezvous. The presence of the brother might be, in a way, a sop to propriety but the whole thing was unconventional— the invitation on such short acquaintance, the lack of chaperonage. The girl was a lady, of course, but there was in it all the promise of gallant enterprise.

He went forth, therefore, on Sunday keen for new experience, light-heartedly expectant. The wind blew and the rain poured, but Anthony striding up the street, was glad of the wind and rain. They added to his anticipation a sense of contrast. These would be the warmth of the old house, the light of the fire, the radiance of Virginia Oliphant's red-gold crown.

He came to the garden gate, opened it, walked up the gravel path and stopped suddenly before a lighted window on a level with the ground. If framed a picture which filled him with astonishment. The room into which he looked was undoubtedly the kitchen. It had been changed little in the two centuries since it had been built. There were the low ceiling, the heavy beams overhead, the brick fireplace, filled with glowing logs. Except for the fire the room was illumined only by a hanging iron lantern, and by candles on a table which was set against the wall, and which had as a centerpiece a bunch of copper chrysanthemums in a silver bowl.

But it was neither the table nor the fire nor the hanging lantern on which Anthony's attention was focussed, but on an old lady whose chair was drawn up to the hearth, and who had for company an infinitesimal and engaging cat. The old lady wore black, with a lace fichu and a cameo brooch. Her gray hair was arranged in what might be called the Queen Alexandra style, with a curled bang held down securely on her forehead by an invisible net. There was a band of black velvet about her throat, lace ruffles fell over hands fragile and heavy with rings.

The kitten was yellow. It lay at the old lady's feet like a bright gold coin. Its paws were tucked in and it was steeped, as it were, in self-satisfaction. In fact the pair on the hearth fairly exuded smugness. Anthony was aware of a distinct sense of disappointment. Here was decorum personified! A chaperone provided to balance his oversanguine expectations! He had thought to see Virginia alone, with the color coming and going in her cheeks himself playing cavalier—and she had checkmated him in this subtle fashion!

Yet when he rang the bell and the door was opened by his young hostess, his irritation fled. The hall was lighted like the kitchen, by an iron lantern, and amid the shadows of the immense spaces Virginia seemed to glow and shine. She was dressed in a straight frock of dull green linen. She wore an absurd little apron with white ruffles, and white cuffs and collar. Her hair was beautiful—even more beautiful than he remembered.

"Am I early?" he demanded.

'On the minute. And the only other guest is here."

"The old lady? I saw her through the window. Who is she? Mrs. Grundy?"

She flashed a glance at him, read his thought. "She's from the Home," she elucidated. "One of the darling gentlewomen who lives there. And she adores little suppers."

'And you had her because she—adores little suppers?"

What To-day Means To You

"CAPRICORN."

If January 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to noon, and from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., and from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The astrological picture indicates that an atmosphere of pessimism and worry will overshadow you January 8th, and it will be a poor time for attempting those things which require clear thinking. Be careful of what you enter into in the way of contracts and agreements!

The child born on this January 8th will have eyes to see the beautiful things in life, and the heart to feel them. It will be unselfish, and ready to be service to the world, in whatever capacity it is most fitted. It will have an extremely well balanced nature, and a great fund of common sense.

If you join the ranks of those whose birthdays fall on a January 9th, you do not expect the impossible of life, but you aim to win through fair play and honest effort, hour share of success and happiness. If anything, you pitch your expectations too low, and are always surprised and grateful when you find unexpected and bountiful returns flowing in. You put other people on pedestals, but you never climb there yourself. Modesty is both your curse and your charm—your lack of self-advertising advances you in certain planes of living and good breeding, but in the competitive world, it is a decided detriment. You do not pull your own strings, when it would boost you to do so.

You give a great deal of love to the world: the love which makes you a friend to the under-dog, and a pal to every child: the love which makes you a loyal and devoted companion; and the passionate love which makes you a glorious sweetheart to the man or woman of your heart. You win through industry and common sense that which others win through a more subtle wit or spectacular brain.

You have very domesticates tastes, and you seek most of your pleasures within the home. Most of your plans and efforts center around your home and those within it. You will never, on your own accord, seek foreign fields.

DULL TRADING TORONTO CURB

Price Changes Are of Small Fractions Throughout General List.

WALKERS QUIET.

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—Idly fluctuating about the level of last night's closing prices, the Toronto Stock Exchange market this morning presented a dull front. Price changes were for small fractions and betokened nothing beyond the fact that the market appeared to have steadied at its old resistance level established before the break of December 16.

Walkers this morning was much quieter, though holding well at 7 7-8, not far off yesterday's high. The oils at midday were unchanged to a minimum fraction lower. Supertest being an exception to the other leaders with a reaction of ½ point under further profit-taking consequent upon reports the expected deal had failed to materialize.

Nickel at noon was down 1-8 at 15⅜. Brazilian up 1-8 at 22 5-8, Ford unchanged at 24, Service Stations unchanged at 32½, C.P.R. up ¼ at 42¾. Bell Telephone off ½ point, Page-Hersey Tubes unchanged at 85.

Dominion Stores, lower in recent sessions, recovered a point to 15½. Consolidated Bakeries was unchanged at 9.

FRANCE, U.S., GOLD CONTROLLERS MUST REALIZE RESPONSIBILITY BEFORE STABILITY BE REACHED

Royal Bank Head Claims Neither Country Perfected Central Banking Machinery.

CANADIAN RECORD A CREDIT.

Approves Agricultural Credit Corporation—Mixed Farming in West.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 8—(CP)—"Abnormal credit conditions during 1928 and 1929 must be held primarily responsible for initiating the present world-wide depression," Sir Herbert Holt, President of the Royal Bank of Canada, stated at the annual meeting of the bank here today. High money rates had their inevitable effect of depressing business and paralyzing development and in many countries economic and political structures had been weakened to such a degree that it was necessary for them to receive assistance in the shape of foreign loans before their purchasing power could be restored, he said.

U S.-France In Control

"The concentration of 60 per cent of the world's gold supply in the United States and France has placed the potential control of the world's price level in the hands of these two countries," Sir Herbert said. "Neither country has perfected its central banking machinery to the point where such control can be made promptly effective, and I fear that neither country has fully realized its duty in this respect to its own citizens and to the rest of the world. Until this responsibility is fully understood, or until there has been such a re-distribution of gold as to leave other countries in a less helpless condition, the world can never attain that stability which business has every right to expect."

However, corrective forces were at work which would re-establish the flow of international credit and restore the volume of world trade, Sir Hubert said. The present interruption in the normal trade relations was not going to persist. "Business and industry have maintained a surprisingly satisfactory volume of activity in Canada as compared with other countries. The stability of our great industries and the strength of our financial institutions during the past year constitute a record which we may view with pride. It is this stability which is the basis of my optimism concerning the future," the veteran banker added.

Conditions Reviewed

Sir Herbert reviewed conditions in various industries. In connection with newsprint, he said that its present situation was the result of "unwise over-expansion," and he advocated the prohibition by Provincial Governments of any further installations until the demand caught up with the present supply. Governments should insist that all Canadian companies operate at the same percentage of capacity, he suggested.

He advocated co-operation and elimination of wasteful competition in regard to the railways. It was vital that the railways be not hampered by any reduction in rates or increase in taxes which would interfere with financing and maintenance of high operating efficiency. Over-expansion was threatened in hydro-plants, and it was important that future developments be authorized only as demand warranted, he said.

He suggested formation of an agricultural credit corporation to assist farmers to purchase cattle, sheep and hogs, was approved by Sir Herbert. He advocated that the West should be less dependent on the production of grain, substituting mixed farming. Increased use of fertilizer as a means of ensuring stable results would aid the farmers, he said, adding that experiments had demonstrated that fertilizers properly used would increase the yield of wheat by eight to ten bushels per acre. The development of Canadian livestock industry had not kept pace with the general increase in production, and Canada was actually importing considerable amounts of butter, mutton, beef and pork, Sir Herbert said. An opportunity existed for greater profit by diversification.

"The results of the Imperial Conference are naturally disappointing to the overseas Dominions. It was too much to expect that a ready-made proposal would be acceptable to Great Britain," Sir Herbert said. "Her trade with the outside world is relatively much more important to her than is the case with the Dominions, but proposals put forward by the Canadian delegates involved a principle rather than a plan and in spite of whatever dificulties must be overcome in order to arrive at a common basis of agreement, this principle is one which should command serious consideration."

Revenues Present Difficulties

In connection with Government finances, Sir Herbert said that the Dominion Government was confronted with grave difficulties due to falling revenues. "While I am in favour of many of the appropriations which are being made for public works, such as roads and bridges, there is special need for wise economy in Governmental expenditure at this time."

C. E. Neil, vice-President and Managing Director of the bank in his address also discussed world depression and the relation of the price level to gold supplies and central bank policy. Only the return of normal international financial relations would end the present depression, he said, advocating a conference of the leading financial powers to formulate a plan whereby countries in need of financial assistance could tap the surplus supplies of New York and Paris. Failing this he suggested that British interests should undertake the assistance on their own account by the formation of a syndicate with substantial capital which would borrow money in France and the United States and re-lend it to countries which were urgently in need of new loans in order to restore them to financial health.

Mining Market Moves in Irregular Manner During Forenoon Session.

GOLDS ABOUT EVEN.

Oil Stocks Are Dull, Imperial and Chemical Research Lose 10 Each.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8. (CP)—The mining market moved in an irregular manner during the forenoon session to-day. Base Metals were conspicuously strong, while price changes in other groups were tied. Volume fell off.

International Nickel, Noranda and Hudson Bay declined losing 10, 40 and 10 respectively. In the Base Metals, Waite Ackerman was up 5, Northern Canadian Mining and Smelting 1, and Gem Lake 2. Amulet showed no change at 35. Lindsleys were mixed, Ventures up 3, and Sherritt-Gordon 1, while Sudbury Basin was off 5, at 75.

Gains and losses in the golds were about even, and activity in the group declined. Mining Corporation went up 2, Wright Hargreaves 2, Granada Rouyn 5, Hollinger 10, and Dome 5. Sylvanite lost 1, Barry Hollinger 1, Lake Shore 20 and Vipond 1. Kirkland Lake held unchanged at 63.

Oil stocks were dull. Imperial and Chemical Research lost 10 each, while Nordon went up 4, the Petrol 2, and Ajax 1. International Petroleum revealed no change at $15.00.

SUGAR ISSUES CAUSE UPTURN AT NEW YORK

News of Agreement With Central European Producers Favorable to Trading.

MARKET IS DULL.

Recent Speculative Stirrings in Gold Mining Shares Reflected in Group Advance.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. (CP)—The stock market was sweetened a little by the sugar issues to-day, just as it seemed to be turning sour.

The list was inclined to sag during the early trading, but pivotal issues were well supported, and news of an agreement with central European sugar producers caused a sharp upturn at midday in the long depressed issues in this group.

The market was extremely dull, and failed as a whole to make much progress in either direction. In sugars, the Great Western shares, American Beet Sugar, South Porto Rican and Cuba Co. gained 2 or more. American Sugar rose 5. Guantanamo rose from ⅛ to 1⅛. In the steels, U.S. and Bethlehem fluctuated narrowly, but the Republic issues were again firm, and Gulf States rose 3. The International silver issues were strong, the common rising 5. The recent speculative stirrings in gold mining shares was reflected in a 2-point gain in homestake. The locomotive issues were firm, and American Water Works, Columbia Gas, Union Carbide, and Drug gained a point or two. Declines of a point or two were numerous during the morning and were only partly recovered later.

ROAST OF BEEF CAUSES FIRE ALARM.

A roast of beef yesterday noon caused the Fire Department a run to 48 Aylmer Street. The roast found the oven too hot and it began to burn, filling the house with smoke. In alarm, the housewife summoned the fire-fighters. Although no chemicals or other apparatus was required, it is needless to say that the roast was a total loss.

OLD DOCTRINES ARE RE-AFFIRMED IN THE PONTIFF'S ENCYCLICAL

Scores Companionate Marriages

He re-affirmed in the strongest terms the church's stand against sterilization and "such modern travesties as trial, companionate or short-term marriages." Branding such practices "grave sin" and specifically calling abortion "murder" the pontiff flayed in scathing terms those who would limit children.

The practise of sterilization of the physically unfit is proclaimed to be against the law of God. The unfit, the Pontiff admits, should be dissuaded from marriage but he maintains that the body of every man is sacred and that public magistrates can be given no power to harm the body's integrity except where a grave crime is concerned.

In dealing with birth control, the Pope referred to the Lambeth Conference of last summer and declared: "Since openly separating from the uninterrupted Christian tradition some recently have judged it possible to solemnly declare another doctrine regarding this question, the Catholic church condemns all such practices as 'against the law of God and nature.'

The Pope's encyclical brands all those indulging in contraceptive practices "with the guilt of a craven sin.' Any circumstances such as health or economic conditions do not constitute an excuse, he maintained.

In support of his assertions the pontiff quoted St. Augustine, who in such cases called a woman "a mere mistress of her husband," and a man the paramour of his wife.

Remedy for Divorce

The encylical sets forth lengthily Catholicism's teachings against divorce and as a principle remedy for many existing evils the Pontiff proposes fidelity to religious life on which alone can be built fidelity to the marital obligation and to tradition church teachings.

While not mentioning sexual education, the pope discountenances, "exaggerated physiological education". He stresses at length the need for preparation for married life, declaring "it cannot be denied that the basis of a happy wedlock and ruin of an unhappy one is prepared and set in the souls of boys and girls during the period of childhood adolescense.

The encyclical asks adequate state laws touching upon the state and family, saying that the religious and civil powers should co-operate therein.

Citing the words of the apostle: "Let women be subject to their husbands as to the Lord, because the husband is the head of the wife, as Christ is the head of the church," the Pontiff denies that this enjoins obedience to her husband's every request, or that it implies that the wife should be put on a level with minors to whom it is not customary to allow free exercise of their rights on account of their lack of mature judgment, or of their ignorance of human affairs.

"If the man is the head," says the Pontiff, "the woman is the heart, and as he occupies the chief place in ruling, so she may and ought to claim for herself the chief place in love.

"This subjection of wife to husband in its degree and manner may vary according to the different conditions of persons, place and time. In fact if the husband neglect his duty, it falls upon the wife to take his place in directing the family."

The encyclical proceeds to a discussion of divorce, quoting a number of ecclesiastical authorities in their development of "the word of the Lord: 'What God had joined together let no man put asunder'."

"Experience has taught," the Pontiff says, "that unassailable stability in matrimony is a fruitful source of virtuous life and of habits of integrity. Where this order of things obtained, the happiness and well being of the nation is safely guarded. As the families and individuals are, so also is the State. For a body is determined by its parts."

The encyclical says further, "These parties, let it be known, not fettered but adorned by the golden bond of the Sacrament, not hampered but assisted, should strive with all their might to the end that their wedlock, not only through the power and symbolism of the Sacrament, but also through their spirit and manner of life may be and may remain always the living image of that most fruitful union of Christ with the church, which is to be venerated as the sacred token of most perfect love."

Taking Middle Course.

After detailing the influences of this modern day which tend to degrade and belittle the marriage sacrament, the encyclical declares: "Not all the sponsors of these new doctrines are carried to extremes of unbridled lust. There are those, who, striving as it were a middle course, believe, nevertheless, that something should be conceded in our times as regards certain precepts of the divine and natural law. But these, likewise, more or less willingly, are emissaries of the great enemy who is forever seeking to sow cockle among the wheat."

After many paragraphs devoted to the indissolubility of marriage the encyclical proceeds to a discussion of the more modern forms matrimonial union. "The evil of this (modern) teaching," the encyclical says "is plainly seen from the consequences which its advocates deduce from it, that generative power that is grounded in nature itself is more sacred and has more wide range than matrimony and hence may be exercised both outside as well as in the confines of wedlock, even though the purpose of matrimony be set aside, as those who suggest that the license of a base fornicating woman should enjoy the same right as the chaste motherhood of a lawfully wedded wife

"Armed with these principles some men go so far as to concoct new species of union, suited, as they say, to the present temper of men and the times which curious new forms of matrimony they presume to label, 'temporary,' 'experimental' and 'companionate.' "These offer all the indulgence of matrimony and its rights without, however, being indissoluble, and without offspring, unless later the parties alter their cohabitation into a matrimony in the full sense of the law."

The proponents of these marriage forms, the Pontiff says, "do not seem to suspect that these proposals partake of nothing of the "modern" culture in which they glory so much, but are simply hateful abominations which beyond all question simply reduce our truly cultured natures to the barbarous standards of savage people."

Proceeding to explanation of the evils opposed to reach of the benefits of matrimony, the Pontiff considers first "offspring which many have the boldness to call the disagreeable burden of matrimony."

They say, the Pontiff comments, that children are "to be carefully avoided by married people. Not through virtuous continence (which Christian law permits in matrimony when both parties consent) but by frustrating the Marriage Act. Some justify this criminal abuse on the ground that they are weary of children and wish to gratify their desires without their consequent burden.

"Others say they cannot on the one hand remain con tent nor on the other can they have children, because of the difficulties, whether on the part of the mother or on the part of family circumstances.

"But no reason, however, grave, may be put forward by which anything intrinsically against nature may become conformable to nature and morally good. Therefore, since the conjugal act is the same designed primarily by nature for the begetting of children, those who in exercising it deliberately frustrate its natural purposes sin against nature and commit a deed which is shameful and intrinsically vicious.

"Small wonder therefore, if the holy writ bears witness that the divine majesty regards with greatest detestation this horrible crime and at times has punished it with death, since, therefore, openly departing from the uninterrupted Christian tradition some recently have judged it possible solemnly to declare another doctrine regarding this question.

"The Catholic church, to whom God has intrusted the defense of the integrity and the purity of morals, standing erect in the midst of the moral ruins which surround her, in order that she may Preserve the nuptial union from being defiled by this foul stain, raises her voice in token of divine ambassadorship and through our month proclaims anew:

"Any use whatsoever of matrimony exercised in such a way that the act is deliberately frustrated in its natural power is an offense against the law of God and nature, and those who indulge in such are branded with the guilt of a grave sin."

"The encyclical goes into some detail into contraceptive method "but another

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—Prices to country shippers for fresh eggs were steady yesterday on the local market, with the exception of seconds, which were 2c lower, but quotations to retailers were from 1c to 3c lower than the greater reduction being made on the top grades. Shippers were quoted 32c for extras, 28c for firsts, 20c for seconds, and 24c for pullet extras, while retailers were offered supplies at 40c for extras in cartons, 38c for extras loose, 33c for firsts, 29c for pullet extras and 25c for seconds loose.

Poor Consumption

The demand for eggs has been very poor lately, and receipts have been getting heavier, but, though prices to country shippers and retailers have been lowered considerably, prices to consumers have not been reduced to any extent in proportion, which has been mainly responsible for the weak situation. Lower prices to the consumer would undoubtedly stimulate consumption, and there does not seem any reason why prices should not be lowered.

Brokers were quoting 37c to 38c for fresh extras, 32c to 33c for firsts, 28c for pullet extras and 24c for seconds, graded and in free cases, and candled out of storage eggs at 26c for extras and 24c for firsts.

Butter

The ull in the butter trade did not show any signs of letting up yesterday, and few sales were made. But prices were slightly higher than previously quoted at 31c to 31½c for No. 1 and 30c to 30½c for No. 2. Some were asking 32c for good lots of No. 1, but were unable to secure it. None of the larger buyers seemed interested in large offerings, but brokers stated that this was usual after a heavy buying spell. The general opinion was that the market was due to reach higher levels in the near future, and the basis for this opinion was reports of stocks procurable.

Cheese

The cheese market showed a better tone and prices were ¼c higher to shippers at 13½c for new large, 13½c for twins and 13¾c for triplets. Dealers believed that buying would be better during the next few days and prices accordingly higher.

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—Ample offerings of fresh eggs featured yesterday's dairy market here, with prices slightly easier, in spite of continued cold weather and snow, which was expected to firm quotations. Top grades of Ontario fresh eggs were a cent cheaper at 37c for extras, 31c for firsts, and 30c a dozen for pullets. British Columbia eggs were unchanged. The cold weather and heavy snowfall is expected to tie up to a certain extent the sources of supply during the next few days, with a consequent rise in prices.

The butter, cheese and potato markets were generally firm. Butter was steady at 31½c for prime Quebec. Cheese receipts were light, and a good demand for colored, making prices a cent higher at 12c to 12¼c, with white a cent cheaper. Maritime sources of potato supplies reported little movement, but prices were unchanged locally.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—Indications that corn was being locked up in cribs on farms, and that immediate larger supplies from rural sources appeared unlikely, hoisted all grains yesterday with offerings to arrive meagre, and only at prices above the market. Corn jumped to the highest point in weeks, 8c higher than a week ago. Advances were in the face of brisk profit-taking.

Corn Closes Unsettled.

Corn closed unsettled, 7-8c to 1¼c above Tuesday; wheat 3-8c to 1½c up; oats at 3-8c decline to 3-8c advance, and provisions 32c to 37c higher.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 8. — Strong advances in Chicago corr prices, and subsequent short covering in wheat gave impetus to wheat prices here, and values at the close showed gains of ¾c to ½c over Tuesday's close. Pit trading was largely local, however, with no particular feature to the class of buying.

Export trading was of a minus quantity and did not constitute a factor in trading.

Cash grain trading was at spreads of from ¼c to ½c better with only a moderate demand.

CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, January 8 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The feature of the regular meeting of Lodge No. 248, I.O.O.F., Campbellford, held on Tuesday evening, in their rooms in the Ferris Block, was the initiation of three new candidates to the Order.

After the degree work, and in connection with the contest which is being staged between the two sides, the Reds and the Blues, the Blues were elected to provide for a supper. This was indulged in after the meeting at the Clifton Tea Rooms, with the Vice-Grand, Bro. George W. Lucy, in the chair.

After the splendid repast an impromptu program was staged and several of those present were called upon to address the gathering, which they did in good style.

The battle between the Reds and the Blues is still in full swing, the contest being one to increase attendance and membership, and up to date the result has been very successful.

OBITUARY

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 8. — (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.)—The funeral of the late Catharine Clark was held on Tuesday afternoon from the family residence, Front street, the Rev. R. C. Tait conducting the service. The pallbearers were, Ray McCulloch, Douglas Rutherford, William Macoun, Ivan Labrash, Eddison Wynn and Edward Stanbury, and the flower bearers were Hugh Todd, David Durram, Walter Clark and Thomas Tait.

The late Miss Clark, who died on Sunday, January 4, in her 24th year, was born in the district, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Clark, of Campbellford. She has been in ill health for the past year and a half. Very popular in the community, her passing will be felt by her many friends and relatives.

Besides her parents, there is one brother surviving, James, on the farm in Seymour, and three sisters, Bertha at home, Hester a nurse in Toronto, and Mrs. Chas. Goodman of Port Hope.

Mr. Harold Hoar, of Toronto, a friend of the family, and Mr. Charles Coleman, of Port Hope, were among those who attended the funeral.

Interment was made in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

RESCUE PARTY REPORTED SAFE

Trio Seeking Kingston Men Forced to Shelter Three Days on False Duck Islands.

HUNT IS VAIN.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 8 (C.P.).—Just when hope for their safety was almost abandoned by many, word was received here this morning from Amherst Island, that Stanley Fairbanks, Russel Wemp and Walter Rikley of bath, who went out on Sunday in search of Capt. Sheridan, Cecil Phillips and Anthony Kane, are safe and sound on Amherst Island, having been on the False Ducks Island since Sunday. Hope, however, has been given up for Sheridan, Phillips and Kane, of whom not a sign has been found since they disappeared from the Main Ducks on Friday, except for the finding of wood and cushions, identified as coming from Phillips' boat.

Halted By Storm.

Stanley Fairbanks, by long distance telephone this morning, stated that when he, with Kemp and Rikley, set out on Saturday night to search for the three missing men, they made for the Main Duck Islands, but on Sunday morning were forced to take to the False Ducks, about five or six miles west of the Main Ducks. On the False Ducks there is only a lighthouse and very little of anything else. The three men slept in the lighthouse on Sunday, and as the lake was very rough and a high on-shore wind blowing, it was impossible for them to leave in their small craft, and they were forced to remain there until yesterday when they set off for Amherst Island

Fairbanks stated that he saw not the slightest trace of Phillips, Sheridan and Kane, or their boat, and the conviction now is that these men lost their lives. The tug Salvage Prince returned late last night, after searching the entire district about the Main Ducks and False Ducks and not the slightest trace has been found of the men.

NATIONS WARNED OF RUSSIA'S PLAN

Those Buying Soviet Goods Aiding to Finance Revolution, and Dictatorship.

SCHEME IS WAR MACHINE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8. (CP)—In a special cable from London to the Toronto Globe to-day says:

"The President of the Bureau of the International Entente against the Third International has issued a serious warning to the nations of the world, through the Geneva press, against Russia's five-year plan. His pronouncement says in part:

"The question of trade with the U.S.S.R. is now occupying public opinion, and it seems worth while just now to recall the manner in which we view the question.

"Whoever buys goods coming from Russia helps to provide the Russian Government with the funds which it needs to maintain its dictatorship and to finance revolution, in the purchasing country, as in others; takes advantage of the exploitation of the Russian people and aggravates the shortage of food and other articles of prime necessity from which these people are suffering.

"Whoever sells to the Soviet Government, directly or indirectly, receives in payment money of doubtful origin; contributes to the realization of the 'five-year plan'; a war machine of which the workers will be the first victims, directed against the prosperity of other nations."

BIG PROGRAMS FACE LEGISLATURES MEETING IN NEW ENGLAND STATES

FIGHT LOOMS OVER BILLS.

Legislatures of the New England States convened to-day with extensive Legislative programs before the elected representatives of the people. Briefly, the developments of the opening day were:

The Massachusetts General Court, as the State Legislature is termed, convened its 147th session to-day.

Party lines in the Senate showed 30 Republicans and 10 Democrats. In the House there were 140 Republicans and 99 Democrats with one seat vacant through the death of Representative George T. Keyes of Pepperell. Despite the substantial Republic majorities, the party advantage would not be sufficient to pass a measure over the Governor's veto.

The re-election of President Gaspar G. Bacon of the Senate and Speaker Leverett Saltonstall of the House brought little show of opposition. Committee appointments were the chief interests of both branches.

Nelson Presides.

Christian Nelson of Worcester, senior member of the Senate, presided over the deliberations of the upper branch of the Legislature in the House. Representative Jabez P. Thompson of Halifax took the gavel.

The Legislature was faced with a large number of bills, many of which, it seemed, would provide bitter battles before the 1931 session goes out.

Those proposals that loomed as most certain to provide trouble included changes in the compulsory liability insurance law, Governor-elect Joseph B. Ely's announced intention to seek abandonment of the pay-as-you-go policy, and recommendations of the transit commission regarding certain expensive extensions and improvements in the Boston elevated system.

ONE-THIRD DAY NOW SUNLIGHT

One Minute Now Is Being Gained In Sunlight Every Day

GAINS IN AFTERNOON

Only a little better than one-third of the twenty-four hours that made to-day were hours of sunlight. We had nine hours and five minutes of sunlight and 14 hours and 55 minutes of dark. The sun rose at 7.52 and set at 4.55.

Even at that the length of sunlight to-day was a gain of one full minute over yesterday The gain was made in the afternoon the sun setting a minute later to-day than yesterday.

Each day from now on until June 22 the days will slowly but steadily grow longer. The gains are mostly made in the afternoon the sun setting a minute later each day However, the sun rises about one-third of a minute earlier each morning.

In February the days lengthen much more rapidly, a minute and then two minutes being added on each morning as the sun rises earlier and the same being added in the afternoon. Until by the end of February we will have 11 hours and five minutes of sunlight.

JOHN NUGENT IS 82 YEARS TODAY

Entire Life Has Been spent in Peterborough and Lindsay District

BORN IN OPS TOWNSHIP

John Nugent, known throughout the district as a druggist in this city since 1885, and known to a circle of closer friends as one who has lived as a good citizen and possessing many commendable traits of character, is today quietly observing the 82nd anniversary of his birth, at his home, 586 Water street.

Mr. Nugent's entire life has been spent in this part of the Province, he having been born in Ops Township, near Lindsay. His father, Thomas Nugent, was the first governor of the Victoria-Peterborough Counties jail in that town, and together with George Matthews, served in the "Home Guard."

John Nugent when a young man served his apprenticeship with the Lindsay firm of Coulter and Chambers, and after more than seven years spent in business in Fenelon Falls, came to this city in 1885, opening the fifth local drug store despite pessisimistic predictions of business failure on the part of those who considered the field already well served.

While he has always been interested in business and has made a large connection of acquaintances through that channel, Mr. Nugent is also decidedly proud of and has achieved a high degree in his identification with two societies. He is the oldest with the exception of one local Oddfellow and a member of Court Peterborough Foresters.

In 1923, fifty years after his initiation into the Oddfellows Order, his fellow lodgemen presented him with a diamond studded 'fifty' and suitably engraved.

It is nearly twelve years since he retired from active business life, but Mr. Nugent takes an interest in the current topics of the day.

CENTRAL RELIEF BODY TO BE FORMED

VOLUNTARY ORGANIZATION TO DEAL WITH RELIEF WORK IN PETERBORO FURTHER MEETING ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Organization Will Work in Conjunction With Central Charity Board.

MEETING WELL ATTENDED.

Organization Will Be Formed at Friday Night's Meeting of the Citizens.

The decision to hold a further meeting on Friday night next in the Council Chamber, when a voluntary central organization will be formed to work in conjunction with the Central Charity Board, emerged from the volume of earnest discussion lasting for the major portion of two hours, in which representatives of almost every benevolent and service organization in the city participated, last evening.

Held under the chairmanship of His Worship Mayor Roland Denne, for the purpose of formulating plans for the consolidation of all relief organizations in the city, the meeting provided adequate evidence of the capable manner in which the situation has been tackled in the past few months and of the earnest desire of the citizens generally to provide for all who are in need of assistance, in the future.

The public space in the council chamber was packed to overflowing, and many of the delegates were obliged to find accommodation in the chairs ordinarily occupied by the Councillors. To enumerate some of the organizations represented, there were, members of the Catholic Women's League, Salvation Army, Examiner Relief Fund, Firemen's Relief Fund, Chamber of Commerce, Canadian Legion, Women's Auxiliary Canadian Legion, King's Daughters, I.O.D.E., St. John's Anglican Church, All Saints' Anglican Church, The Big Sisterhood, and several others, as well as many of the Aldermen and members of the general public.

At the outset Mayor Denne explained that the Central Charity Board under the chairmanship of R. C. Braund, has on its representation a member of every church in the city, and that much work has been done in the past year by the Board, and in previous years, and is still being done. Through the means of a card index system a record of every person in need and who has been under the care of the Board, is kept up to date.

"Without exception," said Mayor Denne, "we have in A. G. Metheral, city relief officer, the man best fitted for the job—a man willing at all times to work for the poor. We have with us our needy in good times and in hard times." He thought the present depression is striking a particularly hard blow on the middle class. The Relief Officer has done his utmost to supply the needs of such people, and His Worship suggested to the meeting that it would be desirable if all organizations, including the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, would get together and consult Mr. Metheral, who would be able to give them valuable data on the work.

He was of the opinion that the city has the machinery to carry on and to look after the needs of everybody.

Mr. Braund, who also discussed the operations of the Central Charity Board, stressed the need for the members of each church to acquaint themselves with their representative on the Board, particularly at this time, which he described as being worse than any previous occasion.

James Dutton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, felt that their aim should be for more centralization of their efforts. Referring to the Central Charity Board, the speaker said he did not like the word 'charity.' He would, however, like to hear witness to the spendid work of the City Relief Officer. He thought that the next 2 years will be more or less a period of readjustment to the economic change that is now taking place, and thought that an increasingly large number of people would be in need of help during that period. "There should be a willingness on the part of every organization," he said, "to pool resources." He was in favor of a central clearing house which would curb any desire, on the part of some people to impose, and would also assure that no needy cases were overlooked.

Examiner Relief Fund

Contributing several worthwhile suggestions, R. M. Glover, sponsor of the Examiner Relief Fund, explained that the idea of having such an organization as that run by the Examiner, is that he wished to do anything to assist with the commendable work carried on by the Central Charity Board, which he commented, "Is headed by one of the best officers in the city." He felt that a great deal more would be accomplished by the centralization of the different agencies that now exist, and considered that a lot of voluntary work would cease if the work was left entirely to the Central Charity Board.

Mr. Glover proceeded to speak of some of the difficulties, as he sees them, after close contact in the immediate past with the city's needy people. Particularly did he stress the problem from the angle of the single young man and the transients, who seek shelter in the police cells.

"If we drop our share of the work we are doing at the present time, it will be merely be shifting the responsibility on someone else," he opined.

He paid tribute to the work accomplished by Miss K. McCarthy of the Examiner staff, who he said has fitted women with clothing daily, and done a vast amount of other meritorious work.

In closing, Mr. Glover, reiterated, "my whole idea is one of help, I want to do something to assist the magnificent work being done by Relief Officer Metheral, and, the various other organizations and am of the opinion that a great deal can be accomplished by combined effort.

A. B. Cunningham concurred with Mr. Glover's opinions, dwelling upon the human element. There is certain work he pointed out that only women can do. He also called attention to the fact that the Charity Board is practically a finance committee, and that a need exists for a central gathering place for goods and supplies, which might be sent out to sub-agencies.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, rector of St. John's Church, at the outset of a short address, spoke in appreciative terms of the work which has been done through the Examiner Fund. He considered that under present conditions the Examiner will have to continue that work. Speaking on behalf of the churches, the Reverend speaker, stated that a great deal of work is being done of which the general public have no idea. Several organizations are also working through the churches, he said.

It is not practical he considered for one central organization to handle the distribution of clothing, although he realized that under any other conditions there was the tendency to overlap, that does not matter however, he said, as needy people cannot get too many clothes. The women workers will do a great deal more if thrown upon their own resources, which they would never do if all under one establishment.

"I feel," said Rev. Dr. Blagrave, "that all organizations should co-operate, and that every organization should be in close touch with Mr. Metheral, to ensure that no one should go to bed hungry or cold."

It was moved by Mrs. Kate Morris, a member of the Board of Education and closely identified with social service activities, "That the meeting endorse the principal of a voluntary central organization, to work in co-operation with the Central Charity Advisory Board." It was further moved by Mrs. J. Mills, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary Canadian Legion, that "A meeting for the election of officers, and appointment of committees be held on Friday night with two representatives from each organization, in attendance."

Expressions of opinion were also voiced by Alderman Fred T. Tuggey, Mrs. McClennan of the Big Sisterhood, F. D. Kerr, K.C., vice-president Chamber of Commerce; Rev. J. D. Patterson, rector of All Saints' Church; Mrs. Dr. E. H. Wood, Kings' Daughters; Aldermen G. A. Macdonald, R. S. Cotton and W. Stocker; Mrs. Miles Henry, president Catholic League; Mrs. O'Brien, Catholic Women's League; James Abraham, president of the Canadian Legion; Mrs. Edwards, president of the Women's Council, and John R. Corkery, City Solicitor. City Clerk S. R. Armstrong kept a record of the minutes of the meeting.

AVIATORS READY FOR PARIS FLIGHT

FLEW CLOSE TO WAVES.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 8. — (C.P.)—Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William MacLaren hoped to take off to-day for the Azores. They brought their white monoplane Tradewind here from Norfolk, Va., yesterday on a flight with a "payload" to Paris.

Slight oil trouble developed during the flight, which, ending at 1.35 p.m. (12.35 p.m., E.S.T.), took six hours and 55 minutes, but it was insufficient to hamper functioning of the motor and repairs were expected to be minor. The side of the plane was spattered with oil.

Shortly after the plane left Hampton Roads at daybreak yesterday, Lieut. MacLaren said bumpy winds and occasional rains were encountered. Skies were cloudy, and during the greater part of the flight the ship kept close to the sea, which heaved in mountainous swells beneath them, making a landing impossible.

Mrs. Hart piloted the plane most of the way, MacLaren doing the navigating.

The two aviators did not appear tired after their journey. The plane has the first paid cargo to be taken on a trans-Atlantic heavier than air attempt.

U. S. LAYS PLANS TO HELP CHINA

Double Objective is to Bring Peace and End Existing Depression.

PROBE UNDER WAY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—A definite step having the double object of bringing peace to China and making a practical initial attempt toward overcoming the existing world economic depression, will be undertaken in about ten days, when a sub-committee will present to the Senate committee on foreign relations a comprehensive report which is in course of preparation as a result of months of inquiry and study.

The sub-committee, which was appointed last March under authority of a resolution of the Senate, was created primarily to ascertain the causes of the slump in United States trade with China, with a view to offering recommendations for bringing improvement and thus helping both the Chinese and United States people.

MAN OF THE FUTURE WILL REMAIN CHILD UNTIL 40, EGBURN DECLARES

Chicago Sociologist Predicts Changes In View Of Law and Morality

SEES END OF DEMOCRACY

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—A symposium on "The Future of Man in the Light of His Past," held by the American Society of Naturalists at a joint session with the American Society of Zoologists and the Botanical Society of America, was a feature of the fourth day of the annual meeting of the American Society for the Advancement of Science here.

Three leaders in their respective fields took part in the symposium, Dr. A. V. Kidder, archaeologist of the Carnegie Institution at Washington, gave the views of an archaeologist. Professor William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago presented the views of a sociologist, and Professor E. M. East of the Bussey Institution, Harvard University, spoke from the point of view of the geneticist.

An increasing number of inventions, said Dr. Ogburn, will mean an increasing pace and less peace. It will become increasingly difficult for the growing person to adapt himself to an ever more complicated environment; and so in the future, when the culture shall have grown much bigger and more complex, the problem will be met, perhaps, by prolonging infancy to say, thirty or forty years of age or even longer.

As the society of the future will be one of greater and greater change, the habits of man will keep changing with his changing environment, Dr. Ogburn asserted, and under these conditions morality, as it is now commonly conceived, will have no place. For the same reason it is also inevitable that laws will assume less and less of a majestic nature.

Present-Day City to Go

Factories will be placed on farms and the manner of living among farmersw ill resemble more what it is in cities. Cities will lose somewhat their identity and will be replaced more and more by metropolitan areas.

A still higher development of social organisation will take place, Dr. Ogburn continued. There will be greater organization and development and a simple scheme of political science, such as democracy, will not be so successfully applicable to an actual distribution of power among the varieties of great organizations which the future must develop.

While larger machinery will be collectivized by the social order, he predicted, there will be a variety of smaller machines which will be the personal property of the individual to supplement the bigger machines. Thousands and thousands of new tools and raw materials will be discovered and these will abolish poverty and make every one wealthy.

Birth control will be universally practised, the sociologist said, and this will bring a revolution for women and children. Babies will increase enormously in value. The scarcity of children and the increase in wealth will result in universal education. The plumber will read Aristotle for recreation after he gets done with his few hours of plumbing.

The family organization, Dr. Ogburn continued, will continue to lose in the functions it performs unless some new inventions are made that will bring industry back to the home. The stability of the family he regarded as based on affection, and experience seemed to indicate that affection is somewhat variable, at times even fickle.

Predicts More Divorces.

Separations and divorces are expected to increase even more than at present, particularly in the younger years of married life, he said, but the family will hardly disappear altogether.

"If babies could be grown in bottles, as biologists suggest as a possibility," added Dr. Ogburn, "this would not be without effect on the family. The trends pointed out above would be accentuated.

"So also if the injection of a skilfully balanced proportion of secretions from the ductless glands would at once make a man a Christian, then endocrinologists would replace preachers and the evolution of religion would be profoundly affected.

"But it hardly seems worth while to take time discussing the future of a society where men, say, are produced synthetically in a chemical factory, when the latter event is either so remote or so improbable. Still there is always the contingency that some biologist may come along and upset the predictions of the sociologists; though it seems more probable that it will be an inventor who will do it.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

WORKED TO DEATH.

You have heard the expression 'hard work never killed anybody,' and have been inclined to doubt it, as you think of some friend or acquaintance whose untimely death you feel can be attributed to hard physical or hard mental work.

In regard to hard physical work it is almost impossible to do the body any harm, providing the individual is getting sufficient food and sufficient rest. Given good substantial all-round food and eight hours of real sleep, practically any physical work can be done without danger. Nature will now allow the body to go past its ability, as fatigue of muscles and breathlessness make it necessary for the individual to stop work before the danger point is reached

What about mental work?

As far as real mental work is concerned where you are working out the most difficult problem here also it is believed there is no danger to life.

It is admitted that the game of chess requires as much if not more concentration of mind, or exercise of brain power, than any other mental work.

In experiments on sixteen chess players, amateurs and professionals, the blood pressure and the pulse rate were taken before and after the games, which generally lasted from four to five hours.

The report shows that this deep mental exertion did not increase the blood pressure. Even the most difficult chess problems which took many minutes to solve, did not raise the blood pressure.

However, where, with the mental work, there is anxiety, excitement, some emotional disturbance, the blood pressure does increase. You can see that with the game of chess there was no excitement, no responsibility of any kind, no hurry, no worry, nothing to really get excited about.

The point then is that it is not the mental work that may kill a busy mental worker, but the great responsibilities that go with it.

Responsibilities, worries, or other emotional disturbances affect every process in the body — appetite, digestion, intestinal movement, the liver and gall bladder, the heart itself and also the blood pressure. Repeated high blood pressure is bound to injure the blood vessels and you can only live as long as your blood vessels are able to do their work.

Your ability to keep calm, despite responsibilities and worries, is a wonder and asset in preventing old age and death, whether you were born with it or acquired it by religion or otherwise.

A Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JINGLE'S PIE.

Jingle, the little rabbit girl, who was a twin sister to Jangle, was hopping home from the Hollow Stump School one day. With her was Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, Jennie Chipmunk, Squeakie Eelsie, the cousin mouse and Uffie Iggle, a little girl pig, a sister of Curly and Floppy Twistytail, the piggie boys.

"Aren't you children hungry?" asked Jingle, hopping along as nearly like her Daddy, Uncle Wiggily as possible.

"Why, yes, I'm hungry!" grumbled Uffie Iffie. "Very hungry!"

"So am I" added Jennie Chipmunk, who was a cousin to Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the squirrels.

"I'd love something to eat!" murmured Baby Bunty.

"Then come to daddy's bungalow and you shall have it!" promised Jingle. "I know my mother or Nurse Jane will be delighted to have me bring you all in for something to eat."

"Oh, will they?" asked Baby Bunty, somewhat surprised.

"Surely!" answered Jingle.

"And what are you going to give us to eat?" asked Uffie Iffie, wiggling her funny, little twisted tail.

"Pie!" answered Jingle. "I'll give you all some nice pie to eat."

"That will be lovely!" chattered Jennie.

"But where are you going to get the pie?" asked Baby Bunty.

"I'll ask Nurse Jane to give us one," said Jingle.

"But supposing," went on the little orphan rabbit, "supposing there isn't any pie. Sometimes it's all eaten and there isn't any."

"Then I'll make one!" declared Jingle.

"What?" cried Baby Bunty. "You'll make a pie?"

"Certainly!" answered Jingle calm like and confident. "Pooh! It's easy to make a pie! You just put it in the oven and bake it. Then you take it out and wait for it to cool and you eat it."

"That sounds very easy!" chattered Jennie.

"And I'm sure it will taste lovely!" murmured Uffie Iffie.

"Of course," said Jingle.

"We'll see," thought Baby Bunty. For once she had seen Jingle try to make a cake and, well, the less said about it the better.

But when Jingle led her friends into Uncle Wiggily's bungalow and out into the kitchen, Jingle cried out:

"Hurray! Nobody's home!" Mother and Nurse Jane are out and I can make all the pies I like. I will, too! I'll make a big one. Now you sit there," she told Jennie, pointing to one chair. "And you sit over there, Uffie Iffie, and Baby Bunty will help me make the pie."

"I don't know what to do!" Baby Bunty answered. "And, anyhow, I think, Jingle, maybe mother and Nurse Jane won't like it if we muss up their kitchen."

"I'm not going to muss—that is not very much," said Jingle. "Hand me the eggs, Bunty." It wasn't Bunty's fault and Jingle said it wasn't hers, but the eggs fell and cracked on the floor and the whites and yellows made the kitchen look as if the sun was setting.

"No matter, we have more eggs," said Jingle, laughing. This time Bunty did not drop them, and the eggs were beaten in a bowl. Then Jingle mixed with them some flour and lard and chopped up carrots and a few lettuce leaves. Then she made some crust out of flour and milk, put it on a pan, put on top of the crust the mixed up eggs and other things and, when she had pressed more crust on top of that she said:

"Now the pie is ready to bake." She put it in the oven and said: Now we'll play games until the pie is baked." Pretty soon the pie began to smell. "It's done," said Jingle. She took it from the oven and set it on the back porch to cool. "We'll play more games," she went on, "and then we'll eat my pie. It looks good"!

"Oh, I can hardly wait to eat it!" murmured Uffie Iffie.

But when the games were played, and Jingle went to the porch to take in the pie, IT WASN'T THERE!

"Oh, it's gone!" cried Jingle. "And look!" she pointed to some paw marks in the snow about the back steps. "Some of the Bad Chaps came here and ate my lovely pie! Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"

"Was that your pie?" asked a voice and around the house came hopping Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Twistytail, the fat pig gentleman. "Oh, I'm so sorry said Uncle Wiggily. "I thought Nurse Jane put it out there for me to eat as I came along."

"No, that was my lovely pie I made to treat my friends!" sobbed Jingle. "But was it a good pie, Daddycums?"

"Very good!" said Mr. Longears. "I don't know when I've eaten a better," and Mr. Twistytail said the same thing. "But there must be a treat," said the bunny uncle. "Here, take the children down to the ice-cream store!" and he gave Jingle some money so everything was all right.

WEDDINGS

McNEIL—MARCOMBE

OMEMEE, Jan. 8 (Examiner Correspondence) — The following item taken from the "Alameda Despatch" will be of interest to the many friends of Miss Edna Morcombe who was very popular among the younger set, during the several years she spent with her grandmother, Mrs. Morcombe, Sr., and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Morcombe, King street.

"Old Sol shone his brightest on Tuesday, December 16, forcasting another happy couple many blissful years of married life. This is the wish of the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward McNeil, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McNeill, Alameda, Sask., and Miss Edna Angela Morcombe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Morcombe, Portage La Prairie, who have entered into the holy bonds of matrimony. The marriage took place at the United Church manse at 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning with Rev. F. G. Purchase officiating. The bride was charming in her madeline blue frock of flat crepe with black velvet hat.

Mr. Roy McNeil, brother of the groom, escorted the happy couple.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left by train for their honeymoon trip to Winnipeg and Portage La Prairie at which latter point they spent Christmas with the bride's parents, before returning to settle in Alameda district. The community at large extends every good wish for the future to Mr. and Mrs. McNeil.

Presentation Made At Bailieboro Church

On, Monday morning last, December 29th, the Rev. P. W. and Mrs. Roberts were pleasantly surprised when a number of people, representing Christ's Church, Bailieboro, called upon them and presented Mr. Roberts with a very handsome club bag and Mrs. Roberts with a beautiful electric lamp, as a slight token of the respect in which they are held in that community. They also expressed their regret that Mr. Roberts' all-too-short ministry in this parish had come to an end, but assured him there would always be a warm welcome for himself, Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. Bedward in the home of members of Christ Church, Bailieboro. Replying on behalf of Mrs. Roberts and himself, Mr. Roberts expressed his deep appreciation of the handsome gifts and of the kind words that had accompanied them.

How VIROL builds FOR LIFE

GEORGE POVALL TO-DAY

PROOF that only VIROL can show

At 6½ months, Feb. 8th, 1909, George Edward Povall, 3, Central Fire Station, Salford, Eng., wasted away until he weighed only 6 lb. 8 oz. "He was nothing but skin and bones" (see Photo 1). Then he was put on Virol. On March 9th, 1910, just thirteen months after he was first given Virol, he weighed 31½ lbs. and was the fine healthy baby you see in Photo 2.

Not only did Virol effect an immediate improvement in this terrible case of wasting, but it laid the foundations of healthy growth and development. Since Virol saved his life, George Povall has not had a single day's sickness. He has won prizes for running, played football regularly, and to-day he is a well-built, muscular boy of 18, in perfect health (see picture at top), as the doctor who attended him in his first and only illness has certified in a letter written recently.

But Virol is not only a life saver. Its extreme value to mothers lies in this. "Virol builds up weakly children or children you are "just a little bit anxious about," to really robust permanent health."

SAME BOY WHEN A CHILD

Feb. 8th, 1909. Age 6½ months; weight 6½ lbs. BEFORE TAKING VIROL

March 9th, 1910. Age 1 year 7 months; weight, 31½ lbs. AFTER 13 MONTHS on VIROL

These are guaranteed to be genuine photographs and accurate particulars of George Edward Povall. This and every other case published by Virol, Ltd., are open to the strictest investigation by any Doctor interested.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The question of enamel cloth came up recently over the tea cups when the general discussion was of household problems, and it was amazing the number of uses to which this had been put while others admitted they didn't know what the term meant!

• • • • • • •

The word enamel in its original meaning signified a hard glassy compound that was fused upon the surface of metal. This enamel was opaque or translucent and now it has even been made so clear that the name transparent has sometimes been applied to this type.

• • • • • • •

The first broadening of the meaning was when articles treated with enamel were themselves called enamel instead of just the coating.

• • • • • • •

From this time on the term has gradually become applicable to a variety of things. Teeth for instance are said to have a natural enamel in the hard polished coating overlaying them.

• • • • • • •

A very hard burnished varnish or lacquer finish given to leather, cloth or paper comes under the definition of enamel, and finally there comes a cloth with a finish that is impervious to water and which is pressed onto a textile whether it stiffens the textile or permits it to remain flexible and whether it has a glossy surface or not.

• • • • • • •

This is termed enamel cloth and it is a direct descendent from oil cloth which is sometimes to-day called floor cloth because it was originally intended for a durable floor covering with a pattern that could be used instead of carpet and be less costly.

• • • • • • •

In 1847 a man by the name of Michael Nairn, of England, conceived the idea of mixing oil and cork fibre together with various other less important ingredients in such a way that it could be applied to canvas by a certain process to make a superior and more durable floor than the textile finish minus the cork.

• • • • • • •

Various improvements have been made over this initial process but the principle remains the same, though the names of the finished products are diverse.

• • • • • • •

When this finish minus the cork was so adapted and modified that it could be made thin enough to be used as a waterproof finish for a textile to be used for other purposes than a floor covering, it went by the name of table oilcloth.

• • • • • • •

It was stiff and would crack but to-day it can be so flexible that unless actually creased it does not crack nor does it have a glossy surface, necessarily This the highest grade is termed enamel cloth. It is a labor saving textile for kitchens and bathrooms especially.

• • • • • • •

The uses to which it is put are endless. It is wonderfully well-adapted to cover for tables, and it has been used for kitchen and bathroom curtains. It is a substitute for leather, and in this form it is excellent for the binding of cook books.

• • • • • • •

To attempt to enumerate its uses would be impossible. It now comes in endless attractive patterns even in damask designs although its correct use as a substitute for damask pertains only to kitchen cottage and camp requirements.

• • • • • • •

As it is seen enamel cloth is a superior grade of kitchen oilcloth and it is frequently called by this latter name.

OFFICERS INSTALLED ST. JAMES' W.M.S.

Several Interesting Papers Read By Members at Society Meeting.

An impressive installation service conducted by Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, marked the first meeting of the New Year in St. James' W.M.S. Auxiliary on Tuesday afternoon. The consecration hymn, "Take My Life," opened the service and was followed by prayer. The executive was called forward, installed into their various offices, and addressed by their pastor in a few inspiring words.

The chair was taken at this juncture by the president, Mrs. Moorhouse, who dispensed the business of the day with precision and dispatch.

Left-over business from the annual meeting included the appointment of pianist and auditor, these being Mrs. Sollitt and Mrs. Wagar respectively.

Assistants to Mrs. Plunkett, the Strangers' Secretary, were Mesdames Pife and Sloane. These ladies, together with Mesdames Church, Copson and Wagar also comprise the reception committee.

Mesdames English, Woodley, Church and Miss Kidd form the finance committee under the convenorship of Mrs. Armstrong, Secretary of Christian Stewardship.

Mrs. W. D. Sargent was appointed assistant to the Temperance Secretary, Mrs. Beavis.

Delegates as follows were appointed to the Presbyterial meeting, to be held in Trinity United Church, Jan. 20 to 21. Mrs. Beavis and Mrs. Curtis, with Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Payne, alternates, and Mrs. Plunkett was appointed representative to the Local Council of Women.

The roll was responded to by twenty-five members, after which a New Year's hymn created a diversion.

The past year has been unique in the history of the society, in that there have been three acting presidents. Mrs. Sollitt, second vice-president, gave a short resume of "The year that is over," and brought greetings from the past President, Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon of London, and from Mrs. Woodley, 1st Vice-President.

Reports of an interesting character were presented by the secretaries of the various departments: Treasurer, Mrs. English; Corresponding and Press Secretary, Mrs. Wagar; Strangers' Secretary, Mrs. Davidson; Secretary of Christian Stewardship, Mrs. Armstrong; Secretary of Temperance, Mrs. Plunkett, Associate Helpers' Secretary, Mrs. Church; Secretary of Baby Bands, Mrs. Copson; Supply Secretary, Mrs. Payne; Mission Band Leader, Miss Connie Wagar.

A beautiful devotional reading on The Lord's Prayer, was given by Mrs. Davidson, and provided much food for thought. A brief prayer was then offered by Mrs. Curtis.

A challenge was brought to the W.M.S. workers in the splendid New Year's message by Miss Kidd. "We are not satisfied with the record of last year," said the speaker, "and we promise ourselves that the New Year will be entirely different. But there are few violent changes in the lives of human beings, for New Year's resolutions are but frail things at best; perhaps because they are rather half-heartedly made. Never before was whole-hearted devotion to high principles in so great demand as it is to-day. We must learn that the 'little things' of everyday life are the ones that count. We will be given strength to do the big things, for our task is never greater than His Grace. To bear our burdens without complaint is good, but to bear them as if they were a joy—that is triumphant. Worth-while fruit may be borne only at great cost and sacrifice. The great curse of to-day is selfishness, so our great resolve for this New Year should be to conquer self.

"What if the Master's work is hard? Let us go forward with eager hearts and glad that we are counted worthy to bear great burdens for Him."

This initial meeting with its augury of good things for the future, was brought to a successful conclusion with prayer offered by the President, Mrs. Moorhouse.

JUDGE DISMISSES FREEBURN APPEAL

One Month's Imprisonment and Fine of $200 For Selling Liquor Upheld.

Re-echoes of the Freeburn case which aroused intense interest throughout the district during the past summer, were heard at Lakefield yesterday, when His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke dismissed the appeal of Delbert Freeburn, convicted by Police Magistrate O. A. Langley for selling liquor unlawfully manufactured, and upheld the sentence of one month's imprisonment and a fine of $200 or, in default of payment, a further period of six months' imprisonment.

The appeal, it will be recalled, was heard before His Honor, in the December Court at Lakefield, when Freeburn was legally represented by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., with Norman Somerville, K.C., of Toronto and J. R. Corkery representing the Crown.

It is understood that under the provisions of the Inland Revenue Act, Freeburn has the further right of appeal within fifteen days from the delivery of judgment, and in the interval he has returned to his home at Bobcaygeon, where he is considering the question of lodging a further appeal.

SILVER FOX, MUSKRAT, AND MINK.

Ten years ago the total value of fur-bearing animals on fur farms in Canada was placed at $4,723,105. The industry to-day represents a capital investment of practically four times as much as in 1920. As one might expect, the silver fox heads the list with a capital investment of $14,922,378—an increase of $10,400,000 over 1920. The next on the list is muskrat, with an investment of $562,749, and the third mink with $328,928 invested.

Norwood Combines Win From P.H.C. Juniors 4-3

VOYER SINKS KEMPT'S PASS IN THIRD FRAME TO BREAK DEADLOCK FOR 4-3 VICTORY

"In the Red" at End of Second, Petes Tally Three Goals in Last Frame.

HARD TEAM TO BEAT.

Visitors Play Nice Combination to Keep Foley in Locals' Nets.

That hoary wisecrack which is repeated so often in sport circles, "You never can tell until the last bell is tolled" proved true again last night at the Brock Street Arena when Havelock Combines and Peterborough Hockey Club did battle in a junior O.H.A. fixture.

Alex. Kempt's Combines appeared set in the third period to hand Jimmy McMartin's blue-sweatered athletes a 3 to 0 shut-out when the Peterborough youngsters suddenly went berserk and ran in three goals in a hurry to tie the score. Then the lads from Down-East had nothing else to do, but go out and win the game all over again. This feat they accomplished, but only after a whirlwind tussle, when Kempt gave Voyer a pass in front of the Petes' nets with less than five minutes left to go.

All the excitement was crowded into that final gallop. Up until that time the Combines had controlled the play. In the first period they out-speeded the Petes all the way and grabbed off a lead of two goals. In the second the blue and white put more punch into their work and succeeded in holding the Combines off the score sheet. Early in the third stanza the Combines boosted their count up one and the prospect took on added glum for the Petes' supporters. However, the Petes gingered up and with such success that within little more than ten minutes they had pushed in three goals and knotted the score. Then the battle started for the winning tally with only five minutes to play. A minute later Havelock forged to the front again and they remained there, although hard-pressed by the 'rarin' blue shirts.

Hard Team to Beat

Once more it was evidenced that Alex. Kempt's lads will be a tough obstacle to surmount in the hunt for group honors. Also the game served to show that the same jinx that has been dogging the Peterborough Hockey Club's junior teams for the past five years is still hot on the trail.

The Combines were led by a pair of fast-skating defence men in McLaughlin and Shannon. Not only was this pair's work outstanding in staving off attacks but both were great playmakers and McLaughlin's rink-end rushes were always dangerous. He started the Combines off with their first goal and had a hand in two others.

Good Forward Line

The forward line of Thompson, Voyer and Kempt consistently outskated the Petes during the early part of the contest, and they combined so effectively that Goalie Foley between the Petes' posts was given a busy evening. The alternates also made their presence felt, and Beavis gave a neat display in the nets.

The Petes failed to display much form until they unlossed that third-period attack. Epps, their rangy centre, began to unwind and he several times traversed the length of the rink on solo efforts. McCollough had difficulty in breaking away in the early part but toward the end he untangled himself and engineered some dangerous attacks. His work on defensive was always good, along with that of Wood, who also stepped on the gas toward the end. Jones and Scollard both shaped up effectively on the forward line, and the others all toiled effectively. Foley gave another smart display of net-tending.

The Teams

Havelock Combines—goal, Beavis; defense, Shannon and McLaughlin; centre, Thompson; wings, Voyer and Kempt; alternates, Rathwell, Shearer and Goodin.

Peterborough Hockey Club—goal, Foley; defence, Wood and McCollough; centre, Epps; wings, Tuck and Jones; alternates, Begley, Scollard and Thirnbeck.

Referee—Walter Jackson.

During the first period the Petes failed to shine much, while the Combines combining with three-men offensives and with McLaughlin and Shannon taking a big share in the puck-carrying.

Tuck and Jones combined but Jones' shot missed the open net on Tuck's rebound. McLaughlin led an attack but smart work by Foley foiled the well-manouvered attempt. Epps went down but Tuck missed the rebound. McLaughlin came right back but again Foley proved himself. Thompson went through on top of Foley on a combination play. McLaughlin earned the first goal when he outskated the Petes' forwards, faked a pass to split the defence and waltzed in on Foley.

Edge on Play

Havelock had a noticeable edge on the play and Foley was getting much work. From a face-off at the blue line, Kempt lifted the rubber into the twine for the Combines' second counter. The goal closed the period.

The Petes seised a bigger share in the entertainment when McLaughlin early in the second period drew a penalty, the first of the game, for boarding Epps. Jones went through on top of Beavis. The Petes missed several golden opportunities at the goal mouth. Voyer and Kempt went down together to beat the defence, but Foley out-guessed them. McCollough's shot cleared the nets by two feet after he circled the whole way down. The Petes continued to have a fair share of the play, but with the close checking neither of the teams developed dangerous chances. Most of the Havelock efforts were of a combination nature while the Petes limited most of their work to solo efforts.

With Shearer taking a forced rest at the start of the third, Epps staged a dangerous rush. Scollard was benched and McCollough followed him to put the Petes two short. They held off the attack until Scollard was back and then Thompson snared a goal from a scramble at the Petes' defence.

With the count 3 to 0 against them the Petes seemed to take on new life. Jones went down, but Beavis saved. Jones returned on a combination effort with Wood, and then Scollard and Epps combined to maintain the pressure. The game was held up momentarily while it was disputed whether Scollard had scored or not. Referee Jamkson ruled that he hadn't.

Shearer and Thompson drew penalties, but the Combines were at strength when Epps winged a shot from the blue line into the twine behind Beavis.

Wood and Scollard combined, but the shot was wide. Jones picked up the rubber after it rebounded out from behind the nets and buried it in the nets for the Petes' second goal. Two minutes later Epps shot from far outside the blue line. The puck hit the skate of a Havelock played. Tuck tore in and recovered it and scored.

With the count knotted, both teams speeded into the contest. Forty-five seconds later Kempt and Voyer combined for the goal that won the game.

Both teams appeared rather spent in the remaining minutes' play. The Combines played cautiously while the Petes unsuccessfully tried to pierce their defence.

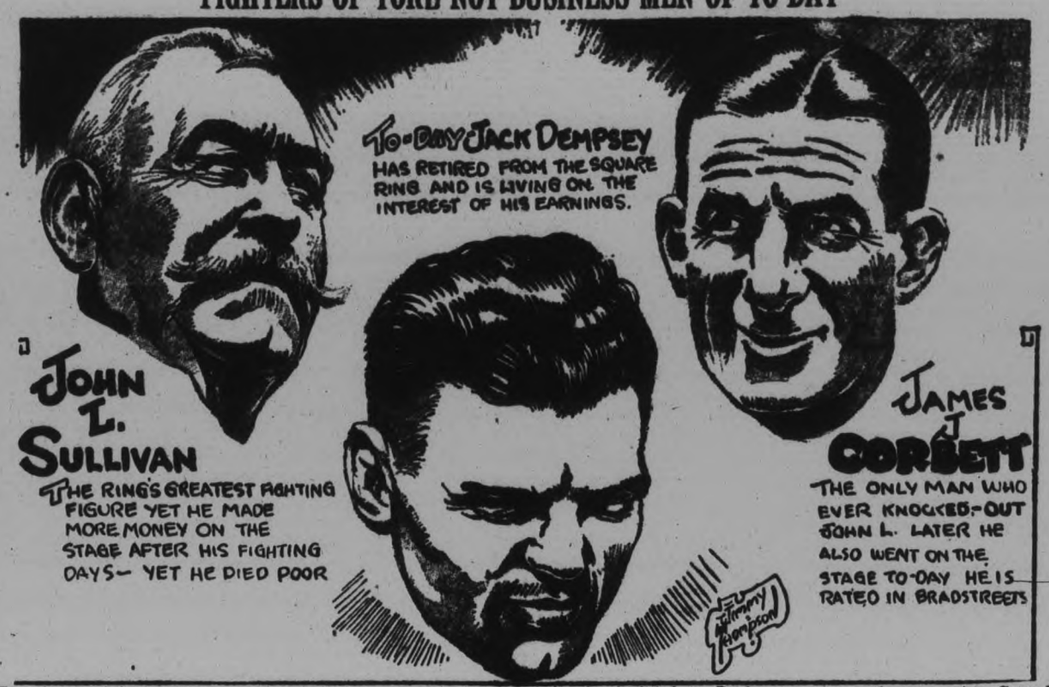
Three Junior Games In South-End League

Three junior games in the South End City League are slated for tonight at the Sacred Heart rink. The Pirates and Canucks take the ice at 6.30, followed by Choates and the Stars at 7.30, while at 8.30 the Pirates come back to do battle with the Electrics.

These will be the first junior games of the league this year and should give the fans a line on the boys—none of whom is over twenty years old.

FIGHTERS OF YORE NOT BUSINESS MEN OF TO-DAY



The fighters of former days were not the business men that the boys in the game today are. John L. Sullivan, the greatest fighter that ever stepped into a ring, lost the only fight of his career to James J. Corbett, the purse for which totalled more than all his other prizes put together, on a winner take all basis. Jack Dempsey made enough out of the first old-timers to make a financial success of his calling and today he is listed in Bradstreets. Jack Dempsey made enough out of the ring to live in luxury on the interest and he is playing ball with some of the sharpest shooters. The leader of them all is beyond a doubt the gentleman marine, Gene Tunney. This Midas of the ring garnered two million dollars in two years and then turning his back on the game, married into money.

MEETING OF SOCCER LEAGUE TO DISCUSS SUBSTITUTIONS

Quebec Clubs Will Introduce Motion At Annual Meeting In Montreal

MAY TRY IT OUT

(Special to the Examiner—Copyright 1931)

TORONTO, Jan. 7—The question of allowing substitutes in soccer will agai nbe brought up at the annual meeting of the National League to be held in Montreal at the latter end of the month. The eastern section of the league will introduce the motion.

This has long been a bone of contention in soccer circles, and in Great Britain, generally, they will have nothing to do with the move, though there is a growing feeling that something should be done to alleviate the distress caused by a team having to play a man or two short when men have been injured.

Last season the eastern section had the same amendment on the agenda, but the western people from Toronto and Hamilton voted it down, but this year there seems to be more chances of success, as those who follow other sports in this country have been getting their views before soccermen, and the Dominion association discussed the matter at their last annual meeting—though without coming to any definite decision.

It is generally understood that the substitution move will come in the form of asking the D.F.A. for permission to use them in one or more competitions rather on the lines of an experiment, and only where the introduction would not interfere with the ideas of other leagues, so there was no clash.

The question is one that has a lot to be said in its favor and if the National league allows it in their own games the experiment will be watched with a great deal of interest by all other soccer bodies. Of course the idea is not to allow a team to substitute at will as is done in many other sports, but only to allow a previously named substitute to take the place of a player who is injured during the game.

Of course this will bring up the question of who is to decide whether the player is injured or whether he is only faking so that some player who is in better condition can be rushed into a game during its dying moments to strengthen the team. This is a matter that would have to be left to the honor of the club concerned and surely the game is big enough for this. The sight of seeing one team play with only nine men against eleven in the final for the Dominion championship as happened in Toronto some years ago is not in the best interests of the game. On that occasion two players of one team had their legs broken and though the team was so handicapped the remaining nine players put up a valiant battle.

Sad Days for Scotland

Fred Kennor in an English publication has the following comment to make on the International situation:

It has been freely stated that the action of the Football League clubs in refusing to release players for International matches reduced this season's competition to a farce. But it is often possible to get lessons from a farce.

Personally, I am glad the situation arose, as it led me to one of the great moments of my life. Because of the "ban," Wales had to meet Scotland with what was described as a "scratch" eleven. I was skipper, and I confess I had misgivings.

We had many young players with no experience of the class of football into which they had been plunged; who, a few weeks previously, could not have possibly have dreamt of wearing a Welsh international jersey. It was, according to the critics, the sort of team which would be beaten by as many goals as the Scottish players cared to score.

But there was no slaughter of the innocents. They stood their ground valiantly, and drew the match at one goal each. Scotland was staggered.

A Football Crisis

Then I wondered if some of us, playing regularly in first-class football, had not taken it rather too much for granted that were miles ahead of the best amateurs or the best players outside regular league football. I can well imagine the result of that match acting as an inspiration to Welsh-born footballers in general.

While the "amazing" result was most gratifying to the "scratch" Welsh side, and those who selected the men, it must have been a sad blow to Scottish pride. It is not my job to "rub it in." But that game, plus other recent results, should have had the effect of rousing Scotland to a sense of her football responsibilities.

The lesson for Scotland, as I see it, is the ancient one that you can't have the cake and the ha'penny too. For years we have been told that Scotland always produced the best footballers. We have had it drilled into us— and managers of English clubs have acted on this drilling—that the cute, the brainy, the skilful, and the subtle footballers came from north of the Tweed. Scores of thousands of pounds have been paid English clubs for Scottish footballers.

Many of these men have been well worth the purchase price. But Scottish football has suffered.

A team of home Scots, representing the Scottish league, recently lost to an English league eleven by seven goals to three. Even in that game two of the three goals credited to the Scottish league were scored by an Englishman.

The moral, as I see it, is two-fold. Scotland cannot go on selling footballers to England and yet maintain the standard of play in the homeland. It seems obvious, too, that the Scot is not such a complete footballer, generally speaking, unless he has experience of the "different" football played in England.

English football is in the ascendant. Scottish football is on the downgrade. I think those must be the conclusions. Whether the migration of the best Scots to England is the main reason I must leave others to judge. But whatever the reason, Scotland must think deeply. Her reputation for turning out all that is best in the football sense is in danger. Scotland must continue to find, train, and develop real footballers. Then England—and, to a lesser extent, Wales and Ireland—will be left with incentive to improve football will be better.

WASPS DEFEAT TECUMSEHS 2-0

Yellow Jackets Oust Londoners From Fifth Place in Standing.

LISTLESS TUSSLE.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8 (C.P.) — After taking a 3 to 1 beating in Windsor on Tuesday night, Pittsburgh's hard-hitting Yellow Jackets came right back at London last night and defeated the Tecumsehs handily by 2 to 0, to oust the Londoners from fifth position in the standing to sixth.

The teams are the products of hockey's two David Harums, as both Manager Roy Schooley of the Yellow Jackets and Manager Roy Brothers of the Tecumsehs, have traded more players than any other mentor in any league.

Schooley's latest machine gives indications of proceeding much higher in the standing. Last night the Wasps clearly outplayed the Londoners in a listless game.

There was no scoring in the opening period, but five minutes after the second frame had commenced, Lloyd McIntyre shot the Yellow Jackets into the lead with a pretty goal. Milt Halliday assured the Smoky City team of victory after seven minutes had elapsed in the final frame by stick-handling cleverly through the London defence for a well-earned goal.

Three Ties Prevail In Ontario League

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8 (C.P.) — Ontario's newest professional hockey league is catching the first place jam prevalent in the old organizations. As the result of the three games played in the Ontario League last night, a tie prevails for all positions, first, second and third.

Oshawa Patricians halted Guelph Maple Leafs, 4 to 2, in a well-played game before a large crowd at Oshawa. The victory enabled the Pats to advance on even terms with Stratford for second place, while the defeat kept the Leafs from moving ahead of the Galt Terriers, who were walloped, 5 to 0, by Niagara Falls. It was the latter team's first victory in four starts, but it apparently was a night of upsets, for the Kitchener Dutchmen also chose to enter the win column for the first time be beating Stratford, 2 to 1.

The Leafs and Terriers with three victories and one defeat head the parade, two points ahead of Stratford and Oshawa.

GREATER COMPETITION THIS YEAR IN AMERICAN BASEBALL LEAGUE

New York Yankees Under Guidance of Joe McCarthy Will Be Strong Contender.

SAYS LOOP PRESIDENT.

(By E. S. Barnard, President, American Baseball League)

CHICAGO, Jan. 8. (CP)—It is with satisfaction that I review the American league season of 1930, not only because the champions of our league won the world series for the fourth straight year and the third straight in my administration, but also because there was more spirited competition in our circuit than there had been for several seasons.

During the first half of the campaign, Washington and Cleveland each wrested the lead from the Athletics while New York always was a threat. Of course, the Athletics maintained a fairly safe lead the last two months of the season but Washington was dangerous almost to the finish, and Connie Mack was compelled to call upon pitchers Grove and Earnshaw in and out of turn in order to preserve the lead.

Although such a statement may be stereotyped, I actually believe that the race in the American League in 1931 will be even closer. Cleveland's young team, which has been strengthened, is sure to be more of a factor. Washington can be depended upon to put up another great fight. New York, under the management of Joe McCarthy, who had a most successful five-year term as leader of the Chicago Cubs, may be expected to be a greater contender than it was in 1929. I also look for Detroit to show marked improvement as a result of valuable acquisitions, and, if Chicago adds some punch to aid its capable pitching staff, it is going to prove more dangerous.

The expected adoption of several amendments to the major-minor agreement should prove of great benefit to the minor leagues and go far toward relieving them from the distress they have encountered as the result of the financial depression and also the obsolete rules under which they were operating. In fact, such adoption afford me the most satisfaction for I am positive the minor league will prove to be the greatest beneficiaries of such amendments.

Four Hockey Games On Church Loop Card

Two midget and two junior games open the Church Hockey League to-night at All Saints' rink If the ice is anything like it should be, fans may expect plenty of action as there are some fast players in this league.

In the midget section, St. Paul's opened against Knox at six o'clock, and are followed at seven by George street and Mark. In the junior section, St. James and St. Andrew's tangle at eight and at nine o'clock All Saints and Mark street strut their stuff.

TORONTO SQUAD MEETS MAROONS FOR 4TH TIME

Canadian Group Leaders Have Won One and Tied One in Previous Tangles.

BRUINS AT OTTAWA.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8 (C.P.)—A smashing drive for the leadership between Toronto and Montreal Maroons at Arena Gardens and an equally potent fight for third place at Madison Square Garden between Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans are billed on to-night's National Hockey League schedule of five games.

In the American group, three teams will be striving desperately for second place honors, first place being safely held by Boston. The latter journey to Ottawa, Chicago clashes with Philadelphia while Rangers and Falcons renew their feud at Detroit.

It is the fourth meeting of the current season between Art Duncan's Maple Leaf warriors and the Maroons. By a strange twist of hockey's fortunes each team has won a game on the other's ice, while the third contest ended in a 4-all tie at Montreal.

On Nov. 18 the Leafs invaded Montreal and shellacked the Maroons 3 to 0. At that time, however, Dunc Munro's hockeyists did not appear headed anywhere in particular. They improved rapidly after that, as their record of coming from last to first place within one month indicates. On Dec. 18 the Montrealers invaded Toronto and beat them 2 to 1. The Leafs were minus two of their youthful stars on that occasions, but made it mighty interesting for their opponents, nevertheless.

The winner of to-night's game takes the lead. Maroons, by winning, can strengthen their hold on the top rung, while the Leafs can leap to the fore with victory by a one-point margin.

While their fellow townsmen are endeavoring to hurl back the Toronto threat, Montreal Canadiens will tangle with the Americans for the third time. The speedy Canucks won the first encounter 3 to 2 at New York, but were held to a one-all tie in the return at Montreal.

Smarting under the humiliating defeat suffered at home on Tuesday when they went down before the Falcons, 6 to 2, the Flying Frenchmen will no doubt show their best in the Manhattan hothouse. Defeat will cost the erstwhile Canadian group leaders possession of third place as they are only one point in the van of Eddie Gerard's flock of Amerks, who have somewhat startled their supporters in recent home games by their willingness to open up and go after goals.

Despite their somewhat mediocre collection of players the A's have the best goal average in their group and Canadiens are faced by no easy task in their effort to retain third position.

While hopes are running high in Ottawa that the Senators have come out of their slump, in view of their recent victory over Philadelphia and tie with Toronto, the Bytown boys point collecting streaks appears due for a break. The Senators entertain the American group leaders in their third meeting. The Bruins won both previous contests, by scores of 2 to 1 and 7 to 3.

Canadian group fans, of course, will be pulling for the Ottawans to continue their improved showing, but the odds appear against them.

The Falcons, with the league's leading marksmen, Ebbie Goodfellow, going in fine form at present, entertain Rangers for the second time. The teams have met twice before each winning their home game, the Falcons 1 to 0, and the Blue Shirts 3 to 0.

Rangers and Chicago are tied for second place with Detroit one point behind. The Blackhawks, however, play the lowly Philadelphia Quakers and are practically assured of the and are practically assured of the two points. Rangers and Falcons will, therefore, likely be battling for third place, and Detroit fan are in for a treat as both teams have flashed brilliant form in recent games.

Belleville Juniors Lose To Kingston 6-2

KINGSTON, Jan. 8. — Kingston Juniors decisively defeated Belleville Juniors in the opening game of the O.H.A. season here last night by 6 to 2, outplaying the conquerors of Toronto Canoe Club almost throughout the contest, which was featured in the last period by a free-for-all, in which every player in the game and a dozen or more spectators engaged.

Belleville, apparently overconfident after their win over Toronto Canoe Club last week, were slow in getting started and at the end of the first period were able to hold Kingston to a one-goal tie. In the second period Kingston broke away and scored a pair of goals, and when the third period opened Belleville played five men on the forward line, with the result that they scored one goal. But their system of playing defense men on the line spelled defeat, for three times Kingston broke away and each time they scored.

CLOTHIERS QUINTET SWAMPS C. D. S. L. BY 61 TO 9 COUNT

CHEV. MOTORS LOSE OUT.

The Men's City Basketball League opened their 1931 schedule with a smart twin bill last evening on the "Y" floor. In the opener, Graftons opposed the Canadian Department Store team and made what at first looked like a close tilt, into a gala field day, winning by a 61-9 count.

The Grafton outfit found the going rather hard in the opening minutes and Swartz drew first blood when he sunk a shot from the defence.

The Store men checked fiercely but could not follow the pace set by their opponents. Armstrong, Macdonald, Swartz and Chesler, scored in succession and with Art Wasd doing steller work on defence held the C.D.S. team to 3 points, a basket and a free throw both scored by French.

In the second half Howie Macdonald went back to his position at centre and Vern Armstrong fell back on defence for the Clothiers. The change apparently worked wonders for both men, as Macdonald ran wild on the floor, sinking ten baskets and Armstrong accounting for four.

Stars for C.D.S.

Bob French and Freddy Stanley combined for 6 points for the C.D.S. squad bringing their total to 9 while the opposition played clever combination to pile up a total of 61 points.

For the winners, Howie Macdonald stood out as the leading scorer, the rangy centre bagging 26 markers as his contribution to the cause. He was ably assisted by Swartz with 15 points and Vern Armstrong and Chesler with 10 each.

The entire losing team played hard but French and Stanley looked to be their best, accounting for all their team's tallies.

The teams:

Graftons — Forward, Macdonald, Swartz; centre, Armstrong; defence, Chesler, Ward.

Canadian Department Stores—Forward, Gamble, Stanley; centre, French; defence, Bennett, King.

26-15 Win for C.G.E.

In the second struggle of the evening, C.G.E. tangled with the Chevrolet Motors and came through with a 26-15 victory. This tussle was much more interesting than the previous game from a spectator's viewpoint, as both squads were evenly matched and fought hard for the decision.

The C.G.E. quintet led by Osterland and Greenlaw played a more finished game and aided by clever combination by their forwards, were leading at the half way mark 18-6. Jimmy Greenlaw accounted for 9 of these markers and Osterland for 6. McLeish and Jones were the other scorers.

The Car men were unable to get their combination functioning and when they did have the ball, were unable to locate the basket with any regularity. Laing, Broadley and Ashmore however, managed to sink the leather once.

Heavy Checking

Starting the final session, play was fast and both teams were checking every dangerous rush to a standstill. The car men were having more of the play and Laing ran in two baskets and a single on a free throw, putting the Chevrolet gang right in the running again.

However, McLeish and Greenlaw combined nicely, Greenlaw scoring and a moment later McLeish scored a single on a free throw.

Laing and Broadley came right back to score a basket each for the Chevs. but Greenlaw and Osterland closed the tallying with two more baskets, giving the C.G.E. team the game 26-15.

Both aggregations played clever basketball and the checking was heavy, preventing any open attacks.

For the Electrics, Greenlaw and Osterland carried the scoring burden with 13 and 9 points to their credit respectively.

The losers provided stubborn opposition and Laing kept them in the fight with 9 points. He was followed by Broadley with four and Ashmore with two.

The teams:

C.G.E.—Forwards, McLeish, Greenlaw, Jones; centre, Osterland; defence, Dickson, Cameron.

Chevrolet—Forwards, Magee, Laing centre, Broadley; defence, Ashmore, Reynolds.

Referee—Joe Cooper.

Striblings Ready For Title "Parley"

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(C.P.)—A shroud of silence enveloped the great heavyweight muddle to-day while all concerned waited the arrival of W. L. (Young) Stribling and his manager Pa' Stribling, the key men in the question of who will fight whom for what championship. The Striblings were due to arrive this evening to get the conferences started all over.

No matter who may fight or where next summer's championship battle may take place, it seems certain that Stribling will be one of the men in the ring. Jack Schmeling barred in New York, the Madison Square Garden management began to move yesterday in the direction indicated by the State Athletic Commission, toward a battle between Stribling and Jack Sharkey, the winner to be recognized as heavyweight champion. At the same time, Nate Lewis, Chicago stadium match-maker, went about his preparations for signing the Georgian to meet Schmeling in Chicago.

ROBINS BOOKED FOR 31 GAMES

Flatbushers Will Visit Cuba For Five Games, Play Yanks on April 11 and 12.

PRE-SEASON TRAINING.

NEW YORK, January 8. — The Brooklyn Robins almost succeeded in matching the Yankees' spring exhibition of 33 games. The Flatbushers have decided to play thirty-one contests, which gives the Ruppert forces a majority of two. The fact that five of the Robins' settos will be staged in Cuba's fair isle, however, gives them a trifle the better of it geographically, if not numerically.

Uncle Wilbert's almost-champions of 1930 will open their pre-season hostilities with the Cincinnati Reds at Tampa, Fla., on March 8, and will close their preliminary ball tossing with the Yankees at Ebbets Field on April 12.

Other major league aggregations to be met by the Brooklynites are the Boston Braves, the Philadelphia Phillies and Athletics and the champion St. Louis Cards. Last and least, the bookings call for a clash with the bearded nine of the House of David. This show will be put on at Clearwater, the Robins' training camp.

It's a Family Affair.

The series in Havana, Cuba, will be wholly a family affair, the Robin squad being split into two factions for these five games. The Cuban trip which takes in the period from March 21 to March 25 inclusive, was made possible through the endeavors of one Julio Blanco Herrera, who owns the Tropical Stadium, where the ball playing will be conducted.

In lieu of Senor Herrera's failure to provide outside opposition to the Flatbush nine, he has agreed to present any member of the Robins' flock, who knocks the ball over the fence, with $1,000. The aforesaid fence is said to be 396 feet from the home platter, so it appears more than likely that that $1,000 is not going to change hands or pocketbooks.

The climax of the Robins' spring fantasies will, of course, be the two tussles with the Yankees in Flatbush ball yard on April 11 and 12. By that time both these pennant aspirants ought to be sufficiently warmed up for their major campaigns.

FAMOUS KNUCKLE BALL OF MAJOR FAME

There is no more puzzling delivery in baseball than the knuckle ball of which Ed. Rommell, the Philadelphia club veteran is the undoubted master. Rommell who mastered the art when the majors banned the spitball, gives some idea how he holds the ball when in the act of throwing the fooler. Rommell was once with Newark in the International League.

JUNIOR RIVALS TO CLASH HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Peterboro Hockey Club Juniors and St. John's Billed For Hectic Struggle.

BOTH CONFIDENT.

Result Will Have Considerable Effect Upon Ultimate Group Leadership.

The hockey battle the fans have been looking for will be staged at Brock Street Rink to-morrow night when Peterborough's two Junior outfits, Peterborough Hockey Club and St. John's, will clash in a scheduled Junior O.H.A. fixture which will have a good deal to say about the final settlement of the group race. At present, St. John's and Campbellford are out in front by reason of each having won a game without a loss, while the young Petes having been defeated last night by the Havelock-Norwood Combines, need a win tomorrow night to pull up even with their local rivals.

The fact that the Saints trimmed the Combines here 5 to 2 while the latter won from Peterborough Hockey Club, 4 to 3, means nothing so far as tomorrow night's game is concerned. The Peterborough Juniors are full of confidence that they can break a long losing streak at the expense of St. John's, and they will go into Friday night's test sure that the experience gained last night will enable them to upset the Saints. The Red and White team are equally cocky about the result and expect to increase their lead by a win over Jimmy McMartin's youngsters. There is keen rivalry between the two local Junior O.H.A. aggregations and the game should be as hot and exciting as anything scheduled for Brock Street Rink this season. Both teams are in good shape and rarin' to go.

The game will get under way at 8.15 o'clock sharp and with popular prices prevailing should attract the biggest crowd of the year, both outfits having plenty of friends.

The group standing is as follows:—

St. John's	1	0	1
Norwood-Havelock	1	1	1
Peterborough H. C.	0	1	0
Lakefield	0	1	0

WESTBROOKE RINK BEATS MEDD 11-10 IN FEATURE CURLING TILT

Sets Precedent on Local Ice By First Victory in 28 Starts.

"Southpaws" Going Strong.

The outstanding game at the local curling rink, in last night's schedules, was that skipped successfully by Charlie Westbrooke against S. T. Medd In their 11-10 victory the Westbrooke rink established a precedent, in so much as the members of this rink have been playing together for three consecutive years, and this constitutes their first win in 28 starts. "It is little wonder that No. 8 nearly tore the roof off," knowingly remarked Herb Martin. The rink is composed of Louis Yeates, Reg. Turner, Chris. Graham and Skip Westbrooke. They are being heartily congratulated on all sides to-day by their friends and, confidentially speaking, they have received many messages of congratulation from outside curling centres! Charlie Westbrooke's wishbones kind of upset the "Major."

A large crowd followed the game through to its conclusion, and enjoyed every end that was played.

The "southpaws"—"Benny" Chesler and Tommy Ashby, had things all their own way, while the new huddle system of Bill Campbell's made quite a hit with No. 8.

Fitzgerald beat Penrose to the tune of 14—9, and he has decided that if business interferes with curling, his new slogan will be "close early."

The "Grandpa's"—Harry Foote, George Hall and J Penrose, appeared to be overtrained. It just wasn't their night.

The results were:

Seymour	15	Foote	9
Turner	7	Cairns	12
Fitzgerald	14	Penrose	9
Hall	9	Martin	16
Medd	10	Westbrooke	11
Clegg	12	Campbell	16

The draw for to-night's schedule game which commences at 7.45 is:—

Henry vs. Sutton.
Wiley vs. Green.
Morrow vs. Fraser.
Sedgwick vs Dobbin.
Oke vs. Mayneord.
Howden vs. Donaldson.

Henry Blade of the Ottawa Curling Club dropped in to see Herb Martin this morning, and issued a personal invitation for two of the local rinks to participate in their granite bonspiel, which is to be held in the Capital City, in the first week of February, during the Winter Fair. It is quite probable the invitation will be accepted. Incidentally this is the first granite bonspiel which the Ottawa Club has ever staged, former 'spiels having been played with the "irons."

Intermediates Playing At Port Hope To-night

The Peterborough Intermediates journey to Port Hope this evening to play a game postponed from Monday night. The Ontarios are reputed to have a strong sextet led by that redoubtable defence star, Stan Corsett. Society Hears Talk On Carrie Jacobs Bond

STIRLING, Jan. 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—A fine musical program in charge of Miss Smith was given on Monday evening in St. Andrew's Church, when Mrs. Harper Rollins gave a talk on the life of Carrie Jacobs Bond.

Carrie Jacob Bond has written melodies into which she poured her life story. Hers are true heart songs, she has said that but for her poverty she would never have been able to have written the songs that brought her such success. After the publication of "The Perfect Day," she gradually became more independent financially. She has been referred to as the James Whitcomb Riley of the world of song and melody. Her voice is the voice of humanity, she had written her heart songs through tears.

Her following compositions were given following the story of her life: "Shadows," duet, Mrs. A. Murduff and Alex Mathan; "Just a Weary'in For You," William Dermoty; "Is Yo? Yo Is," Phyllis Mitchell; "Sandman," lullaby, Olga Tulloch; "The Perfect Day," chorus, Emma Allen, W. Morton, O. Tulloch and May Johnston.

Other instrumental numbers were much enjoyed and included: violin and piano duet, T. Furnival and Blanche Hadley, "Angel's Serenade" and "Traumbi"; piano solo, Charles Allen; mandolin solo, James Mitchell, "Blue Bonnets Over the Border"; mouth organ solo, A. Scott, "Danny Boy"; guitar duet, Rosa Spry and Ray Williams, "When It's Moonlight on the Rockies," and "Drifting and Dreaming."

Charles Allan, piano and T. Furnvial, violin, accompanied all the songs.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of R. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The wheat market again gave a good account of itself yesterday and with the exception of a mid-session dip when prices fell away about ½ cent under the previous close, prices were mostly higher higher. These houses with Continental connections were in the market and were picking up wheat in a quiet manner especially on the dips, which finally took the slack out of the market. During the late trading the market advanced to new highs on the movement, mainly due to the upturn in July wheat which again was based on the strength in corn.

Offerings were not particularly heavy but increased on the extreme bulges. Local sentiment is becoming more friendly and the great majority of the trade are working for some upturn, but are not getting much assistance from the outside, especially in the way of export sales.

There was a moderate trade in export overnight and plenty of bids were received at about half cent under the market close Tuesday. The demand for cash wheat was only moderate with a little better tone to one—Northern and two Northern in a small way, and odd lots of these grades traded at 1-8 to ¼ better. There was a good inquiry for some toughs at ½ to one cent better, but offerings generally were light. Flour trade continues very quiet for both domestic and export accounts.

Liverpool closed firm being ¾ to 1 1-8 higher while Buenos Aires was ⅛ to 3-8 lower at mid-day, from the close Monday. Country marketings of wheat Tuesday were 306,000 bushels, as against 265,000 a year ago. Winnipeg futures closed 3-8 to ½ higher.

Coarse Grains—These markets were extremely quiet yesterday with practically nothing going on. There was a fair inquiry from the east for certain grades of barley but no business was confirmed. The futures markets held steady and while there was no business there was no demand and very little selling pressure. Oats closed unchanged to 1-8 lower. Barley ¼ lower and Rye 1-8 higher.

Flax—This market continues firm with very little coming out and trade volume small, and generally featureless.

Liverpool due 3-8 higher based on Winnipeg.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 40 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Jane's heart stood still as she saw the baby which had shared her escape from the Kincaid. It was not her own—not the son of Tarzan! When she recovered consciousness she cried in anguish to her rescuer, the Swede this was not mine!" The Swede's blue eyes took: "Where is my baby? You know that stretched in surprise. "Not yours?" he said. "I tink he belong to you—there vas no other kid!"

Through her bitter tears of disappointment dawned a hope in Lady Greystoke's heart—perhaps some miracle had occurred to snatch her baby from Rokoff's hands at the last instant before the Kincaid sailed from England. Presently the infant began to bounce up and down in the Swede's arms, leaning forward with little hands outstretched toward her. She gathered the baby to her breast.

Again they took up their flight through the wilderness, days following nights in tortuous slowness. Little by little, through his unfailing kindliness and sympathy, Jane came to see the nobility of character beneath the Swede's rough exterior. One day word reached them through a native woman that Rokoff was but a few marches behind them. On up the broad Ugambi River the fugitives fled.

At its headwaters they abandoned their canoe and took to the jungle. Here, on the second day, the baby fell ill with fever. Jane was in despair, so deeply had the child now claimed her affections. "Vust a mile is a friendly village," said the Swede. "You go—ahead. I try to lead Russian off your trail. Dot is all ve can do now. Take my rifle, you may need him. Gude-by and gude luck, lady."

OLD DOCTRINES ARE RE-AFFIRMED

very grave crime is to be noted, venerable brethren, which regards the taking of the life of the offspring hidden in the mother's womb. Some wish it to be allowed and left to the will of the father, or the mother; others say it is unlawful unless there are weighty reasons which they call by the name of medical, social, or eugenic.

Under Laws of State.

"Because this matter falls under the penal laws of the state by which the destruction of the offspring begotten, but unborn is forbidden, these people demand that the classification which in one form or another they defend be recognized by the public law and in no way penalized.

"There are those moreover, who ask that the public authority provide aid for these death dealing operations, a thing which, sad to say, everyone knows is of frequent occurrence in some places." Such an act for "medical and therapeutic" reasons, the encyclical says, "However we may pity the mother whose health and even life is gravely imperilled by the performance of the duty allotted to her by nature, nevertheless, what could ever be a sufficient reason for excusing in any way the direct murder of the innocent? This is precisely what we are dealing with here.

"Whether inflicted upon the mother or upon the child it is against the precepts of God and the law of nature: 'thou shalt not kill'; the life of each is equally sacred and no one has the power, not even the public authority ,to destroy it. It is of no use to appeal to the right of taking away life for here it is a question of the innocent, whereas that right has regard only to the guilty.

"Nor is there here a question of defense by bloodshed against an unjust aggressor (for who would call an innocent child an unjust aggressor?) Again there is not question here of what is called the 'law of necessity,' which could even extend to the direct killing of the innocent.

"Upright and skillful doctors strive most praiseworthyily to guard and preserve the lives of both mother and child. On the contrary, those show themselves most unworthy of the noble medical profession who encompass the death of one or the other through a pretense at practice in medicine or through motives of misguided pity."

The Pope's advice to the young is "choose a partner well." He advocates state aid for mothers, commenting however, "we are sorry to note that not in frequently nowadays it happens that through a certain inversion of true order of things a ready and bountiful assistance is provided for the unmarried mother and illegitimate offspring (who, indeed, must be helped in order that greater evil may be avoided) which is denied to legitimate mothers or given sparingly, almost grudgingly."

Contains 16,000 Words.

The encyclical contains 16,000 words and is dated December 31, 1930. Translations in English, Italian, French, German and Spanish were issued simultaneously with the original latin text for the first time in the history of the papacy. The document is divided into three sections, first, covering the dignity of Christian wedlock, second, errors opposed to Christian wedlock, and third, remedies for overcoming these errors. It is in the middle section that the pontiff, is most vigorous and emphatic.

"To-day, alas," he said, "not secretly or under cover, but openly with all sense of shame put aside now by word, again by writing, by theatrical productions of every kind by romantic fiction, by amorous, frivolous, novels, by cinematographics portraying in vivid scenes, in addresses broadcast by radio telephoning, in short by all inventions of modern science the sanctity of marriage is trampled upon and derided.

Anglican Viewpoint.

London, Jan. 8. (CP)—References to birth control, in the pope" encyclical to-day recalled the resolution on birth control adopted after such discussion, last August, by the Lambeth Conference of Bishops, representing Anglicanism the world over. The bishops did not entirely condemn birth control because they believed there might be extenuating, or in some cases justifying, circumstances.

Their resolution said the matter must be decided on Christian principles, where there was a clearly felt moral obligation to limit or avoid parenthood. The resolution stressed the duty of parenthood as the chief glory of marriage, and a privilege involving the exercise of discipline and sacrifice.

The resolution also condemned propaganda treating with the control of conception as a way of meeting unsatisfactory social and economic conditions "which ought to be changes by the influence of Christian opinion.

LABORITE GOVT'S

asked why the Conservatives did not approve of the scheme of responsible government with safeguards proposed by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, leaving the details to be worked out afterwards, he remarked.

"When I give my assent to a proposition I must know what that proposition actually is," Lord Peel declared, echoing the remarks of Sir Samuel. "I do not wish to pin myself to a proposition unless I understand all its implications, because if our word is given it will be carried out at any cost."

"It is because I am so firm a believer in the good faith of my country in carrying out its obligations and pledges of whatever sort that I am rather slow to give them."

Peel Analyses Sapru Plan.

Lord Peel analyzed the Sapru scheme, which had been accepted by Lord Reading on behalf of British Liberals. He pointed out what he asserted were practical difficulties in the way of its success. It meant the introduction at the centre of the same form of dyarchy which had been so much criticized in the Indian provinces, he said.

Conservatives had no desire to approach any scheme in a spirit of captious criticism, Lord Peel declared. They merely asked the pragmatic question, Will it work? He emphasized he was not opposed to any particular solution of the problem. "I exclude no solution," he said, "but I submit that no scheme is a solution unless the many problems and baffling difficulties have been in the main mastered, forged and hammered out into a working whole.

"The Conservatives have been invited to put the coping stone on the edifice," Lord Peel went on. "I am very proud to be invited to that honor. I would be very proud to feel that we are able to put a coping stone on the edifice. All we want is to be assured that the foundations of the buildings are well and truly, harmoniously, laid."

From the ruling Princes came two remarkable pleas.

Sir Mahommand Ismail, Prime Minister of the State of Mysore, declared that the success or failure of the conference depended on the measure of responsibility afforded at the centre. "Let Britain give generously, with faith and courage, and secure the happiness and goodwill of the people of India," he pleaded.

The Maharajah of Bikanir, who represented India in the Imperial War Cabinet and is a former Chancellor of the Chamber of Princes, said that at least 75 per cent of the Native States would come immediately into the Indian Federation and more would follow shortly afterwards.

"Neither British India nor the States should be treated as infants, nor kept in leading strings," the Maharajah declared. "The desire of the British Government to retain her position as grandmother should cease."

Who was loving, kind and true.
Whose smile was as dear as the sunshine,
That some one, dear father, was you.

IN MEMORIAM

BRADSHAW—In loving memory of my faithful husband and a loving father, Wesley Bradshaw, who departed this life one year ago today, Jan. 8, 1930.

In a graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the snow gently falls,
Lies the one we loved so dearly,
In his silent lonely grave,
Peaceful be your sleep, Dear Wesley.
It is sweet to breathe your name
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same,
You shall never be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade,
Our loving hearts shall always linger,
Around the grave where you were laid,
Though broken the tie, 'tis fastened on high,
Where God, in his infinite love,
Now bids us look up, and rejoice in hope,
Of a glorious reunion above.

Ever remembered by wife and your little son, Joe.

HIGHER COPPER PRICES EXPECTED

Month End Statistics Awaited With Considerable Interest By Speculators.

MORE GOLD PRODUCTION.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8. (Special to Examiner.)—Trading was at a reduced rate on the mining market to-day, but practically all prices were firm at the higher levels and some scattered advances over last night's closing quotations also were in evidence. Though a good part of the trading still is attributed to professional interests, public interest is reported around the street to be showing improvement. A technical reaction if general participation develops slower than expected is possible, but a return to the depressed conditions of October and November is not anticipated by mining followers.

Base Metal issues appear to have joined in the upward movement to some extent, strength in copper stocks being credited to a rumor that an advance in price of the metal is on the cards for within the next few weeks. Month end statistics, which would be out any day now, are awaited with considerable interest, but for the present uncertainty still surrounds the situation. According to New York advices to-day second hand offerings of copper for January and February delivery are made at 10.25 cents a pound, a quarter cent below the official domestic situation from preliminary estimates it appears as though Canada has definitely succeeded the United States in second place among world gold producers early figures from across the border estimate 1930 production there at $41,000,000, a decline from $42,514,300 in 1929 and $44,335,000 in 1928. Canadian official estimates made at Ottawa claim 2,098,766 ounces valued at $43,195,353.

An interesting feature of the current monthly market letter of Johnson and Ward, which deals with "Canada's place among the gold producers" is an appeal to the various governments to stimulate the gold mining industry of the Dominion." Governments concerned with gold mining might well consider the removal wherever possible of existing obstacles, such as taxes, and the requirements of prospector of such as assessment work, in order that the greatest impetus might be given to the opening up of new gold areas."

Reference is made to the policy of Nova Scotia in assisting in the cost of sinking shafts for gold mine development and also to the opening up of large areas in northern Ontario of the provincial government recently for stalking and prospecting "no valid objection could be raised from other metal interests to favors conferred on gold mining in Canada, for in nearly every other direction world conditions do not warrant increased production for the time being.

A great opportunity is open for Canada in development during the coming years of her immense gold resources," the article concludes.

RUSSIAN OIL
If you are troubled with Constipation or any kindred ailment, take RUSSIAN OIL. It acts merely as a lubricant—is not habit-forming nor forceful—does not gripe or pain. Many digestive troubles are helped by it. But all Oils are not the same. Firstly, Oil from Russia is superior to all others, and even in that there are many grades. Secondly, to be right, Oil must have the right viscosity, or body. Thirdly, the right specific gravity or weight; and finally, freedom from taste, odor, and color. Often an Oil may look all right, but may not measure up to ALL of these requirements. If you want the Best, come to us, and get a Bottle of our RUSSIAN OIL. It costs 50c for a 16-oz. NOT GUILTY PLEA ENTERED BY TWO IN POLICE COURT

Three Suspects Wanted By Police For Daring Hold-up Now Arrested.

REMANDED ONE WEEK.

Dundas is Believed to Have Made Statement to the Police.

With the arrest of Carl Smith, 23, who is alleged by police to have aided Gordon Dundas in the hold-up early Monday evening of G. W. Johnston, and Gordon Smith, 19, his brother, police claim they have in custody all those connected with the crime.

Carl Smith was arrested at 4:45 yesterday afternoon by Constable John Naples in Peter Goselin's tobacco store on George street. His brother Gordon, who is charged with having assisted the hold-up men's escape, was apprehended last night at the Regent Taxi stand where he is employed as a driver.

Charged with robbery with violence in Police Court this morning, Carl Smith pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week. His brother also pleaded not guilty to being an accessory after the crime and was remanded to the same date.

Has Made Statement

Police state that Gordon Dundas, who is serving out a sentence of fifteen days in Cobourg jail for drunkenness, has made a signed confession, in which he admits fully his part in the hold-up. In the confession, police say, Dundas claims that Carl Smith was with him when the attack was made on the aged Johnston, and that Gordon Smith helped them escape by driving them in a

LINDSAY POLICE ARREST FIVE MEN

Police Constable Nabs Five Found Hanging Around Brewery Warehouse.

TAKEN TO TORONTO.

LINDSAY, Jan. 9. (Examiner Correspondence).—Constable Hodgson of the local police force followed up his recent capture of three Toronto burglars with tools by arresting five more Toronto men at four o'clock this morning and placing them safely in the cells.

During past few days evidence was disclosed of attempts to break into the brewery warehouse. The police have been on the lookout and this morning Constable Hodgson came across a man standing beside a car with its engine running near the Queen Street Church which is across from the warehouse.

He promptly handcuffed the man and tied him to the running board of the car. He next arrested the other four who were near the warehouse who claimed they were looking for a wrench.

The quintette gave their names as Robert Ewans, 209 Jarvis street, Toronto; Ernie Tyrrell, 7 Gloucester street, Toronto; Norman Gadway, 160 Jarvis street, Toronto; Alfred Hale, 265 Church street, Toronto; Allan Gurd, 344 Church street, Toronto.

Toronto police were notified of the arrest and an officer arrived today to take the men back to the city, where they will face a charge of stealing a Buick car.

The local police have not preferred any charge against them.

COPP DESCRIBES NORTHERN TRIP TO KIWANIS CLUB

Canoe Trip Down Rivers of Greater Clay Belt is Ably Portrayed.

RICH IN MINERALS.

Picturesque Description is Given of the Moose River and Settlements.

A canoe trip down the rivers of the Greater Clay Belt into James Bay has its interesting features as well as its thrills, so thought Leo Copp, former Kiwanian and County School Inspector of Peterborough, in an address at the Kiwanis luncheon at the Empress Hotel this noon.

After remarks from Harry Boyle, a welcome to the Lindsay guest tendered by Carl Browne, and the introduction of the guest speaker by J. B. Nelson, Mr. Copp briefly stated that he would take the Kiwanians on an imaginary trip from the Timagami district northward. This would extend north of the Sudbury mining area and North Bay, up the Lesser Clay Belt and over the height of land down to James Bay.

In 1916 and 1922 fires swept through the south side of the height of land. The land was packed as close as three-inch spruce and fir trees could grow, and the soil was water-soaked muck. Even if the land were to be cleared, it would be totally unfit for farming.

The Greater Clay Belt to the north of the height, however, is a great mining area, claimed the speaker. It stretches around James Bay; the Pre-Cambrian rock exhibits gold in the Sudbury district, gradually changing to a copper-gold in the Rouyn fields in Quebec.

SPINNING TIE-UP DRAWING CLOSER

Mills Ordered Closed Jan. 17 Unless Dispute With Weavers Settled.

POLICIES DIFFER.

MANCHESTER, England January 9 (C.P.). — The Central Committee of the Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers' Association to-day advised affiliated members to close their mills on Saturday, January 17, unless a labor dispute with weavers has been settled in the meantime. If carried into effect the recommendation would mean the lockout of 200,000 workers.

The textile industry has been in difficulties for weeks because of the weavers' refusal to accept the mill-owners' demand that each man now operating four looms take over twice that number. The owners have offered an increase in pay amounting to about $10.00 a week, but the weavers contend that the system would throw many out of work.

Five thousand weavers went on strike last week in nine mills at Burnley when the owners insisted upon installing the new system, and since then it had been feared that the strike might extend throughout the industry. Conferences looking toward a settlement have been fruitless.

Relief Meeting Will Be Held To-night To Form Voluntary Central Committee

For the purpose of organizing a consolidated body of all the relief and benevolent organizations in the city to work in conjunction with the Central Charity Board, a meeting has been called for eight o'clock this evening in the City Council Chambers. His Worship Mayor Roland Denne will preside, and wishes to stress the importance of two members of each organization being present.

At a large meeting held on Wednesday evening, the matter was fully discussed, when it was resolved that the meeting endorse the principle of a voluntary central organization to work in co-operation with the Central Charity Board.

MAJOR BURWASH, GREAT EXPLORER, DECLARES CANADA'S NORTHLANDS ABOUND IN NATURAL RESOURCES

Discoverer of Franklin, Relics Addresses Large Audience in Collegiate.

VAST MINERAL WEALTH.

Address is Accompanied By Slides on Recent Exploration Trips.

"Exploration in Northern Canada and the Search for the Franklin Remains," was the subject of an address by Major L. T. Burwash, geologist, scientist and explorer of the Yukon and Northwest Territories Branch of the Department of the Interior, before a capacity audience in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening.

In briefly introducing the subject, Major Burwash stated that the Northwest Territories comprised about one-third of the total area of Canada. He thanked the people for investing money in this and other expeditions; he hoped that further work would not prove too expensive.

Great Natural Resources

The natural resources of this northerly district were pictured as being extensive. A great agricultural area, an extension of the Peace River Belt and some of the most fertile land in Canada, stretches northward from the Northwest Territories boundary 300 miles, and east and west 500 miles. This excellent land, the speaker said, is at present very sparsely settled, but promises the sustenance of a large population in the future.

In the Mackenzie River district are extensive mineral and oil deposits. Valuable discoveries were made last year, and this area will become the wealthiest mining district in Canada. Copper ore has been found and this is accompanied by favorable geology. Radium ores, comparing very well with that found in the Belgian Congo have been discovered, and may furnish Canada with a copious supply of that precious element.

Valuable sea mammals are abundant in this and more northern regions. Much of our "olive oil" is a very fine grade of seal oil. Other fatty substances from whales, etc., are used for lighting and in the manufacture of soap. The hides of many of these mammals provide a superior grade of leather.

The country provides good grazing lands for caribou and reindeer. The Government is spending large sums of money in re-stocking the area with these animals, and is bringing other species from foreign parts. From the caribou's skin are made the finer grades of leathers, such as those used in gloves.

Eventually Canada will be abundantly repaid by the produce from the Northlands, as money spent in exploring and scientific expeditions is a great investment which will in time

LAD ASSAULTS TEN-MONTH BABY

Mother Rushes Into Apartment on Hearing Cries of Tiny Daughter.

POLICE MAKE ARREST.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9 (C.P.).—A sixteen-year-old boy, Thomas Delaney, was arrested by Ottawa police early this afternoon after a baby girl of ten months, living in an apartment house near the Delaney home, had been criminally attacked.

The infant had been undressed in her crib by the assailter, who entered the apartment suite through a window. The mother of the baby was janitoress in the apartment block and was working in a section of the building some distance from her living quarters when the attack was committed. As she neared the room where she had left her infant daughter asleep, the mother heard cries of agony and, rushing in, found the baby badly wounded and bleeding profusely.

Detective Jean Tisson, who arrested Delaney, declared blood stains had been found on the boy's clothing.

ONTARIO HYDRO LOSES CHAIRMAN IN C. A. MAGRATH

Announcement of Resignation Comes at Municipal Electric Association Banquet.

IN OFFICE 5 YEARS.

Hope Expressed Premier Will Appoint Successor Immediately.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9.—Announcement of his resignation as chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario was made to-day by Charles A. Magrath.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Municipal Electric Association, Mr. Magrath told of his intentions to resign and expressed the hope that Premier George S. Henry would appoint a successor immediately.

Rumors of Mr. Magrath's retirement from the Board has been current for some time but as recent as three weeks ago had been denied.

Up to the time the chairman made this announcement to-day Premier Henry's office had received no formal resignation. "We may receive a call anytime now," an official told the Canadian Press.

Mr. Magrath was appointed chairman of the commission Sept. 12, 1925.

C. A. Magrath was Mayor of Lethbridge, Alta., in 1901 and was for years identified with irrigation and other engineering enterprises in the Western Provinces. He represented Medicine Hat in the House of Commons from 1908 to 1911 and was appointed a member of the International Waterways Commission in 1911, becoming chariman of the Canadain section three years later. During the war he was a member of the War Trade Board.

Price Mentioned.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9 (C.P.).—The Daily Star says it is predicted at the Ontario Legislature Building, Hon. W. H. Price, at present Attorney General of the Province, will succeed C. A. Magrath, who to-day announced he would resign from the chairmanship of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

INDIAN OFFICERS' TRAINING SCHOOL TO BE REALITY

Will Be Similar to Famous Sandhurst in England, Thomas States.

SPEED UP INDIANISATION.

Mysore Premier Favors Plan But Would Not Completely Abolish British Officer.

LONDON, January 9 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent). — India is to have a Sandhurst to train Indian officers for the Indian Army.

Indianisation (the substitution of Indian for British officers) of the Indian Army has been under way for about ten years. Places are reserved at the Royal Military College at Sandhurst for Indians, but progress is slow. As a corollary to India's new status it is now proposed to speed up Indianization and to establish a Military Training College in India similar to the British Sandhurst.

Practical Steps Planned.

Making this announcement before the Sub-Committee on Defence of the Round-Table Conference to-day Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, said: "My declaration is not a pious wish. Whatever may have been done in the past we sit here dealing with a bigger and wider scheme. When this conference finishes, it will not finish with words and resolutions. Practical steps will be taken to dovetail into a whole the general principles agreed upon."

"If we pass resolutions" Mr. Thomas continued, "it doesn't mean—and I am speaking for the Government—merely shelving things. They mean the establishment of an Indian Sandhurst. They mean to give effect to these ideas and are prepared to give recommendation to the committee." The committee to which Mr. Thomas referred is a committee of experts which it is proposed to establish following the conference.

The secretary for the Dominions observed that the question of defence was too vital to be left to take chances with. The matter of defence should not be jeopardized by experimenting on too wide a scale. Care should be taken to start on a sound foundation but "we all agree that Indianisation of the army is desirable and something to work for."

Two Main Points

Two further points on which Mr. Thomas laid emphasis were:

(1) That the defence of a country is different, and must be considered in an entirely different light from what is usually called law and order."

(2) While it might be possible for a declaration to be made on the principle of what is usually called Indianisation carrying with it a definite recommendation for the establishment of a Sandhurst in In-

Old Austrian Castle Is Destroyed By Fire

SALZBURG, Austria, Jan. 9.—Werfen castle, one of the most imposing sights of its kind in Austria, was virtually destroyed by fire which broke out late last night in the library. The flames were extinguished only after priceless paintings, tapestries, first editions, manuscripts and the valuable furniture in the princely suites were destroyed.

The famous bell in the tower was saved and the walls of the right and left wings remain standing. The old castle was built on a great rock 400 feet high in the year 1027 and at one time was used as a state prison. It is now the property of the Archduke Eugene.

Clarkson Is Remanded, Brockenshire Is 'Fair'

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 9. —(CP)—Harry Clarkson who faces a charge of murder arising out of the fatal shooting of a local police constable some weeks ago was again remanded a week when he appeared in police court today.

Jack Brockenshire, companion of Clarkson and who police say, has confessed to the shooting, is in a serious condition suffering from bullet wounds inflicted when he tried to evade capture. According to reports from the hospital today Brockenshire spent a "fair" night and he is given an even chance of recovery.

Committees Named At First Meeting Of Board Members

Mrs. W. R. Morris, New Head of the Board of Education Has Served For Nine Years on the Body and is Peterborough's First Woman to be Elected to Municipal Office.

F. H. DAWSON CHOSEN HEAD OF FINANCE COMMITTEE E. F. REID, PROPERTY, DR. MOIR SUPERVISION

Inspector Mowat is Appointed as the Board's Representative on the Public Library Board—$25,000 Interim Grant is Sought From Council.

Mrs. W. R. Morris was elected chairman of the Board of Education at the inaugural meeting held last night, for the year 1931, succeeding to the position held for a term of two years by Dr. J. J. Craig. Mrs. Morris thus holds the dual distinction of being the first woman to occupy a civic position in the City of Peterborough, and to be elevated to her present high position on the Board.

In thanking the members for the honour given her by election as chairman, Mrs. Morris recalled the fact that it is just twelve years since she was first elected to the Board, and that she is now entering upon her tenth year of service. "I hope to be able to make good use of my ability and experience, in my present capacity," she stated, adding, "I have seen more chairmen come and go possibly than any one else present but none have given more excellent service in every way than Dr. Craig. His fairness and ability come to me as a challenge, and it will be hard to follow his precepts, but I will do my best."

Mrs. Morris besides serving on the Board of Education, is also very actively engaged in other organizations for the promotion of social and educational welfare, and during the two years when she was absent from the Board, was on the executive of the Ontario Trustees' Association.

James Dutton who was elected to the chairmanship of the Property Committee, declined the honor in favor of E. F. Reid. It was an unusual procedure he said, but in refusing the position, he wished to nominate Mr. Reid.

A motion carried was, "That the Council of the City of Peterborough be asked to furnish an interim grant of $25,000 to provide funds for carrying on the work of the schools until the final estimates are prepared for the year."

It was also decided that A. Mowat, B.A., be appointed to the Public Library Board for the term of three years beginning 1st February, 1931.

MRS. W. R. MORRIS

Elected last night at the inaugural meeting to the chairmanship of the Board of Education for the 1931 term, in succession to Dr. J. J. Craig. CRESWELL TIGHE PLEADS GUILTY

Man is Remanded For One Week—Was Charged With Burglary.

ROBBED WARSAW STORE.

Creswell Tighe has confessed the burglariy on Tuesday night of Payne and Darling's general store in Warsaw. He made the confession last night in his cell in the county goal to Provincial Constable David Sylvester.

He appeared in Police Court this morning at his own request and pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary. He was remanded one week for sentence. On his previous appearance he had entered a plea of not guilty; and to police he had offered an alibi to show that he was not near the Warsaw store late Tuesday night.

In his statement to the police last night he directed Constable Sylvester to place where he had hidden the money from the safe in the store. He said that he had thrown it into the corner of an outbuilding at his home early Wednesday morning as he saw the police surrounding the place.

Constable Sylvester went to Warsaw immediately following Tighe's confession. He found the money in the exact place the young burglar had named. The money amounted to $70 in bills of small denomination.

Complications arose in the unraveling of the burglary yesterday when Payne and Darling informed Provincial police that some $480 had been stolen from their safe in the burglary. On Wednesday the merchants had set the amount at $200.

Tighe claims that the money he tossed into the out-building was the full amount that he obtained from the safe.

Score Of Scholars Drafted Encyclical

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 9. (CP)—A score of scholars who read, write and think Latin collaborated in making a rough draft of Pope Pius XI's 16,000 word encyclical.

It required two solid months for the research division at the Vatican to complete the document, which will go down in the history of the church of Rome as 'casti connubii', or 'of chaste wedlock'.

In beginning the encyclical the Pope outlined to his staff the tone of each point to be included, and a mass of material was gathered, digested and presented to the Pontiff who then further instructed his aides by more specific comments.

THREE DIE IN PLANE CRASH.

MIAMI, Florida, January 9 (C.P.). — Three men, tentatively identified by air meet officials as James Riddel, 23, Chicago, Bob Smalley, of Chicago, and Harry A. Ware, also of Chicago, were killed instantly, and an unidentified man was critically injured in an airplane accident at the All-American Air Meet here to-day.

Stowaways' Plot Foiled at Dock

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (C.P.). — Eight stowaways—a third of the passengers of the Belgian steamer Emile Franquie — and two ship stewards were held on Ellis Island to-day in what immigration authorities said was a daring conspiracy to smuggle aliens into the country.

All smartly garbed, the stowaways—six Italian men and 2 women—strolled down the gangplank when the ship docked yesterday after a 15-day run from Antwerp. Dashing toward a large automobile which had just drawn up at the end of the pier, the stowaways were intercepted and arrested. The car drove away.

TRAPPED IN FIRE RESCUE TOO LATE TO SAVE CRIPPLE

Nineteen Year Old Niece Acts Part of Heroine as Home Burns.

AT STURGEON FALLS.

Cause of Tragedy Laid to Overheated Stove—Girl Burned.

STURGEON FALLS, January 9.—Jean Stonge a cripple for the last three years, died at 7 o'clock last night in the Brebeouf Hospital here of terrible burns received when fire gutted the frame dwelling of his brother, Arthur Stonge, on Arthur Street.

The victim and his 19-year-old niece, Palmere Stonge, daughter of Arthur, were asleep in the upstairs apartments of the house when the fire broke out about 6.50 o'clock yesterday morning.

Awakened from her sleep by the smell of smoke, Miss Stonge rushed downstairs in her nightclothes to find the flames rapidly eating their way up the wall. In her bare feet she ran out and called for help to get her uncle out before the house became an inferno.

Crawls to Window.

Returning to the house she fought her way through fire and smoke to her uncle's bedroom. Jean Stonge had crawled as far as the window, but he was unable, on account of his infirmity, to pull himself up. His niece broke the glass of the window which looked out on the flat roof of the kitchen at the rear of the house. Two boys climbed up to the kitchen roof and pulled out Miss Stonge and her uncle just as Fire Chief McCafferty and the reels arrived.

Stonge was in a pitiable state, terribly burned about the head, face and body. He had no clothing except for a bandage around one foot. Fire Chief McCafferty carried him to a neighbor's house and from there to the hospital. Quite conscious in spite of his agony, he asked for a priest. He succumbed to his injuries ealy last evening, remaining conscious almost to the last.

Miss Stonge, who made the heroic attempt to save her crippled uncle, was only slightly burned by the flames.

The fire originated when a box stove in the downstairs apartment became overheated.

Arthur Stonge, brother of the dead man and owner of the house, was not at home at the time. He had departed for his place of employment about an hour earlier.

Campbellford Calls Uxbridge Minister

GLENARM, Jan. 9.—At the meeting of the Presbytery of Lindsay a unanimous call from the congregation of Campbellford was presented to Rev. J. C. Robinson of Uxbridge. A large delegtion was present from Campbellford to prosecute the call and the translation was granted.

Playing With Lions Campaign Stunt

GLASGOW, Scotland, Jan. 9, (CP)—In breathless excitement a big crowd last night watched John Clark, Labor M.P., from Maryhill division, Glasgow, enter a menagerie cage in which were two lions and tigers and pass several minutes in company with the animals.

The beasts showed a great aversion to his presence. Clarke's stunt is part of a campaign he is conducting against a bill in Parliament which he contends would put a stop to performances of wild animals, thus depriving hundreds of men of work. It was his object to show that animals can be trained without cruelty.

MINERS' STRIKE TO END MONDAY

Men Expected to Return to Work Following Yesterday's Decisions.

GUARD AGAINST HITCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 9 (C.P.).—Resumption of work in the South Wales coal field on Monday is confidently expected, following a meeting of the miners' leaders yesterday, at which the basis for discussion between the owners and the workers was approved.

The new formula, it is understood, provides for reopening the pits on the 7½ hours day without a reduction in wages, pending a new agreement and the establishment of a conciliation board with an independent chairman, to negotiate the terms of the new agreement.

A conference of owners and miners will be held to-day at Cardiff and the Government is expected to see to it that no further hitch occurs. At a meeting of mine owners and men yesterday the operators took occasion to brand Prime Minister MacDonald's speech of yesterday, in which he placed a large part of the blame for the coal dispute on owners' shoulders, as astonishing.

The Textile Trade Federation of the northern counties met at Blackburn and decided to support the strikers. This caused fears that the strike might spread throughout the industry.

ARKELL'S ACTION RAISES COMMENT

Livestock Commissioner Not to Resign Till Hon. R. Weir Returns From Brandon.

TOLMIE MENTIONED.

OTTAWA, Jan. 9.—The forthcoming resignation of H. S. Arkell, as Dominion Livestock Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, has aroused much conjecture among the various branches of the department as to what the effect will be. Some interpret the resignation as a development of a difference of opinion with the meat packers as to Mr. Arkells policies in respect to the grading of beef and other meats.

Mr. Arkell when seen declined to make any statement further than to say that his resignation would not be submitted until Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, returned from Brandon where he is attending meetings of Manitoba Livestock Associations.

Many reports are in circulation as to who will succeed Mr. Arkell as Live Stock Commissioner One interesting report is that Hon. S. F. Tolmie, now Premier of British Columbia and long identified with the livestock industry, would resign and accept an important position in the department in which his authority would extend over the Livestock Branch. However, there was no confirmation of this rumor.

MARKET BOARD IS GIVEN PRAISE

Sir W. Clark Claims Its Activities Responsible For British Purchases.

BRITONS INTERESTED.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 9—Largely through the publicising activities of the Empire Marketing Board, a remarkable advance has been seen in the habit of Empire buying in Great Britain during the past year, Sir William Clark, British High Commissioner to Canada, declared here last night.

Sir William spoke at a dinner held by the Eastern Canada Fruit and Vegetable Jobbers' Association which is in convention here.

"I think we shall be able to agree," said Sir William, "that there are not many countries so naturally adapted to help one another in their mutual trade as Great Britain and Canada.

"No doubt our products are partly competitive and that, where it occurs, is a difficulty which has to be squarely and frankly faced; but our trade with one another is also in a large measure complementary and as far as that trade is concerned, success on either side will depend on desire to buy, on efficiency of selling, and, in the last resort, on purchasing power.

Britons were studying the Canadian market vigorously, Sir William said. "I am delighted to find from my own experience," he continued, "how many principals of British firms have recently come out personally to Canada to see how their trade can be increased.

MEDICAL TREATMENT BRINGS NO RELIEF

"My daughter's face and neck were covered with a mass of sores, which our doctor diagnosed as eczema. He prescribed treatment which we tried for two months without relief. The poor child's face had to be swathed in bandages and she was confined to the house. I was about to call in a skin specialist, when I heard how Zam-Buk had healed many sufferers from this dread disease. So I purchased a box of ointment and tablet of soap. After a few days treatment there was a great improvement; day by day the sores disappeared and within a month my daughter's face was entirely cleared of any sign of the terrible disease, without a single scar. I can't say too much of the wonderful healing power of Zam-Buk."—Mrs. H. A., Toronto, Ont.

REV. McMULLEN AT CENTURY MARK

RECALLS FORMER DAYS.

In the sovereign grace and mercy of God I am spared to complete my hundredth year—an age that comparatively few live to see. I have lived under the reign of four British Sovereigns, King William IV, Queen Victoria, Edward VII and George V, with whom and Queen Mary, I had the honor of shaking hands when he and she as Prince and Princess of Wales visited Woodstock.

The century through which I have lived is in respect of invention and general progress the most wonderful century in the history of the world. Of course the first century of the Christian era stands out in unique distinction as the beginning of a new world, recording the incarnation, ministry, mighty works and redeeming death of the Saviour of the world. From that century all official documents, deeds of property and letters of correspondence are dated. But in point of ingenious invention and general progress, the last hundred years are the most wonderful in the history of the world.

No Steamships

When I was a boy there was not a line of steamships sailing the ocean, all ships were driven by wind. There were no railroads in Britain; telegraph, telephones and radioes were not dreamt of. All harvesting was done by hand work.

"I have no recollection of unemployment occurring in my early days. Now it is a widespread malady. No real remedy seems so far to have been found. Numerous palliatives have been adopted. The causes producing it are, I think, mainly a drift of population from the land to the towns and cities, and improved machinery displacing hand work. It is quite true that the market is glutted with overproduction from the farm; yet it is equally true that a small farmer can make a living off his farm."

84 Horses Entered In Grand National

LIVERPOOL, England, Jan. 9—(Canadian Press Cable)—Eighty-four horses are entered in the Grand National Steeplechase to be run over the historic Aintree course of four and a half miles on Friday, March 27, it was revealed yesterday afternoon.

The entries include two former winners, Gregalach, 1929, and Shaun Goilin, 1930. In addition all the top-notchers of the steeplechase brigades of England Ireland are in the lists, along with a goodly proportion of horses that would have little chance in any other race than the greatest of them all, where big fields and gruelling hazards take a terrific toll.

Melleray's Belle and Sir Lindsay, who finished second and third to Shaun Goilin last year, are again entered. Other outstanding candidates are Easter Hero, Bright's Boy, Bally Hanwood, Great Span and Grakle.

The race was worth about $47,000 last year but in 1929, when a record field of 66 started, the race was worth $66,000. It has been run for 91 years.

The Grand National, though its conditions have been re-framed with an eye on the effect of huge sweepstakes, remains the greatest race in the world.

Chevrolet offers six-cylinder performance, greater beauty at lower cost than ever before

. . . and in Addition Roomier Fisher Bodies . . . Greater Comfort . . . New Riding Ease . . . De Luxe Wire Wheels

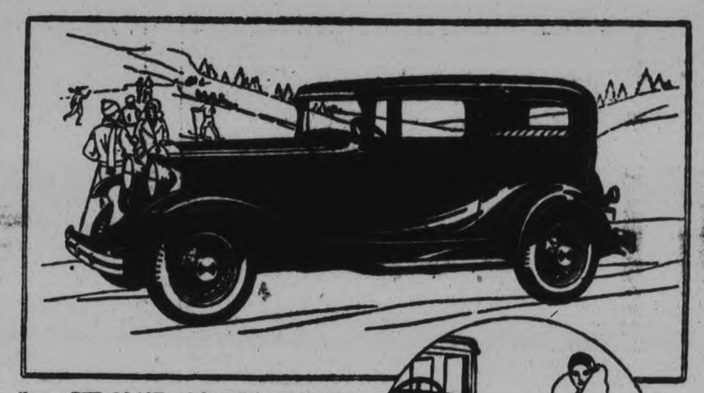
EVERYWHERE the new Chevrolet Six is being shown, people are admiring its new beauty and impressive size. They are talking about the truly remarkable value it offers at its new, low price.

The distinction achieved by the handsome new body lines, de luxe wire wheels and added wheelbase of the new Chevrolet Six is evident. And beneath the hood is a six-cylinder, 50-horsepower motor. The moment you take the wheel we are sure you will be impressed by the difference six cylinders make. It is a pleasure to drive the new Chevrolet because six cylinders are so smooth and quiet and restful.

The new Chevrolet Six is not only the smoothest car in the low price field, but also the most powerful. This accounts for the easy acceleration you will note in traffic . . . the remarkable speed on the straight-away . . . and the ample reserve of power on the hills.

The improved steering gear contributes new ease of operation. A touch of your fingers on the new 3-spoke steering wheel, and you will find that the car responds easily in turning and parking.

We are sure you will be pleased by the riding ease of the new Chevrolet and the comfort of its new Fisher Bodies. Due to the longer wheelbase, the car grips the road firmly at all speeds . . . giving that sense of security which only a big full-size car can provide. The improved springs and Lovejoy shock absorbers smooth out rough roads.



Above—THE COACH—A beautiful, comfortable two-door model. Seats five passengers. Completely appointed throughout. At right—the impressive front view of the car. Radiator grille on sport and de luxe models only.

With the advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have been able to create larger and roomier interiors. The driving compartment is fully insulated . . . lessening engine noise and keeping out winter cold and summer heat. You will appreciate the clear vision in all directions provided by the wider windows and Fisher non-glare windshield.

At new, low prices, the new Chevrolet Six costs exceptionally little to buy. And, as the experience of hundreds of thousands of owners shows, Chevrolet costs no more for operation or upkeep than any other car of comparable quality, regardless of the number of cylinders.

If your idea of motoring enjoyment is expressed in smooth performance, ease of control and riding comfort . . . you will find ten minutes behind the wheel of the new Chevrolet Six a memorable experience. We invite you to see and drive this bigger, finer Six today.

Chevrolet policy has always been one of service to the public . . . The GMAC plan of deferred payments offers the lowest financing charges available . . . and the General Motors Owner Service Policy pledges lasting satisfaction.

COMPLETING THE ORGANIZATION.

The principle of a voluntary central relief organization having been endorsed by a most representative meeting, it should be possible at the second meeting to be held to-night to perfect the organization and set the machinery to work.

The Examiner believes that there will be plenty of scope for the activities of the new committee, which will work in co-operation with the Central Charity Board.

There is an abnormal situation to be dealt with, and something broader than the usual means of handling relief is a necessity.

That is the belief of many other centres which have organized central relief bodies, and there is no reason to think that Peterborough has less need of such an organization than other places that have had to assist their regular relief department by enlisting the co-operation of voluntary organizations and harnessing up the community's desire to help.

To-night's meeting should see the organization launched and the initial steps taken to ensure that there will be an effective agency for the relief of needy families so long as the present conditions prevail, and there is work for such an organization to tackle.

A CORONER'S WARNING.

Dr. Crawford, chief coroner of Toronto, who probably investigates more automobile fatalities than any other official in Canada, has given some very interesting and valuable suggestions as to how motor accidents may be reduced.

In the first place, Dr. Crawford points out that there are too many motorists who are always in a hurry, and that a few minutes extra on the part of some of these drivers would save a number of lives during 1931.

A lot of drivers, too, according to Toronto coroners, forget that they have brakes and keep their hand on their automobile horns.

His advice is that they should keep their feet on the brake and their hands on the steering wheel, stop at stop streets and give pedestrians a chance to cross, while the practice of trying to "beat the red light" also comes under the coroner's fire.

Pedestrians, too, are warned to be more careful, and special stress is placed by Dr. Crawford on the advisability of crossing the street with the green light, instead of flocking across when they feel like it, which is a habit of Peterborough people as well as of Toronto pedestrians.

To parents the advice is given that children should be warned of the danger of playing hockey, skating and coasting on the streets where motor traffic is a constant menace to the safety of the youngsters.

TOO MUCH ADVERTISING.

A service to radio listeners-in has been contributed by Dr. Lee De Forest, retiring president of the Institute of Radio Engineers, in his farewell address to the members of that body in the vigorous warning he sounded against what he described as the "insistent ballyhoo of sales talk on the radio which is consuming the vitals of the organism."

There is a good deal of truth in Dr. De Forest's complaint.

Some of the promoters of commercial broadcasts are reasonable in their attitude; they do not make the mistake of making their advertising obtrusive or boresome, satisfied that the constant association of the name of their product with a worth-while program is the most effective publicity they can obtain.

Unfortunately there are too many of the other kind who seem to think that for every minute of entertainment they contribute to the air programs they should receive at least 60 seconds of advertising—and crude indeed is some of the propaganda they offer.

When it comes to a program of phonograph records interspersed with a mass of extravagant claims on behalf of some commercial product, the public is beginning to get "fed up"—and the reaction, unless the radio industry recognizes the necessity of restraint, will undoubtedly be a setback to broadcasting.

There is too much advertising and too little quality in many of the radio programs of to-day.

PROVINCIAL FINANCES.

The announcement of a provincial deficit is going to make it just that much more difficult for the municipalities to persuade the Ontario Government that the time has come for a lifting of at least a portion of the burden of taxation which the Province has been loading upon the shoulders of municipal governments.

The growth of expenditures in the field of social legislation—and there will be more services of this nature if the findings of the Ross Commission are followed—is a feature that should not escape attention.

In the last fiscal year the Ontario Government spent a sum exceeding $31,000,000, more than 50 per cent. of the whole ordinary expenditures, in what may be called welfare work.

Education alone cost $11,774,000; the prevention of diseases and public health department, $880,000; the bonusing of rural power lines, $1,689,000; public institutions, hospitals and charities accounted for another $8,-095,000; children's aid and protection cost $288,000, while for old age pensions and mothers' allowances the Province spent $6,572,000 and $2,369,000 respectively.

There is no relief in sight from these expenditures except as regards old age pensions which are likely to be taken over by the Federal Government

The gain there is likely, however to be offset by the fact that the public is constantly demanding more service of the same kind, which means either a series of deficits or the finding of new sources of revenue.

RATHER NAIVE.

The proposal of Chairman Legge of the United States Farm Board that short selling be stopped on the wheat markets of the country is not very likely to be adopted, but if it were it would mean a tremendous accession of importance to the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, as undoubtedly the importance and prestige which at present attaches to the Chicago Board of Trade as the chief grain hedging market of the continent would be inherited by the Winnipeg organization.

Mr. Legge, who is a gentleman of considerable importance in the industrial world as head of the International Harvester Company—he is on leave from that enormous concern to serve as chairman of the farm board—has somewhat naive ideas as to the value of short selling. Without means for short selling being provided, it is a complete certainty that the price of flour would be considerably higher than it is under the present system. Millers would be unable to protect themselves effectively against fluctuations in the market price of grain, and it would therefore be necessary to increase their margin of profit.

This is very much like the institution of vessel insurance. Before it became possible to insure cargoes against loss, importing merchants were obliged to collect very large profits to protect themselves against the possibility of complete failure.

There is, of course, an unreasoning prejudice against the speculative short seller. Man instinctively thinks that there is something inherently wicked about selling something that one does not possess nor expect to possess, which is exactly what is done by the short seller of wheat. But the fact is that the speculative short seller performs a most important function. He provides a "cushion" for the market, and he never succeeds in forcing prices below their economic level except, perhaps, sometimes for a very brief period. He prevents the market from being a place of wild fluctuations, selling short when he thinks prices are advancing more rapidly than conditions warrant, and buying back when he believes prices have dropped far enough. Sometimes he makes money, sometimes he loses.

Mr. Legge apparently has some hazy idea of a substitute for short selling, as he admits himself it is desirable that there should be a broad market which cannot be had without short sellers. The continent await with interest his proposal for a substitute.—Border Cities Star.

ONE THING HE MISSED.

Hon. E. J. McMurray, at one time Solicitor-General in the Dominion Government, does not believe in the use of the lash. He said so at Winnipeg when speaking before the Canadian Research Council of Social Agencies. In part he said: "It is beneath our civilization. It is not a deterrent. It brutalizes society and the individual who is punished. It brings about insubordination in institutions. There is nothing to recommend it and it is entirely out of keeping with our times."

That at least possesses the virtue of being an emphatic opinion. There are some pointed statements in this short reference which will bear examination. For instance, this one: "It is beneath our civilization."
